Homer says that cheese formed part of the ample stores found by Ulysses in the cave of the Cyclop Polyphemus. Euripides, Theocritus and other early poets mention cheese. Ludolphus says that excellent cheese and butter were made by the ancient Ethiopians, and Strabo states that some of the ancient Britons were so ignorant that, though they had abundance of milk, they did not understand the art of making cheese.

There is no evidence that any of these ancient nations had discovered the use of rennet in making cheese. They appear to have merely allowed the milk to sour and subsequently to have formed the cheese from the caseous part of the milk after expelling the serum or whey.

As David when too young to carry arms was able to run to the camp with ten cheeses, ten loaves and an ephah of parched corn, the cheeses must have been very small.

ENTERTAIN THEIR FRIENDS.

Mr. and Mrs. John Forgerson entertained a number of friends at a party held at their residence, 23 Summit avenue, North Plainfield, last evening. After a most enjoyable musical program refreshments were served.

MEET NEXT MONTH.

The West End Community Centre will hold its next meeting on September 13.

A Summer Without Nights.

To the summer visitor in Sweden there is nothing more striking than the almost total absence of night. At Stockholm, the Swedish capital, the sun goes down a few minutes before 11 o'clock and rises again four hours later during a greater part of the month of June. But the four hours the sun lies hidden in the frozen north are not hours of darkness. The reaction of his rays as he passes around the north pole makes midnight as light as a cloudy midday and enables one to read the finest print without artificial light at any time during the "night."

Waste Not, Want Not.

The baby kept throwing her rattle on the floor until four-year-old Bobby grew weary with picking it up and refused to do so any longer.

"But, dear, she is the only little sister you have," gently remonstrated his mother.

"Well," replied the little boy, "I am the only big brother she has and she will have a hard time if she wears me all out."—New York Post.

H. C. Smith, adjutant of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will leave Saturday for San Francisco, to attend the annual encampment of the National G. A. R.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

STAY ON THE BORDER MAKING MEN OUT OF TROOPS BRED IN THE CITIES

Boys Will Return Home Greatly Improved Both Physically and Mentally—Some May Resign From Guard When Dismissed.

Some Little Side Lights on the Daily Life of Guardsmen Who Are Fighting Texas Heat, Rattlesnakes and Other Products of Frontier.

It is plainly the intention of the war department to maintain the drill and work regulations of the national guardsmen, now encamped on the Mexican frontier, until the men who are unable to stand the physical strain are weeded out and their places filled by recruits. It is the object of the Texas camps to transform the militia into a body of soldiers ranking with the regulars and to so turn around the old time rules of conduct for the militia that the entire militia establishment of the country, as constituted before the call to arms last month, will be thrown into the discard.

All this is very well from the standpoint of the professional soldier. The militiamen who went down to Texas in response to an urgent call are not professional soldiers and have no idea of devoting the rest of their lives to military work. It is a question whether they can be imbued with the regular service idea, especially as all danger of war with Mexico has apparently passed, according to the news that comes from Washington.

Without doubt the drills and camp life are doing the men who can stand the strain a world of good. They will go back home made over physically and also helped mentally. They ought to appreciate it, but they are stubborn enough to imagine that the arduous training should be imposed on men who want to fight for a living and not on men who have jobs at home.

Not all the officers in the militia organizations are satisfied. Many say in confidence to their friends that as soon as they get out of the regular service they are going to resign from the national guard. It looks as though this camp will impose on congress the task of upsetting the whole militia program and forming an entirely new policy of national defense on land.

Bad Man Subdued.

Military policemen of the Seventy-first New York had their first encounter with a would be western "bad man," with discouraging results to the bad man, who, having yet failed to reclaim the six gun the effete easterners took from him, is believed to be slightly less bad than he was.

To make it worse, one of the New Yorkers bears the mild name of Vassar. Vassar and Dooling were on duty in the Mexican quarter of McAllen when a ferociously armed and caparisoned cowboy entered the largest saloon and announced that he was going to shoot up the place.

At this juncture the two soft spoken Manhattanites entered. A few seconds later Dooling was in possession of the Texan's artillery, and the Texan was riding through the door on the toe of Vassar's boot.

Horses For Pennsylvanians.

The distribution of mounts to the troops of the Seventh division, national guards of the United States from Pennsylvania, has begun. Major General George M. Clement, commander of the division, with several aids and a number of regular army officers, made the first selection at the remount station for use of division staff.

The division commander took a beautiful animal, sixteen and a half hands high, a stock bay horse of wind and with muscles of steel and of sufficient weight to bear hard service. Seven of the division staff officers tried out their mounts recently, but a number of others, including the commander himself, are giving the horses a chance to rest up.

The animals arrived in cars from the east. The quartermaster's count total is approximately 2,000. It is said 600 horses and mules have already been purchased by the war department for the troops; 35,000 are horses. Not only Pennsylvania militiamen, but state troops from Massachusetts and Rhode Island, also the regulars, are to be mounted from the new supply.

Southern Hospitality.

One letter from an Illinois man says: "We stopped at Marshall, Tex., and remained two hours. A freight ahead had been wrecked. I met a very wonderful young lady who was chaperoning a bunch of southern and congenial beauties. Never more criticise the southern hospitality. In other places the populace grafts off the soldier lads. In Texas they offer native fruits, simple gifts and much real courtesy. They have autos a-plenty, and they took us riding. The young lady chaperon permitted me to assist in chaperoning in a motorcar. She spoke kindly to me. She smiled and even laughed aloud at my lame witticisms. And when she spoke in the caressing tones and soft enunciation of the southland well, I could sit for hours under the spell. I, too, used to feel supercilious about this southern stuff—but that was before I had found the real south. I now enroll as a defender.

"So far 'tis the life. But none of us has been paid, and we are all in a mood to curse those who yanked us hence and permitted us to travel through the interesting state of Texas practically moneyless when we have a considerable wad already overdue. Fire a fling at Washington and make them come through ere we mutiny and curse the politicians."

Men Learn to Shoot.

Rapid fire, advance and retreat, all that goes with skirmish order and the keeping in hand of Massachusetts men so as to bring about as nearly as possible perfect fire control, has been practiced and hammered in day after day—in fact, frequently twice daily at Camp Pershing, El Paso.

At the same time all day there is a constant crack, crack on the rifle range, where Lieutenant Stewart Wise, a Massachusetts officer, who holds world records and is now assigned to the squadron as inspector of small arms practice, has already had some remarkable results in teaching the newer men to shoot and improving the marksmanship of the older men.

The lieutenant estimates the range, instructs those who don't know how to set their sights, tosses up a handful of dirt, watches exactly how it blows and says when to set the wind gauge. Then he follows results with his field glasses, making needed corrections.

In the skirmish order work and battle practice in the field, where it is necessary for chiefs of platoons and squad leaders to be able at all times each to lead their own group of men in any direction, officers have purposely inverted and mixed up fours and squads and then allowed noncoms and men to straighten themselves out from resulting confusion.

Letter From Beauty Squad.

Perhaps it was the moon, but anyway the beauty squad of Company K, Second Illinois infantry, has burst in verse in the following letter:

Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.

A little news which may interest you.

Private Peters of the eighth squad looked as though he needed a bath, so the boys threw him into the watering trough. Just think, twenty-three of us may go for an automobile ride, provided we get 50 cents. All the boys in camp are rather restless waiting to seize some Mexicans along the border. Private Strand has gained three pounds since he came here.

Private Kares sits up all night writing letters, and Private Tollefsen is now taking his beauty sleep, being 1 p. m. He said it is getting hot.

Private Narklewicz of the beauty squad rolled down a hill with rifle and side arms 'cause he heard the rustle of a skirt.

For some young lady
I am reading merry sidelights.
I happened to see your ad.,
And then came an idea
I thought would make you glad,
So down I sat with pen in hand
To write this little line
To ask this single question,
Just, "Dear, may I be thine?"
Although I don't know who you are,
But you're a soldier true,
So I will believe in you
As in the red, white and blue.
So if this note will cheer your heart
Let us hope that we may never part,
For as white rose is hope and true
Just so I will hope for you.
Wear this flower on your breast
And think of one who could love you best.
(Composed by Privates Lavine and Kares of beauty squad 3.)

Well, we have to go and drill now, 'cause we had a big dinner—steak, apricots, French fried potatoes and a dish of ice cream. PRIVATE LAVINE.

"Attacked" by Mexicans.

All about Mexican snipers attacking First Illinois regiment by Colonel Joe Sanborne.—"H—l, they were nothing but poachers shooting doves. A couple of spent 22 caliber bullets fell in camp. It's got to stop, though. I know who's doing the shooting. I see these regular enlisted men from the post go down the road with their 22 rifles and know who's after a Mexican dove for supper."

EXAMINING A HORSE.

The First regiment camp bulges an L into a thick shrub growth of many acres. The doves feed in there, and poachers have been using small rifles at random since the camp was made. On several occasions shots have ricocheted into the camp, but the inspiration to make the authors "Mexican snipers" didn't occur until several days later.

Some Quick Work.

It was all so sudden. Between Dec. 3 and July 10 Corydon F. Battershell was ordained to the ministry, met Miss Gladys Bond, wooed her, became engaged to her four days after her graduation from the Hyde Park high school of Chicago, accepted a position as minister of the Marinette (Wis.) Baptist church, joined the militia, was called to the front, was married three months ahead of time at his fiancee's suggestion, went on his honeymoon to Camp Douglas and left for San Antonio, where he is now located with Company I, Second regiment, Wisconsin organized militia. Mrs. Battershell is the daughter of A. J. Bond of 1512 East Sixty fifth street. The Bonds are members of the Rev. M. P. Boynton's church and were present at the ordination of the Rev. Mr. Battershell. Within two months the engagement was announced.

The language of camp life is rapidly settling down to a caliber which the mules and horses can understand. Oaths long buried since the Civil war are being unearthed and distributed. There is something about the life that makes profanity necessary. It is purely impersonal, but what else can one do when a man walks over you and your equipment with army boots caked with clay six inches thick? He doesn't mean to; there is no use seeking an apology. You will do it to some one else in five minutes.

Speaking of celebrities, Kid McCoy is back from his chase after that runaway horse. The Kid rounded up the animal with a lasso. Nobody ever suspected him of being such an expert with the lariat, but the Kid explained that he took a course of night school. The Kid is now orderly to Colonel Bates of the Seventy first New York, and he is a real orderly person.

Cleanliness the Big Factor in Safeguarding Health

See that the children have frequent baths these hot summer days—plenty of warm water and soap—and you've taken a highly important step in the direction of health maintenance. Needless to add, this applies to grown-ups as well.

A Gas Water Heater will furnish the entire household with hot water quickly and cheaply. Average cost per bath will not exceed two cents—average time necessary to heat the water is twenty minutes.

Under our Service Payment Plan you can easily possess a Gas Water Heater. Terms, $2.00 down—$1.00 monthly. Price $15.75 up.

Another important factor in disease-prevention of any sort is the Gas Incinerator, which quickly reduces every particle of refuse to fine ashes. Consumes very little gas. Price, ½-bushel size, $39.00. Terms, $10.00 down—$7.50 monthly.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

Wo Sing, a wealthy San Francisco laundryman, is erecting wholly at his personal expense a schoolhouse in which a Chinese instructor will be employed to teach Chinese children—and those American children who may desire—the Asiatic language and lore of his fathers. It will be a night school, so that the children may during the day attend the public city school without interference with their practical American education.

One of the most interesting among the many young Orientals of high degree who flock in greater and greater number to America for education, and will this fall enter an American college, is Prince Songlia, a youthful member of the Siamese royal family, now on the Pacific on his way to the United States. The Prince sailed lately from Honolulu, accompanied by the Siamese Minister of Foreign Affairs and a retinue of secretaries and servants. He has not yet decided what American school he will honor with his patronage.

The chance to "practice your French" along with the degustation of a good dinner will soon be denied you if the International Stewards' Association carries off its intention, declared at a recent convention, of doing away with the rather senseless fashion of printing menus in French. The stewards have declared their independence of "a la" and other foreign tyrants of the menu card, and food lists understandable to the common mortal, with a strict avoidance of all mysterious nomenclature, will soon be the common rule.

The announcement that 809 students are working their way through Yale, engaging in such occupations as mosquito extermination, rat catching, tutoring, and so forth, will cause some astonishment among the many persons who regard Yale as a "rich man's university." As a matter of fact, the percentage of rich men's sons among the student body in any large university is rather small. The bulk of the students come from families of rather small means.

The annual conference of Chinese students in Eastern colleges will open Thursday of this week at Andover, Mass., with Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador at Washington, among the guests of honor. There are more than 1,200 Chinese students in the United States, and conferences similar to the one at Andover are held in other sections of the country at this time.

As delegates from forty-two States complete their plans for attending the Negro National Education Congress, to be held in Washington, D. C., from August 23 to 26, it is gratifying to observe the plan of campaign urged by the officials of the congress, who are especially insistent that the convention should be free from "fiery and intemperate resolutions directed against real or imaginary enemies of the race, and from 'burning' denunciations hurled at those who are supposed to be unfriendly to the negro.' These unthinkable outbursts, as the officials themselves remark, have often been too much in evidence at negro conventions, and the congress wishes above all things to avoid them as taking up valuable time which may be better employed for the development of a constructive negro policy and the establishment of better relations with the white race.

The latest educational innovation on record is the provision of a course of training for janitors in the Iowa State Agricultural College. The course will be given in a number of cities in the form of extension work. It is planned primarily for public school janitors, but any other janitors are eligible. Instructions will include the operation of heating plants of various types, different systems of ventilation and the most efficient methods of cleaning. The courses will be given in the larger school buildings of the cities selected for the experiment and will extend over twenty weeks.

TO TEACH SALESMANSHIP AT COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Big Banks and Firms Will Aid New Course In Business.

The kid who starts in as office boy or errand boy in the big store and aspires to work up to that pinnacle place, "salesman," probably will disappear within a few years, for the salesman is hereafter to learn his job in college. At least, Columbia university is essaying to teach salesmanship to students in its new business school.

It was announced that a large part of the course to be established by the business school will deal with selling, advertising, sales management, business English and commercial correspondence.

The announcement reads that "students over twenty-one years old actively engaged in business and qualified to take certain courses" may be enrolled. It is pointed out by the faculty that trained study is what has made the German salesman the greatest of his kind in the world. The course will be of three years.

Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, head of the department of political economy of Columbia, asserts the new school will have the active co-operation of many banks and business institutions of New York.

"Arrangements have already been made with the National City bank whereby a certain number of students will be afforded an opportunity to prepare themselves for the service of the bank in foreign fields," he said.

"It is proposed to broaden and generalize these opportunities so that every student will be enabled and expected to do some field work in that particular department of business life in which he is especially interested. In almost every phase of 'big business' in New York today the need is experienced for more expert and thorough training, and it is hoped in the advanced courses of the school to bring about a close co-operation between the corps of instructors on the one hand and the business community on the other."

The faculty will be composed of prominent educators. Well known business men will also lecture.

GAME BIRDS SAVE CROPS.

Colonel Shields Says Hunters Cost Farmers Millions Annually.

If the members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs take up guns for preparedness they are not likely to use them for sport even for game birds after listening to Colonel G. O. Shields tell at the convention of the immense loss to the country through the destruction of birds.

"I was brought up with a gun in my hands," said Colonel Shields, "and for forty years I was a sportsman, but I have not killed a bird since I learned their great economic value. Quails, prairie chickens, meadow larks and other birds have been swept away by millions by the gunners in the south, and now the cotton growers lose $100,000,000 a year because of the ravages of the boll weevil. Scientific men say that it will never be exterminated until the birds have come back.

"The chinch bug costs the grain growers over $100,000,000 a year and the Hessian fly $200,000,000. These insects are microscopic. It takes 24,000 of the former to weigh an ounce and 50,000 of the flies. A quail killed in a wheatfield in Ohio was found by a government expert to have 1,200 chinch bugs in its craw, and a quail killed in Kansas showed 2,000 Hessian flies eaten during the day. A quail in Pennsylvania had 127 potato bugs in its stomach. It costs northern farmers $17,000,000 a year for paris green. Not an ounce of paris green would be needed if there was a normal number of quails in the country, and they would be back in ten years if each farmer would protect the birds that remain and prohibit shooting on his lands."

FINDS YOUNGEST SOLDIER.

Boy of Twelve Complains That They Will Not Let Him Fight.

"I believe I have found my youngest soldier," exclaimed King George during his visit to the front, when he saw a twelve-year-old boy among the Northamptons.

But little Joseph Lefevre was not English. He is the son of a dead Belgian soldier and was found wandering about under shell fire at Ypres, adopted by the battalion and placed on its rolls. He told his story in French to the king and said.

"They will not let me go up to fight, but keep me back with the transport."

"As I was going to suggest and, being a soldier, you will have to obey orders," said the king.

PLAINFIELD PRESS CO.,

When the Business Men's Association of Plainfield announce a Dollar Day Sale, the people of the city and its surrounding towns know that a real merchandising treat is in store for them. It is over three years since the first one of these sales was held, and they have since been held twice annually, in February and August. They have been the most active days that some of our merchants have had in all their long careers, not only in gross business done, but in the number of people who have visited the stores. The people have learned that on Dollar Day they receive the greatest values of the entire year in the various specials which are offered in the local stores.

The next one of these great money saving events will be held in Plainfield on Wednesday, August 30. The merchants are already planning some splendid special offers, which will be more fully announced in their regular advertisements in the local papers as the day approaches.

Without a shadow of doubt this is the greatest value giving event of the year, when it is considered that it is a united effort on the part of all the Plainfield stores. It is true that individual merchants at times have given equally great values in single items, but on Dollar Day they all strive to give many such bargains, in a great concerted move to attract the shoppers in vast numbers to Plainfield stores. In selecting the stores in which to make purchases be sure that the insignia of the organization, reproduced below, is conspicuously displayed on the store front. It is a sign that dependable merchandise will be found on all the bargain tables.

TWO VIEWS OF WAR.

They sat in a local moving picture theatre yesterday watching pictures of war—grim, ghastly realities of the slaughter that madmen across the sea are engaged in. Two young girls chatted gleefully as the German drive on Lemberg was being enacted before their eyes. Behind them sat two old men. They were silent.

"Oh, isn't it grand!" one of the girls—the one with the coat of red and black—murmured. "Look at the cute little mustache." She had caught a smile from the face of a gay young officer as the endless horde strode past the camera.

It was Youth's tribute to the glamour of war.

The old men were silent. The soldiers marched on. Some of them did not even look up and the camera caught only the chin and tops of their dusty gray helmets.

"My God!" one of the old men breathed at last. It was almost a prayer. "They haven't even got names. Thousands of them. Millions! And they've forgotten their names. All alike. All alike. All to die the same death, and be buried without a name."

AN INNOVATION IN POLITICS.

The courage of Mayor Smalley is almost beyond belief. Not only is he willing to bow to the will of the people in the matter of government, but now that a question threatens to arise on which there is no clear-cut expression of public sentiment, he would resign and run again that his constituents may not be misrepresented. Such humility in high office! In the opinion of certain people who refused to hear the voice of the people, Mayor Smalley must be a weakling, a wishy-washy figurehead, with no will of his own and no strength of intellect to decide for himself just how the people of North Plainfield shall live. But we imagine the borough voters like it. It should cause them to stand a little straighter—to feel that they have a little firmer grip on that elusive possession the campaign orators refer to as "[illegible] of American citizenship."

• • • • • •

The "only objection to Mayor Calkins" that the local people who are opposing him can find, according to the mouthpiece of modest framers of a new municipal slate, is that they think he is planning some changes in the city government that may bring about an increase in the taxes. That is a pretty weak argument, even for politicians. Mr. Calkins has been Mayor of Plainfield for two years. During that time he has handled many matters of vital importance to the city and its people, and if the few who oppose him now are forced to draw on their imagination for an "objection" to his re-election, then their only campaign argument is his strongest one.

Plainfield Theatre.

Scene from "Mutt and Jeff," at the Plainfield Theatre, Friday Night.

Even more auspiciously than either of its former seasons did Bud Fisher's happy thought character conception, Mutt and Jeff, open it's fifth season as a musical comedy offering under Gus Hill's direction. With an entire new production, from scenery to music, Mutt and Jeff have set out to conquer new lands. "Their Wedding" is the title of the new vehicle selected to lead our heroes to fame and fortune in the land of dreams. From it's premier presentation they have played to absolute capacity business during the five seasons it has been before the public. The success of Mutt and Jeff is not alone unprecedented, but almost unbelievable. It is not a whit of an exaggeration to proclaim Gus Hill's cartoon play the most remarkable play in theatrical history. The play has yielded its owner an actual profit of two million dollars in the fuor previous seasons of thirty weeks each. Divide this equally among the fire separate and distinct companies which have toured the United States and Canada and you will find that their profits have been enormous. It's coming to the Plainfield Theatre for a stay of one night only, Friday, August 25. If you've seen Mutt and Jeff before, see it again by all means; there's a new laugh to every minute from start to finish.

PRIEST MADE MARSHAL.

Roselle, Aug. 22.—Rev. Salvadore J. Le Vecchio, rector of the Church of the Assumption of the Aldene section, has been appointed a borough marshal. He will serve without pay. His appointment was made following a request that he be given some legal authority to enforce the law in the Aldene section, as he had received a number of complaints of the actions of young men in that part of the borough.

The Road House.

(With apologies to Sam Walter Foss.)

Let me live in a house by the side
of the road,
And be a friend to man.
Let me sell him fried chicken and eggs and fish,
As only a landlord can.
Let me charge him five prices for what he gets.
Let me trim him of his dough.
Let me sell gasoline at two dollars a quart,
To make his gas buggy go.

Let me serve a la carte, also table
d'hote.
Let me charge any price I wish.
Let me put high-toned names upon food that's low-browed,
And charge for a millionaire's dish.

'Tis great to be friendly when you make it pay,
And the boss of a road house can.
Let me live in a house by the side
of the road,
And I'll be a friend to man.

Another Eugenic Pome.

Stick out your tongue, my love, and let me see
Once more its pink, uncoated loveliness.
Eugenia, healthy maid, each day
I bless
The hour when first you felt the pulse of me.

Behold the birthday gift I bring to thee;
A brand new stethoscope; Ah,
nothing less!
But, oh, my dear, it gives me great distress,
To see you eat hot muffins with your tea!

Loved one, I know no other dame or maid,
Whose bony conformation equals thine!
And when thine adenoids are cured
next year
And my rheumatic ghosts have all been laid,
Eugenia, love, the doc will make you mine;
But pray, be careful of your diet,
dear.

Proctor's Theatre

"The Play's the Thing." Everywhere in the moving picture world that's the slogan today, and it was doubtless the slogan of the Triangle Fine-Arts Company when the new comedy drama, "Stranded," was produced. For the production Director Lloyd Ingraham chose a cast which fits every character in the play to perfection. The chief roles are those of an old actor—a relic of bygone days, broken in purse, no longer desired by the managers, but proud, dignified and courtly—and a little girl who has broken into the show business by way of a trapeze, and yet has to learn its intricacies and pitfalls. For these parts Director Ingraham chose De Wolf Hopper and Bessie Love. There is no performer in America today better fitted to depict the type for which he was selected than Hopper, and his characterization is a triumph of both art and make-up. As for Bessie Love, her wonderful personal appeal is again exercised in a role which gives her every opportunity to play upon the heartstrings of her admirers. Frank Bennett, a local boy and a great favorite here, is cast as Bessie's young and honorable sweetheart. Other features today include a rip-roaring Keystone comedy and the 11th episode of "The Secret of the Submarine."

Tomorrow William Fox offers one of those stirring Western dramas entitled "The Beast," in which George Walsh and Anna Luther assume the leading roles. It is a virile drama which takes as its theme the training and softening of a rough Westerner, largely brutal in nature by the influence of the very girl has has sought to i ure. Tomorrow also. Frank Borzage and Anna Little are seen in "The Demon of Fear," and several comedies are provided for variety.

On Thursday, William S. Hart appears in a spectacular and gorgeous Ince Triangle production, entitled "The Captive God," which is far out of the ordinary and away from the ordinary run of features.

A REAL CRISIS

AERONAUTICAL DIVISION WILL BE GIVEN SPECIAL INSTRUCTION IN MARKSMANSHIP

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Sea Girt, August 22.—Special instruction in aeronautical marksmanship, for the benefit of the twenty-three men who comprise the aeronautical division of the First Battalion Naval Reserve, will begin on Tuesday, August 29. At the suggestion of Lieutenant J. Homer Stover, of Nutley, who is here with the men of the battalion for their annual rifle practice, Brigadier General Bird W. Spencer expects to complete an emergency range for this class of work.

While little has been known about it, the aeronautical division, under Lieutenant Stover, has been constantly practicing at Keyport over the week-ends all summer. They have an old Curtis biplane with an antiquated engine just good enough to make the machine fly, and on Sunday last Stover made two actual flights and the members of the squad made about thirty "grass cutting" flights. The section has raised $1,100 toward $10,000 which they want for a new machine and to bear the expense of maintaining it at Keyport. The plan is to get a regular dual control machine for instruction purposes, similar to those being used in the European warfare.

The plan which Stover suggests, and which General Spencer hopes will be carried out within a few days, is to have a new duo-motor machine brought here from Keyport, under the guidance of Albert Heinrich, a licensed aviator. It is the property of the Aero Marine Plane and Motor Company, of which Inglis M. Uppercu, of Newark, is the president, and they have offered to let the State have the use of the machine without cost. A special course of shots has been laid out, at both slow and rapid fire, using the regular United States magazine rifle, with the machine traveling at a rate of from 60 to 80 miles an hour, and at both parallel and right angle position to the targets. Under the program the State is to be released from all possible damage. The course, as laid out, are ten shots each at the varying distances and heights, of fifty feet, shooting at a target 100 yards away, one shot being fired on each right and left turn. Other courses will be: fifty feet high, 100 yards away, shot while traveling away from and toward the target; 100 feet high, 200 yards away, firing broadside, one shot on each right and left turn; 100 feet high, 500 yards, away, shot while traveling toward and away from target; 100 feet high 200 yards away, rapid fire five shots being fired passing in each direction parallel to the target, and the skirmish run, beginning 300 feet high, 500 yards from the traget and running to 50 feet high, 100 yards from the target, firing as many shots as is possible during that time.

So far as is known here this will be the first practice of the kind ever held in this country, but Lieutenant Stover says that it will be in exact keeping with conditions at the front in Europe.

In addition to the fifty-three men of the Naval Reserve who arrived here yesterday and leave tomorrow under the command of Lieutenant Commander Benjamin J. Soper, there are about fifty members of the Old Guard of New York here for their annual rifle practice, who will remain all the week. They are in command of Colonel Cline, and more are expected before the week ends. Tomorrow the Englewood Rifle Club members will be here; on Friday and Saturday the National Defence Organization, of Summit; on August 28 and 30, the Paterson Rifle Club, and on August 30, the Rotary Club, of Trenton will have the use of the range. It is planned to close it on Labor Day.

As was predicted two weeks ago, there will be no regular rifle meeting this year, and all New Jersey State matches will be abandoned except the National Guard trophy match, a regimental team competition. This will be held on Saturday of this week or next week, between the Second and Third regiments, all other commands being out of the State. The date will be fixed by General Spencer after consultation with the Colonels of the regiments.

The match is between two teams of six men and two alternates from each regiment or squadron, not more than two officers to be on a team, and they cannot be of higher rank than captain. Two strings of ten shots are fixed at 200 yards rapid fire, and 20 shots at 600 and 1,000 yards slow fire. The members of the winning team get the National Guard trophy, to be held a year at their armory, and each shooting member receives a gold medal. Silver medals go to the second team, which this year will be all the prizes offered.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the men of the Second Battalion Naval Reserve of Camden, under the leadership of Commander Albert Dellinger, will be on the range.

Scissors Stuff

A suggestion which has been made in Verona is worthy of favorable consideration by municipalities generally as a safety measure when the schools are opened. Verona will urge the teachers and pupils to return to town at least two weeks before the schools resume. In this way they will be under observations for a period which is supposed to be sufficient for the incubation of infantile paralysis. So far as present knowledge goes, this will be a protection, not only for those who return from other places, but also for those who have remained at home.

It ought to be possible for any Board of Education to enforce such a suggestion—so far as the teachers are concerned, and it would be easy to make the rule effective as to pupils, but unless there was acquiescence on the part of parents, the enforcement of a two weeks quarantine would inconvenience the routine of the schools by the absence of pupils during such a period. Voluntary return to town would obviate this. With the extended vacation, which seems probable, there should be no necessity of any pupil being kept out of school by reason of quarantine regulations.

The unusual conditions which have been created by the general presence of poliomyelitis make it incumbent upon all to do whatever is in their power to safeguard the general public against infection.

ENDORSE NEW JERSEY PARALYSIS METHODS

State Health Authorities Issue Bulletin Commenting On Recent Conference.

Trenton, August 22.—Commenting upon the virtual endorsement of New Jersey's plan of combatting infantile paralysis by the health conference in Washington last week, the State Department of Health issued the following press bulletin today:

"The State Department of Health is gratified to know that the public health conference in Washington last week made recommendations for the control of infantile paralysis that are in substantial accord with the system of identification inaugurated by the requirements of the new chapter of the State Sanitary Code. New Jersey was among the first States to establish regulations dealing with poliomyelitis because the situation in the State is somewhat more acute than elsewhere.

"Emphasis is placed upon the fact that the system is not a quarantine, but is a system of identification. Quarantine occurs only when the regulations are violated.

"The purpose of the identification system is twofold: first, to give local health officials information concerning persons arriving in the community without identification certificates, and second, to discourage travelling by children as far as possible, while at the same time providing a uniform system whereby traveling may be done without unnecessary inconvenience.

"Attention is again called to the fact that it is the duty of local boards of health to enforce the provisions of the State Sanitary Code. This duty has been placed upon boards of health by the Legislature, and local boards of health cannot escape the obligation."

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

The East Wind and the West Wind are the decidedly novel characters that have been visualized by the author of "The Girl from Nowhere," the new two-act burlesque that will be presented by The Maids of America company at the Columbia Theatre the week beginning Monday afternoon, August 21. According to the story these strange personages have been brought to earth by La Titia, who, from her home in the clouds, observes conditions on earth that could be benefitted by her magic charms. Giving life to the contending forces of wind, La Titia proceeds to upset all traditions, and through a series of scenes and incidents that are said to be decidedly original and highly amusing, the performance is described as continuously mirthful, with many interpolations of vaudeville specialties of a high order and musical features that are new and of the popular variety. The presenting company embraces several of burlesque's most widely known and talented players, among them Al K. Hall and Bobby Barry, the eccentric comedians; Harvey Brooks, Joseph Weston, Robert Calvert, Tony Shane, Edward Bisland and the Misses Billie Hill, Alfarretta Symonds and Mary Mack. An unusually large chorus of male and female voices is announced as one of the most enlivening features of the performance, and the six scenes that are used are described as more elaborate and beautiful than is customary in burlesque productions.

MISS KELLERMANN EXPLAINS THE OVER-ARM STROKE—TO MAKE HER CLASS PERMANENT

Famous Swimmer Says She Wishes to Offer Medals For Contests of Pupils and Thereby Create An American Amateur Swimming Organization.

Article No. 19.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

The single over-arm stroke is a beautiful stroke when well done. All of you who are following these lessons should work particularly hard at this stroke so that you can do it well. The only difference between the under-arm and the over-arm is that you bring the left arm out of the water.

In order to do this gracefully I wish you to imagine that your left arm is an oar of a boat. Most of the swimmers I have seen executed this movement hideously. The buckling up of elbows and the lack of grace that attends this movement can easily be overcome if you keep the arm straight out while it is being brought forward.

The arm when out of the water should never come far out. It should "feather" the top. By "feather" I mean this: that the hand should just about clear the top of the water in a broad sweeping movement of the arm not unlike the movement of an oar of a rowboat.

The palm of the hand should be faced outwards as the hand skims along the water, and forward.

Try hard to use a smooth movement while executing this stroke. When the hand cuts the water let it be done sharply and keenly.

Keep the head, that is the back of the head, well in the water. Your leg movement should improve so that after the kickout the bringing together of the legs should be done with plenty of snap and ginger.

The left arm should never be brought out of the water until it is down on a direct line with the thigh. The most important thing is to time the movements of your arms and legs so that they act together.

When you kick let it be a good, wide kick with plenty of force behind it. Keep the body on a level as much as you can. No part of your body should slant to any noticeable degree.

Now, work hard and perfect this stroke, so that when I make my next tour throughout the country I will be able to see you do the strokes as I now imagine you to be doing them

I expect to make a long tour throughout the United States shortly, so work hard and show me what you can do. I have hopes of making this swimming association a permanent affair and will later on offer a medal to the members of the classes. As I expect this to remain a purely amateur organization, we ought to have some good times with competitions later on. The Plainfield Daily Press will advise you later on as to this plan of mine as I am working hard in hand with the editors to make this association a great big permanent success and with its support raise swimming to a higher level.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann's article is entitled, "Swim and Be Beautiful." While it is written especially for women pupils and women in general, there is much in it of value to men who are seeking perfect health.

HELEN RAYMOND WEARS JENNEY'S FROCK.

This Convertible Gown One of the Season's Most Practical Creations — A Street Gown, House Dress, or Negligee.

By Mary Glynn.

Jenny has been hailed the originator of the season's most practical, and at the same time most attractive, utility gown. It was imported recently by the Dry Goods Economist. Surely a creation to appeal to the woman of refined and conservative taste, for it was developed in seal brown chiffon velvet and trimmed with Belgian hare. The charm of the gown was in its utter simplicity. The bodice was cut in an unusual manner the shoulders fitting quite snugly with attached long, snug sleeves. A narrow velvet ribbon sash fastens to the slightly raised band of Belgian hare, and loops in front. Joffre blue moire faces the open front, which has no fastening, but is held in place by a brooch. In this arrangement we have Jenny's gown as Miss Helen Raymond, of the "Very Good Eddie" company, wore it for street occasions. The effect is extremely simple and charming. Were we to follow Miss Raymond to the recess of her boudoir we would be fascinated to watch her unfasten the velvet girdle and permit the fullness to spread in negligee effect, and the front open to the waistline with dainty blue moire affording reveres. The thing is done like magic, and it would seem that the charming wearer was pleased to exhibit the quick and charming manner in which she may change from a conservatively garbed street attire to a perfectly comfortable, becoming and flattering negligee.

EMPIRE STYLES PROVE NOVEL

Dance Gowns for Youthful Women and Debutantes Fashioned with Short Waists.

By Mary Glynn.

Quite an unusual and interesting development is that of the Empire style, which appears in some of the dance gowns. No doubt the designer got her inspiration from the costumes of the second Empire, for they are almost exact in their appearance. One dance gown appears to have been copied from that worn by the Empress Eugenie in her famous portrait. The very short, snug bodice moulding perfectly the line of the bust and the fascinating puffed sleeves are almost identical. Then there is also the long full skirt which accentuates the youthfulness of the figure. The effect is charming. The gown mentioned was developed in apple green brocaded taffeta. The pointed tunic was a distinctive and attractive feature. Silk hose and button satin slippers contributed to the charm of the outfit.

Carry her money in her stocking? Oh, no—not when she goes swimming! Nor does she leaves the roll of greenbacks in her bath house. It is safe, high and dry, while she frolics in the breakers, tucked in a pocket hidden away under the bow in her bathing cap. The bow is really a purse, made of satin and lined with rubber, and even an unduly boisterous wave splashing over her head will not affect her greenbacks.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How a Little Mermaid Swam Ashore.

It Was Not Long Before One of the Maiddens Saw Him.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

DADDY sat down beside the children and told them: "Once a little mermaid rescued a prince from drowning and took him in her arms to swim ashore. Hours and hours she held his head above water, and at last she saw dry land before her.

"She raised her beautiful head above the sea foam and saw high blue mountains on whose summits the white snow glistened as if a flock of swans had perched there. Down by the shore were lovely green woods. In front of them stood a church or a temple, she could not quite see which. Anyway, some sort of a building stood there.

"The little mermaid swam toward it and saw lemon and orange trees growing in a garden beside some tall palms. At this point the sea formed a little bay where the water was quite calm, but very deep, right up to the cliffs. At the foot of these cliffs was a strip of fine white sand. Toward this little beach the mermaid swam with her beautiful prince. He was still unconscious from his struggle with the night storm that had sunk his ship. So the little mermaid laid him down on the white sand very gently, taking care that his head should rest high up in the warm sunshine.

"The bells in the great white building near by now began to ring, and soon a number of young girls came out into the garden where the orange trees were. Then the little mermaid became frightened. She was very shy, you know. So she swam further off behind some high rocks and covered her hair and breast with sea foam so that no one could see her face. Then she lay down on a tiny wave and watched to see who should discover her beautiful prince.

"It was not long before one of the maidens ran down to the sand and saw him lying there in the sunshine with his eyes closed. At first she was frightened, but only for a minute. Then she ran to fetch her friends, and the little mermaid saw that the prince was coming to life.

"She raised her head from the sea foam and saw him smile at the girls who stood about him. But he did not smile at the little mermaid. You see, he did not even know that she had saved him from the angry waves. But she felt so sad that when he was led away into the great white building she dived sorrowfully into the water and made her way home to her father's sea palace," daddy finished, with a bedtime hug for Jack and Evelyn.

"Thank you, daddy!" cried the children.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

In Which All Ends Happily for the Reformed Butterfly—and Others.

Thanksgiving morning dawned bright and clear though a sharp wind blew from the north. The Gordon household was astir at an early hour. "When one has dinner to get for nine people, counting the baby, one must get an early start," Ethel had answered when Ralph had asked why she got up so early on a holiday. It was a pleasant sight, to see the little creature bustling about with her preparations. She took the dinner very seriously.

"Now, if the commander in chief will assign me my duties, I shall be very glad to be useful." Mother Gordon had promptly fallen in love with the busy, good-natured little daughter-in-law, and told Ralph, to that young man's great delight, that she would withdraw all objections that she had filed against the young lady's incompetence.

"I shall be very glad of assistance in anything but the cooking," was the smiling reply. "Ralph is first assistant in the kitchen," she added, looking mischievously at her husband.

"Very well, then, I'll get the dishes out of the way and straighten up the house." The dishes were soon piled on the tea wagon. Ethel meantime enveloped in a voluminous apron and her cook book propped up before her on the kitchen table began preparing the stuffing and trussing up the fat turkey for the day's feast. There never was such a bird. Everybody agreed to that when he was set before them browned to a turn. Ralph meanwhile, stuffed into an apron, of which Ethel now had a fine display, was preparing vegetables, sharpening knives and making himself generally useful. When the turkey was finally safe in the baker with his feet in the air, as if begging for quarter, the little housekeeper sank into a chair breathless with the strain, and dropped her hands in her lap.

"Now, Ralph, I am going to make the pies, and I want to be alone or I shall forget something, so you go into the living room with your mother. Perhaps you had better start the fire in the grate." Ralph was divested of his apron and Ethel, left alone, began carefully measuring the ingredients for her pies. Ralph, however, did not seem able to keep away from the kitchen, and returned each time with a floured coat and a beaming face.

"It has come out all right," the mother contentedly nodded her head, "but what a narrow escape they had. I want to know that fine old woman who woke up our sleeping beauty."

The dinner was a pronounced success and all the guests were loud in their praises, but Ethel's eyes sought the rugged, friendly face of Old Lady Morton, and when the eyes beamed approvingly on her she knew she had succeeded.

After the guests had left the table and Ethel was putting away the food preparatory to letting the little girl wash the dishes (she had hired Nell's maid to finish the work), the old lady followed her into the kitchen and said, as she smiled down on the flushed little cook:

"You did well. You will make a woman. I thought you had the stuff in you." Ethel felt repaid for all the hard work.

After all the guests had departed and Mother Gordon had gone to her room, Ralph took the tired little woman on his knee and sat down before the dying fire.

"I was so proud of you," he whispered. "I never ate a better dinner, and to think my own little wife cooked it. It seems like a dream." He stroked the curly head. "Are you not very tired?"

"Yes, I am tired, but I never had a more happy day," she answered. "It is so splendid to feel that you are making things move; that you are a force in the world."

"I think the nicest thing about it is the feeling that we are yoke fellows, partners working together to carve out our future. We will surely succeed together."

The embers dropped into ashes as the two sat looking hopefully into the future.

Temperance

NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by
THE W. C. T. U.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, for a long time the only license territory in the province, on June 30 bade farewell to its forty-six barrooms, and, in accordance with the provisions of the new prohibition law, became as dry as the proverbial bone. Even the temperance advocates themselves were amazed at the change which took place during the first few days of July. At the end of the first week of the dry regime a report of changed conditions appeared in the Halifax Herald:

"Hats off to Water street! Think of it! There she was, dry, orderly and quiet. While walking down that thoroughfare we fairly stared at each other to be sure we were not in a nightmare. Spectres of the past loomed up before us, for never had we passed through the street, day or night, without a policeman leading along a 'drunk' or a patrol wagon rumbling along with a senseless human sot, or a lot of intoxicated men who wanted all the sidewalk. Frequently the program would be varied by a fight or two, with frightened women and a dozen wild-eyed youngsters as spectators.

"This night the dazed policemen looked as if they were lost, or had been sent to the wrong beat. Restaurants and lunch rooms were filled with sober and jolly sailors, soldiers and civilians. Children were playing in the street, and women were chatting on the doorsteps."

Many human interest stories have come to the attention to those who are carefully keeping tab on the enforcement of the new law. The following is quoted from the Pioneer:

"A grocer, who carries on business near two saloons which used to be crowded with patrons, says his business has increased enormously since the law came into operation.

"A clergyman was heard to say that a man of his congregation (not a member) brought home to his wife his full week's pay on Saturday, for the first time in eighteen years. In another home we heard that the husband came home sober for the first time in nine years.

"From a 'mission worker' we heard of a little girl who said she was going to have a cup of tea every day for supper now, for 'Daddy is going to bring home all his money.'"

A bureau has been established in Washington, D. C., whose purpose is to co-operate with public officials in applying to the United States government the test of sound business principles. In other words, the government business system is to be "standardized" on the same lines as other big businesses.

Following the methods of the most up-to-date captains of industry and the most successfully managed corporations, one of the first things to be expected of the government is an order requiring total abstinence of its employes. "Rule G," framed by the American Railroad Association and in force on every railroad in the country, might be offered for Uncle Sam's consideration. It is surely not too much to ask that a man who because of his drinking habits could not get a job as conductor on a freight train, should for the same reason be barred from government employ.

In an address August 9 before the Catholic Total Abstinence Society of America, Secretary Daniels, referring to the navy order abolishing the officers' wine mess, asked this pertinent question: "What say you, with your railroad tickets in your pocket, to a proposition that the railroads should issue an order that the engineers off duty at their clubhouses should be allowed to establish a wine mess of their own? Would you not demand an order abolishing such an arrangement?

The passage of the new Federal bill extending compensation for injury to all civilian employes of the United States government will go far, as have employers' liability laws in thirty-three States, toward the banishment of John Barleycorn. This bill is known as the Kern-McGillicuddy law. It combines all the best features of existing wormen's compensation laws and has the hearty approval of the United States Department of Labor.

The day is not far distant when every government employe from the President down will be a total abstainer. The bureau above mentioned is a step in the right direction. It makes for good business and common sense in the government service. Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University, is chairman and headquarters are in Baltimore.

Apropos of running the government on business principles, we are glad to note that Cato Sells, the United States Indian Commissioner, has warned employes of the Indian service that he would not tolerate their use of intoxicants. In an address to the 220 superintendents, teachers and other employes at the United States Indian Industrial School he called attention to the increase of $50,000 in the Indian appropriation this year, and said that he intended to make vigorous fight on the illicit sale of liquor to the Indians. If liquor is bad for red men it is also bad for white men employed in the Indian service, declared Mr. Sells, and if any of them are found drinking or keeping liquor they will straightway lose their jobs.

PLAGUE DANGER CAUSES BABY PARADE POSTPONEMENT

Asbury Park, August 22.—Mayor Clarence E. F. Hetrick announced yesterday that, in view of the danger from infantile paralysis, it has been decided indefinitely to postpone the annual baby parade. This declaration came as no surprise, having been foreshadowed by the spread of the disease.

It is the third time that the baby parade was started as an annual event twent-five years ago that it has been called off, the two other times having occurred in the early nineties.

CORPORAL'S BODY WILL BE SENT TO NEWARK

Douglas, Ariz., August 22.—The body of Corporal Paul J. Herrmann, Jr., Battery A, who died from dysentery Saturday night in the camp hospital, was sent home last night. It will be taken to the station on a caisson, the sixth section men acting as pallbearers and the third section as mounted escort. The rest of the battery will accompany the cortege on foot.

Corporal Herrmann was taken ill two weeks ago. He was 23 years old and had been in the battery two years. He was formerly a member of the First Infantry. Herrmann lived at 614 South Twentieth street, Newark. This is the fourth death in the New Jersey Brigade.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

"POSITION" OR "JOB"?

The following article, from the pen of the "Arbiter," will give local fans an idea of what Jack Martin is up against:

"Baseball patrons of Milwaukee were surprised to hear last week of the sudden resignation of Harry Clark, as manager of the Brewers. Mr. Clark has been continuously in this city as a player and manager for thirteen years. The last four years have been in the capacity of manager of the team and in this short time he has had the privilege of putting his team in first place and winning the pennant of the association.

"Few men associated with baseball in this city have been more popular with patrons than Mr. Clark. As a player he had many friends, and as a manager he had more admirers. Of course, the old third base crowd, which has forced many a good man out of baseball in Milwaukee, got after Mr. Clark the same as they have every third baseman who ever played the position in this city; but in the main, he had more boosters than any one who has ever played that corner and until this year, has had the crowd with him.

"I do not presume to know or say what has been the trouble this year. He started out with a combination of high priced players and some of the old team and many local patrons thought he ought to have stayed in the first division; but the fact is that the team has been down in the cellar ever since the season began and has never once come up for air. This discouraged the fans and manifestly took the heart out of Mr. Clark."

GIBSON SAID ALL THIS.

"When Barney Dreyfuss says I wanted to retire from baseball and asked for my unconditional release, it is a lie out of the whole cloth."

George Gibson, who was released by the Pirates a couple of days ago, was not a bit backward in expressing his sentiment toward the owner of the Pittsburgh ball club, and that a stormy session was the result of Gibson being released is stated.

"Dreyfuss wanted to throw me out in the cold the way he did Babe Adams," continued Gibson.

In reply to the charge made by Gibson, Barney Dreyfuss stated that it was unjust for the catcher to talk that way and that it was on account of rules promulgated through the requests of the Players' Fraternity that led to the present complications.

Gibson is at his home in Oakland today, packing up his belongings and preparing to return to his Canadian home. He will not join the Giants under present conditions, and instead of going home on a train, Gibbie is figuring on driving back in his automobile.

Gibson held a 15-minute telephone conversation with John McGraw, manager of the Giants, in which the discussion of George joining the Giants was very detailed. Gibson told McGraw there is no one in baseball he would rather play for than the Giant leader, but that "he was not going to allow Barney Drefuss to make $1,500 off the deal as a result of breaking an agreement."

THE "YELLOW PERIL."

"That Japan is entitled to a 'place in the sun' in sports as in other affairs was proved Saturday on the tennis court of the Casino at Newport when Itchiya Kumagae, champion of the Orient, defeated William M. Johnston, winner of the national honors of this country last year, in a five set match. Mr. Kumagae's victory was due to his ability to wear down the American champion in a contest which lasted longer than the ordinary Marathon race and in which there was easily as much expenditure of phylsical force, if not more.

"This is the second time in thirty-six years that a foreigner has been able to win at Newport. The only previous player to win at the Casino was Hugh L. Doherty, the English champion, who won the All Comers in 1903.

"If a shift had not been made last year to the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills the competition Saturday would have been logically for the national tennis championship, and we would now see a foreigner in possession of the premier honors of the United States with a racquet. Mr. Kumagae will have a chance to win the title next week, however, as he is entered in the national event and will meet practically the same players as at Newport."

The above was written by "the" editor—not a "mere sporting editor"—of the Herald. It was written by an expert which, unfortunately, we are not.

SOUTHAMPTON TOURNEY.

McLoughlin is, of course, bound to feature the tournament at the start and in later rounds, if he sticks. Tennisdom has been wanting to know what sort of a game the former champion is playing this year, and very few of tennisdom know anything of his present prowess.

McLoughlin has not played before the Eastern public, and in the Middle West has given but one exhibition, and that in doubles, where he and Ward Dawson, in rather indifferent tennis, won from George M. Church and Willis E. Davis in the national elimination matches. On the coast he played through one small tourney, but no word of his work there came East. So here he is, in action at last. The public will at least gain some rough idea of whether he can give the others a hard rub for national honors.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Well, fans, the Royal Giants have demonstrated their ability. Now, it is about time for a few of those "old reliable" alibis.

Alibi or no alibi, the Royals were soundly trounced in Dunellen and were easily defeated on Avon Oval. Morris, a Carlisle Indian pitcher, was not in the same class with either Johnny Dixon or Mickey McFadden.

Waldorf, who spent most of his time impressing the fans with the fact that he came from "the city," played good ball and was full of pepper. There is not getting away from the fact that he is a good backstop. If the Royals had eight more men like "Tune" Kline, there would be no need of hiring outside talent. "Tune" is always on the job and plays the game to win. He is one of the best run makers in this vicinity. After all, it's the ability to score that counts.

At second base on Saturday Pete Simmons had a player named Falls. He is not in the same class as the Royals. He did not play on Sunday, his place bing taken by a man named "Banney." It is interesting to note that "Banney's" real name is Hatchett. Wonder why all these "nom de plumes" are used? But, regarding Falls it can be said that he is ambitious and young, but he has much to learn.

"Senor" Maiden is fast enough at the shortfield position. In the pitcher's box he is also capable, but for some reason or other he has discontinued playing baseball on Sunday. "Sid" Butler, who is also an all-around man, is doing very well at short.

It is reported that there will be mutiny in the ranks if the Royal managers continue to obtain outside talent that fails to win. One or two of the members of the Giant team are a little peeved.

Is there any truth in the rumor that when the Royal Giants play the Tabs, Dunellen and Netherwood teams, Manager Simmons intends to "pad" up with nine new men? Rival managers, get busy.

Johnny Dixon always was a puzzle to the Royals and he expects to continue in that capacity. "Mickey" McFadden is also assuming the role of "puzzler."

Umpire Coriell is busily engaged in memorizing the rules of the national pastime. "Corry" expects to be compelled to do a little recitation work before the season is over. By the way, "Cory" is another "Silk" O'Loughlin.

PLAYGROUNDS CLOSED FOR THIS SEASON

Season's Work Disappointing to Supervisor and Assistants.

After rounding out seven weeks of work, the playgrounds of this city closed for the season today. The attendance during the past few weeks has been very low and the grounds were kept open only because the work had been well under way and in the hope that there would be a change for the better in the epidemic in this vicinity.

The season has been a disappointing one all around. At Parker Field there was organized a baseball league and it did not appear to be unusually successful. The Shamrocks won the pennant in a "walk-over." The other teams became discouraged, wrangling followed and the league exploded.

The cause for the failure cannot be left at the door of the supervisor or his assistants. Parents are unwilling to allow their children to mingle with others at the playgrounds, and in this way these resorts are deserted. By closing the grounds, it is believed that the spread of infantile paralysis will be, in a measure, checked.

Ancient Rome's Army.

It is an astonishing thing to be told that "the organized force of Rome consisted of a regular army that at no time seems to have exceeded 275,000 men." That is less than the army either of Greece or of Bulgaria, yet the Roman emplre of that time stretched from the Firth of Forth to the Persian gulf. The provinces consented to Roman rule because it gave them good government, undisturbed order and an unequaled system of law and justice. —Youth's Companion.

BENCH SHOW COMMITTEE MAKING PLANS FOR FIFTH ANNUAL KENNEL CLUB SHOW

Valuable Prizes Announced—Premium List to Be Given Out Next Week—Special City Department Class—Other Newsy Items

An enthusiastic meeting of the bench show committee of the Plainfield Kennel Club was held in the Queen City Hotel last night, and at this meeting much was accomplished. It was decided to advertise the coming show as the "Golden Shower Show,' inasmuch as it is expected that this show will surpass all other shows conducted by this or any other club.

At the meeting it was announced that there would be special prizes for Airedale Terriers, to be judged by Robert F. Height, of Lakewood. There will also be specialty prizes, a considerable number of $25 cups having been donated for unclassified specials. Prizes to the amount of $300 will be awarded to the best dog and bitch, while prizes aggregating $400 will be offered in each of the following classes: Novice, limited to American bred. Over $500 worth of trophies and cups have been secured and will be offered as prizes.

That this show will be a four-point affair is the opinion of the superintendent, Wilbur Purcell, who has announced that the premium list will be given out next week. Copies of this list may be obtained at the Daily Press office upon application to Joseph Gallagher, the sporting editor.

Unique among the many classes at this show is the one open only to members of the Fire and Police department of the State. It is expected that this class will be well patronized. Entries will close on September 8. These entries may be filed with the superintendent or with the secretary, John J. O'Donohue, of Tompkins avenue.

CITY LEAGUE SESSION TAKES DEFINITE MOVE

Orders Hope-Baptist Contest Replayed On September Ninth.

The City Leagues session held in the Daily Press office last night was a peaceful one and was one in which the magnates accomplished considerable. The meeting was called to order by the president, Walter C. Dobbins, who has just returned from a vacation.

The most important matter that came up for discussion at the meeting last night was the subject of the postponed game between the Hope Chapel and Baptist teams. This matter has been hanging fire for some time and the decision reached at the conference last night seemed to meet with popular favor. It was decided that the game should be played again and the date set for the contest was September 9, provided, of course, the Hopes' manager, Britt Martin, who was represented at the meeting by "Chet" Harriman, consents to the arrangement. If the Hopes refuse to play the game, the Baptists are content to let the matter drop. The Hopes were once awarded this contest, the resumption of the argument being based on the contention that the Chapel team did not have nine eligible men on the field ready to play.

At the meeting Coriell resigned as an umpire, presumably because he has had many offers from independent teams. Ira Vail and George Patterson were appointed as umpires. The Dunellen team dropped Gerald Linke and signed Tommy Mullin. The games to be played this Saturday are: Dunellen vs. Baptists, Hopes vs. Tabs and Farmers vs. Netherwood.

ATHLETIC NOTES.

A cablegram was received yesterday by Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, from Erik Bergwall, of the Swedish National Gymnastic and Sporting Association, accepting the arrangements made by Mr. Rubien for "Ted" Meredith and J. G. Loomis to compete at Stockholm early in October. These two athletes, and another to be chosen after the national championships on September 9, will leave here on the steamsip Oscar II. September 28 and should arrive in Stockholm about ten days later.

Howard Drew, University of Southern California, and holder of the world's record for 100 yards, was defeated in both the 100 and 20 yard races in the Far Western championships at San Diego, Cal., last Saturday by Henry Williams, Spokane Athletic Club. Williams time in the "hundred" was 9 4-5s.

The entries of John W. Overton, of Yale; "Dick" Gifford, of McCaddin Lyceum, and Gus Brounlicht, of the Long Island A. C., for the metropolitan senior track and field championships, at Brooklyn Athletic Field, on Saturday, were rejected yesterday by the Championship Committee, as they were received too late. The committee passed on all entries at their meeting last Friday evening and decided then not to accept entries after that date.

ON WOODMERE LINKS.

"Jack Hutchinson, of Pittsburgh, and "Bob" Macdonald, of Buffalo, have been matched to play Herbert Strong, of Inwood, and "Willie" Robertson, of Woodmere, in a thirty-six hole match next Sunday, over the Woodmere links. Hutchinson and Macdonald are coming East for the tournament, which is to be held at the Shenecossett Country Club, New London, Conn., August 30 and 31, and will no doubt be glad to get the practice which the Woodmere event will give them.

Strong, who is secretary for the Professional Golfers' Association, has arranged for a special car to convey the professionals from New York to New London next Monday. As the "pros" will leave at 10 o'clock in the morning, they will be ready for a full day's practice on Tuesday.

"CASEY AT THE BAT" ENACTED BY MARTIN

But the "Boy" Manager Hit For Two Bases, Refusing to Fan.

Jack Martin is a hero. The following clipping tells the reason why:

"Jack Martin stepped into Pepp Clark's shoes with both feet, Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

"With the score tied at 1 and 1 in the ninth inning, with Dillhoefer on second and with none gone Jack clubbed a beautiful line drive to left center. Dolan, who had played miraculous ball in the center field all afternoon, made a dying run and stab for the ball, but missed it by feet and the pill never stopped rolling until it hit the center field seats. Of course Dillhoefer rushed home on the wicked drive, and the bugs, who have hungered all season for just such a finish, went wild.

"The finish was a fitting climax to a game which was full of thrills, great stops, and catches, missed chances and much bonehead base running. The work of the Brewers on the bags was absolutely rotten, to put it mildly, and if they had run the bases according to Hoyle, Martin would never have had a chance to make a hero of himself. Of course, the fans forgot all about the burlesque stuff after that great rally in the ninth and went home feeling they had more than received their money's worth. And they had."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Two Headed Symbols.

Both Russia and Germany display two headed eagles on their standards. Yet this symbol is considered by some heralds to be merely the result of the heraldic practice of "dimidiation." This was simply a child's way of impaling two coats of arms on the same shield by the primitive method of cutting each in half and taking the dexter half of one and the sinister half of the other and placing them back to back, as it were. Strange two headed beasts naturally resulted—as, for instance, when a lion and an eagle were halved and joined together. The griffin is supposed to have been evolved from two lions rampant by dimidiation.—London Spectator.

AND CONNIE NEEDS THEM.

Eight players from the Pacific Coast, the New York State, the Southern and the Rocky Mountain leagues will join the Philadelphia American League club this fall and next spring, according to an announcement made yesterday, by "Connie" Mack. The new players include "Ping" Bodie, of San Francisco, leading batter of the Pacific Coast League, and Thrasher, an outfielder, of Atlanta, who is leading the Southern Association in hitting. The others are Johnson, a pitcher, and Bates, an outfielder, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Parnhem, a pitcher, of Raleigh, N. C., and Grover, an outfielder, of Butte, Mont.

DEAL NOT MADE.

Negotiations for a trade between the Braves and Cubs, involving the transfer of Heinie Zimmerman to Boston, reached a deadlock yesterday after George Stallings conferred four hours with Weeghman and Tinker. The Boston offer for Zimmerman, though it was not given out, fell short of what the Cub management considered an equivalent for the third baseman, and a counter offer by Tinker to trade Zimmerman for Maranville did not prove acceptable to Stallings. The Boston club, it is understood, offered to give Chicago two outfielders and a young pitcher.

CORPORATION NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., will receive sealed bids at the Council Chambers, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting of said Council to be held therein on Tuesday, September 5th, 1916, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., for the erection and construction of a City Hall Building on Watchung Avenue corner of East Sixth Street, in said City.

Plans and specifications and forms for proposals for such proposed building can be obtained by bidders on application to Messrs. Peck & Bottomley, Associate Architects, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York city by filing references for approval and depositing with said Architects certified check for $25.00, payable to the order of the Treasure, of the said City, which check will be held until the return of such plans and specifications. Also the plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The work will be let in four (4) contracts. 1st—For General Construction; 2nd—For Plumbing, gas fitting and work kindred thereto; 3rd—For Steam heating; 4th—For Electrical work. Separate bids will be received for each of these contracts.

All bids must be on the forms furnished with the specifications and in compliance with the "Instructions to bidders" accompanying the same, and accompanied by certified check on some solvent bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Treasurer of said City, to the amount of five per cent. of the bid submitted. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed enveloped addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

Dated August 7, 1916.

FOURTH WARDERS ADD THEIR VOICE

Pass Resolution Urging Calkins to Run For Mayor Again.

BLATZ IS ENDORSED

De Meza and Buckle Also Given Expressions of Confidence—Newcorn Promises Republican Success in County.

The Fourth Ward Republican Club last night voted to add its voice to the appeals to Mayor Leighton Calkins that he again accept the Republican nomination for Mayor of Plainfield, and the clerk was instructed to send him a copy of a resolution passed which indorsed his record and urged that he run again. The club also indorsed Francis J. Blatz for Councilman, William G. De Meza for City Judge, and J. F. Buckle for Free-holder.

In the absence of President Francis J. Blatz, Secretary Charles F. Kling presided. There were about thirty members of the club present. Mr. Blatz and Kling were reelected president and secretary for the coming year, and the following were elected vice-presidents: at large, William A. Kline; First district, John Bowman; Second district, James J. Ennis, Jr.; Third district, Jacob Sacher; Fourth district, Henry Liefton; Fifth district, Charles C. Graves; Sixth district, John A. Kriney.

"No man in the official family has worked harder or more faithfully for the best interests of the city than Frank Blatz," said Judge William Newcorn, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, in making the resolution that he be indorsed for another term. "He is an official of liberal spirit, and yet he has always safeguarded the interests of the city. We need more men like him in the Council."

Mr. Newcorn also paid a tribute to Mayor Calkins and to Judge De Meza. Of the present Mayor, he said, "he has spent more time in handling the duties of the office, and has been more progressive than any other man who ever served. By all precedent he is entitled to renomination. Because of the many municipal matters that have been started under him and are yet to be completed, he should be requested to run."

Councilman Graves explained that he had written a personal letter to Mayor Calkins urging him to run and had received a reply in which the Mayor said he had not decided, but that he thought possible it might be the proper thing to do.

John J. Carroll, chairman of the City Republican Committee, explained that Mayor Calkins would prefer not to accept another term, but that he should be convinced that it was his duty to run. "The city needs him," said Mr. Carroll after he had told how much time Mr. Calkins gave to his public duties. He gave $900 to municipal work last year, Mr. Carroll said.

In placing the name of Judge De Meza for indorsement, Judge Newcorn said: "He has made a conscientious judge. He has not pleased every one, but a man who would try to please every one in his office could not please anyone. Judge De Meza has done the best that a man could do in a trying position."

Judge Newcorn told of the work of the county committee in preparation for the coming election. All preliminary work will have been done when the primaries are held, he said, and the organization will be ready to get in behind the candidates chosen by the voters. He said he wanted to prophesy Republican success from top to bottom, and he urged Plainfield to show up as strongly in the Republican victory as it had always done in the past.

The next meeting of the Fourth Ward Club will be held on Tuesday, September 12, in the office of Blatz & Codington.

JOY RIDER HAS TO PAY DAMAGES OF THE TRIP

Charles Comesky, of West Third street, was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in police court this morning for taking the automobile of his employer, J. D. Loizeaux, out without permission, and was released on his promise to pay Mr. Liozeaux back the money necessary to fix the damaged car. Mr. Loizeaux agreed to take the man back in his employ and deduct $2 a week from his wages until the $60 was paid to fix the car.

Comesky wanted an automobile ride Sunday, and after telling a fellow workman that Mr. Loizeaux gave him permission to use the car he persuaded him to drive the machine for him. On Park avenue between Metuchen and this city the auto turned turtle and was badly damaged.

F. S. CUTTER WILL BE A CANDIDATE

Announcement of His Withdrawal From Contest Was Unauthorized, He Says.

The announcement made in another local paper last night that Frederick S. Cutter, of the First ward, had decided to withdraw as a possible candidate for Councilman on the Republican ticket, following the declaration that Councilman A. D. Edgar would seek a renomination, was wholly unauthorized, according to Mr. Cutter and his friends. Mr. Cutter's petitions are now in circulation and he has consented to allow his name to go before the fall primaries for Councilmanic honors.

Friends of Mr. Cutter stated today that at the meeting of Republicans last Tuesday it was openely declared that Mr. Edgar would not seek a renomination this fall, and consequently they immediately prevailed upon Mr. Cutter to enter the primaries. They now consider that Mr. Cutter was the first candidate in the field, and that he is not opposing Mr. Edgar, who announced his intentions later.

It is the purpose of Mr. Cutter's friends to present the latter's candidacy at the meeting of Republicans next Thurday night. Whether it will be looked up with favor by members of the party is not known, but whether they do or not it will not change Mr. Cutter's plans. He was greatly surprised to see last night's announcement that he had withdrawn his name, and was emphatic in stating that it had not been authorized by him or anyone else.

HEART TROUBLE FATAL TO WILLIAM COOPER

Well-known Resident Died Suddenly This Morning at His Home.

William Howard Cooper, a lifelong resident of the borough, died suddenly of heart failure, 61 Franklin place, this morning. Mr. Cooper was 55 years of age and had been in ill health for the past week, but his death was unexpected. He rose at an early hour this morning and busied himself about the kitchen, where members of the family found him unconscious. Dr. A. H. Dundon was called but the man man was beyond hope.

Mr. Cooper was born at Somerville, but an an early age removed to this city, where he had lived ever since. He was a blacksmith by trade and had been employed at the various shops in the city. He was an active member of the local Nest of Owls and had been connected with various fraternal organizations.

Besides a wife, Mr. Cooper is survived by two daughters, Anna L. and Rose E.; and two sons, Edward J. and William H. Cooper. Funeral services will be held Friday.

$8 OR 40 DAYS.

Arraigned in the city police court on the charge of vandalism preferred against him by Amos Andrews, of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, James N. Rhodes, of Jackson avenue, was fined $8 by City Judge William G. De Meza this morning. Rhodes, in company with two other youths, whose names were not learned, destroyed the flowers in the park the water company laid out at the North Aveenue pumping station. Rhodes was caught, but the other two got away.

PETTY VANDALISM.

Hildred Bond, a fourteen-year old colored youth, was fined $8 or 40 days in the county jail by City Judge W. G. De Meza this morning on a charge of vandalism. Bond in company with several other boys went along the banks of Greenbrook yesterday and destroyed property of the various residents.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

Health Officer.

HARTRIDGE WILL REOPEN OCT. 3

Plans For Coming Year at Well-known Private School Are Announced.

RESIDENT DEPARTMENT

Few Changes In the Teaching Staff—Some Light On the Subject of Examinations—Success of 1915 Graduates.

Miss Hartridge has announced her plans for the coming year, which involve a few changes in the teaching staff. Miss Lois Sandison, who won high honors at Bryn Mawr College and has done some excellent private work in Latin and English, will take Miss Rose's place as teacher of those subjects in the lower grades of the academic department. Miss Rose has resigned in order to accept a position as teacher of mathematics at the well known Mary Institute in St. Louis. Miss Clark has gone to the Horace Mann School and Miss Lux, of Syracuse University, will teach English and geography in the intermediate grades. Her experience covers both elementary and academic work.

Miss Marion Kerr will be the new art teacher, as Miss Robinson will take charge of a special department in modelling at the Finch School. Miss Kerr was trained in the School of Design and has worked with Birge Harrison, Alden Weir and Robert Reid, all of whom heartily endorse her teaching. She has a studio in New York and has taught there and in Wainscot. Miss Spear will be married this fall, and her place will be taken by Miss Shaw, a graduate of the Sargent School, Boston, with two years experience.

The Montessori and outdoor class will be continued under the direction of Miss Burt. Miss Simpson, of the Philadelphia Training School; Miss Tennant, of the Albany Normal, and Miss Hedges, of Syracuse University, will remain in charge of the first, second and third grades, respectively. Mrs. Robert Strong, of Vassar, will have the fourth grade. The fifth, sixth and seventh gradees, will be special teachers, as usual.

Mrs. Peckham and Miss Williamson will continue their work here in music, and Miss Florance in dancing. For the academic department there will be eight instructors: Latin, Miss Hartridge, Vassar; English, Miss Mapelsden, Barnard; Latin and English, Miss Sandison, Bryn Mawr; mathematics, Miss Seward, Barnard and Columbia; history and economics, Miss Mary B. Wells, Smith; French, Miss Mary A. Wells, Wells College; German, not yet appointed.

At the resident department at Oakwood another large building has just been completed. The first floor, 60x34 feet, will be used for living rooms and a separate study for the girls. It is so constructed that it can be thrown together and made into a hall for dancing or for receptions. The floors are of oak throughout. The study will be furnished with individual writing desks and the living rooms with comfortable chairs and reading tables. Book cases, window seats, and large settees around the big fireplace have been built into the rooms. There are windows on all sides and special attention has been paid to the lighting. Upstairs there are rooms for ten more girls and for two teachers.

Miss Hartridge has some very interesting things to say in connection with the relation between every day work and college entrance examination, and particularly in connection with the Plainfield girls and the papers given by the College Entrance Board. She maintains that if girls study intelligently and if their work is rated intelligently there is little doubt of the results of examinations and little, if any, strain on the pupils. In view of the recent abolition by Smith, Vassar, Wellesley and Mount Holyoke of the certificate privilege (which goes into effect at the expiration of two years), and of the discussions in connection with examinations, her conclusions, drawn from scientific tabulations of results in her own school, are timely.

About one-half of the members of the Junior and Senior classes prepare for college. Seventeen girls took the College Board papers, given here in June. With the approval of their teachers these seventeen girls took seventy-six examinations. Out of these seventy-six there were only seven papers that failed to receive a passing mark, or, to put it differently over 90 per cent. of the examinations proved successful. In elementary and intermediate French and German, in advanced prose, vergil and sight, Latin grammar, Caesar sight, and in history, 100 per cent. of the examinations were successful. The seven failures were in Cicero and sight (2), English literature (1), English grammar and composition (1), Geometry (2), and algebra, (1).

The following facts with relation to the examinations are significant. Not one girl failed in any subject in which she had received for class work during the year an average of not lower than B or good. In only four cases out of the sixty-nine successful examinations had the average during the year been as low as C or fair. Thirteen of the seventeen candidates

SAUNDERS IS NOT FIGHTING MARTINE

Favors Election of Westcott, However — Ellis Comes Back at Lapsley.

Dr. W. L. Saunders is not leading the fight on Senator James E. Martine for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from New Jersey. To a Press reporter this morning he denied reports that have been printed over the State to the effect that he was at the head of the Westcott campaign.

"I am engaged in a national fight for the re-election of Wilson," said Mr. Saunders. "I also favor the election of Judge Westcott, but am not making a personal fight against my friend Martine."

The statements that Dr. Saunders was in the charge of the Westcott campaign were included in news stories of Westcott's candidacy written by a delegated or volunteer press agent and mailed to various newspapers over the State. The use of Mr. Saunders's name as manager of the political fortunes of Judge Westcott caused friends of Senator Martine to accuse President Wilson of fighting the local Senator, as Dr. Saunders is a member of the Democratic National Campaign Committee.

L. J. Ellis, a local Democratic leader, this morning took exception to a statement made by Howard Lapsley at a meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club Monday night. Mr. Ellis said:

"You published yesterday some remarks made by Howard Lapsley at a meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club on Monday night. Mr. Lapsley referred to the movement in Plainfield to get Judge Westcott, the opponent of Senator Martine, to come here and address the voters, as if the movement was a secret one, or as if the promoters have been under cover. This is rather a silly charge. It is well known that a petition in favor of Judge Westcott has been in circulation in Plainfield for some time, and the friends of Westcott have been very open and vehement in their advocacy of his candidacy. I discussed the question with Mr. Lapsley several days ago, when I asked him to sign the petition in favor of Judge Westcott. He said he had already signed one in favor of Senator Martine, and in the brief discussion that followed he manifested no enthusiasm for Senator Martine, but gave as his reason for signing his long acquainfance with Martine."

SIXTY-FIVE YEAR OLD BEGGER IN CITY COURT

George Chuba, rover, but who has a family in Binghampton, N. Y., was given one hour to get out of town after he had been fined $100 by Judge DeMeza in city court this morning. William H. Lunger, business agent of the local Building Trades Council, complained to the court that Chuba appeared at his office yesterday drunk and solicited funds.

Chuba tried the same game in this city in 1911 but got away safely. He is a stair-builder by trade, and although sixty-five years old, he makes a living by going from city to city asking for help.

ANOTHER REUBEN HELD FOR CONNECTION WITH SPEAKEASY

Jacob Reuben walked into the police station yesterday to see how things were getting along with his brother, Samuel Reuben, and he was arraigned before Judge DeMeza on two charges of selling liquor without a license. He was held under $200 for trial next Monday. The other two were released under the same bail and Irving Alderstein under a $100 bail on Monday.

With the apprehension of Jacob Reuben the police have corraled all the parties alleged to be connected with the "speakeasy" that was raided at the Red Cross drug store on West Fourth street last Sunday. The three Reubens are supposed to be the proprietors of the store and Adelstein was the clerk.

TWO SMALL ROBBERIES.

The police are working on two minor robbery cases reported to them this morning. Jacob Sachar, of 611 Sachar place, reported that two chairs had been stolen from his porch, and George Heern, of 462 West Front street, reported a baby carriage had been taken from the porch.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

IS HOTTER HERE THAN ON BORDER

Trooper Goodenough Says Men There Are All In Good Health.

WANT TO COME HOME

Feel That Time Is Being Wasted—Have Had No Military Training—Praise For Lieut. Runkle and Non-Coms.

"Gee, but it's hot here!" was the first exclamation of Arthur T. Goodenough, just back from the border, and only yesterday discharged as a member of Troop D, of the New Jersey regiment of the United States army.

"Nothing like this down on the border," he said, and then took off his coat before he would even listen to the questions of a Press reporter. "The sun shines fiercely during the day in Arizona, but one does not suffer from the heat as much as here. I was not so uncomfortably warm all the time I was there as I am today." Thus he shattered one of the most popular beliefs of the people back home about hardships undergone by the boys who went away, and he proceeded to shatter more of them before he finished telling of conditions at Camp Douglas.

At Fort DuPont, Delaware, yesterday honorable discharges were made out to Bugler Lewis A. Williams, Jr., and Troopers Douglas C. Anderson, W. M. Haughton and Arthur T. Goodenough, all of Plainfield. The discharges were signed by Lieut. Col. Harris, in command of the army post at Fort DuPont, by authority given in Order No. 13 of the Southern Department, General Funston, commanding.

"The health of the men in Troop D is exceptionally good," said Mr. Goodenough. "It is probably better than if they were at home. Only two men have been sent to the base hospital. They were Troopers Bird and Calder, and they are there for observation. Both men were physically unfit, and should never have been accepted. They will probably be discharged soon.

"Members of the troop do not suffer from the heat. They suffer from hard work in a burning hot sun that seems to fry the flesh, and at first they suffered from cramps brought on as a result of ignorance of the care of the body under such conditions, but now they are as fine a body of men physically as you will find anywhere. The nights are cool in Arizona, and there are no flies or mosquitoes after dark. This keeps life in the men. They get a good night's sleep every night, and are up and ready for a day's work next morning.

"The little discontent that prevails among the troopers and their officers is due to the fact that they have been given little or no military training since they left home. The work hard each day, but they work with a pick and shovel, not with rifle and bayonet. Most of the digging has been for the purpose of sanitation, and the men have not even been taught how to dig a military trench.

"The absence of military training has been a keen disappointment to the soldiers. Although they have spent seven long, hot weeks on the border, away from home and business, under stress of military necessity, they know little more about drilling and the arts of warfare than they did when they left home. They feel that they were taken from Plainfield to fight or learn soldiering. As they have done neither, they are naturally disappointed. I understand an order calling for more training in drills and maneuvers has gone through, and if this is true it will do a lot to overcome the grumbling.

"Long ago the troopers quit trying to prophesy when they would be ordered home," said Mr. Goodenough.

"They are very, very anxious"—and then he repated the very, very anxious—"to get home. They feel that the situation along the border is so much better that they cannot see the object in keeping them away from business and family, but they have given up putting faith in rumors. Every day, and sometimes every hour, a new rumor as to orders to move is heard, and the men now believe none of them. They are resigned to whatever comes in the way of orders, but they hope that they will be there only a short time.

"The troopers are as well treated as any men on the border. There have been stories of discontent with the food, but you wouldn't hear anything like that from the men themselves. They know that it is a man's job to feed 100 big, healthy, outdoor-living troopers on 27 cents a day each, and they wonder how Mess Sergeant Hartley Mellick does so well by them. He has made a study of his task, and he gives the men everything possible that is wholesome and good. The mess is improving every day, and the men are all pleased because they have a good man on the job.

"Life on the border is very monotonous. Every day there is alike, and the men have not been properly equipped. Requisitions for clothing allowed by the government have been sent in, and when this shipment comes in everyone will be more comfortable. Some of the troopers have only had one pair of trousers since they left Sea Girt.

"As a whole our non-commissioned officers are far superior to those of any other troop. They are doing their utmost to make things comfortable for the men, and without exception the men are fond of the non-coms.

G. O. P. EXCURSION PLANS COMPLETE

Outing On Saturday Will Mark Opening of Campaign In Union County.

Plans for the annual outing of the Union County Republican Committee to Pleasure Bay on Saturday have been completed by the committee. According to the report of Nathan R. Leavitt, treasurer of the outing committee, the event promises to be a most successful "get-together" of the county Republicans.

While the big political confab is in progress at the grove refreshments, liquid and otherwise, and cigars will be provided by the committee. A special feature will be the old-fashioned New England clambake, which will be served at Wardell's Port-au-Peck Hotel.

A special excursion train via the Central Railroad will leave Plainfield at 8:33, stopping en route at Fanwood, Westfield, Garwood, Cranford and Roselle. In Elizabeth stops will be made at the main station at 9:02 a. m. and at Elizabeth avenue at 9:07 a. m. Returning, the train will leave East Long Branch at 7 p. m.

The outing will mark the real opening of the Union county campaign, and will be attended by candidates for National, State, county and city offices, as well as by the rank and file of the party from all sections of the county. Special invitations have been sent to the candidates for United States Senate, Governor, Congress, State Chairman Newton K. Bugbee, Mayor Raymond, of Newark, and many others.

Pointing out that the district is entitled to one of the Republican nominees for Presidential elector, State Committeeman Hamilton Kean has proposed the name of Richard M. Williams, of Morristown, for the position. A resolution has been adopted endorsing Mr. Williams and requesting Mr. Kean to recommend him to the Republican State convention, which meets soon after the primaries to choose electors.

THREE MORE PLAGUE CASES ARE REPORTED

Two Colored Children and One White Child Stricken In East End.

Three more cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the local Board of Health this morning, making a total of seven cases for the week and twenty-one since the epidemic started. After several days of observation it was decided that Vinson Burgess, Jr., the 2½-year-old son of Vinson Burgess, colored, of 544 East Thrid street, is suffering from the disease. It is said to be of the abortive type and he is under strict quarantine.

Earl Marcellus, also colored, the 14-months-old son of Oliver Marcellus, of 841 Richmond street, was stricken with the disease today, and Dorothy Dixson, 6-year-old daughter of Alexander Dixson, of 1001 South avenue, was reported as having the plague also.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature recorded at the State Trust Company for today was as follows: 9 a. m., 77 degrees; 11 a. m., 87 degrees; and 1 p. m., 92 degrees.

DAY'S MOTOR TRIP FROM PLAINFIELD.

Many Plainfield motorists are continually planning the itinerary of a one-day trip from here that can be made in daylight, and which offers new scenery and a variety of roads. The Daily Press has had several requests to publish such trips. Here is one that a car owner in the office took some time ago and which was found to be most enjoyable.

The party left Plainfield about 8 o'clock in the morning, via Dunellen and Bound Brook, to Somerville, thence to Whitehouse, to Lebanon, to Annandale, to Clinton, to Glen Gardner, where a side trip was made to the Glen Gardner Sanitorium on the hill, from whence a view of the valley below and the surrounding hills can be had that is unsurpassed by any in the State. After spending about half an hour at the Sanitorium they journeyed on to Washington and thence to Phillipsburg, across the Delaware River to Easton. Then down the river as far as Milford, where they crossed again and took the main road for Flemington, to Belle Mead, to Raritan, to Somerville, and back home, which was reached at 6:30 o'clock. The trip totals about 125 miles, and allows ample time for lunch and stops to view the scenery.

If any of our readers have found a day's trip from Plainfield that they think others would enjoy, send it to the Daily Press for publication.

GERMANS GAIN SOMME TRENCHES

Furious Attacks Dislodge French At Several Points.

ARTILLERY CLEARS WAY

Balkan Drive Gains In Fury—Russians Meet Resistance In Attempt to Reach Kovel—Turks Are Checked.

Paris, Aug. 23.—German troops in a series of furious attacks on the Somme front last night succeeded in penetrating French trenches at several points in the region of Estrees, says the official communique issued by the French war office today. These attacks south of the river followed a terrific spurt of artillery activity, during which the Germans rained sheels of heavy calibre upon the French positions.

Balkan Fighting Furious.

London, Aug. 23.—With the Bulgarians pressing the Allies hard on both wings of a 150-mile front, but in turn being forced to retreat in the centre, the battle in the Balkans increased in fury to-day.

The allied forces have captured a series of heights west of the Vardar River, according to the official report of the French war office. British artillery has checked the advance of skirmishers of the Central Powers in a sector of the Struma front, thirty-five miles north east of Saloniki.

Russians Cannot Advance.

London, Aug. 23.—Meeting the most desperate resistance the Teuton Allies have thus far brought to bear on the eastern front, the Russians are launching attack after attack in an attempt to renew their drive on Kovel.

Latest reports coming from Berlin indicate the Czar's troops have been unable to resume the advance.

Turk Drive Is Checked.

Petrograd, Aug. 23.—The Turkish offensive on the Caucasus front, in southern Armenia, that resulted in the recapture of Bitlis and Mush from the Russians, has been decisively checked. Large forces of Turkish regulars are attacking the Russians in Persia.

German Steamer Sunk.

London, Aug. 23.—A Lloyds dispatch reports that the German steamer Pesterro has been sunk or captured in the Gulf of Bothnia, off Herwosand, Sweden. The maritime records fail to list the Pesterro.

TWO WORKMEN MISSING WHEN BUILDING FALLS IN

New York, Aug. 23.—Two workmen are missing and twelve were injured when a five-story building in course of construction on Marion avenue, between 187th and 188th streets, the Bronx, collapsed this morning.

Between thirty and forty men were in the building, and of these all who were engaged in the front part were buried in the debris.

HERBERT PEACOCK, PLAGUE VICTIM, REPORTED IMPROVING

Stricken with infantile paralysis Sunday, Herbert Peacock, the 19-year-old popular local young man, is today reported as being slightly improved. Although he is still paralyzed below the waist, Dr. Albert Pittis is making frantic efforts to save the former P. H. S. athlete and will give him the third injection of the serum rushed from New York today. According to Dr. Pittis Peacock is the first victim in the State that has had the serum treatment and the result is being carefully watched.

REPUBLICANS GOT HIS HAT.

Charles Paggliuccia, who attended the meeting of the Fourth Ward Republican Club last night, is bemoaning the loss of a valuable Panama hat. Some one swapped with him, and he doesnt like the trade. He asks that the man who got the wrong hat call at 120 Park avenue and return it.

MICHIGAN ENDEAVORERS.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 23.—A large and enthusiastic attendance marked the opening here today of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor Unions of Michigan. Every part of the State has sent delegates to the convention. The sessions will continue through the remainder of the week.

G. O. P. CLUB TO MEET.

The Republican Club of the Third ward will meet in the Washington School Friday night to discuss candidates and other matters of interest.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Bunting, Mr. and Mrs. George Coriell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nelson, the Misses Florence and Gertrude Bunting, Anita and Mildred Barrett, Bertha and Hannah Nelson and Elmer and Wesley Barrett, Archie and Le Roy LaRue, Milton Randolph and Benjamin Thomas, of New Brunswick, and George Giddes, of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tabb, of Port Richmond, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Foster Sofield.

Contractor DeWitt Fulton has been awarded the contract of painting the new Leslie Latham house in Dunellen.

BURIED AT CLIFFWOOD.

The body of Howard Stillwaggon, the 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stillwaggon, who died of the croup yesterday, was buried at Cliffwood, near Manasquan, yesterday.

Miss Nancy Thomas, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Churchill and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Faber, has terminated her visit.

Miss Sarah Dayton, the local postmistress, has returned from a two weeks' vacation visit at Budd's Lake.

Sylvester Rinehart and Julius Margeutino are spending the week in camping at Keansburg.

COMPLETES INVENTORY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Todd, the librarian of the public library, has about completed taking an inventory of the books. As a result of this inventory she has ascertained that quite a number of books have been taken from the library shelves without giving either her or her predescessor an opportunity of recording them. It is requested that all of these books be returned immediately.

Mahlon R. Dayton, of Center street, is enjoying his annual vacation from his business in New York.

Edward Gray, Jr., of First street, is spending the week at a popular resort along the New Jersey coast.

APPOINTED MARSHAL.

Edward Herlich has been appointed a special marshal. He has been placed on day duty to see that the quarantine which has been placed on Prospect avenue, from Walnut street half way to Center street, is not broken.

RESIGNS POSITION.

J. P. Cunningham has resigned his position as special health inspector to devote all of his time to organizing a camp of the Woodmen of the World in Plainfield.

Mrs. J. Newton Apgar and daughters, Ruth and Deveral, are spending their vacation at Lebanon.

Borough Engineer and Mrs. L. T. Churchill spent the day at Atlantic Highlands.

BURIED AT HAMPTON.

The body of George Young, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Young, who died of infantile paralysis early yesterday morning, was buried at Hampton yesterday.

Charles Dodd, of New Market, fell out of a wagon in front of the C. T. Voorhees market yesterday afternoon, but sustained no injuries.

Miss Mabel Bennett is sojourning at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Percival R. Abbott, who is ill with heart trouble, was better this morning.

POLITICAL NOTES

August 26—Annual outing of the Republican County Committee.

September 1—Last day for filing petitions for nomination for county offices.

September 2—Formal notification of Wilson's nomination at Shadow Lawn, Long Branch.

September 6—Last day for filing petitions of nomination for municipal office.

September 26—Primary election and registry day.

November 7—General election.

State Senators Walter E. Edge and Austen Colgate will both be guests on the Republican outing to be held to Pleasure Bay on Saturday. Edge formally accepted the invitation extended him by the committee yesterday, and gave assurances that he would be present. He will probably be called upon for a speech before the day is over, and the prospects are that the speech making may be general, with a tilt between Edge and Colgate as a feature.

Former State Senator Frelinghuysen will also be a guest, and a number of other notables have been invited. It is expected that a large crowd will go down on the trip and take advantage of the specially prepared Waddell clambake, New England style, seasoned with politics. It is possible that two sections will be needed to accommodate the throng, if the sale of tickets continues at its present rate all week.

Unlike the Democratic outing, which is being held today, there will be no slate making among the hosts of the G. O. P. There are candidates for practically every office among the Republicans, and the primary fights will go ahead uninterrupted. The crowd will devote all its time Saturday to that occupation named in the Declaration of Independence as "the pursuit of happiness."

Colonel Austen Colgate, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, will be given a reception at the Union County Republican headquarters the last part of the month. The date has been tentatively set for Thursday, August 31. There will be addresses by Colonel Colgate, some of the leaders in Essex county and men prominent in Union county.

Mrs. Otto H. Wittpenn, wife of the Democratic candidate for Governor, made her debut in the campaign at the annual outing of the Burlington county Democrats at Rancocas Park Saturday. She intimated that from now on to election day she will be by her huband's side, looking after the many little but important details that a mere manager might forget. Mrs. Wittpenn's entrance into the campaign is hailed with delight by the party leaders, for she is regarded as almost as good a "mixer" socially as her husband, and she is not new to public life, having been prominent in philanthropic work in North Jersey.

are Plainfield girls. One of the Seniors who had been refused admission to Vassar on the ground that the list for 1916 was closed, has been notified that an exception has been made in her favor and that she will be admitted on the honor list.

In the case of fourteen examinations not included in the seventy-six which have been discussed, consent was not given by the school and the examinations were taken on the pupil's own initiative. This happened almost always where work had not been made up in school after prolonged absence or where reward had not been attended and the teachers could not speak for the thoroughness of the candidates. Seven of these examinations were passed.

In order to avoid any risk in bringing pupils through New York before the epidemic is over, Miss Hartridge has decided to postpone the opening of school until October 3. If by the end of September there still seems any danger she will not open the school before October 10.

MRS. ETHEL GRAY BRIDE OF L. SHEPHERD DE KAY

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Ethel Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Neumann, to L. Shepherd DeKay, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. DeKay, both of this city. The ceremony was performed on Thursday, August 17, at the Church of the Ascension, New York City. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. DeKay have taken up their residence at 127 East Sixth street.

The bride was the widow of John Gray, who died in the earlp part of this year. Mr. DeKay is engaged in business in New York City.

Period Furnishing.

"Period furnishing is splendid when intelligently done," said a decorator. "A regency drawing room, an empire dining room, a Charles II. library—a house so furnished is delightful.

"But you must buy your period things from dealers who know their business. Some dealers don't. I once heard a lady say to a dealer:

"'This chair is Louis XVI., but my drawing room, you know, is Louis XIV. Would that chair go in it, then?

"'Sure, madam, sure,' said the dealer. 'Louis XIV. and Louis XVI. always go together. You see, there's only two years between 'em.'"—Washington Star.

German Writer Tells of Week's Visit to Air Giants.

ISSUES WARNING TO FOES

First Description of the Home of the Big Air Craft—Has Been Carefully Guarded Since Outbreak of War. Have a Confidence Inspiring Number, Fendrich Asserts.

Anton Fendrich, who is about to publish a book on the war, is giving to the German public its first real view of the German air fleet, which he visited "among the sand dunes." Here is his story in part:

"Somewhere amid the white sand dunes and the salt meadow weeds dwell the mariners of the air who have brought some notion to Albion that it no longer is an island. I was taken to a group of buildings, dark airship halls, silhouetted against the sunset clouds in great lines of modern steel construction.

"'How many?' I hear the question asked. Quite a confidence inspiring number.

"The commanders were sitting at a flower decked horseshoe supper table—not all of them, for some were under way. From the wall smiled the Suabian Count Zeppelin, without whose decade of struggling all this would never have been.

"These men were mostly between thirty and forty years and already had many a time participated in a wild hunt through searchlights and bursting shells, and, though they lived among these peaceful meadows, the same keen look of the huntsman which one finds at the front was stamped on their faces.

"It was midnight as we approached the dark structure with brightly illuminated windows, which, at first broad and red, soon shrank to narrow shining slits as the whole ball turned on its axis in order to bring the airship into line with the wind.

Hurricane From Propellers.

"The turning of a single screw on the ocher yellow body of the air cruiser filled the giant hall with the roaring and howling of a hurricane.

"In front of the almost unbelievably thin steel rods to which were affixed the screw propellers were high wooden platforms on which mechanics cowered and watched the whirling propellers. These wooden propellers, each as tall as a man, soon became visible again, turned awkwardly a few times, then stopped. A mechanic adjusted a few screws, hammered a few bolts, and then the slender thin wooden blades again roared. The mechanic notes the faults first always with the ear only, but afterward discovers them with the eye.

"Now they had caught the right tone. 'The ship is clear for sailing,' the engineer reported to the commander.

"But outside waited the night wind. One knew it well from past experience. Therefore a hundred hard seamen's fists grabbed it outside to prevent capsizing.

The Air Giant Is Off.

"A shrill whistle and all the screws began their storm song. A few men of the landing battalion shook themselves like wet dogs. They had got on their heads a spout of the water with which the air cruiser lightens itself. Lightly the slender colossus floated upward and it seemed swallowed up by the night, a dark shadow against the Great Dipper.

"We flew. The deafening noise making conversation impossible, I at first noticed nothing. The commandant showed me the manipulation of the steering gear for elevation and direction and all the other technical equipment.

"We flew over wood and meadow, and over airship halls and barracks and the canopy of green was soon lost to sight.

"Through a small horizontal transparent pane, built like an alcove in the glass wall of the commandant's gonodola, your eyes can see straight downward into the depths below.

"During the week I was with the air cruiser in which one of the commandants had in five days spent eighty-eight hours in the air and had slept only twenty-four in his bed.

"Another officer, commanding one of the older ships with open gondolas, returned so frozen that it was necessary first to knock off with sticks the ice from the fur clothes of him and his men before they could undress.

"But, in my mind, I took off my hat most of all to the one whose first words as he leaned out of his gondola were:

"'I haven't been able to get rid of my eggs!' He meant the bombs with which his Zeppelin was provided.

"He had orders to attack an iron foundry. From afar he saw it gleaming below, but the increasing stormy west wind prevented him from getting over it. The home journey led him over many a town and village of the land which seeks to starve out German women and children, but he flew over them with all his bombs.

"Down on the water front everywhere stand new and gigantic airship halls. On the day I left the first of some new and splendid monsters came flying from its airship yards.

"Woe to you, Paris! Woe to you, London, when your day comes!"

PETER EMMONS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Life-Long Resident of the Borough Passes Away at the Hospital.

After a lingering illness, Peter Emmons, aged sixty-three, died in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, where he was taken four weeks ago for treatment for a complication of diseases. Emmons had lived at 44 Whitewood avenue practically all his life and was well known in this vicinity.

Born near Whitehouse, Mr. Emmons moved here when a boy and had been a prominent resident ever since. He was a member of the P. O. S. of A., at South Plainfield.

Besides a wife, he is survived by two sons, Walter Emmons, who lives at home, and Stanley Emmons, who lives at Somerville; and two daughters, Mrs. F. L. Streeter and Mrs. C. E. Metler, both of this city. Five grandchildren also survive him.

Funeral services will be held at the late home Friday night at 8 o'clock, and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

WILL LAY CORNERSTONE OF KEANSBURG CHURCH

Many members of the local Knights of Columbus will go to Keansburg Sunday to attend the cornerstone laying of St. Mary's church there. The exercises will be held at 3 p. m.

FORMER MAYOR STEWART MEMBER OF COMMITTEE

Former Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of this city, is a member of the general committee which is arranging the plans for the notification of President Wilson of his renomination, which will take place at Shadow Lawn, West Long Branch, the afternoon of September 2. The President will entertain at luncheon at 1 o'clock and the formal notification is scheduled for 4 o'clock.

SECOND NIGHT CLUB TO CROWN KING BRADY

Coronation ceremonies of the Second Night Club will be held at Hiawatha, the club bungalow at Keansburg, tonight, and invitations have been sent to many friends of the members. Bernard Brady is to be crowned king. His aides will be Joseph Sullivan and John Duffy. Gene McGeary, in the terpsichorean interpretations, and John Kyle will add to the program of the evening. Tea will be poured at 10 o'clock.

The Logan Construction Company, which is constructing the Terrill Road bridge, was awarded the contract for this work.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO MRS. ELIZABETH CASEY

Following a stroke of paralysis on Sunday, Mrs. Elizabeth Casey, aged 65, died at her home at 215 Grant avenue early this morning. Mrs. Casey had lived here for the past fifteen years and was well known. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Fred Stilliger and Mrs. Leonard Bunn, who resided at home, and Mrs. George Vreeland, of Newark. A son, Frank Vreeland, of Orange, also survives.

Mrs. Casey was the widow of the late Thomas Casey, who died several years ago. Previous to her marriage to Mr. Casey she resided in Newark, where she is also well known. Funeral services will be held Friday, from the late home, at 2 o'clock, and interment will be in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

HOTTER HERE THAN ON BORDER

There is never any grumbling when a trooper is asked to do something that does not seem to be in line with his duties, because he knows the noncom. has been ordered to have it done by someone higher up, and the spirit between the men is wonderful. Everyone knows Brown Ralston is the best first sergeant in the squadron, even those in the other troops. It is a dailly matter for men in other troops to tell us that if we have nothing else we have the best first sergeant in the outfit. Lieut. Runkle is also popular. He had charge of the horse assignment and mounts were distributed without partiality. In most cases the men got the horses they wanted, and too much credit cannot be given Lieut. Runkle for his hard and efficient work."

MRS HANNAH MOORE.

NO JURISDICTION IN CASE, SAYS COURT

Judge Connolly Declines to Give Decision in Pillar of Fire Matter.

At a hearing of the coroner's jury in Jersey City on Monday the six jurors brought in a verdict to Coroner Charles Hoffman holding both the Lehigh Valley Railroad and the National Storage Warehouse Company, of which Edmund Mackenzie, of Central avenue, this city, is president, responsible for the explosion at Black Tom Island on July 30, when millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed and a number of lives lost. In the verdict handed to the coroner the jurors held the two corporations guilty through "grave lack of precaution" responsible for the death of Patrolman James Doherty, of the Jersey City police force.

The next step toward prosecuting those responsible for the explosion, according to Second Assistant Prosecutor James McCarthy, will be to present the case to the September term of the grand jury, immediately after it is sworn in on September 19.

"We shall proceed against both the Lehigh Valley and the National Storage," said Mr. McCarthy, after the jury had rendered its verdict. "The State will seek indictments against the officials of the corporations both collectively and individually."

JURY FIXES BLAME FOR BIG EXPLOSION

Lehigh Valley and National Storage Companies Found Guilty of Neglect.

After due deliberation. Judge James C. Connolly, of the Union county court, has decided that he has no constitutional jurisdiction in the case of the Pillar of Fire, which was taken before him by G. W. V. Moy, of counsel for Laura Wilson and Lavinia Leach, members of the cult. It is now Mr. Moy's intention to take the matter up to the Supreme Court on certiorari proceedings.

The above decision was on Moy's application for a review of the local police court proceedings which resulted in his two clients going to the county jail. He paid $20 fines subsequently and secured their release, but this was paid with the understanding that the full rights to appeal were retained.

WILSON SOUNDS CONGRESS ON STRIKE LEGISLATION

Washington, Aug. 23.—In order to ascertain the mind of Congress, President Wilson today conferred with Senator Newlands and Representative Damson, chairmen of the Interstate Commerce Committee of the respective Houses, as to what legislation might be successfully carried through should the railroad strike situation demand action by Congress. The conference was held at 10:15 o'clock, an hour before the scheduled meeting with the railroad executives, at which it is believed definite proposals will be submitted by the executives in answer to the President's eight-hour day suggestion.

SENATE PASSES ARMY BILL.

Washington, Aug. 23.—After a spirited but unsuccessful attempt on the part of Senator Underwood to prevent the enlistment of boys under 21 years of age in the military service without the consent of their parents, the Senate today passed the $267,596,530 army appropriation bill with the articles of war amended so as to meet the full approval of President Wilson. Senator Underwood offered his proposal as an amendment. It was defeated by a vote of 25 to 23. The House will accept the amended articles of war next Friday.

NEW POLICE LIEUTENANT.

New York, Aug. 23.—Sergeant Thomas J. McCormick, of the Parkville police station, Brooklyn, has been appointed lieutenant by Commissioner Woods. He has been assigned to the Mulberry street station, New York. Lieutenant McCormick previous to his appointment was president of the Police Sergeants' Association and is a charter member of the police band, of which he was twice president.

BOROUGH COURT CASES.

Walter Johnson, of North Plainfield, is lodged in the borough jail on a charge of stealing several pieces of mechanical apparatus from the Smalley quarry. He will be given a hearing this evening.

Chief Marshal George Weiss, of North Plainfield, this morning arrested Lou Hays, of Chatham street, on a charge of beating his wife. He will be arraigned toworrow morning.

Miss Marie Dacey, of Wallace place, is spending her vacation with relatives in Dover and Morristown.

Charles M. Laible, of 132 Grove street, is enjoying his vacation at Hightstown.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS ON ANNUAL OUTING

Large Number of the "Faithful" Go to Witzel's Point Grove.

Plainfield Democrats to the number of about twenty-five are today enjoying the annual outing of the Union County Democratic Committee, being held at Witzels Point Grove on Long Island. The local Democrats left here on the 8:36 and 8:59 o'clock trains this morning, joining the other Democrats from various parts of the county at Elizabethport, where a steamer was taken for the sail up the Sound.

Accompanying the party are to be found prominent Democrats from all parts of the State, including many leaders, and it is expected that many a "boom" will be started and there will be the usual political gossip which is always a feature of such gatherings.

Among those from this city in the party are Frank Wagner, Richad A. Claybrook, John P. Owens, James J. McCann, Charles P. Senger, Le Roy J. Ellis, Walter Linbarger and Adam Fritz.

R. A. CLAYBROOK URGES CALKINS' RE-ELECTION

President of Democratic Club Tells Why He Favors City Executive.

The hope that Mayor Leighton Calkins may consent to seek a second term has been expressed by both Republicans and Democrats, and among the latter who want to see him renominated and re-elected is former Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, president of the Plainfield Democratic Club. He is of the opinion that in local affairs the city's interests should be above partisan politics.

Mr. Claybrook, in speaking on this subject last night, not as president of the Democratic Club, but as an individual citizen, said:

"I sincerely hope that Mayor Calkins will give his consent to again seek the Mayoralty nomination, and if he does I feel sure that he will be elected. Mr. Calkins has given the city a most desirable administration, and few people know the personal sacrifice and the great amount of time he has given to the office. His policies, I believe, have the endorsement of the majority of Plainfielders who believe in good city government, and if he is re-elected everyone will feel sure of a continuation of this kind of government—that which is for the best interests of the city.

"So far as I have been able to ascertain there is no strong sentiment for a Democratic opponent to Mr. Calkins. My friends asked me to enter the contest, but owing to health conditions I would not consent, and besides I would not oppose such a man as Mr. Calkins, a man who has given Plainfield an administration of which it can justly be proud.

D. C. SMALLEY INJURES FOOT WHILE SWIMMING

David C. Smalley, the North avenue butcher, while emerging from Holly Lake last night, where he and a company of friends had been swimming, stepped into a deep gulley and injured his ankle to such an extent that it is believed a bone is fractured. with the assistance of friends, Mr. Smalley went to Muhlenberg Hospital, where an x-ray was taken of the foot to ascertain the extent of the injuries. He was taken to his home later, where he is reported to be resting comfortably.

Dr. G. W. Endicott, the attending physician, after making an examination of the injured foot thought it best to have an x-ray taken. The injury is not considered a bad one and Mr. Smalley expects to be about within a short time.

The Strike of '94

Well I remember in '94
How guns came clattering over the cobbles,
Drivers lashing at the straining horses,
While gunners sat, arms folded and rigid,
Beside the grim fieldpieces.
I had never seen soldiers before.

There was trouble in Chicago,
Year after the glittering show on the lake front,
With its white palaces and midway,
Its gold lace reception of royalty and congressmen,
Its banquets and stately balls.

And, now, the guns!

They were unlimbered in the city's heart,
Around a sooty stone building
With hoarded millions in its vaults,
On the scanty margin of green,
Between stone pavements and the walls of stone.
Camp was pitched;
Canvas cones and bright, deadly muzzles of guns.
Rifles were stacked there; ammunition in cases.
All was made ready for the feast of death.

Brusque sentries paced the sidewalks.
They did not seem like other men—those regulars.
Citizens were ordered across the street.
There they stood, looking on Curiously,
Expectantly;
A bit frightened, perhaps, but hiding it.

Over the city rose smoke of cars burning.
Into the soil of the city, between the cobbles,
Something oozed and seeped lazily.
Red mud formed in the cracks of the paving;
Brown scales formed on the stones.
Crowds gazed at the spots till troopers ordered them away.

That was Chicago, '94,
Year of the railroad strike.
I was a boy then, just a boy;
And boys forget many a lesson,
But some things are not forgotten.
—Charlton Lawrence Edholm in New York Times.

UNITED STATES SUBMARINES SHOW GREAT PROFICIENCY

Destroyers Also Make High Scores In Gunnery.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has made public a detailed statement of the standing of destroyers and submarines for the gunnery year 1915-1916, together with the standing of destroyers, submarines, cruisers and gunboats in elementary practice and battle practice.

The figures for gunnery and in elementary and battle practice show a wide variation. Some vessels made 100 per cent. In the destroyer class the Stewart is given first place, with a merit of 96.714. The Patterson was second, with 93.270 points. The Wadsworth is last in the list, her gunnery merit being 44.271 points.

In the submarine class the K-8 was given a final merit record of 100 points. Its nearest competitor was the H-2, with 79.747 points. Five submarines got less than ten points, while the merit given the A-6, one of the oldest submarines in commission, was 0.833.

A general statement explaining the figures says:

"The final merit of a vessel in gunnery is computed from the results of all gunnery exercises conducted by a vessel during the gunnery year. As conditions change from year to year the standard must change to fit these conditions, and in the analysis of the work of the fleet standards for different parts of the work and different forms of gunnery exercises are established from the direct data obtained from the actual performance of the vessels themselves."

The destroyer Stewart led in its class in the elementary practice with guns and torpedoes, its merit being 72.759. In this practice the Patterson again was second, with a merit of 69.762. The Decatur was twenty-sixth in the list, receiving a merit of 10.598 points.

The K-8 led the submarines in elementary practice as well as in gunnery, in the former receiving a merit of 85 out of a possible 100 points. The H-3 was second with 65 points, and the C-5 was last with 5 points, sharing this record with the A-6. In the battle practice on the second run seven out of twenty-five submarines made perfect scores, while ten were given zero.

In elementary practice the Mayflower, President Wilson's naval yacht, led in the gunboat class with 89.859 points. In the battle practice the Mayflower dropped to sixth place with 27.646 out of a possible 100 points, the Dolphin heading the list with 81.813.

PERISCOPE ON RAILROAD.

Chicago Elevated Men Find New Use For Submarine Eyepiece.

Because new buildings have shut out the view of a curve from a switch tower on the Northwestern elevated railroad system in Chicago there has been built a giant periscope from the top of the tower, which permits the towerman to see around the curve.

The Scientific American contains a description of this newest use for the submarine eyepiece. It says:

"In Chicago a huge periscope is serving in a most peaceful capacity. The four track structure of the Northwestern elevated system bends around in approaching the Clark street station, where a switch tower stands. Buildings recently erected have shut off the view of approaching trains to the towerman; but, undaunted in their work, the railroad men have erected a huge periscope twelve feet in height on the roof of the signal tower. The periscope is of sufficient height to clear the intervening buildings and furnish the towerman with an unobstructed view of the tracks to the south."

DIXIE'S DAUGHTERS MOBILIZE FOR SUFFRAGE

"Dixie Night" promises to furnish one of the big surprises of the emergency-called convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association at Atlantic City next month. On that night—September seventh—the thousands of women from all parts of the country who have mobilized for the convention will learn at first hand how the "solid South" stands on the question of woman suffrage. And, according to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the national association, the information will not be displeasing.

Details of the information which is to be presented to the convention by the Southern leaders are being jealously guarded, but it is admitted that there are surprises in store for those who have been laboring under the delusion that the Southern States, as a whole, are opposed to granting woman the ballot.

Among the representative women who will speak on Dixie Night and tell of the strides which woman suffrage is making below the Mason-Dixon line are Mrs. B. J. Cunningham, president of the Texas Woman Suffrage Association; Mrs. Edward McGehee, president of the Mississippi Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Lila Meade Valentine, president of the Virginia Equal Suffrage League. Other Southern leaders who are on the program that night include Mrs. Eugene Rielley, Vice-President General Federation Women's Clubs; Mrs. Guildford Dudley, president Tennessee Equal Suffrage Association, Inc.; Mrs. T. T. Cotnam, vice-president Arkansas Woman Suffrage Association, and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Smith, president Kentucky Equal Rights Association.

President Wilson and Mr. Hughes have been invited to address the convention, which is the most important that has ever been called in the suffrage history of the country. Its specific purpose is to determine the political policy which the National American Woman Suffrage Association—a strictly non-partisan body—will follow during the coming Fall campaign.

Common House-Dust Contains Many Germs

EDWIN F. BOWERS, M. D., in a recent magazine article calls the broom and the dust-cloth two abominable first-aids to disease. He also says:

—"There is only one clean, hygienic, safe way to sweep and dust, and this is to use a vacuum cleaner."

—The phenomenal success of the Hoover Suction Sweeper is the natural result of the thorough work which it does. It gets all the dirt because it combines the three necessary principles of correct rug-cleaning—sweeping, shaking and suction.

—A strong current of air draws the carpet up—suspends it on an air-cushion about a quarter of an inch above the floor—and conveys the dirt to a dust receptacle as fast as it is dislodged by the wave-like, vibrating motion caused by the specially constructed, motor-driven brush.

—A Hoover large enough for ordinary use can be had for $47.50. Terms, $4.75 down—balance $4.75 monthly. 5 per cent. discount for cash with order.

'Phone or write for our representative to call and show you just what the Hoover Suction Sweeper does.

PROPOSALS FOR MACADAMIZING.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council at the Council Chamber No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at 8 o'clock, p. m., on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1916, for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the macadamizing contemplated in the ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 17, 1916, and approved by the Mayor, July 18, 1916, and as provided for in the specifications entitled "City of Plainfield, N. J., Proposal, Conditions, Specifications, Contract and Bond for the Permanent Improvement of Streets, 1916," filed in the office of the City Clerk August 7, 1916.

Upon receipts of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of said prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

A separate price must be named for each street, and proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Macadamizing."

URGES RAT EXTERMINATION.

500,000 Potential Plague Carriers Killed In New Orleans.

The connection between rats and plague has led to the accumulation of information regarding the frequency of their association with human habitations, as well as their destructiveness. Studies have been made which throw light on the question of the number of parasites which have been permitted through carelessness to exist in the immediate neighborhood of man. Until these comparatively recent investigations scarcely any one would have believed how large a number of rodents find a means of livelihood for themselves in our cities and towns, especially those which have a series of docks and wharves. A special report of plague eradication work at New Orleans, made by the surgeon in charge of the United States public health service work at that point, contains rather startlingly illuminating facts concerning these parasites.

"The total number of rodents captured up to Nov. 13 of the last year runs up to 497,983," says the writer. "Some idea of the immense labor and meticulous care required for thoroughness in sanitary work may be gathered from the fact that over 300,000 of these rodents had been examined up to the same date and though altogether only 265 cases of rodent plague were discovered, it is easy to understand how much of a danger for the dissemination of the disease these animals were. Until the actual report it would have been almost impossible to believe that a city like New Orleans, with its 500,000 rodents, actually harbored a larger population of rats and mice than it did of human beings.

"New Orleans is probably no worse in this regard than most of the coast cities of the southern part of the country at least, and it is probable that as careful a hunt for the creatures would reveal their presence in proportionate numbers even in many of the towns of the interior. It is scarcely necessary to call attention to the fact that this immense number of parasites, which so often get at food materials, constitute a distinct danger.

"Coast cities like New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle and some of the other towns on Puget sound have been compelled to take up the problem of obliteration of their rodent parasites by the occurrence of plague. The Journal of the American Medical Association thinks, however, that it would be well worth while for health authorities in other towns and cities to face this problem frankly before it becomes a source of actual immediate danger to health, because there is no doubt that the presence of these pests is extremely insanitary in many ways besides being seriously wasteful. If it should prove that the rodent population of most of our towns and cities, as in the case of New Orleans, was nearly if not quite as numerous as the human population the significance and urgent importance of this problem would be readily understood."

TILEFISH GAINS POPULARITY.

Bureau of Fisheries Aids In Extending Its Use For Food.

Noteworthy results have attended the efforts of the federal bureau of fisheries to popularize the tilefish as food, according to a commerce report. At the beginning of July, it is said, the tilefish fishery was eight months old, and during the period many Americans became acquainted with a hitherto neglected food resource. Prior to October, 1915, this fish was practically unknown in the markets.

"The fishery centers at New York," the report went, "but vessels from other ports engage in it as well. The largest number of vessels lading tilefish at New York in any one month was thirteen. From New York the fish are distributed over a wide area. In June one shipment of over 20,000 pounds was sent to Kansas City.

"The extent of the fishery from month to month has fluctuated, but the general tendency has been upward. The receipts of fish in June were about twice those of the preceding month, and reached a total of 1,126,000 pounds in twenty-six trips. The prices received by the vessels for the eviscerated fish have varied from 2½ to 7 cents a pound, averaging about 5 cents. The monthly receipts at New York, in pounds, were: November, 156,500; December, 170,200; January, 398,000; February, 468,000; March, 332,000; April, 614,000; May, 594,000, and June, 1,126,000. The total for the eight months was 3,858,700 pounds.

"Adding to these the small lots of tilefish landed in October, 1915, during the progress of the publicity campaign conducted by the bureau, and the various amounts brought into Atlantic City and other points, it appears that the total quantity of tilefish caught and sold to June 30 was 4,000,000 pounds, with a value exceeding $200,000."

GERMANS TRIED TO DESTROY U BOAT

Mine Laying Submarine Taken by British, a New Craft.

ON DISPLAY IN LONDON.

Crew of the U C-5 Set Off Bombs In Her Before Surrendering—Officer of British Destroyer Dived Under Vessel and Detached Detonators From the Mines.

The first complete story of the capture by the British of the German mine laying submarine U C-5 is published in the Naval and Army Record of London. A complete description of the submarine, said to be the first of the kind ever constructed, is also given.

"In April," says the Naval and Army Record, "a torpedo destroyer, cruising off the east coast, captured a German submarine in novel circumstances. When first sighted the enemy was in difficulties. From the deck of the destroyer, then some distance away, a flag could be seen at the masthead of the submarine, and in the mist it was at first taken to be the union jack. Closer inspection proved it to be the German naval ensign, and then it was noticed that the whole of the crew of the submarine appeared to be on deck.

"The comic side of the situation was not lost on the men of the destroyer, and, once apprised of the enemy character of the distressed vessel, they set to work to make her a prize. The commander hailed the crew with a brusque invitation to surrender. The submarine men saw the guns trained on them, and they hauled down their flag and put their hands up. Then at a word from the commander they jumped into the water and swam for dear life away from the submarine. Internal explosions followed, and at the last and heaviest a cascade of hammocks and other debris was shot out at the open conning tower to a height of forty feet. That there was a vent for the explosive forces probably saved the ship; but, as it was, the bottom of the vessel was punctured in two places and rivets were started so that the craft made water quickly.

Gas Frustrates British.

"An attempt to investigate the damage was frustrated by the presence of thick, black gases and about two feet of water, but later expert examination showed that although the submarine had laid no mines two had been released by the force of the explosions and were foul of the bottom of the vessel. Contact between the horns, which jutted out all around the mines, and the plates of the vessel would have exploded enough to sink a battleship, and it was an act of heroism on the part of a young officer that rendered the submarine capable of being brought in as a prize. The officer went down in a diving suit and made the mines safe by detaching the detonators, afterward securing them in such a position that the salvers could work in comparative safety. After seventeen days she was brought into an east coast port and put on public view off the Temple pier, Thames embankment. She turned out to be the U C-5, a vessel of the mine layer class, quite small, but capable and virulent, and the officers and men of the destroyer who made the capture are to be heartily congratulated on their achievement.

Vessel's Ensign a Trophy.

"As a memento of her capture the destroyer now displays her prize's ensign in the officers' mess. U C-5, as she appeared in custody at a naval dockyard, was smartly painted her original German gray, and the white ensign looked appropriately picturesque surmounting the enemy flag on the telescopic mast. But hauled off the dock side so that one might appreciate her without perspective intervening too largely, she was not really a pretty boat, even for a submarine. Her bulging tubular sides gave her a smart appearance, which was increased rather than diminished by the clumsiness of her superstructure—a high, raised platform running the whole length of the ship and widening at the forward end to display through gratings the six huge tubes through which the mines were launched.

Was Constructed In a Hurry.

"The captured submarine appeared to have been one of those transported in sections from Germany and put together on the Belgian coast. Her four sections are plainly marked, the hull being divided into three and the conning tower constituting the fourth part. The seams are rather roughly finished and point to rapid assembling and none too skillful workmanship. A mere minnow in size compared with the 'big fish' possessed by both the enemy and ourselves, the U C-5 was fitted only for mine laying and apparently carried no armament. The whole of the forward section is occupied by the steel launching tubes, and they were worked either automatically from the conning tower or by a hand lever situated between the wall of each tube and the side plates of the ship. She was fitted with a sixteen horse power Diesel engine, driving a single screw, and was capable of not much more than eleven knots at the best. Despite her limitations, she is believed to have made a score of trips to British waters and probably dropped 240 mines.

"There are one or two clever minor characteristics in the design of the U C-5 which have been noted."

Testing Diamonds.

In order to determine accurately the nature of diamonds it is well to breathe on them. Then they lose for a moment their luster, and the eye is then better enabled, says the Scientific American supplement, to examine them and distinguish their faults. The real diamond becomes clear much sooner than the false.

FIELD DAY AFFAIR HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Former Senator Frelinghuysen Will Not Entertain As Originally Planned

Somerville, August 23.—That the big field day, which was planned to be held this year at the home of Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president of the State Board of Agriculture, on next Saturday, has been postponed indefinitely does not seem to be realized by many farmers throughout the State. All kinds of inquiries have been received in the past week as to the program and the list of speakers, clearly indicating that many of the people who were here a year ago last June had in some manner missed the announcement that it had been postponed.

Less than a week after it had been arranged to be held, it was decided at a conference of the executive committee that in view of the continued prevalence of the infantile paralysis together with the quarantine regulations which were being enforced here and other places, it would involve a considerable risk to hold the big gathering and, accordingly, at the suggestion of former Senator Frelinghuysen, it was postponed indefinitely, and announcement to that effect was made.

For some reason may persons do not seem to have reeceived word of the postponement. Letters asking about the time the program would commence, and other inquiries indicate that there are still many persons who expect to make the trip here. It is for the benefit of such persons that a further announcement is made that the date is not known, but should arrangements be made for the holding of a field day at some later date, due announcement of the time and program will be made.

Not a single invitation had been sent out to any one for the big field day, because it was determined that it would be to the best interests of the health of the citizens of the State to postpone the big gathering before a list of those to be invited had been made up. This explanation is made because there are some persons who wondered why they had not been invited when, as a matter of fact, no one was actually invited.

CRANFORD ROAD WILL RECEIVE STATE AID

Trenton, Aug. 23.—State Road Commissioner Stevens announced yesterday the roads to be improved with the $59,112 which the State will receive this year as its share of the money allotted by the Federal government to highway construction. The roads are Springfield avenue, Cranford Township; the Layton and Dingman's Ferry road, in Sussex County; the Pennsgrove and Malaga road, in Salem County; the Brunswick Pike from Princeton to New Brunwick, and the Essex and Middlesex Pike from Rahway to Metuchen.

Commissioner Stevens has just returned from Washington, where he conferred with the Federal authorities on the question. Next year New Jersey will receive double the amount from the government which is allotted this year. Colonel Stevens said that the roads mentioned will also be the ones improved with the money to be received from the government this year. They are all important highways and ones that particularly need improving.

WESCOTT'S PETITIONS ARE FILED AT TRENTON

Trenton, Aug. 23.—Additional nominating petitions for Attorney General John W. Westcott, placing him in the field as a Democratic candidate for United States Senator, were filed with Secretary of State Martin yesterday. These petitions, with those filed yesterday afternoon, contain about 3,000 names, mostly from South Jersey. Attorney General Westcott will announce his campaign committee later.

Democratic leaders have been working for Westcott in all of the counties, securing signatures to his petitions and campaigning for him. As the list of names is completed in each county it will be filed with Secretary of State Martin, making one huge petition in the end.

DEMOCRATS OF OCEAN WILL MEET WITTPENN

Big Political Rally to Be Held at Tom's River On August 29.

Jersey City, August 2.—Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn, Democratic candidate for Governor, will meet the Democrats of Ocean county at a big rally on Tuesday, August 29, at Toms River. There will be a boat excursion and luncheon and Republicans will join with the Democrats of the county in making the affair a success. Several hundred are expected to meet Mr. Wittpenn, and a consequent strengthening of his political fences is anticipated.

Arrangements have been made by the committe in charge to make the day a notable one in Ocean county Democratic history, and in addition to Mr. Wittpenn they will have as their guests Democratic State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup and other State leaders. Mr. Wittpenn will make an address at the luncheon, which will take place at Seaside Park pavilion.

Mr. Wittpenn has just returned from a most encouraging tour of Burlington county, where he found unanimous backing among the Democrats for his candidacy. There was a rally, attended by several hundred, under the auspices of the Burlington County Democratic Committee.

Mr. Wittpenn yesterday afternoon attended the picnic of the Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein at Schuetzen Park, Union Hill, and met several thousand peeople.

When the Business Men's Association of Plainfield announce a Dollar Day Sale, the people of the city and its surrounding towns know that a real merchandising treat is in store for them. It is over three years since the first one of these sales was held, and they have since been held twice annually, in February and August. They have been the most active days that some of our merchants have had in all their long careers, not only in gross business done, but in the number of people who have visited the stores. The people have learned that on Dollar Day they receive the greatest values of the entire year in the various specials which are offered in the local stores.

The next one of these great money saving events will be held in Plainfield on Wednesday, August 30. The merchants are already planning some splendid special offers, which will be more fully announced in their regular advertisements in the local papers as the day approaches.

Without a shadow of doubt this is the greatest value giving event of the year, when it is considered that it is a united effort on the part of all the Plainfield stores. It is true that individual merchants at times have given equally great values in single items, but on Dollar Day they all strive to give many such bargains, in a great concerted move to attract the shoppers in vast numbers to Plainfield stores. In selecting the stores in which to make purchases be sure that the insignia of the organization, reproduced below, is conspicuously displayed on the store front. It is a sign that dependable merchandise will be found on all the bargain tables.

A REAL MELTING POT.

Leaving aside for a later period all discussion of the qualifications and fitness of the candidates selected by the Essex Democratic organization, it must be at least admitted that the ticket betrays an earnest effort to deserve the support of almost every element of the local Democracy, says the Newark News. The one missing ingredient in the melting pot is that represented by Charles P. Gillen. Nowhere on the list appears the name of any active supporter of that faction of the "unterrified."

But aside from the Gillenites, they are all represented. The straight organization men and the Wilson leaguers, the social reformers and the low-brows, the aristocracy and the proletariat. Due regard is had to the appeal of the hyphen. Study of the patronymics reveals a fine impartiality on the part of the Democratic managers. The candidates include men of Celtic, Teutonic, Dutch, Scotch and Italian origin, with enough pure Anglo-Saxon to serve as a binder. It is an impressive illustration, not only of American neutrality, but of the fact that here, at least, the ideal of "America first" has been realized. There is no room for Old World prejudices when representatives of all the contending parties are bound together by a common thirst for office.

ALL ENTITLED TO RE-ELECTION.

The same argument that is being advanced by thinking voters for a second term for Mayor Leighton Calkins also applies to the four members of the Common Council whose terms expire this year. They have served the city well, are experienced in the difficult task of managing the government, and have studied and planned many of the improvements that must be made during the next two years. All are entitled to re-election, and should be persuaded to become candidates if they evidence a disposition to retire to private life. Mayor Calkins has said that if he continues in office he wants, and needs, the assistance of Councilmen Cox, Hamilton, Edgar and Blatz. Unfortunately Mr. Cox cannot be in Plainfield for some time. He is making a sacrifice in a greater cause, but it would be a fine tribute if the voters of the Third Ward would re-elect him while he is away on the Mexican border. The various ward organizations have taken steps to have their present representatives run for another term, and the interests of the city can best be served by keeping the efficient Council of 1915-1916 intact for two more years.

Soldiers of six nations are fighting side by side against the Germans and their allies on the Balkan front, where a new offensive is under way, and all this added to the tremendous drive along the Somme, the ceaseless hammering at Verdun, and the Russian romp through Galacia. The Kaiser at last is encircled by a rim of steel and iron that is growing smaller each day. It is a marvelous tribute to the courage of the German people that they should continue to fight against such enormous odds, but as the Irishman said of the bull that charged a train, what of their discretion.

- Proctor's Theatre -

There is plenty of heart interest as well as red blooded action in "The Beast," the William Fox feature at Proctor's today, with George Walsh and Anna Luther as co-stars. Walsh gives a realistic interpretation of "The Beast," a role that calls for not a little strenuous acting, while Anna Luther is effective and attractive in her part and displays much daring. The story is decidedly well developed and well acted, and is the kind of drama that the public delights in. Walsh is a ranchman, brutal by natuge. Anna Luther is the daughter of a millionaire who is on a trip through the West with her father on a special train, which is halted by a wreck. She an an English nobleman walk over to inspect the nearby town, unfortunately are separated and the ranchman fights a desperate battle with another cowboy for possession of the girl who has wandered in their midst. He wins, and rides off with the unconscious young woman. They are pursued by several Mexicans attracted by the girl's gems, but escape after killing one of their pursuers by swimming the rapids. When they regain consciousness on the opposite shore the man has repented his action and the girl modifies her views that he is a "beast." The father has sent out a search party and the ranchman takes the girl to a spot where they can find her. Later he dresses up and goes to the city to seek her. He saves the life of a clubman, who in return gives the Westerner a little "polish." Thus he is received in the girl's society, but she fails to recognize him until he appears at a fancy dress ball as "The Beast." A touching meeting and forgiveness follows. Other attractions today include "The Demon of Fear," with Frank Borzage and Anna Little, and two comedies, entitled "When Jerry Came to Town" and "Lost and Found."

Tomorrow Thomas H. Ince offers one of the most wonderful photoplays created by his active mind entitled "The Captive God," with William S. Hart in the leading role.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Perplexed.

She bought a Rembrandt while away,
A portly dame vouchsafed to say,
To hapless me.
I am an idiotic cove,
I had to go and ask her
Its pedigree.

You see, I thought it was a pup;
The social game I'd best give up.
I try to please.
But I am sure to get in wrong,
I though Murillo was a song,
When it's a cheese.

A Pest.

If any pest I hate to pass, to hear or see or smell, it is the agent with the brass who has a book to sell. A most tenacious chap he is. He meets you everywhere and tries to keep you from your biz and stuff you with hot air. He snares you with his subtle smile and his convincing look as he's expounding all the while the merits of his book.

"I do not want your cash," he cries, "it don't appeal to me. We do this work to advertise and give you something free. Three cents a week for umpty years, the paltry sum of three, is all that you'll be in arrears, all you must pay to me. You mail the money once a week, the parcel post will do," explains this blamed persistent geek, who thinks he's nailing you. "And for this little sum you get the best of literatoors. The very biggest bargain yet will surely then be yours."

And so he rambles on apace, the while my spirit tires. I wish him in that lower place where satan stokes the fires. "I cannot buy your book," I shout. "I do not want the trash. I warn you now, vamoose! Get out before I get your hash." He turns to vanish from my sight while I in anger choke. He says, "I'm sorry for your plight, for I perceive you're broke." I hurl an inkstand at his back, but he gets out before my missile with a mighty crash flies through my plate glass door.

How We Spent Our Life.

We are 36 years of age, and this is how we have spent our time:

One year buttoning our collar.
Two years tying our necktie.
Seven years waiting in barber shops.
Four years looking at punk musical comedies.
Six months sleeping.
Nine years dodging bill collectors.
Three years waiting for wife to get dressed.
One year reading the Saturday Evening Post.
Two years chewing tough beefsteak.
Four years looking for jobs.
Six months working.
Birthday anniversary next Sunday; celebration private. Kindly omit neckties, socks and stickpins.

Those Griddle Cakes.

The griddle cakes that you have baked, dear heart,
Are like a pile of emery wheels to me;
And yet I've always tried to do my part—
I've eaten them with quite a show of glee.

It's been like eating asphalt pave, my dear;
With due respect. I cannot help but think
That some time, and perhaps within the year,
Your griddle cakes will put me on the blink.

I've read a lot of ads on gaining weight
But I can pick up nineteen pounds a day
By eating cakes. I'm ready for my fate—
I cannot carry 'round this load alway.

Economny may make you sniff
You hate to cut expense;
But you'll have lots of dollars if
You have a little sense.

CHEERY UPS AND DOWNS

Plainfield Theatre.

Lew Hilton with "Million Dollar Dolls," at Plainfield Theatre, Monday.

Grand opera was succeeded by comic opera and comic opera by musical comedy. Legitimate drama gave way to farce comedy, dramatic, melodramatic, travels and educational motion pictures are falling prey to the ravages of alleged comedy pictures. The answer? The people want to laugh, first, last and all the time. This has been the nucleus of Gus Hill's success. He has always aimed to make the public laugh.

Therefore it is not to be wondered at that "Mutt and Jeff" holds the undisputed record of financial and popular success of recent theatrical history. Gus Hill has selected a company of fifty capable performers to support the two comedians who are physically fitted to depict Bud Fisher's own ideas and has made "Mutt and Jeff's Wedding" one of the biggest and most important comedy productions of the current season. Everything is offered that will afford rest to the weary, business tired brain of both men and women. "Mutt and Jeff's Wedding" comes to the Plainfield Theatre next Friday. Go and see them. Certainy the show is nonsensical, so are the cartoons; but you've laughed at them for five years, and you'll continue to do so.

When William A. Brady entered the film world in person last spring and became the managing director of the World Film Corporation there was general curiosity as to whether this energetic producer would confine his activities to pictures in the future. Mr. Brady announced that he would not retire from the theatre, but would on the contrary make this coming season the most active in his history, not only for his stars, but also for his theatres in New York, Chicago and Wilmington. Following out that program, he now begins the new season with a massive production of "The Man Who Came Back," by Jules Eckert Goodman, and he will follow this in rapid succession with other plays. "The Man Who Came Back" is to be presented at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday for the matinee and evening.

This is a drama by the man who wrote "Mother" and who dramatized "Treasure Island," one of last season's big successes, from Stevenson's novel. Mr. Goodman's new play is founded on a story by John Fleming Wilson, which appeared in one of the great magazines.

Mr. Brady will present this drama in New York immediately after offering it here. He has provided the Goodman play with its six scenes, Oriental and Occidental, in most elaborate settings, and he has also assembled a most unusual cast with Mary Nash at its head. In the number of prominent actors and actresses surrounding her will be Edward Emery, Charlotte Granville, Henry Hull, Maude Campbell, Stanley Dark and others.

An unusual attraction is announced for next Monday, matinee and night, at the Plainfield Thearte. It is the "Million-Dollar Dolls," under the direction of the Theatrical Operating Company, who have provided a company and scenic equipment of unusual brilliancy. Heading the cast is Lew Hilton, the well-known comedian. Others include Slim Kellam, Bob Ferns, Alice Lazar, Arthur Lawson, Betty Powers and Grace Seymour. The chorus, numbering twenty-eight, is composed of accomplished singers and dancers. Numerous costume changes add to their fetching appearance. Savo, a juggler of markable achievements, tops the galaxy of vaudeville entertainers. The musical comedy is divided into two acts, each with a stage setting of marked beauty. The music is of the catchy, tuneful sort that is heard on the street after the performance.

CAPTAIN VOGEL DOING BORDER PATROL

Captain Frederick W. Vogel, who is connected with a New York State military unit, left Plainfield early in June to join his company at Camp Beekman and was one of the first to leave that mobilization camp for McAllen, Tex. In private life he is associated with Stephen Haff in conducting the Edison Shop on West Front street.

Captain Vogel has had considerable experience in military work and is looked upon as one of the most valuable New York guardsmen doing duty for Uncle Sam at the international line. He writes that life in Texas is "fairly agreeable" and adds that he has become well hardened to it.

WILL NOT ADMIT CHILDREN TO FAIR

Otherwise the Entire Program Will Be Carried Out By Directors.

Red Bank, N. J., August 23.—At a preliminary meeting of the board of directors of the Monmouth Fair held recently, it was decided to prohibit children under 16 years of age from entering the grounds.

Secretary L. . Randall, when interviewed with regard to this action, said that from information obtained by the directors they felt an epidemic of infantile paralysis did not actually exist in the territory from which the fair draws its patronage, they being unable to learn that there were any more cases of the disease this year in this section than there had been formerly when no quarantine restrictions were enforced. Nevertheless, and regardless of the financial loss to the fair, it was felt that the public interests would be better served this year, if children were not permitted on the grounds.

This action by the fair will, of course, eliminate free admission of the children on the first day; also the boys' sport program and the better babies' conference. Other than the change in respect to children all the department exhibits and attractions will be carried out as arranged.

The greatest outdoor attractions ever given at a Monmouth fair will be staged this year in front of the grandstand, and every day Don Magee, of Dayton, Ohio, will furnish all the latest thrills in aeroplane flying, including the loop-the-loop, the turtle roll, flying upside down, the dead leaf drop, head first dive, cradle swing, roller coaster, aerial cart wheel and the ocean roll. The other attractions include the Four Lukens, in a high bar casting act; Mademoiselle Zira's trained lions; the Aerial De Phils, tight rope artists on a bicycle 60 feet in the air; Rae & Benedetto in a revolving ladder act with breakaway; the Eureka Comedy Bar Act on a horizontal bar; Kelly & Haggan, the funny boxers, and Samayoa, in the death defying cloud swing. Marion Reimer, the celebrated soprano, will sing with the band. The show will open daily with a salute of fireworks, and during the afternoon there will be a daylight fireworks, closing with a salute and the American flag.

SWIM AND BE BEAUTIFUL, MISS KELLERMANN ADVISES ALL WOMEN IN SEARCH OF GRACE

Most Perfect Physical Specimen of Womanhood On Earth Tells of the Wonderful Effects of Work In Water Upon the Feminine Figure and Complexion.

Article No. 20.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Just as a beginning, I want to make good on my caption. "Swim and be beautiful."

Every one knows that sparkling beauty must emanate from a healthy condition of the body.

Fresh air, full play for the muscles and complete enjoyment of necessary exercise—all of these aid in the establishment of health. And the foundation for all of these is to be found in swimming.

These are generalities, so I will now get directly to the point.

To swim successfully one must have complete control of the muscles. Not the indecisive control that most women have—but the certain knowledge that when a strain is put upon a particular muscle; that muscle is going to perform the task put up to it and not collapse before it is half through.

Control gives poise. And poise is the neucleus of all beauty. Why? Because it establishes dignity. And beside dignity, frail marks of beauty—the more topographical variety, I mean—sink into insignificance. A faithful satellite of poise is confidence; and while confidence is not a necessary corset to beauty, it is a decided addition to character and an invaluable aid towards success.

So, thus far, we have poise and dignity as direct derivations of swimming.

Sallow skin is the penalty of possessing a sluggish liver. Swimming arouses the laziest liver from torpidness. Kidneys that become clogged with poisonous excretions causes dulled eyes and puffy places under them.

Swimming stimulates the kidneys to strenuous action and helps carry away noxious impurities. Constipation, the universal foe to health and beauty and the cause of unsightly pimples and ugly blotches, is gradually eradicated by the continued exercise of the muscles of the abdomen that are most used in swimming.

As the list now stands, we have established poise and dignity, clear eyes and an unmarked skin. Without adding any more advantages swimming surely carries its own reward.

But we have more. Swimming is the only exercise that develops and beautifies a woman's arms without producing knobby muscles and an inclination to masculineness. On the contrary, it results in a rounded, tapering effect.

In developing the arch of the chest, it fills in hollow necks and reduces and makes firm flabby breasts. By the continued pull on the muscles around the waistline, it removes the ugly rolls of flesh and puts in theeir place a smooth firm foundation. That allows of at least one size smaller corset being worn.

Now for a few necessary generalities that are more in the nature of preparations for swimming than for the actual exercise. So many women who otherwise indulge in this most beneficial of all sports are prevented from doing so by the fear that they are going to ruin their complexions through exposure to wind and sun.

This can be guarded against simply. Before leaving your bath house coat the face with a generous layer of either cold cream, or a good peroxide cream. Over this spread your face powder. This double protection prevents the painful and disfiguring sunburn that used to be so sought after. And while we are on the subject it is amusing to recall that fact just as a proof that fads, even in shades of skin, vanish.

Up to two years ago it was quite proper to bring back to the city, after a summer vacation, a hue of face that caused people to turn and look after you in the street. It was an asset—not a liability, this bronze complexion. And now milady preserves her peaches and cream skin at any cost. No more going away for a week-end and spending three-quarters of that time flat on one's back under the scorching rays of a broiling sun, so that when one returned one's friends thought it had been an all summer jaunt instead of a two days' trip. Now, one returns after four months of it with a pallor and a rose tint that suggests a hothouse product rather than one of the great outdoors.

Aided by the face cream and powder your skin will remain unblemished while you are in the water. But when you stop swimming and go to loll about the beach, you must sit in the shade. That is the time when you are most liable to sunburn. So much for the complexion.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann will describe the trudgeon stroke for the members of the Plainfield Daily Press Swimming Class. With this famous stroke Miss Kellermann broke the world's record for long and short distances.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Little Mermaid Watched A Shipwreck.

She Reached the Prince.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHEN Jack and Evelyn clapped for a story daddy told them about a little mermaid that watched a big storm strike a prince's ship: "Every time a big wave hit the ship she creaked and groaned. Her mighty timbers bulged and bent under the waves' heavy blows. Water broke over the decks. The mainmast snapped as if it had been a cane. The great ship keeled over on her side, and water rushed into her hold.

"Now, the little mermaid saw that the prince and his guests on board were in great danger. Even for her own sake she had to be careful diving among the floating beams and wreckage. One moment it was so pitch black that she could not see at all. But when the lightning flashed she could plainly see everything on board. Every man was looking out for himself as best he could. But the little mermaid kept her eyes on the prince. When the great ship went down she saw him sink in the deep sea.

"At first she was quite delighted, for now the prince was coming to be with her. Then she remembered that human beings cannot live under water and that only if he were dead could the young prince come to live in her father's sea palace.

"But, no; he must not die! So the little mermaid swam toward him among the drifting beams and planks, quite forgetting that they might crush her. She dived down deep into the water and came up again among the waves. She reached the prince just as he was becoming too wearied to swim any further in a stormy sea.

"His limbs were already numb, his beautiful eyes were closing, and he surely must have died if the little mermaid had not reached him.

"She put her arms around him, held his head above water so he could breathe and let the waves drive them wherever they would.

"By daybreak the storm ended. Of the great, brave ship not a trace was to be seen. The sun arose from the water in a brilliant glow, and his rosy beams seemed to bring life to the prince's cheeks. But his eyes still stayed closed. The little mermaid kissed his forehead and stroked back his dripping hair. It seemed to her that he was just like the marble statue that she had always kept in her little garden under the sea. She kissed him again and again and longed for him to live. The sunny waves were much kinder than the night ones had been, and, with the prince still unconscious in her arms, she floated along on top of the bright water."

"Goody for the little mermaid!" shouted Jack and Evelyn.

Training a Husband

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

In Which the Reader Is Introduced to a Nervous Husband and a Patient Wife.

"Marian, have you seen the hammer?" Morris Southy called out from the top of a step ladder in the pantry.

"Isn't it in the tool box? It certainly would not be on a high shelf in the pantry," answered a pleasant voice.

"I don't know about that. I have looked in all the likely places, and now I am trying the unlikely," was the petulant answer.

"With two stirring boys, I suppose it is hard work to keep track of it," the pleasant voice again replied.

"I wish you would come and help me find it. My time is valuable. If we are to get our packing done and get out of the house by the first of the month, I can't spend my days hunting things."

Marian Southy did not reply, but came and joined patiently in the search for the hammer. She thought that with the work to do for six in the family, and the packing of those things that it is never safe to leave to a man, she had about as much as one small, vigorous woman could attend to. Hers was not the complaining type, however. She cheerfully did her best, and her husband, used to her capable management, had grown to take her ministrations as a part of life much as he did the weather. Sunny days were accepted without comment, while rainy weather was an unpleasant necessity to be endured with as little show of irritation as circumstances warranted.

"Have you had the hammer this morning, Roger?" she called after a ten-year-old boy who ran through the room.

"No, but I saw father using it nailing up those boxes of books," replied the boy as he disappeared from view.

"Why, certainly. That was early this morning. If people in this house could ever learn to leave things where I put them there would be a lot of nervous energy saved," snapped Morris.

"Where did you put it?" was the natural question that proved the last straw to her husband's abraded nerves.

"How should I know, in this confusion? It is enough to drive a man wild," he exploded.

"It is not exactly a summer day picnic for the rest of us." There was a little touch of asperity in Marian's answer, as she left the room to look for the lost hammer where the nailing of the book boxes had taken place.

"Here is the hammer. It was right where you left it. This is another proof that your things are not touched." She handed the elusive tool to her husband, who took it and said ungraciously: "It takes the exception to prove the rule. Anyway, I am glad to get hold of it." A vigorous pounding ensued, and almost immediately the wail of a baby was heard through the confusion.

"There, I was afraid that would wake the baby," sighed the tired mother.

"Well, the packing has to be done. If the baby can't sleep through it, he will have to wake up." More pounding. "There is no sense in a baby's being too sensitive to noise." But his remarks were lost, for the mother had gone to soothe the wailing baby.

VELVET DRAPED TURBANS.

By Mary Glynn.

Tall hats are among the styles favored in the millinery realm just now, and this is not surprising, because it will be noted that a larger per cent of women can wear a tall hat than any other. Various unusual and attractive models are shown, that will surely meet with approval.

Particularly notable is a French hat recently imported which was developed in slate gray velvet with matching toned taffeta, the velvet topped the deep, close fitting shape in an unusual manner, affording just a military suggestion without its severeness.

NOVELTIES IN NECKWEAR FIELD

By Mary Glynn.

As the fall season approaches it is evident that newer ideas are gradually suggesting themselves in the way of neckwear. For a short space of time there seemed little or no radical change in the style tendencies of neckwear, but this was due to the weather conditions largely. However, at present very little interesting developments are taking place, the result being that various new tendencies are continually looming up. One of the very newest and most novel ideas is worked out in an organdy collar, which is cut in nine gores, each joined with a fine cording. The edge, too, is corded. The gores are mounted on a velvet ribbon and held in place by small, black satin buttons. A full, deep ruche flares above the velvet collar, lending a very becoming line. It is interesting to note the amount of organdy that is used. This fabric is extensively shown in the round, flat collars. The high backed collars that are worn in connection with afternoon gown of silk or mohair are usually fashioned in dainty lace, this lending the soft richness that is required. The all-satin collar and cuffs such as are shown on many permotrotteur frocks are very distinctive.

ANOTHER HURRICANE MAY WRECK TEXAS CAMPS AT ANY MOMENT

Cyclones In August and September Are Frequent and Officers Are Making Preparations to Lessen Damage.

Other Interesting Items About Guardsmen on Border. Praise For South Carolina Troops—Wants a Letter.

THE hurricane that has swept up the valley of the Rio Grande, leveling the militia camps and deluging the guardsmen, is only the first of the late summer flock of cyclones that develop in August and reach their height of frequency in September and October.

The cyclonic storms work havoc all over the world, forming at the western edges of the oceans around some group of islands near the coast. Those that come to the United States originate in the West Indies, strike the coast anywhere from Florida to Texas, pursue a parabolic course west to northwest, turning northeast and out to sea again if not dissipated before reaching the coast.

The hurricane, the typhoon of the Pacific and the tornado of the interior of the United States are all of the same type of storm, originating under differing physical conditions and assuming differing individual characterstics, but in all the winds blow toward the center of low barometric pressure.

The cyclonic storm may have a diameter of less than a mile and progress with express train speed, as a tornado or a waterspout, which is a tornado at sea. It may have a diameter of a few hundred miles and pursue a looping course as it goes forward, as the Pacific typhoon, which seems to double in its tracks, or it may form as do those in the West Indies and assume a whirl of such dimensions that its diameter covers the whole United States, making a storm 3,000 miles wide.

Doldrums Develop Cyclones.

The cyclonic storm has its inception in a calm, usually in the doldrums, the anathema of the old sailing days, the wide sea areas where wind is not. There the essentials of a cyclone, heat and moisture, in a restricted area, forming low barometric pressure, brew the storm, the heat rising and creating a partial vacuum, which nature, with her noted abhorrence, speedily fills with cooler air, and the cooler currents rushing in from all sides start the whirling motion.

The cross section of a cyclone would look somewhat like a funnel. The winds blow toward the center at the vortex, blow in a circle farther up and diverge in the higher altitudes. The progress of the storm may be in the course of the general circulation, though not necessarily controlled by the surface winds. It veers toward any low pressure area and skirts high pressure as if it were a hill. The constancy of a high pressure area over the Atlantic off the United States in summer and autumn causes a fairly uniform route to be pursued by the hurricanes, that of a parabola whose line begins in the vicinity of the gulf of Mexico and quits the continent anywhere from New England to the gulf of St. Lawrence.

Velocity of Winds.

The winds frequently blow 120 miles an hour, as registered for one mile by the weather bureau's instruments, which are set for mile records, and often the storms register ninety-six miles an hour for five minutes. Sometimes a velocity of 150 miles is attained.

In thirty-five years there were 134 well defined cyclonic storms from the West Indies recorded by months as follows: May, one; June, eight; July, five; August, thirty-three; September, forty-three; October, forty-two; November, two.

A Credit to Their State.

"The many pleasant things which are being said about the South Carolina soldiers at the various places where they have stopped off on their way to Texas must afford keen gratification to all South Carolinians," says the Charleston News and Courier.

"Everywhere along the route from Columbia to El Paso there has been nothing but praise for the soldierly appearance and gentlemanly demeanor of the troops from the Palmetto State.

"George E. Ward, a former Charlestonian, who is now in the cotton business at Waco, Tex., sends the News and Courier a copy of a letter received by him from a friend in Houston, P. A. Swann. He writes:

"'Since my two months' stay in Houston I have seen thousands of soldiers passing through, but I saw yesterday the first company of real, sure enough looking soldiers that I have seen.

"'About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon they passed the office, all in line keeping step to the music of a good band, and I remarked that out of all the soldiers that had passed through Houston this was the only company that really had the style and pep to them to be worthy the name of United States soldiers, and upon learning today that they were from your old town I thought I would let know about it.

"'These boys, like yourself, must have seen the battery.'

"The people here at home are proud of them. George Bailey of the Houston Post says: 'We do not mind saying the South Carolina troops were the niftiest bunch of soldiers passing through Houston so far.'"

Health Is Good.

That reports about a large percentage of sickness in the New York division were false was shown by a statement issued by Major General O'Ryan pointing out, as already reported, that the rate of illness in the camps in Texas was lower than 2 per cent. General O'Ryan's statement says:

"The health of the New York division, due to the character of its personnel, its discipline and the rigid rules regarding liquor, is so remarkable that the official reports concerning the sick rate should be of interest not only to the men of the division, but to those misguided and emotional persons at home who have been breaking into the press about conditions on the border."

The figures given by General O'Ryan indicate that the highest sick rate was that of July 27, when 2.77 men out of every hundred were ill. After the first few days of August and down to the present time the rate has been that hitherto attainable only by well seasoned troops.

To appreciate these figures it should be known that they include sick of every character, whether in camp or field hospitals, regimental infirmaries or sick in quarters. They include also all minor injuries, such as kicks, cuts and sprains—in fact, anything that even temporarily renders a soldier unfit for duty.

The figures showing the percentage of sickness are appended to the statement. They are as follows:

Aug. 1, 265; Aug. 2, 242; Aug. 3, 202; Aug. 4, 193; Aug. 5, 196; Aug. 6, 188; Aug. 7, 162; Aug. 8, 144; Aug. 9, 131; Aug. 10, 130; Aug. 11, 136; Aug. 12, 140; Aug. 13, 124; Aug. 14, 125.

That the condition of the men is good and that they are rapidly becoming acclimatized is shown in the low percentage of heat prostrations in the regiments on march, officers think. Except for thirty-six men incapacitated on the first day of the march, as reported to headquarters by officers of the Fourteenth regiment, there have been few prostrations and little sickness among the hikers.

Wants a Letter.

The following letter, which explains itself, has been received by a New York paper:

Dear Sir—I am a lonesome Texas orphan boy, eighteen years old, who would like to correspond with any one who would like to receive the news from the border.

I was camped near the New York troops of the Seventy-first infantry at McAllen, but they moved me here, where it is very lonesome.

There is no one to see here but Mexicans, and nothing to read, so you see it grows very monotonous. Thanking you in advance for your favor, I am, yours very truly, NORWOOD M. AUSLEY,
Donna, Tex., Company K, Second Texas Infantry.

Letter From His Girl.

While the District militiamen were en route to Warren, Ariz., from Washington they made many acquaintances at railroad stations where the train stopped to take on water and to change engines. Most of them were girls, and the militiamen never overlooked an opportunity to ask their newly made friends to write to them. They gave the girls their names and told them how to address letters to the district national guard camp at Warren.

The other day a private of the signal corps received a letter from a girl whom he met on the station platform at McLean, Tex. He showed it to his camp mates, and they all agreed that it is some letter. Here's the way it reads:

"My Dearest Friend and ——: I will now try to write you a few words to let you know that the Mexicans has not got me yet, and I don't think they are going to get me, do you? Well dearie, how are you stand this worm weather. It is just about got me, it sure is worm up here. I guess you remember the card you gave me, don't you? You know you tore the corner of it and sad that I wold remember you. Yes I still remember the one that done that and I all ways will, Dear, for you are the idle of my heart and I don't think I can stand it if I can't see you wance and awhile. Dear for I love you and I can't help it when you tore the corner of the card I sad then I love you, and I cud not help it. But dearie I don't think that we will ever see one a nother again do you. Dearie don't think I am to foreard for I don't thank I am. I am a arffent little girl, I am only fifteen years old. But dearie I love to be love by every wone and that is the resent I am writing like I am. Dear I will close, hoping to get and answer from my lover write a way, I wil remane as ever your true and loving little girl."

Then follow the signature of the young miss and a "P. S." which states, "Send me your photo and I will send you mind."

Signal corps men say that the soldier was seen in a photograph gallery in Bisbee the day following the receipt of the letter.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

WATCHING JACK MARTIN.

It is only just that we keep a careful watch on "Our" Jack Martin, who is now manager of the Milwaukee American Association baseball team. The Sentinel, a Milwaukee newspaper, is giving the local lad a fine boost and it is only right that the newspapers in Jack's home should help him in every possible way. There follow a few scribs relative to Manager Martin's work:

"Crandall opened the second by walking. Reilley popped to Benson and Crandall stole second on Dillhoeffer. Derrick mit a single to left. Instead of pegging for home or second, McHenry heaved the pill to first. Crandall scored and Derrick kept on going. Kraft shot it to Martin, but it hit the ground low and rolled to left field again, Derrick going to third. Schang then hit a high foul to the Indianapolis bench. Dillhoeffer ran over and grabbed it. Jack Martin showed that he had more than a fraction of brains by covering the home plate. Derrick tried to come home, but the throw from Dill to Martin killed him in his tracks."

"Dillhoeffer was given a great hand the first time up, and the same treatment was accorded Martin."

"Martin has become a scintillating star in the field since he donned the managerial robes. He made two great stops in the twelfth that saved the game for the Brewers each time."

MAMAUX AND CALLAHAN.

Al Mamaux and the Pittsburgh baseball club need to get together on their differences. Undoubtedly both sides made a serious mistake. The affair was handled very crudely by the baseball officials, and the weak alibis offered only makes them look more foolish. The ball people are more to blame. Mamaux needed a reprimand. He had been thinking of a lot of things foreign to baseball of late, but then Al really is not a fellow who is subjected to booze parties, as there are a lot of other fellows on the Pittsburgh club who can outdrink Al 40 ways from the ace. A reprimand as due, but for the benefit of the club it would have been better to have tacked a nice fine onto the pitcher, gave him to understand his pocketbook would be further invaded if he did not awake to the need of more baseball thought. Al is young and this thing is liable to have a very bad effect on his nature. To brand him as a "rumhound" was going too far. It was a case where the club and the pitcher should have settled things without the split that [illegible] general ill feeling among the whole ball club.

MAY BE ANOTHER CUP.

With the passing of the Achelis tennis cup, which R[illegible] was won at Sea Bright Saturday, the officials there may do away with the challenge round game, a form of championship play which is no longer popular with tennisdom. A new trophy, probably to be known as the Sea Bright bowl, will be put up and, though it will be necessary to win it three times or more for permanent possession, a rule will probably require the winner to play through the tournament every year. A few years ago the national singles, played at Newport, were conducted with a challenge round, but the demand for playing-through tennis was so strong that the change was made. Since then many club tournaments have given up the challenge round. Playing through, all entrants get a better chance to win, for there is always a chance of the champion failing in one of the early rounds and the spectators profit, too. They do not have to wait until the end of the week to see the champion in action.—Newark News.

A GREAT RACE, BOYS.

Six American League teams are separated by virtually the same number of points as are three National League teams, and the world's championship is the possible achievement of any of the nine clubs. The American race tightened last week. In the National League there was not much change among the leaders, excepting that Philadelphia moved into second place, sending Boston to third.

Boston retains the American lead by a slightly greater margin than at the beginning of the week. Fewer games were played than usual because of open dates. The Red Sox had a four-game battle with Chicago, winning the first two games, one a sixteen-inning affair, and losing the last two. Boston also broke even in two games with Washington, but on Saturday won from Cleveland.

The White Sox went to third place last Sunday but regained second on Friday, after Cleveland had lost three straight games to New York. Cleveland began the week well but started the last eastern trip poorly against New York, the Yankees winning every game. New York made the best advance of any team in the league, winning five straight from Philadelphia and Cleveland, but losing on Saturday to Chicago. Although the Yankee lineup is virtually the same as in the disastrous western trip, the return to New York seemed to help and Donovan's men now have a chance to regain the league leadership.

St. Louis and Detroit managed to keep within striking distance of the leaders. The Browns lost their previous good gait. Wednesday saw the western teams start on their last eastern trip and the intersectional victories for the four days were: East, 9; west, 8.

THE HUSTLING BROWNS

The Browns have finished in the first division only twice in the fourteen years that they have been in the American League, in 1902 and in 1908. Four times—in 1905, 1910, 1911 and 1915—they have been locked in the cellar.

Ten years ago Fielder Jones, now piloting the Browns and at that time manager of the White Sox, pulled his team up from nowhere and won nineteen straight games. The sensational spurt won the pennant for the Sox, who downed the Cubs in the world's series.

St. Louis hasn't had a pennant winner since the days of the old American Association. While members of the old organization the Browns brought home four pennants in a row—1885-6-7-8.

George Sisler, the Browns' wonder, is credited with being the most versatile pastimer in the big yard. He is there as a pitcher, a baseman or an outfielder, and likewise as a batsman and base runner.

Koob, a youngster, and the two veterans, Plank and Groom, have carried the pitching burden for the Jones crowd all season.

While the Browns have been making their spectacular pennant race the team has remained a second division outfit in both club batting and club fielding.

Winning fourteen straight games started the Browns on the road to Pennantville and at the same time established the season's record in the American League.

The owners of the Browns have hung up a bonus of $5,000 to be divided among the players if they cop the pennant.

Not all of the glory for the Browns' showing belongs to the youngsters of the team. Oldtimers like Wallace, Plank, Groom, Hartley and Miller have been keeping step with the younger players, and appear fit to go the full distance.

Eddie Plank, the veteran twirler, who has thrown the sped throttle wide open in an effort to pitch the Browns to a pennant, started pasttiming fifteen years ago with the Athletics. Up to the present year, his last season's record with the Federal League included, he has won 292 games and lost 164.

Schalk of the White Sox and Schang of the Athletics, who are recognized as the class of American League backstops, will now have to share the spotlight with Hank Severeid. Hank's work behind the plate and his batting have been gleeful doings for the Browns.

In Shotton, Marsans, Sisler and Pratt the Browns have the speediest quartet under the big top. They are among the first ten base stealers in the American League, and woe is right for the fielder who hesitate a fraction of a second in an attempt to nip 'em on the paths.

Fielder Jones, pilot of the Browns, made his first reputation as a manager of the White Sox. After quitting the Sox he accepted the presidency of the Northwestern League, which position he resigned to take charge of the St. Louis Feds last year.

None of the Browns is leading in any department of the game, but as a team they are a hard bunch to beat.

PETE SIMMONS BUSY MANAGER THESE DAYS

Has Arranged Four Stellar Attractions, Three of Them In a Row.

The manager of the Rayol Giants is a busy man these days. He has arranged four baseball attractions, that will keep his charges as busily engaged as one could wish to be.

In the first place Simmons has arranged to lead his boys against the Westfield A. A. on Parker Field on Saturday afternoon. This is the third meeting of these two teams, the Royals winning both the first and second games. But the Westfield leader is very confident. One week from Sunday, the third and deciding game of the Royal-Tab series will be played. This contest will be staged on Avon Oval. On the Saturday preceding the second contest with Dunellen will be run off. On Labor Day Netherwood will be taken on by the Simmons crew. It is reported that a new Royal Giant team will be presented in each of these contests. Let us do a little "watchful waiting."

Former Governor Edward Casper Stokes denies that he will take any part in the management of the campaign of Senator Edge for Governor. In a personal letter to Allen R. Trimble, of Elizabeth, secretary of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Mr. Stokes says, "I will not take part in the management of any campaign."

This puts an end to the story which has been going around for several days past that the Atlantic county candidate was to be supported by the former Governor.

CITY LEAGUE HEAD GIVEN NEEDED POWER

League President Acted According to Power Vested In Him.

Some one is evidently in possession of a wrong idea in regards to the decision handed down by Walter C. Dobbins, president of the City League. The decision in question was in regards to the game forfeited to Hope Chapel by the First Baptist team. It is a matter that has been discussed at four City League meetings. Now, that something definite has been accomplished, it is only just that the public should be correctly informed on the matter.

At the league gathering held on Monday evening, the league representatives voted unanimously to support a ruling made by the president, Mr. Dobbins. Owing to the fact that the league moguls could not come to a satisfactory agreement during the absence of the president, it had been decided to leave things entirely to his discretion. He voted that the game should be played, inasmuch as that seemed to be the most satisfactory way out of the difficulty. That he had a right to vote this way can be readily seen from the fact that neither the Hope Chapel nor the Baptist team was entitled to the forfeiture. The Baptists failed to appear, therefore, they were out of it. The Hopes had but eight eligible men on the field, therefore they could not rightfully claim the attraction. When this discussion was brought up for the first time, it was not known that the Hopes had but eight eligible men on the field. Therefore, a second vote was necessary, the appeal being made on account of new evidence. The league moguls felt that it was up to the president to do something definite, which they could either support or renounce. He did as directed and the league moguls supported him. Now, the game is to be played over again, provided Britt Martin, who was not present at the meeting but who was represented by Mr. Harriman, consents. If Martin does not wish to play the game over, the Baptists refuse to accept a forfeit and the contest will be erased from the league records. Therefore, Dunellen holds undisputed right to second place, because the Hopes must be deprived of the forfeited encounter.

It is now doubly evident that some one is either misinformed or is awaiting further "developments."

PERTH AMBOY PACERS MAKE AN ASSERTION

Think They Are Fastest Semi-Pro Players In New Jersey. Are They?

"Aside from watching the progress of the close races in the American and National leagues, the principal topic of conversation in Perth Amboy and Rahway this coming week will be about the big game to be played at Amusement Park Sunday. It is to be the third clash of the year between the biggest rivals in this territory, Rahway and Perth Amboy, and as each team has won one game it is bound to be a bitter fight for the advantage in the seven game series. Cliff Randolph and Frank Hand will compose the Amboy battery.

"The Amboys will be back strong at the Park Sunday, after their two weeks' layoff, and they are going to play games regularly at the Park until the middle of October, when the Rahway series will be concluded. The Amboys have had a very successful season this year and have won ten out of the twelve games played. In fact there are many fans who believe that the Amboys possess the best semi-pro team in the State of New Jersey."

Are there any managers in this city who would like to dispute the last statement made? Ifthere are any let them write to Billy Pfau now.

DISPUTE OVER PITCHER.

Cincinnati, Aug. 23.—Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Toledo American Association Club, was in conference with August Herrmann, president of the local team, yesterday, relative to the claims of both to the services of Bowman, a pitcher, now with the South Bend club of the Central League. Bresnahan claims the player, while the Cincinnati management holds that an option on the player's services held by Bresnahan has expired, and that the Cincinnati team signed the player after expiration of this option. Hermann stated the case would have to go to the National Commission.

Why He Remained Home.

Model Husband (boastfully) — Yes, gentlemen, I've been married ten years and never spent a night away from home yet.

Doubting Thomas—Large and interesting family, eh?

"Only three of us."

"Have one child, eh?"

"No; the other is my wife's mother."

TROOP D MEMBERS IN ATHLETIC MEET

Bill Daniels and Jack Caulfield Will "Show 'Em How" at Douglas.

Members of the First Regiment, N. G. N. J., at Douglas, Ariz., will hold an athletic meet Saturday afternoon, aided by the army Y. M. C. A. officials. The program of events includes boxing, wrestling, field and track events and also horse racing. Considerable rivalry has sprung up between the members of the different companies.

The boxing program has aroused the most interest. Bouts are held daily in the company streets, and the boys that come through winners in these are to take part in the meet. The mat entries are numerous, but the track and field events have the most entered. A regimental team will be formed from the point winners, who will represent the "First New Jersey" in the "brigade championships" to be held soon.

When it comes to track athletics Bill Daniels, a P. H. S. lad, who is with Troop D, at the Douglas camp, will capture everything in sight. "Bill" is anxious to keep in trim. Jack Caulfield is also an athlete of the first order and can be counted upon to furnish plenty of excitement Wonderful Earrings.

The earrings of Biote, the daughter of Aristotle, which were found in Chalcis, where the young woman was buried, represented doves swinging in golden hoops. The miniature birds were marvelously wrought, the feathers of granulated gold, the wings and breasts enriched with bands of color supplied by inserted gems. Precious stones gleamed like tiny sparks for the eyes. Daintiest device of all, the tail feathers were so finely made and curiously adjusted as to move at the slightest motion of the pendent hoop, so that whenever the proud wearer should toss or shake her head her two attendant doves would seem to balance themselves upon their perches, as live birds do in swinging on a bough. They were found by exploring archaeologists.

Overpowered.

"Are you sure you are strong enough to carry this trunk up three flights of stairs?" asked the maiden lady of the roustabout she had summoned.

"Sure, mum," he responded heartily. "How much do I get out of it?"

"Why, if you don't break anything or spoil the walls I'll give you 10 cents."

"Sorry, mum, but I couldn't git away wid dat heavy trunk."

"Why, a minute ago you were sure you were strong enough."

"I was, but yer generosity has made me weak."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Ancient Memory.

In the ancient time men's memories were much more powerful than they are today. The invention of printing necessarily weakened the memory. We can scarcely form an idea of what the memory must have been when it was exercised and cultivated as a thing of sole dependence.—New York American.

Conquering the Cobra.

It has been known thousands of years that the dreaded deadly cobra, whose bite invariably and almost instantly causes death, may be easily paralyzed and tranced by a very slight finger squeeze around the back of its fearful neck.

Frank.

"Ernest is awfully frank."

"Do you love him because he is frank?"

"No; because he is Ernest."

Gold weighs nearly twenty times as much as its own bulk in water.

Musical Glasses.

Richard Pockrich, an Irishman, was the inventor of musical glasses—ordinary drinking glasses tuned by selection and played by passing wet fingers over the brim. He showed his invention first in Dublin and took it to London about 1770.

B'est Be Nothing.

Wife—The doctor writes that in view of our poor circumstances he will not present his bill immediately. Artist—We are lucky that our circumstances are no better. If they were we might have to pay at once.—Fliegende Blaetter.

Double Pointed.

Bess—I'm at a loss to understand just what Mr. Blank meant when I told him my age was twenty-five. Tess—What did he say? Bess—That I didn't look it.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

When Francis Teeling gets four hits out of as many trips to the plate, it is about time for the pitcher off of whom the clouting is done to retire. Morris, take heed!

Now that the Parker Field League is no more, we wonder what will become of the dozens of juvenile baseball players who have been practicing on that circuit. It is highly probable that several of the lads will turn down City League offers.

Joe Newell is pitching great baseball these days. Of late, however, Cyril Poling, manager of the Pans has not been booking games. We wonder why?

Daniel Randolph is, perhaps, the most consistent batter in the City League. Dan, as his friends are privileged to call him, is one of the old "stand-bys" and is one of the pillars of the league. He is secretary of the circuit and is one of its most enthusiastic boosters.

Speaking of the Baptists and Baptist ability, reminds us that in Compton, Manager Dunc Patterson has a nifty outfielder and a terror with the stick. Being a "lefty" makes Compton all the more dangerous.

James Emery plays second and third for the Dunellen team. James is, and always was, a fast fielder. He is rapidly recovering his batting eye, perhaps with a view of visiting Milwaukee.

All hail, John Wixon, lion tamer. Johnny still possesses that "Indian Sign," of which the Royals are dreadfully afraid.

Some one remarked that Morris, the Carlisle Indian, was going to scalp the Dunellen crew. We did not see any scalping accomplished by Mr. Morris. On the contrary, we are of the candid opinion that Johnny Dixon essayed all the scalping that was done.

Mr. Coriell is no longer a league umpire. He will devote his energy to arguing points with independent players. How many fans believe that Mr. Coriell is in possession of a "position?" Or, is it a "job?"

There is no truth in the rumor that the New York Giants have arranged a five-game series with the Farmers. No, sir, the Giants are too slow.

Fans, are you following the career of John Martin? The Press will tell you daily just what Jack is doing.

PLAINFIELDER ENTERS NEWARK CONTEST

John Doughty, of This City, Contestant In Casting Competition.

Casters from the West who will take part in the ninth annual championship tournament of the National Association of Scientific Angling Clubs, beginning today at Weequahic Park, arrived there last night. There were fifteen in the party, which was met in New York by a reception committee from the Newark Bait and Fly Casting Club, composed of President Arthur J. Neu, Lou S. Darling, tournament director; Otto R. Neu and William P. Neville. The party went to Newark, where the national associations's convention will be held tonight in the Robert Treat Hotel. More competitors from the West are expected today. John Doughty, of this city, is one of the contestants.

More than 100 merchandise prizes have been offered. The array is the largest and most valuable ever put up for a casting tournament in Newark and includes rods, reels, lines, lures, spinners, camp packs, fishing literature and other articles of practical use. The competitors will have their choice of the merchandise prizes in the order in which they finish next to the first two men, who will be given gold trophies and silver cups.

Three regular N. A. S. A. C. championship events are scheduled for today. The quarter-ounce accuracy bait will start at 9 o'clock, the light tackle distance fly at 1 o'clock and the light tackle dry fly accuracy at 4 o'clock. The club platforms are at the southern end of Weequahic Lake and are reached from Elizabeth avenue by the Grumman avenue entrance. Lunch will be served on the grounds each day.

Chinese Conquer Nervousness.

The nervous hurry that eats into so many of us in this continent the Chinese will not tolerate in himself. When he finds himself in a hurry he sits down right where he is and waits until he is over his hurry, then he goes on about his business in a much more efficient frame of mind. This must be the way to beat out nervousness or fear.—Minneapolis Journal.

HAND'S EXPRESS CO.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

RU-BER-OID ROOFING
COSTS MORE—WEARS LONGER

Every roll of RU-BER-OID that we have sold has given perfect satisfaction.

We know that RU-BER-OID is made of better materials than any other roofing that we could buy. It contains no paper, wood fibre, tar, asphalt or other short-lived materials such as are found in cheaper roofings.

RU-BER-OID roofs put on more than 20 years ago are still watertight and look as good as new.

RU-BER-OID roofing always looks well. Its color is attractive gray—the same shade as more expensive slate. Colored RU-BER-OID (Kalor-oid) is made in permanent Tile Red and Copper Green.

Come in and let us show you this roofing, which is so good that it is widely imitated. So called "Rubber roofings" are counterfeits. There is only one RU-BER-OID. The genuine has the "Ru-ber-oid Man," shown above, on every roll.

CORPORATION NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., will receive sealed bids at the Council Chambers, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting of said Council to be held therein on Tuesday, September 5th, 1916, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., for the erection and construction of a City Hall Building on Watchung Avenue, corner of East Sixth Street, in said City.

Plans and specifications and forms for proposals for such proposed building can be obtained by bidders on application to Messrs. Peck & Bottomley, Associate Architects, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York city by filing references for approval and depositing with said Architects certified check for $25.00 payable to the order of the Treasurer of the said City, which check will be held until the return of such plans and specifications. Also the plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The work will be let in four (4) contracts: 1st—For General Construction; 2nd—For Plumbing, gas fitting and work kindred thereto; 3rd—For Steam heating; 4th—For Electrical work. Separate bids will be received for each of these contracts.

All bids must be on the forms furnished with the specifications and in compliance with the "instructions to bidders" accompanying the same, and accompanied by certified check on some solvent bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Treasurer of said City, to the amount of five per cent. of the bid submitted. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed enveloped addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

Dated August 7, 1916.

TROOPERS DRILL 5 HOURS A DAY

New Order Goes Into Effect Along the Border.

NOTES FROM DOUGLAS

News of the Camp Given In Letter to Friend Here—Dug Up Eight Sticks of Dynamite That Did Not Explode.

The following letter was received from a member of Troop D by a friend here yeterday:

"It is raining awfully hard down here today, so I have very little to do except write. Under a new order one troop takes a day for guard and all work for the squadron, and then has three days to drill and fix up around its own camp. Everyone in the troop has to go out on some duty when their troop is on. Monday, when our troop was on detail, a gang of men from Troop D dug up eight sticks of dynamite that had been put in the ground by some troopers to excavate, but it had never gone off.

"Everyone in Troop D received one box of talcum powder, tooth powder, and shaving soap from Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins. Hurrah for them!

"Mrs. Brown Ralston sent us preserved cherries and peaches. She can have any horse we have on the picket line. God bless her!

"Our mess hall was the first to be completed, and now we are working on our tents, so by the end of this week we will have everything screened in, thanks to the good people of old Plainfield. Sergeant Mellick is certainly proud of his mess hall. We do not use our mess kits any more. Just go down to mess, hang up our hats, sit down to tables and are waited on by kitchen police. When finished we get up and walk to our tents. No more washing dishes, as that is part of the duty of the kitchen police. Things are pretty smooth now, and by the end of another week I am afraid none of us will want to go home. We have not received our pay for the month of July, as the paymaster's office has been busy fixings things for the men that have gone home, but we may be paid tomorrow, and then Douglas merchants will have three busy days. Fifteen dollars a month, and, oh, such a headache. I expect to buy Phelps & Dodge's store, or maybe I could have you buy the Babcock building for me. The merchants down here are fine. We are paying about double for everything we get, so you can figure out what we are going to do with our money.

"The weather is fine, only the nights have got so cool we have to throw another blanket over us. If we do not we wake up about 3 a. m. almost freezing.

"First Sergeant Brown Ralston has had such great results with his misplaced eyebrow that he is forced to trim it every week.

"Trooper Harry Stonaker has been nicknamed the 'Handsome Champion Rough Rider' of the squadron.

"Roland Dawson, of East Orange, a baritone singer, who was employed in Edison's studio, belongs to the tent with John Foster Sickler. He has a wonderful voice, so we have the best singer along the border.

"James Conway let his mustache grow so long that he was taken for Villa several times and had to spend 10 cents for a shave.

"Sickler is the busiest man along the border. He is drilling the rookies in his tent from 5 a. m. until 9:30 p. m. trying to make them look like regulars.

"Corporal Ransome was raising a mustache, and after he had his picture taken and looked at it he went around the camp asking if he really looked like the picture. After he got affirmative answers from ninety-five troopers he lit for the barber shop at a 2:05 pace.

"Tent No. 4, otherwise called the Annex, the home of Sergeant Andrews and Privates Fiske, Gallagher, Rowland, McLean and Roger Mellick, is the most popular place on the street when the sun shines, but in rainy weather no one will stay inside without a slicker. Gus Fiske has been assigned as alarm clock. His duties are to see that every man in the tent is on his feet at 5:30 a. m. So far he has succeeded, but has met with opposition. Roger Mellick is performing the same duty about three or four times every night. His hours are irregular. Rogers dreams hours are irregular. Roger dreams as seeing Chaplin at the movies, or hears the major's orders for us to entrain for home, and his laughter not only wakes up everyone in the tent, but for 100 yards around. Reginald Rowland, who had one of the famous Kelly haircuts all the way down, spends at least three hours a day trying to part the little sprouts. Joe Gallagher has shown Captain Borden that he is a real mechanic. Saturday the flivver broke down and a hurry call was sent from town for Joe. He jumped his horse and rode down to the freight yard, where he found the Ford was stalled. After lifting up the hood just like a regular chauffeur he went down, ordered a few parts, got on his overalls and after working for about six hours had the engine running. He saved the troop about $30.

"DOLLAR DAY" TO BE OBSERVED AUGUST 30

Bigger and Better Bargains Than Ever to Be Offered By Local Merchants.

Under the auspices of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield the annual "Dollar Day" will be observed in Plainfield on Wednesday, August 30, and every merchant of the city who is a member of the association is planning to offer bargains of exceptional value to their patrons. While there will be bargains galore, the merchants are especially anxious that the people of Plainfield and vicinity understand that they are not planning to get rid of a lot of goods which are out of date and which have been on hand for a long time.

The goods to be offered are all desirable and will be worth double the price to be asked for them on Wednesday. While "Dollar Days" in the past have been a great success, this year's observance promises to excel any heretofore held. Of course, the early shoppers will get the pick of bargains, while those who wait until later in the day must expect to forego a choice of the best goods. It is therefore urged that shoppers make it a point to do their buying as early in the day as possible. This will prove of advantage to themselves, and at the same time help the merchants. Don't forget the day, Wednesday, August 30.

B. P. O. E. PLANNING FOR BIG CONVENTION

Elks of New Jersey to Be Entertained In Newark In September.

Delegates from thirty-nine lodges of Elks throughout the State are expected at the third annual convention of the New Jersey State Association of Elks in Newark, September 10, 11 and 12. Contestants are being groomed by many of the lodges for prizes in a series of competitions. Tuesday, the final day, the Elks will parade to Olympia Park, beginning at 11 o'clock, and will hold the contest there.

The program for the rest of the week is as follows: Sunday, secred concert at the lodge home, 8 p. m. During the day delegates with their wives and guests will be received at the home and entertained. Monday, automobile sightseeing tours for delegates and guests; meetings in the lodge room at 3 p. m.; beefsteak dinner at the Home Brewery, 6 p. m.

Registration will take place at the City Hall after the delegates have been met at the railroad stations by reception committees.

One of the most interesting of the contests at Olympia Park will be a band contest. Each band which aspires to the prize will play the "National Emblem" march, and competent judges will decide whose interpretation was the best. Henry A. Guenther is chairman of the executive committee of Newark Lodge, No. 21, which is arranging the convention.

MARTINE WANTS JOINT DEBATE WITH WESTCOTT

Senator James E. Martine has written a letter to the Press in which he states that he would be glad to meet Attorney General Westcott here in joint debate. For some time it has been advertised that Westcott would invade the home town of the Farmer Orator, and a date has been set for September 6. Senator Martine did not know of the date when his letter was written, as he says he hopes a time suitable to both can be arranged. The engagement is left in the hands of his friends in Plainfield.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

BREMEN IS DUE SEPTEMBER 8TH

Capt. Koenig Is Being Received In Germany As National Hero.

WILLEHAD LEAVES PORT

Steams Out of Boston, Going to New London, Says Captain—First German Liner to Depart Since War Began.

London, August 24.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland, which arrived at the mouth of the Weser River on Wednesday, was slightly damaged, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hague today. Reports from Bremen state that the Deutschland's arrival surprise the directors of the Ocean Company, as she was not expected until a later date.

The submarine was slightly damaged, and the members of her crew were very unwilling to talk of the homeward voyage. Captain Koenig is being feted as a national hero and has been summoned to headquarters by the Kaiser for personal congratulations. The owners received news of the vessels progress seven days ago, and it was only then that the Deutschland's sister ship, the Bremen, was allowed to leave for the United States. The Deutschland's time for the Atlantic voyage was 23 days, consequently if the Bremen left on August 16 and her speed is the same as her sister ship's, she should arrive in American waters about September 8.

Boston, August 24.—The North German Lloyd liner Willehad, which had been in refuge here since the war started, slipped out of the harbor early today, presumably for New London, for which port she obtained clearance papers last night. Officials of the liner assert that the change was made to reduce docking charges, and said that the movements of the vessel had nothing to do with the expected arrival of the german U-freighter Bremen.

J. F. ZEREGA BOOMED FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Annual Democratic Outing Proves to Be a Veritable Love-Feast.

According to all reports the annual outing of Union county Democrats to Witzels Grove yesterday was a veritable love feast and the whole affair spelled harmony with a capital "H." All this is said to have been true despite the fact that United States Senator James E. Martine and Judge Wescott were included among those present. Senator Martine, full of enthusiasm, as usual, and sanguine that he will be renominated, gave Judge Wescott, his rival for honors, a cordial greeting. H. Otto Wittpenn, the Gubernatorial candidate, was also the centre of attraction throughout the day. He was much encouraged by the sentiment in favor of his candidacy.

The outing resulted in a few "booms," included among which was that of John F. Zerega, of this city, for the Assembly. W. H. Tavener, of Westfield, was also mentioned for similar honors. Their friends promised to give them full support.

There were about 1,400 Democrats and their friends on the outing. It was 130 o'clock when Witzel's Grove was reached. All enjoyed the fine dinner served and the return was made so that the excursionists could reach Elizabeth about 8:30 o'clock last night.

The Plainfielders who enjoyed the affair were Judge Walter L. Hetfield, Thomas J. Hughes, John Keely, James J. McCann, David Coleman, Walter Linbarger, Frank Wagner and Daniel G. Galbraith.

LIGHTNING STRIKES BARN, CAUSING $50 DAMAGE

The North Plainfield Fire Department was called out yesterday afternoon to extinguish a blaze on the Timothy Harrington property, on Greenbrook road. When the firemen arrived they found the barn on the premises in flames. Three tanks of chemicals were used to put out the fire, which had been caused by lightning striking the barn.

The quick work of the firemen prevented the entire destruction of the building, the flames being confined to the roof. According to Chief William McCullough about $50 damage was done. A record run was made by the new motor engine.

PORCH CHAIRS STOLEN.

POLITICAL LINES ARE BEING DRAWN

First Ward G. O. P. Have Two Aspirants For Councilmanic Honors.

"NO LICENSE" QUESTION

Organization Claims That a Movement Is On Foot to Make the City "Dry"—Church League Will Play An Important Part In Campaign.

Joseph C. Allen, Elias H. Bird, A. I. Littell, S. P. T. Wilbur and Robert McCormick, representing the committee on councilmanic candidates from the First Ward Republican Club, met last night at the home of Mr. Allen on Westervelt avenue to discuss the situation. The committee decided to present the names of Councilman A. D. Edgar and Frederick S. Cutter at the club meeting on Tuesday night, August 29, and it will then be up to the organization to act on the recommendation of the committee.

There appears to have been some misunderstanding regarding Mr. Edgar's candidacy. Friends of Mr. Cutter claim that it was clearly stated at the last club meeting that Mr. Edgar would not seek a renomination, but this was apparently unauthorized for Mr. Edgar shortly afterward filed his petition. In the meantime Mr. Cutter's friends got busy and entered him in the race.

While supporters of Mr. Cutter will not admit the fact, friends of Mr. Edgar claim that the former is to be made a Prohibition candidate, that if he is elected he will vote against all liquor license applications. Those who urge his nomination deny this report, saying that he is to seek political honors on the Republican ticket in the party primaries. However, they admit that they know how Mr. Cutter stands on the liquor question.

That the "no license" voters of the city are to take an active part in the fall primaries and election is a well known fact and determined efforts will be made to elect councilmen who will vote the city "dry." Already opposition to this plan is started and the Phrohibition movement which is now well under way is not well received on the part of some of the voters.

Just what strength the "dry" element will have in the primaries and electing is problematical at present. The movement is backed by the Church League of the city, which includes the Federation of Men's Bible Classes and Church Clubs. There are a number who believe that excise conditions here are ideal and that it would be a mistake to change them to a "no-license" city. They recall a former year when such conditions existed and they claim that it resulted in many "speakeasies" and other violations of the liquor laws, to say nothing of the 165 government licenses that were obtained during that period.

BLAMES BREAD RISE ON CHICAGO MEAT PACKERS

Washington, Aug. 24.—Representative Rainey of Illinois, ranking Democratic member of the Ways and Means Committee, who is fighting to reduce the tax on mixed flour, said today that bread is cheaper in the war zone than in this country.

"The talk of higher prices for bread," said he, "is engineered by certain Chicago packers who own one of the biggest bakeries in the world. They started the talk of 6-cent bread and the other bakers followed like sheep. I am prepared to show that the beef packers, not content with making meat prices, are trying to make prices for bread."

HOPE CHAPEL LECTURE.

The last of the Wednesday night illustrated lectures at Hope Chapel was given by the Rev. D. W. Skellenger last night on "The Entry Into Jerusalem." There will be three more Sunday night lectures when they will be discontinued for the rest of the season. So far during the summer months there have been lectures every Wednesday and Sunday nights and the attendance has been excellent.

TO RECEIVE BIDS SEPTEMBER 7.

Bids will be received by the Somerset Freeholders at the Court House, Somerville, September 7, for the proposed work of re-indexing the records in the office of the county clerk. The board recently made an appropriation of $2,000 for a portion of the work, which is to be made this year. The work will take two years and will cost approximately $18,000.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

WILSON WINS IN RAILROAD PARLEY

Executives Agree to His Proprosal and There Will Be No Strike.

REPORT LATER TODAY

Basis for Settlement Is Satisfactory to President—Judge Chambers Had Long Conference With Brotherhood Representatives.

Washington, Aug. 24.—A basis for the settlement of the impending nationwide strike of railroad workers was reached today by the committee of railroad executives in charge of the negotiations for the railroads. The ground work for an ultimate peaceful conclusion of the crisis was developed after conferences between the railroad executives' committee, President Wilson and Congressional leaders. The basis of settlement was satisfactory in substance to President Wilson.

Judge Chambers held a conference with Presidents Garretson, Stone, Carter and Lee, of the four brotherhoods. All refused to discuss the conference, but Judge Chambers said that he thought he might be able to save the men from a trip to the White House.

Later the four presidents hurried to the Bijou Theatre and presented the message from the White House to the railroad brotherhoods' chairman, who were in secret session. Leaving the railroad men, Judge Chambers then went to the headquarters of the railroad managers and discussed with them the new angles of the situation presented by the President. Judge Chambers indicated that the brotherhoods' representatives may be summoned to the White House later today.

ONE NEW PLAGUE CASE REPORTED TODAY

Plainfield Has Good Record In Number of Cases and Results.

Only one case of infantile paralysis was reported in Plainfield today, that one having been under observation for the past week. James Spott, the five year-old-son of John Spott, of 1008 West Third street, has a mild attack of the plague.

Following the third injection of the serum yesterday, Herbert Peacock, who was stricken with paralysis Sunday, was reported as being considerably improved. All other cases are progressing favorably.

Information obtained yesterday by the local Board of Health in regard to cases of paralysis in other places about the size of Plainfield seems to show that this city has been rather fortunate so far. Orange has fifty-five cases, Perth Amboy twenty-three, East Orange twenty-three, New Brunswick twenty; Montclair fourteen and Plainfield has had twenty-one to date.

GEORGE CHUB DRAWS 60-DAY SENTENCE FOR PANHANDLING

George Chub was sent to the county jail for sixty days when he was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza this morning in city court for the second time in as many days. Chub was in court yesterday morning charged with panhandling, and was relieved of a fine of $100 on condition that he leave town within one hour. Fifteen minutes later he was picked up for panhandling again and arraigned this morning.

Chub, who is a man 65 years old, went around to the various labor organizations and saloons asking for money, and once before when he was in Plainfield in 1911 he secured money the same way. He is a stair builder by trade, and the various trade journals have published warnings against him.

N. J. LABOR MEN ATTACK JUSTICE CHARLES HUGHES

The New Jersey Federation of Labor, in session in Orange yesterday, condemned by resolution Justice Charles E. Hughes for his vote in confirming the Danbury hat case while a member of the Supreme Court. The fine of $252,000 imposed on the Danbury hatters was "nothing more than blood money," said the resolution.

LET OFF WITH REPRIMAND.

Louis Hayes, of Chatham street, who was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of beating his wife, was arraigned before Recorder Fred Hand in the borough court this morning. He was given aevere reprimand and was allowed to go.

FUNERAL OF WALTER COOPER.

The funeral of Walter Howard Howard Cooper, who died suddenly on Wednesday, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the late home, 81 Franklin avenue. The burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

FINANCES OF STATE ARE AGAIN SOUND

Former Assemblyman Anderson Reports From Treasurer $500,000 Free Balance.

Former Assemblyman William Delaroche Anderson has just received a report from the State treasurer that a balance was recently taken of the State's financial condition which showed that if all requirements up to the end of October next were paid at once that there would still be left in the State treasury over a half million dollars free balance. Mr Anderson, who was made the active and specialized financial man by the appropriation committee last year, makes the following statement relative to this subject:

"The rehabilitation of the finances of the State was brought about by the earnest effort of a few energetic and forceful men with business heads and economical tendencies, leader among whom, as president of the Senate, was Walter E. Edge.

"Without the aid of such men the State would still be in a financial quagmire. The State will again be in a financial quagmire if the people are not careful as to the capabilities of those whom they send to represent them at the State House. It is up to the people whether the ground gained be retained or not. I would suggest consolidating their gains."

MORE TROOPERS GET DISCHARGES

Nelson Ramsey and D. Ogden Rogers Leave For Home Tonight.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Douglas, Arizona, Aug. 23.—James Nelson Ramsey and David Ogden Rogers, of Troop D, were this morning granted discharges and will leave tonight for Plainfield. Both men were released under the dependent family clause. The Rogers application had been up for some time, but was recently refused by district headquarters officers. Evidently home folks get the wires working and it was reconsidered. This morning his application was granted and his discharge was ordered expedited.

D. Ogden Rogers lives with his mother at 518 East Front street. He was one of the troopers to marry just before going to the border, his bride being a New York girl popular in society. Rogers is a brother of the late Lieut. Pendleton Rogers, of the United States army. He is employed by Mills & Stuart, brokers, New York city.

J. Nelson Ramsey is unmarried. He lives with his mother at 167 Crescent avenue. Mrs. Ramsey is a widow and is dependent upon her son. She received a telegram from him this morning telling of his discharge and stating that he would arrive home the first of next week. Ramsey is an illustrator with the Industrial Press, New York.

CHARLES BORNMAN WEDS MISS KATHERYN DEBELE

Miss Kathlyn F. Debele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Debele, of Rock avenue, and Charles A. Borman, of Church street, this city, were married in the parsonage of the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, yesterday afternoon by Rev. Ernest R. Brown, the pastor. Only the immediate relatives of the couple were present.

Miss Florence Debele, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and Benjamin Borman, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. Mr and Mrs. Borman left on a short wedding trip and upon their return will reside at 115 Church street. Mr. Borman is engaged in the plumbing business in this city.

NEGRO SAYS ELIZABETH POLICE SINGED HIS HAIR

Charging that the police of Elizabeth put him through the "third degree," and that his hair was singed with a lighted cigar, Broxton Carter, of Newark, has served notice of a suit for false imprisonment. Carter is a negro who was held in jail in Elizabeth for seven weeks on a charge of assaulting Mrs. John F. Chandler. Lewis Brown, another negro, confessed to the crime.

TWO THOUSAND TURKS CAPTURED

Russians Win Great Battle Near Village of Rachta.

GERMANS ARE REPULSED

Both Paris and Petrograd Report Losses For the Kaiser—Fierce Artillery Fire Along the Somme—Cannon and Other Booty Captured.

Petrograd, August 24.—Russian troops have defeated four divisions of Turks in a great baattle which has been raging near the village of Rachta, near Mosul, according to the War Office. Two entire Turkish regiments, a large number of cannon and considerable other booty were captured.

Drive Back the Germans.

Petrograd, August 24.—German assaults launched on Wednesday in an effort to force the Russians back to the easter bank of the Stokhod River were repulsed, says an official statement issued by the War Office today.

Somme Attacks Fail.

Paris, August 24.—German troops on the Somme front are still hammering away at the French positions, south of the river. Following a severe bombardment that lasted all day Wednesday the German delivered a hand grenade attack in the sector of Soyecourt, at the southern extremity of the Somme front, but it was repulsed.

Swedish Steamer Sunk.

Copenhagen, August 24.—The Swedish steamship Baltia has been sunk off the coast of Holland by a mine. One member of the crew was lost, the others being landed safely.

JOHNSON HELD IN $500 BAIL FOR GRAND JURY

Walter Johnson, the negro who was arrested yesterday for stealing valuable pieces of metal from the Smalley stone quarry, was this morning arraigned before Recorder Fred Hand in the borough court. Through clever work on the part of Chief Marshal George Weiss, the man to whom the metal was sold by the culprit was found. When confronted with evidence that he had taken the metal and sold it, the negro entered a plea of guilty. Recorder Hand held him under $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

Johnson will be taken to Somerville tomorrow. Meanwhile Chief Marshal Weiss is endeavoring to round up other persons said to have been connected with the case.

SPICERS' ANNUAL OUTING TO BE HELD SATURDAY

The annual outing of the Spicer Mutual Aid Society will be held at Highland Beach on Saturday, final arrangements having been made at a meeting on Tuesday night. At that time word was received from William Sandlass, manager of the Highland Beach House, that he would have a shore dinner prepared for those attending the outing.

A special train will leave this city on Saturday morning at 7:30, seven coaches, including a refreshment car, comprising the train. The committee in charge of the affair is as follows. Chairman, T. J. Larew; secretary, William O'Laughlin, treasurer, R. C. Larew. Other members of the committee are J. D. Anderson, M. Martin, C. Guinee, D. Baglin, W. Garretson, J. Wisniewski, D. Parry, L. Stevens, J. Delahanty, M. Kiley, William McCombs. William Batz is the president of the organization.

STOLE BICYCLE.

Louis Levy, a 7-year-old youngster from Brooklyn, who is spending the summer in Plainfield, was given another change by Judge DeMeza this morning when he was arraigned before him on a charge of stealing. Levy took a liking to a carpenter's bicycle at the Heavenly Rest church yesterday and rode off on it. When the man missed it he started on a search and found the youth with the wheel. After denying it at first the youngster admitted he took it for a ride, and plead so hard for a chance that the judge gave it to him.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT CHARGE.

Alexander Armstrong, a chauffeur, and Mary Croukee, a domestic, were arraigned in court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, preferred against them by Patrolman Dunlap. On the condition that she leave her present position and return to New York, her home, Judge DeMezt let her go. Armstrong was fined $10 or forty days in the county jail. He paid the fine.

KILLED AT ERIE.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 24.—Two heavy cranes, said to have been overloaded, broke at the National Foundry this morning, killing at least four workmen and injuring six or even others.

SERVICES HELD FOR WILLARD MARSTON

Last Rites For Fanwood Young Man Who Died Last Monday.

Private funeral services that were attended by members of the family and immediate friends were held yesterday afternoon for Willard Marston at his home on Midway place, Fanwood. Marston, who was twenty-two years of age, had been ill with pulmonary troubles for some time, and died at his home Monday morning.

Marston was well known here as a basketball player, having played on the Parish House team and Recreation Five, of Plainfield. Until a short time ago he was a prominent member of the Baptist church, but he recently joined the Christian Science church. He had lived here for the past seven years, coming from Brooklyn, where he was born.

Besides his mother he is survived by a younger brother, Everett Marston. Interment was made today at Brooklyn.

BOARD OF EDUCATION TO SELL $48,000 OF BONDS

A special meeting of the Fanwood Township Board of Education will be held in School No. 1 tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, when $48,000 in bonds will be sold. The selling of the bonds was authorized at a recent election of the township voters for the purpose of erecting an eight-room addition to School No. 1 and making repairs to the main structure.

Work on the improvements and addition has been going forward for the past week, and the cellar for the addition is now nearly completed.

SEELEY PAPER MILL TO BE OPERATED BY NEWARKERS

Announcement was made this week that the paper mill on Greenbrook had been leased to a Newark company headed by William T. Plum by the Seeley Paper Mill Company of which Ira Gage Walker is principal stockholder. The plant was practically demolished in the flood of several weeks ago and will be rebuilt by the new operators on a larger scale. The debris has been cleared away and work on the rebuilding of the structures composing the plant will start within a few days.

The former proprietors made only heavy wrapping paper, but with an up-to-date equipment and the present scarcity of paper it is probable Mr. Plum will also start the production of print paper.

GATHERED AT RANDOM

A. A. Storr, for seven years a resident of the borough, removed yesterday to Bound Brook. Until a short time ago he was agent for the New Jersey Central at Fanwood, but is now connected with the Johns-Manville plant at Somerville.

George Smith, an inventor, is seriously ill at his home on South avenue.

Hulbert Beardsley, of Cranford, who recently purchased the Kieb property on North avenue, intends removing here as soon as repairs are made to the place.

Mrs. John Hayes, of Martine avenue, is entertaining her sisters from New York.

William W. Outwater, of Tilliston road, has left on a two weeks' trip to Baltimore.

Miss Marjorie Tuzo and Paul Tuzo, of Terril road, are visiting friends in Maryland.

Miss Dorothy Beeken, of North avenue, left this morning for Lake Hopatcong to visit Miss Grace Thompson, of Martine avenue, who is spending the summer there.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wardel, who have been spending the summer at the Homestead, are on a trip to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Francis Christopher, of North avenue, and Mrs. Thomas Norton, of Martine avenue, left this morning for Atlantic City to spend several days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pierce, of Brooklyn, who have been spending the summer at the Homestead, are on a trip through the New England States.

Miss Florence Kennedy, of North avenue, is visiting at Asbury Park.

CAMPING PARTY.

A group of ten members of the Wide World Guild, chaperoned by Mrs. Albert Meyers, are spending the week camping at Camp Serun, Lake Hopatcong, and according to postals received here are having a great time. They have a cook with them and spend the time swimming, walking and boating.

MINOR ACCIDENT.

A minor automobile accident occurred on Martine avenue, at the approach to the Postoffice bridge yesterday, when an automobile driven by Roy Day, of Scotch Plains, was run into by a runabout. The accident looked to be an unavoidable one, and as a settlement was reached between the two parties nothing was done.

BOROUGH GIRL VICTIM OF QUEER ACCIDENT

Miss Hannah Lambertson, nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Lembertson, of North avenue, is in a critical condition at her home today, following an accident yesterday when she fell from an automobile. Miss Lambertson landed on the back of her head and the extent of her injuries have not been fully ascertained.

The young girl was standing up in the back of her father's machine brushing the dust from the top, when her father, not knowing she was in the machine, started it up and the sudden jolt was enough to throw her out of the car.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR FATHER M'GRATH; REMAINS 2 WEEKS

Arrangements have been completed by the young people of the Stony Hill church for a farewell party to Father McGrath, who will leave in two weeks to take charge of his new parish at Hackettstown. A Bernardsville orchestra will furnish music for dancing and other plans for an enjoyable time have been made.

Father McGrath expected to take charge of his new parish last week, but when word reached here that Father Waldron, of New Brunswick, who was to come here had been injured in an automobile accident, he promised to stay here until Father Waldron recovered.

LOCAL SCHOOLS TO FOLLOW PLAINFIELD, OPEN OCT. 2

Although no definite action has been taken because there has not been any meeting of the Board of Education, information has come from a reliable source that the local public schools will not reopen on the scheduled date, September 12. In talking with a member of the board yesterday afternoon it was learned that the local school will follow the example of the Plainfield and Westfield schools, and as both have set October 2 as the new opening date, it is safe to say that the local schools will open on the same date.

The late opening of the schools will allow contractors now at work on the alterations to School No. 2 to complete the improvements. The addition to the school will also be further advanced by that time, although it will not be ready for use by cold weather.

WRECKING OF SHOEBOX MARKS PASSING OF FAMOUS INN

When carpenters began to tear down the "Shoebox" it marked the passing of one of the famous landmarks and saloons in this section of the State. Two stories in height and perfectly square, the tavern fully lived up to its name, and for a quarter of a century it had been known between New York and Philadelphia as a roadhouse.

Situated on South avenue, but a short distance south of the Westfield line, the inn was the rendezvous for many prominent people until its license was taken away several years ago, and since that time it has been growing rapidly into a state of unkeep. The place flourished or lacked patronage according to the person conducting the place. A number of times officers have swooped down on the place following complaints that there were various violations of the law, and many are the stories that are told by men that are now gray and old of the cock fights that have been held there. On more than one occasion stakes have run into the thousands of dollars.

CASE OF PARALYSIS A WEEK OLD FOUND AT FANWOOD

Fanwood Borough has another case of infantile paralysis that was found last week but was not made public until today, when after considerable questioning a Daily Press reporter gained the information that the 2½-year-old daughter of Charles Schroeder, of Terril road, was afflicted with the disease. Each day for the past week information has come from the health authorities that there were no more cases and it was not until a reporter obtained definite word of the case this morning and then asked a member of the Health Board that the case was acknowledged.

The family, with the exception of the father, who is remaining in New York, has been quarantined. It is on the outskirts of the borough, and so far as could be learned today the girl is the only one within the last two weeks to have the disease in either Fanwood or Scotch Plain.

ANGLING TOURNAMENT.

Portland, Ore., August 24.—Devotees of Izaak Walton from numerous States are today contesting in the annual Northwestern bait and fly casting tournament at Laurelhurst Lake. BOARD OF HEALTH ISSUES A WARNING

Dunellen Officials Find Residents Are Not Obeying Health Rules.

The warning of the Board of Health against infantile paralysis issued July 11th, 1916, in pamphlet form, is not being heeded by many citizens, it is claimed.

The danger of this disease has already been demonstrated by the appearance of three cases, two of which have been fatal. Residents are again advised against entertaining guests from outside the borough during the prevalence of the epidemic.

Children under sixteen (16) years of age should not enter the borough from any other municipality unless accompanied by a certificate issued by a competent health authority.

Such certificates must be presented to the Board of Health for acceptance immediately upon arrival in the borough and before locating in any dwelling therein.

No child under sixteen years of age should leave the borough for another municipality until they have procured a regulation certificate from the Board of Health. No charge is made for such certificates.

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public streets for any purpose whatever. If the child is sick call a physician, but in no event take the child from the house while there are symptoms of illness.

The Board of Health again appeals for the co-operation of citizens in the borough to carry out the precautionary measures prescribed from time to time, particularly the general circular of warning issued July 11th, 1916. Pay particular attention to cleanliness, using the old-fashioned soap and water kind.

Grocers and others have been warned against the exposure to contamination of food stuffs offered for sale.

Butchers and fish dealers have been instructed to keep their meats and fish properly protected in ice boxes or refrigerators.

Patrons of these merchants should insist upon food stuffs being handled in the most sanitary manner.

Many of the tenements in the borough are in an unsanitary condition, it is said. The landlords of these properties have been notified to acquaint themselves with the exact conditions by a personal inspection and to correct unsanitary conditions at once.

Every landlord should know the difference between cleanliness and uncleanliness.

WILL ATTEND RECEPTION.

A number of the boroughites will attend the reception to be given at Stony Hill Saturday evening in honor of the Rev. Father McGrath, who has been transferred to a new parish at Hackettstown, and leaves next week.

CLUB IS REORGANIZED.

The Klever Klover Klub has been reorganized and will conduct another series of its popular dances as soon as the weather becomes cooler.

Mrs. Marie Hunt, of Second street, who is 78 years old and remarkably active for one of here years, is knitting wash colthes for the troopers stationed at Fort Douglas, Ariz. She has been doing this in fact since the troop has been stationed there and to date has forwarded quite a number of boxes of the useful toilet fabric.

MUST STAY HOME.

Max Pudgin, arraigned before Recorder Campbell last evening on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by a neighbor, Mrs. Edward Draper, colored, was given a suspended sentence, which stipulates that he must keep on his own premises.

The following enjoyed an outing at Washington Rock yesterday: Mrs. John Huff, Mrs. Ella Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Snell, the Misses Alice and Adelaide Cheshire, of Oyster Bay, L. I.; Wesley Huff, Kenneth Dealaman, Gilbert Snell and William Hammersly. Games were played and refreshments served.

The youngest child of Paul Meyers has been very ill for the past few days.

Frank Scloarie, of Samptown, has purchaseed a motorcycle.

Edward Hannon is camping at Keansburg.

John Egan, the popular Prospect avenue crossing gateman, has returned from a visit of several days at Coney Island.

Mr. and Mrs. John Z. Kelly and child are summering at Budd's Lake.

Joseph Penrose has taken a position in the Pond Tool Works.

Walter Penrose is suffering from a touch of the grippe.

Paul Smith, of Front street, has taken a position at the local station of the New Jersey Central.

JACKSON PLEADS LENIENCY, GIVEN PROBATION SENTENCE

James Jackson, 17 years old, colored, who has been wanted by the local police for the past week on a warrant sworn out by his father-in-law, Henry Robertson, who alleged that young Jackson had assaulted and beaten his young sister, gave himself up yesterday and was given a hearing before Judge von Minden last evening. He entered a partial plea of guilty and asked for leniency of the court upon the ground that he had just broken his arm and was suffering considerable. Upon young Jackson's promise to do better the court put him on probation for three months.

GAVE "500" PARTY.

Mrs. Martin Bowman, of Front street, gave a "500" party Tuesday evening in honor of here sister, Miss Katherine Debele and Charles Borman, of Plainfield, who were married by the Rev. E. R. Brown yesterday afternoon. The home was attractively decorated with potted plants and cut flowers.

C. L. Wahl, Jr. leaves Sunday for Wisconsin, Ill., where he will visit friends.

William Swick is entertaining relatives from Hoboken.

Edgar Boire, of Piscataway, has sold his farm to a Plainfield man.

Westfield.

The rifle range of the local rifle club is open for shooting, the targets being put in place yesterday. There will be general practice this afternoon.

Lloyd Thompson has returned home after spending two weeks at Lake George.

The Board of Education will meet tomorrow night to decide on the date for the opening of the schools.

HighBridge-Califon.

Miss Beatrice E. Silker has returned to Jersey City after visiting Mr. and and Mrs. Irwin Sharpe at Pleasant Grove.

The Helping Hand Society of the Fairmount Methodist church has discontinued its meetings until October.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Scofield have returned to Newark after spending part of the summer at Fairmount.

After visiting her cousin, Miss Ruth Fleming, at Fairmount, Miss Elizabeth Van Dorn has returned to her home in Vailsburg.

There will be no services Sunday at the Fairmount Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. Henry J. Iobst, being on his vacation.

GIRL WENT TO TOP OF MARCONI TOWER

Certain repairs had to be made to the top of one of the steel towers of the Marconi Wireless station ner New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday, and a workman was assigned to go to the summit 426 feet above the ground, in a swing operated by ropes and pulleys.

"I'm going up with him!" announced Mis Nellie Albee, daughter of the manager, M. B. Albee.

Her father protested, but Miss Albee said, "You took mother up 295 feet Monday afternoon, and I'm going to beat her record."

So the girl took her place in the little bo's'ns chair alongside the mechanic and was hoisted to the very top of the tower, where he sat while he did his work. From the ground she looked like a mere speck against the sky.

"It was a fine trip," she said when she came down. "But it wasn't very much cooler up there than it is here on the ground."

CANADIAN EXPOSITION.

Toronto, August 24.—Patriotism is the keynote of the annual Canadian National Exhibition, which opened in Toronto today for a three weeks' engagement. Flags are to be seen everywhere in Exhibition Park. In the centre of the main building is built up a nest of flags, where the union jack is seen entwined with the colors of the Allies. In many places throughout the grounds the Stars and Stripes also are in evidence. The industrial display this year is one of the best ever seen here. The management expects that the attendance will be considerably in excess of the one-million mark.

CHINESE CONFERENCE.

Andover, Mass., Aug. 24.—A liberal representation of the 1,200 Chinese students who are attending American colleges and schools appeared here today for the opening of their twelfth annual conference. The conferences under the auspices of Phillips Academy, and will continue in session until September 2. Among the scheduled speakers are Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister at Washington; Governor Samuel McCall of Massachusetts, and Major General Leonard Wood.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. POWLISON

Obsequies at Daughter's Home Last Night—Interment in Bedminister Cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Joseph S. Powlison, who died in her ninety-fourth year last Monday, were held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anthony La Boyteaux, of 25 Grandview avenue, at 8 o'clock last night. Friends and relatives were present in large numbers, and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Howard E. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church, of which Mrs. Powlison was the oldest member. The Misses Ida and Henrietta Engelhart sang two hymns, "Abide With Me," and "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me."

The pallbearers were four nephews and two grandsons of Mrs. Powlison: Peter and Philip Vroom, George and Morris Van Arsdale and Ernest and Lester Powlison. A short service was conducted at Bedminister chapel this morning at 10:30 and interment was made later in Bedminister cemetery.

LEWIS PETERSON DEAD IN 84TH YEAR

One of Plainfield's Oldest Negroes Died This Morning After Long Illness.

Lewis P. Peterson, one of Plainfield's oldest colored residents and a prominent figure among the colored people of this city, died in his eighty-fourth year at his home on Filmore avenue this morning after an illness extending over more than two years. He had been a resident here for the past fifty years, coming here from Perth Amboy.

Mr. Peterson was born near Perth Amboy in 1833 and spent all his younger days around that city. For a number of years he was a justice of the peace in the ward where he lived. Fifty-nine years ago he married Jeannette Manning, and shortly afterward removed to this city. During the two years of his illness he was unable to get about, but previous to that time he had been an active church worker.

Besides a wife he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Dunham, living at home. Several nieces and nephews also survive. His brother, Thomas, who died a short time ago in Perth Amboy, was said to have been the first colored man to vote after the Civil War. Funeral services will be held from his late home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. ROSANN COLVIN DIES IN 82D YEAR

Well-known Resident Passes Away After Long Illness.

Mrs. Rosann Colvin, aged 82 years, died at 1:15 o'clock this morning at her home, 14 West End avenue, following a long illness from a complication of diseases. For the past year and a half she had been a great sufferer, but throughout it all she was patient and cheerful and appreciated every little attention given by the devoted members of the family.

Mrs. Colvin was born in County Craven, Ireland, coming to this country when she was eighteen years old. She soon afterward went to Clinton, Hunterdon county, where she was married to Bernard Colvin, in the Church of the Immaculate Conception. She continued to live in Clinton until twelve years ago, when her husband died. She then removed to Plainfield, remaining here until the time of her death. Mrs. Colvin was a devout member of St. Mary's church, and interested in all of its activities.

There survives five daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth McCoy, of Clinton; Mrs. Edward Richeimer, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Mary Higgins and Mrs. Ella B. Hannigan and Miss Catherine Colvin, who live at home; also three sons, Bernard Colvin, of Jersey City, and Michael and James Colvin, who live at home. Mrs. Colvin leaves one sister, Miss Bridget Mulligan, who lives in Ireland.

The funeral will be held in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Clinton, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and the burial will take place in the cemetery adjoining the church.

HORSE SHOW OPENS.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 24.—Society turned out in full force at the Casino today for the opening of the twentieth annual exhibition of the Newport Horse Show Association. Galleries and boxes were filled and many enthusiasts lined the rails of the exhibition arena. The show will continue through the remainder of the week. The prize list this year contains a number of new features. There are forty-six classes—twenty one for harness horses and ponies, twelve for saddle horses, nine for hunters and jumpers and four championships.

To Republican Voters

Colonel Austen Colgate, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, is a man of achievement.

His opponents know this; hence their desperate efforts to minimize the importance of his services to the State. Their misrepresentations have only reacted upon themselves.

The following facts have been substantiated by a thorough search of the legislative records.

During his five years as Senator he has handled more bills than any of his colleagues.

During his entire eight years of service in the House and Senate, he has been reported as absent less than half a dozen times.

He has never sought to evade responsibility by declining to vote when a [illegible] came up for action.

He was the [illegible] of many of the most important measures enacted by the Legislature in recent years.

He has never allowed his political ambitions to stand in the way of his duty to the State.

He has never permitted defeat to dishearten him, but year after year has re-introduced measures he believed to be worthy, until by his very persistence they have become a part of the law of the State.

He has been a staunch friend of labor and has interested himself especialy in humanitarian measures of all kinds.

He was one of the most influential factors in bringing about equal taxation, limited franchises, the eight-hour work-day, election law reforms, conservation of the State's natural resources, pure food regulation, honest weights and measures, reciprocity and proper restriction for automobilists, widows' pensions, improvement of the State road system and other reforms and benefits of inestimable value to the people of New Jersey.

He is not only a man of achievement, but the man who can poll the largest number of votes at the election in November.

POLITICAL NOTES.

August 26—Annual outing of the Republican County Committee.

August 27—Allan Benson, Socialist candidate for President, speaks in Hippodrome.

September 1—Last day for filing petitions for nomination for county offices.

September 2—Formal notification of Wilson's nomination at Shadow Lawn, Long Branch.

September 6—Last day for filing petitions of nomination for municipal offices.

September 26—Primary election and registry day.

November 7—General election.

H. Otto Wittpenn has just returned from a most encouraging tour of Burlington county, where he found unanimous backing among the Democrats for his candidacy. There was a rally, attended by several hundred, under the auspices of the Burlington County Democratic Committee.

Former Governor Edward Casper Stokes in a special letter to Allen R. Trimble, of Elizabeth, secretary of the Senate Judiciary Committee, denies that he is to take part in the management of a joint campaign for Senator Walter E. Edge for Governor and Franklin Murphy for United State Senator. He says he will take no part in the management of any campaign.

Assemblyman William N. Runyon will be the principal speaker at the meeting of the Sixth Ward Republican club, to be held tonight at Elizabeth. There will be a number of other speakers, according to present plans.

Senator Austen Colgate is going to be well represented on the Republican outing, which is to be held on Saturday. Not only is he going along himself to get acquainted with the Union county voters, but he will have with him his Union County manager, Charles N. Codding, and Arthur E. Warner, who is working in his behalf in Elizabeth. South Jersey will be represented by Blanchard H. White, of Burlington county, and Joseph H. Thompson, of Ocean, both ardent Colgate men.

All the members of the City Council favor Mayor Leighton Calkins for a second term, and are doing all they can to persuade the city executive to seek a nomination.

President Francis J. Blatz, of City Council, yesterday filed his petition for a renomination. While it was generally supposed that Mr. Blatz wanted a second term, it was not until this week that he positively decided to enter the contest.

Friends of Seymour G. Perkins would like to see him seek the Assembly nomination on the Democratic ticket this fall. Perkins has twice been a candidate for Councilman, but was defeated each time.

MEXICAN MEDIATORS TO MEET IN SEPTEMBER

Washington, August 24.—The first meeting of the joint commissions of Americans and Mexicans appointed to consider and adjust differences existing between the United States and Carranza government will be held during the first week in September at some point on the New England coast.

This announcement was made by both Secretary of State Lansing and Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican abassador designate.

GERMANY GIVES LOSSES OF ALLIES IN WARBOATS

Berlin, August 24.—The German Admiralty has issued a statement asserting that the losses of the British and French navies in line-of-battle ships and cruisers to August 1 comprised seventy-two vessels with a total diplacement of 496,050 ton.

The German losses in the same classes during the same period were twenty-five warships with a total of 62,667 tons.

It was stated that the list of British and French warships included only those losses which definitely had been established.

LIEBKNECHT TO SERVE SENTENCE OF FOUR YEARS

Amsterdam (via London), Aug. 24.—The result of Dr. Karl Liebknecht's appeal against his sentence for war treason has been the imposition of a new and severer sentence of four years and one month penal servitude and expulsion from the army, according to a dispatch from Berlin. He is also deprived of his civil rights for six years.

The appeal of the Socialist leader was heard Wednesday before a supreme court marshal. In announcing the verdict the court declared that the sentence was imposed "for attempted war treason, severe disobedience and resistance against the armed power of the state."

LEONARD REFUSES TO WITHDRAW FROM RACE

Efforts were made on the Democratic outing yesterday, it is said, to persuade former Assemblyman William A. Leonard, of Elizabeth, to withdraw from the race for the county clerkship and not oppose Abram P. Morris, the present incumbent, but that he declined to consider such a proposition.

Mr. Leonard was a candidate for the office when Mr. Morris was elected, and in view of the support given to him at that time he feels warranted in going after the office this fall. Mr. Morris is being assured by his friends that he will have their united support in the fall primaries, and if renominated he feels sure he will be continued in office.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ENTER DAVID SMALLEY'S HOME

An attempt was made last night to break into the home of David Smalley, on East Front street, but the noise made by a servant in calling Mrs. Smalley scared the intruders away. On investigation the police found a chair placed under a dining room window, and a short distance from the house found a strange man.

He was arraigned in police court this morning and said he was Thomas McGuire, of New York, who was in this city in answer to an advertisement in a metropolitan newspaper. There was no evidence to hold the man, and the judge let him go. The police are working on several other clews that may end in the apprehension of the culprits.

PERRYSBURG HAS CENTENNIAL

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 24.—The people of Perrysburg today held a jubilee in celebration of the town's centennial. Perrysburg is older than Toledo, of which city it is now virtually a suburb. In the early days it was the head of navigation on the Maumee river and was an important Indian trading point. The streets of the town today were decorated, business was suspended and the day was given over to parades, public amusements, speech-making and music. One of the leading features was a historical parade in which marchers uniformed as Indians and as British and American soldiers participated.

PLEASURE'S ROSES.

The roses of pleasure seldom last long enough to adorn the brow of him who plucks them, for they are the only roses which do not retain their sweetness after they have lost their beauty.—Hannah More.

COOK & WILSON'S CIRCUS BANKRUPT

Petition Filed In the United States Court, at Trenton, Yesterday.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States Court at Trenton yesterday by the Cook & Wilson's Greatest Wild Animal Circus on Earth, which about two weeks ago was compelled to cancel its future dates on account of infantile paralysis quarantine in force in New York State. The show was playing in Clinton, N. Y. It returned to Trenton this week, from where it was started last spring. The liabilities were given as $11,723.45, consisting of wages of $578.55; secured claims, $378.55, and unsecured claims of $10,766.85.

The only property listed in the schedules are one circus tent, one dining room tent and one dressing room tent, valued altogether at $500, which are subject to a conditional sale contract with the United States Tent and Awning Company, of 225 North Desplaines street, Chicago, the balance due on the sum mentioned being $378.05. The Chicago concern is among those holding securities.

The petition was filed by D. Clinton Cook and certified to by Amzy Van Buskirk, treasurer. It is stated in the petition that at a meeting of the board of directors of the concern held in Trenton on Monday last the concern was insolvent and unable to pay its debts. Edwin R. Long, of this city, is the solicitor. The court referred the matter to Samuel D. Olphant, referee in bankruptcy, for a hearing at his offices in this city on September 8.

TWO FRIENDLY SUITS TRIED AT SOMERVILLE

Two sales were conducted in the office of Sheriff Charles P. Sebring at Somerville, this week. One was in the nature of a friendly action in order to help settle up the estate of J. Bradford Opie, who died recently in Neshanic. The action was by Augusta S. Cortelyou against Bertha C. Opie. The land in question, in Neshanic, was bought in by the complainant.

In the foreclosure proceedings brought about by Harriet T. Whitnall against William M. Dall, of Basking Ridge the land in suestion was bought by Postmaster W. H. Scheurman, of Basking Ridge, for $1,500.

HUMAN CREATIONS INCREASE.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 24.—Human cremations in America are now in excess of 10,000 a year, with a grand total of close to 100,000 since the first crematory was established in this country in 1876. With a better understanding of the subject on the part of the public the yearly average would be materially increased, in the opinion of the members of the American Cremation Society of America, which began its annual convention in this city today. In attendance on the convention are representatives of more than forty cremation establishments, scattered over twenty States, together with several in Canada and in aPnama and Honolulu.

CHARTING THE GREAT LAKES.

Uncle Sam Has a Steady Job In These Perilous Waters.

Summer after summer the fleet of the lake survey sails the broad expanse of the five lakes and the score of bays and inlets searching for danger spots that may claim their heavy toll of human life and vessel tonnage.

Since 1841 the United States government has been silently carrying on this work, a herculean fight against the jagged reef and the unseen shoal that menace navigation. Sounding lines have been plunged into black depths of 95,000 square miles of water, and still today there are areas that have not been charted in which passing barks may founder.

Probably no frequented waterways in the world are so hazardous as the great lakes. At no time is a steamer on them more than a comparatively few hours from shore and periodically fierce storms arise, fully as violent as those experienced on the ocean, which play with the steel ships, battering them helplessly about, threatening to engulf or sweep them ashore.

Over $5,000,000 has been spent by the government since 1841 for the prosecution of the work of charting the lakes. Locked in heavy timbered boxes, protected from fire in immense vaults in the old postoffice building, Detroit, are over 1,300 field charts, dating back to 1818, when a survey of Lake Erie was made by officers of the British navy. With few exceptions the maps are the result of the scientific researches of United States officers and surveyors.—New York Sun.

Some People Never Satisfied.

We lived for awhile in a Korean home, eating Korean rice, pickles and seaweed, padding about in stocking feet, sitting on our heels in lieu of chairs, sleeping on stone floors with our heads resting (?) on the customary pine blocks which the Koreans much prefer to pillows. But we had these experiences only when we deliberately sought them. The orient is the orient de luxe to those who wish it so.—Christian Herald.

Railways In Shakespeare's Time.

An American lady at Stratford on Avon showed even more than the usual American enthusiasm and fervor. She had not recovered when she reached the railway station, for she remarked to a friend as they walked on the platform, "To think that it was from this very platform the immortal bard would depart whenever he journeyed to town."

SOME OF AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS MEN ASK AID FOR DEFENDERS OF VERDUN

Prominent Bankers, Diplomatist and Educator Appeal for Funds in the Name of the Suffering Soldiers of France..

The National Allied Relief Committee, co-operating with the War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, is sending out what perhaps will be the most broadcast appeal yet issued on behalf of the war sufferers of Europe.

This appeal is for funds for the relief of the soldiers of France wounded in the fighting around Verdun.

What lends additional interest to this appeal is the fact that it is signed by six of the most prominent men in America. Those who signed it are: August Belmont of the banking firm bearing his name; Hon. Jos. H. Choate, Ex-Ambassador to England; Dr. Charles W. Elliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Edwin G. Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company, and Henry L. Higginson of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, Boston.

It is anticipated that the contributions received from this wide-spread appeal will be devoted also to relief work among a large number of wounded resulting from the greatly increased activities of the contending armies.

The appeal is reproduced herewith.

CORPORATION NOTICE

PROPOSALS FOR MACADAMIZING.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council at the Council Chamber No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at 8 o'clock, p. m., on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1916, for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the macadamizing contemplated in the ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 17, 1916, and approved by the Mayor, July 18, 1916, and as provided for in the specifications entitled "City of Plainfield, N. J., Proposal, Conditions, Specifications, Contract and Bond for the Permanent Improvement of Streets, 1916," filed in the office of the City Clerk August 7, 1916.

Upon receipts of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of said prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

A separate price must be named for each street, and proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Macadamizing."

PLAGUE RULE IS AMENDED BY BOARD

Railroads Must Report All Children Carried Without Proper Certificates.

Trenton, Aug. 24.—Continuing its fight against the spread of infantile paralysis, the State Board of Health has adopted an amendment to Regulation 2, of Chapter 2, of the State Sanitary Code, relating to the transportation of children. As amended the regulation now provides as follows:

"No common carrier shall bring into the State of New Jersey, except for continuous transportation through the State, any child under 16 years of age, unless such child shall be accompanied by a certificate as provided for in Regulation XXI of this chapter; provided, however, in case such child coming from any other point without the State of New Jersey shall be found upon a train without a certificate, as provided for in Regulation 1, of this code, it shall be the duty of the common carrier by whom such child is being transported to send a telegram to the State Department of Health within three hours from the time such child leaves the train in this State, stating the name, age, sex, color, and the name of the parent or guardian of such child, together with the name of the place at which such child entrained, and the name of the street address to which such child is alleged to have gone."

The object of the regulation is to prevent violations of the State quarantine and to trace a child when it is learned that there has been a violation.

BOY DROWNED IN RARITAN IN SIGHT OF COMPANIONS

Somerville, August 23.—While bathing in the Raritan River here Tuesday, 12-year-old Kenneth Drake waded into a hole and was drowned in sight of a number of young companions who like himself could not swim.

The drowning took place under the bridge of the South Branch Railroad. Seated on the banks of the river a few hundred yards away were a number of fishermen who heard the shouts of the drowning boy and his companions and paid no attention to them as they believed they were fooling.

After young Drake disappeared his companions told some larger boys who were swimming further down the river of the drowning. Robert Carlson went to the scene and after diving half an hour after the body in the swift current, brought it to the surface.

The drowned boy was the son of William Drake, a passenger brakeman of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The body was removed to the home of the boy's parents in Davenport street.

DRILL 5 HOURS A DAY

known as the speed bugler, awoke the other night during a storm and went outside to fix his tent. When this was done he went to fix a little fly used by the captain during the day. On his way he tripped over a corner guide, loosening same, and along came a gust of wind, carrying Warren and fly about fifty feet. A wire string tank stopped him. If the tank had not been full Warren might have been shot going over Mexico in his new-fangled aeroplane.

"Cab Driver Barry tried to ride Susan, our mascot, last night, and got about fifty feet when Susan bucked and he got off. Susan is a little burro. Sergeant Alberts gave his orders to master the mascot before a horse will be assigned to him. Susan is about as big as a Newfoundland dog. Barry spent all day trying to coax her to be nice, and it looks as if he will get a horse in about a week. He has been nicknamed Burro.

"Sergeant Righter purchased a trunk today, so his friends may expect to receive a souvenir from him when he gets home. I am afraid two trunks will not carry half the trophies he has purchased already. He had a carpenter build a framework for his tents, saying the men in his squad could not drive a nail with a sponge, no matter how many times they soaked it.

"Yesterday 'Stumpy' Burr, assistant to Sergeant 'Chermany' Joost, went to the sergeant's tent and started to sing out a lot of figures in reference to guns, blankets, rifles and other things when the sergeant stopped him by yelling: 'Has anybody got a bottle opener?' There was an immediate rush for the tent, but it was only a bottle of grape juice.

"Privates Hobbins and Alpers have returned from a ten days' visit to the First Cavalry, regulars, where they have been taking lessons in cooking. They are to practice on us tomorrow. Two girls back home are going to be awfully lucky when these two fellows return. Think of it! A husband who can do all the cooking!

"An order went through today that a student of a college or preparatory school would be permitted to go home September 1. We have one, Lyman Hibbard. He is uncertain as to what he will do. It looks like we will lose three cooks, as a negro is not allowed in a white company, and ours are expecting to be sent home any day.

"An order was received this morning demanding five hours of drill a day. If we are here for a year, as most of those here believe, Plainfield will have a bunch of soldiers that will be the real thing in about two months.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Assessments for Street Improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Charles L. Kling, Armstrong Mulford and Harry C. Van Emburgh, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas by order entered on the sixteenth day of June, Nineteen Hundred and sixteen, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said City specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenue thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz.

Sherman Avenue, from the macadam on Grant avenue to a point 709 feet easterly therefrom;

East Fourth Street, from the westerly curb line of Richmond Street to the present macadam on said East Fourth Street;

Fillmore Avenue, from the macadam on North Avenue to the macadam on East Third Street; under the ordinance of said City entitled, "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and portions of street of the City of Plainfield with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits. Approved October 4, 1915, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real state benefited thereby," approved July 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance, the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the first day of September, 1916, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said Court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

ABRAM P. MORRIS,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.

The power of the press can be applied to any business by using good Printing.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

Press printing is the result of ceaseless efforts to render the best service.

ARTHUR M. AGNEW OUT FOR SENATOR HENNESSY'S SEAT

Hackensack, August 24.—Senator Charles O'Connor Hennessy having definitely declined to become a candidate to succeed himself, Assistant Prosecutor Arthur M. Agnew has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Senator. Agnew was elected to the Assembly in 1913 and again in 1914 and 1915.

Joseph Cook, of Coytesville, and James S. De Turck, of Hackensack, have announced their candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Assembly from Bergen county. Mr. Cook was a candidate last year for the Assembly.

PRINTING CRAFT DISCIPLES' CONFERENCE SEPT. 12-14

Atlantic City, August 24.—Exhibits, lectures and discussions on important parts of the printing craft will be features of the thirtieth annual convention of the United Typothatae and Franklin Clubs of America, to be held September 12 to 14, in the Hotel Traymore. One of the chief subjects of interest will be a talk on color values in printing by Arthur S. Allen, of New York. The exhibit of graphic arts recently shown in Philadelphia will be on display.

On September 11, preceding the opening of the convention the executive committee will hold meetings. Regular sessions will be held on the three following mornings, when papers will be read and business transacted. The afternoons and evenings will be devoted to pleasure and sightseeing. On Wednesday evening a ball will be held in the hotel.

MARTINE FILES PETITION, CAN'T USE DEMOCRAT LABEL

Trenton, August 24.—Frank M. McDermit, of Newark, having preempted the word "Democrat" as a candidate for the nomination of United States Senator, Senator James E. Martin or other candidates for the nomination must seek some other nomination or submit themeselves to the voters untagged. This condition was disclosed yesterday when Senator Martine filed a nomination petition with the Secretary of State, asking that the word "Democrat" be placed after his name. He will be informed that this cannot be done because of the previous use of the name by Mr. McDermit.

The petition of Mr. Martine contains upward of 3,000 signatures. He named as his committee on vacancies Robert S. Hudspeth, Jr., of Jersey City; Dr. Alexander Marcy, Jr., of Riverton, and General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth. Mr. Martine will serve as his own campaign committee.

Steven Wood McClave filed a petition today as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth district. He chose as his slogan, "America first in all things."

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves material, which, if not completely behind a certain amount of incombusible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which, if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water, with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember, inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowl pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

When the Business Men's Association of Plainfield announce a Dollar Day Sale, the people of the city and its surrounding towns know that a real merchandising treat is in store for them. It is over three years since the first one of these sales was held, and they have since been held twice annually, in February and August. They have been the most active days that some of our merchants have had in all their long careers, not only in gross business done, but in the number of people who have visited the stores. The people have learned that on Dollar Day they receive the greatest values of the entire year in the various specials which are offered in the local stores.

The next one of these great money saving events will be held in Plainfield on Wednesday, August 30. The merchants are already planning some splendid special offers, which will be more fully announced in their regular advertisements in the local papers as the day approaches.

Without a shadow of doubt this is the greatest value giving event of the year, when it is considered that it is a united effort on the part of all the Plainfield stores. It is true that individual merchants at times have given equally great values in single items, but on Dollar Day they all strive to give many such bargains, in a great concerted move to attract the shoppers in vast numbers to Plainfield stores. In selecting the stores in which to make purchases be sure that the insignia of the organization, reproduced below, is conspicuously displayed on the store front. It is a sign that dependable merchandise will be found on all the bargain tables.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE WEATHER.

Don't worry about the hot weather. You can make it hotter by thinking of it too much or too well. You can make it less hot by not thinking of it so much, or so thoroughly, or thinking it's not so bad, says the Pittsburgh Leader.

"Cold," says the scientist, "is not a thing in itself. Cold is only the absence of heat." It is true, according to the government weather service, that there was no phenomenal absence of heat yesterday and the absence of heat may be no less today. But if you don't turn your mind upon the stunts of the thermometer and keep it there it will be less oppressive.

We can think ourselves comfortable as easily as we can think ourselves uncomfortable. Because the weather happens to be unusually warm is a poor reason why we should give up everything else to lament about the discomfort that may come with it. It is just as easy to think it is not so bad that we can't be in some sort of comfort, and realize on the comfort as to surrender to the first hot blast and tell ourselves we can't stand it.

Fussing about the weather isn't going to make the days any cooler or it would be a rational thing to do. If fussing would help the case the obvious course to pursue would be to fuss and fuss and so bring down the temperature to the comfort point. But when we know that the more we fuss and pester ourselves about how warm it is the worse the heat gets. The only effect is to make ourselves warmer. All our fussing has not made the slightest change in the actual heat of the atmosphere. But fussing and worrying ourselves certainly does bring more discomfort from heat in summer and intense cold in winter.

Don't worry—about the heat or anything else you can't help. The worry makes not the slightest change in the condition of the things worried about, but makes ourselves feel worse, worse more times than the conditions justify. If it's hot weather just now don't worry about it; at worst not more than just the little you can't help. Your worry will not make the weather a bit cooler and will make you a lot warmer.

Setting about it we can think ourselves into comfort with more ease and certainty more acceptable results than by worrying and thinking in the wrong way. If it's hot let it be hot. Worrying will only make you feel the heat more and if you stick to it well enough and long enough you will not be long reaching the point at which you have persuaded yourself that you cannot stand it. When you get there you can't stand it and you're a goner. You have given yourself over to the heat a prisoner.

But if you just forget that it's warm you will not feel so hot and you will be in comfort instead of misery. It will be just as hot, but you will not notice it. You will have thought the worst of the heat away.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE BORDER.

Relatives and friends of the men who went from here with Troop D can get much consolation from talking with the four troopers who reached home yesterday. So many stories of discontent have come out of the militia camps down there that those who are really interested in the condition of the men know not what to believe. Ex-Trooper Goodenough told a Press reporter yesterday that the only grumbling came from the fact that the men were not doing any real soldiering—that they felt their time was being wholly wasted. This was true when he left Camp Douglas, but an order went into effect Monday of this week which requires five hours of drilling each day and thus the only cause for complaint is removed. It is true that the men would rather be at home, but they are under orders from their government, and are determined to make the best of it so long as the War Department keeps them away from home, and those who long for them can not do better than follow the example of the troopers themselves.

Senator James E. Martine writes that he would be pleased to meet Attorney General Wescott in joint debate when Gen. Wescott comes here to argue the issues of the campaign with Plainfield voters. It will be difficult for Gen. Wescott to refuse, even though he should be disposed to do so. He is not making a campaign for the nomination for the United States Senate, he repeats in almost every speech, yet he is traveling over the State seeking votes and if he does not fear the oratorical strength of Farmer Jim he will agree to appear on the same platform with him here. Senator Martine has repeatedly asked his opponents to explain why they are opposed to him for re-election, and has received no answer. He has a right to expect that there be some issue in the campaign except one of personality. The Wescott supporters make an issue of the fact that Senator Martine has not stood with President Wilson in all matters that have come up in the Senate, yet they are loudest in insisting that President Wilson is taking no part in the fight. When or where will there be a better opportunity of comparing the two candidates and their platforms than in Plainfield on the night of September 6?

- Proctor's Theatre -

William S. Hart appears at Proctor's today in the long-awaited Triangle Aztec story, "The Captive God." This play from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn offers Hart in a role that is totally different from anything he ever has attempted since his desertion of the footlights for the film studio. The part is that of a stalwart Spaniard, who shipwrecked in the early part of the sixteenth century, is adopted by the people of Tehuan, in ancient Mexico, and made their leader because of his superior wisdom. Never since he first entered the motion picture fold has Thomas H. Ince bent his efforts toward the production of a drama like "The Captive God." He has preferred to let pass untouched that period of the world's history which contains some of the most interesting and unusual romances ever written. But when Katterjohn wrote "The Captive God," Ince saw in it the possibilities of a remarkable motion picture play. With his customary care, Ince has incorporated a great amount of detail into this subject, and the result is a magnificent spectacle-romance. Its scenes are rich with the picturesqueness that abounded in the Aztec country and its action is tense with dramatic situations. In the titular role Hart renders another fascinating performance that will establish him still more firmly in the popular favor. In addition to one of those rousing Keystone comedies, the latest Mutual Weekly is shown together with other varied subjects.

On Friday by special arrangement Lillian Walker will appear in "The Man Behind the Curtain," a huge Vitagraph success, while on Saturday a big surprise is in store for the patrons of Proctor's. By popular request on Saturday the management will present Valeska Suratt in "The Immigrant," one of the best photoplay productions ever released from the Paramount studios, and in addition William Nigh and Marguerite Snow will co-star in "Notorious Gallagher," a high type Metro offering.

RECEPTION FOR BILLY SUNDAY.

Ocean Grove, Aug. 24.—Rev. Billy Sunday will arrive here tomorrow afternoon, probably about 5:30 o'clock, and will be escorted on an informal tour of Asbury Park and Ocean Grove by Asbury Park officials and officers of the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association. A reception will be given him in the auditorium after the tour. Mr. Sunday is to preach daily until Labor Day at the annual namp meeting.

Troubles.

There is an awful lot of troubles,
Strewn along our path through life,
But the one that takes the medal
Is a jealous, nagging wife.

Then there's rheumatiz and nightmare.
Chills and measles and such junk
But a lively case of toothache
Makes the rest look pretty punk.

And another thing that hurts us
Worse than real old-fashioned mumps
Is a real good stiff attack of
The deep and doleful dumps.

So we might as well determine
To meet them with a grin,
And fight our battles bravely,
Counting cowardice a sin.

Then when old Gabriel blows his horn
For us to come up higher,
We'll forget our earthly troubles,
Singing in the heavenly choir.

"Did you have a pleasant afternoon, dear?" asked the man.

"No," snapped the wife. "I had a perfectly beastly afternoon!"

"Why, I thought you were going down to buy a new hat?"

"I was, and I did."

"Then why didn't you have a good time. I thought—"

"Yes, you thought. Well, I'll tell you. I intended to have a lovely time buying that hat, but they had just what I wanted at the first store I went to, so I had to buy. And there wasn't anything to do for the rest of the day, so I couldn't enjoy myself one bit."

Plainfield Theatre.

Once again the merrymaking Mutt & Jeff will be with us. The season of laughter is about to begin. Mutt & Jeff in a brand new dress comes to the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night with a bigger and better show than has ever appeared here before, under this well known title. Giving Mutt & Jeff a new and superior production each successive year is an act of diplomacy on the part of Gus Hill. The American public never wanted to laugh more than they do at this time. They seek comedy even in the moving pictures. Gus Hill's mission since his entree into the theatrical producing game has been to make people laugh. He is the acknowledged dean of cartoon comedy production, never having offered a play of this sort that did not prove a success. It is, therefore, distinctly evident that the enormous success of Mutt & Jeff's Wedding is due to proper handling, by catering to the wishes and desires of the theatre-going public.

William A. Brady will bring to Plainfield the very first play he produces for the new season. He made arrangements yesterday to present here Saturday, August 26, at the Plainfield Theatre, matinee and evening, a new American play, "The Man Who Came Back." This is a strong drama by Jules Eckert Goodman, author of "Mother," "Treasure Island," and other successes. Mr. Goodman having founded this new play on a story of the same name by John Fleming Wilson, the well known magazine writer. The story originally appeared in McClure's Magazine and attracted considerable attention on its own account. Mr. Brady tried out the dramatization early in July at summer resorts, found that he had a strong play, and then withdrew it to hold until the new season began.

Now he has brought it forth again, selected a very good cast to present it on Broadway, with Mary Nash as the featured member, and he will introduce it at his New York Playhouse next week. But before that he will will give Plainfield an opportunity to see the play just as it is to be given in New York.

Besides Mary Nash, there will be in the cast: Edward Emery, the famous Long John Silver of "Treasure Island;" Charlotte Granville, out of Grace George's Playhouse Company; Henry Hull, fromerly with Margaret Anglin; Stanley Dark, Miss Anglin's leading man; Wright Kramer, from Granville Barker's Company, Bennett Southard, Maud Campbell, Nick Long and many others. Mr. Brady has also provided a specially elaborate production for this play. The settings are all pretentious, and these, together with the high salaries, make the production one of the most expensive of the new season.

Pleas for the Children.

The indigestion of one's children is continually the concern of mothers. The best qualities of food and sterilized milk may form the diet, and yet there is trouble. Only too often the difficulty lies not with the diet, but with bad mental conditions, physical fatigue or chills. Mothers should never reprimand the children about table manners while at the table, but give instructions at some other time and let the children practice at each meal. While it is not good to pamper young tastes, nevertheless indigestion will result when a poor, unhappy child is commanded to swallow something it does not want.

Hall, 25 cents. These books can be ordered from Wanamaker's by mail C. O. D., and will be found most helpful.

Why Boys Whistle.

Whistling to keep up courage is no figure of speech. On the other hand, sit all day in a moping posture, sigh, and reply to everything with a dismal voice, and your melancholy lingers. There is no more valuable precept in moral education than this, as all who have experienced know: If we wish to conquer undesirable emotional tendencies in ourselves we must assiduously, and in the first instance cold-bloodedly, go through the outward movements of those contrary dispositions which we prefer to cultivate. The reward of persistence will infallibly come, in the fading out of the sullenness or depression, and the advent of real cheerfulness and kindliness in their stead. Smooth the brow, brighten the eye, contract the dorsal rather than the ventral aspect of the frame, and speak in a major key, pass the genial compliment, and your heart must be frigid indeed if it does not gradualy thaw.

Mother's Work in Denver.

Clean-up week has been very well managed this year in Denver and seems to have become a permanent feature of each year's work. The general chairman was a graduate from the Mothers' Congress work. Mrs. Harry Wood was the delegate who was commissioned to do the congress duties in clean-up week four years ago, and since proven herself so efficient that this year she was made general manager for the city. According to her report, school principals claim that the "movement is growing more popular each year, that it is a good training for the young, and parents are often taught cleanliness through their children." "The fire chief," she states, "claims a decided decrease in fire loss, resulting in lower insurance rates. The superintendent of street cleaning reports a cleaner city and the principals say there is less sickness among the children."

In this campaign 43 schools participated. The schools which rated the highest received pictures as prizes. Ten thousand nine hundred and seven children participated in the clean-up campaign; 3,956 basements were cleaned; 1,245 attics were cleaned; 6,430 yards were cleaned; 3,314 lawns were cut; 5,013 flower beds were made; 5,043 plants were exchanged; 10,907 children helped to destroy dandelions; 1,260 houses painted inside; 520 houses painted outside; 742 porches painted; 1,437 pieces of furniture retouched; 512 fences painted; 411 sheds painted; 5,541 backyard gardens made; 3,312 vacant lots cleaned; 1,150 vacant lots planted with grain; 314 vacant lots planted with gardens.

CHALMERS COMPANY GET REPEAT ORDER

Canadian Militia Department Purchase 20 More Cars After Severe Test

Following up the original order for 41 cars placed with the Chalmers Motor Company of Canada, Limited, at Walkerville, Canada, the department of Militia and Defence of Canada has registered a repeat order for 20 more 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers for the use of army officials. This brings the total to 61 Chalmers cars now owned by the Canadian government.

Before selecting any cars for army service, government engineers experimented with various makes of cars on the Canadian market. Chassis were torn down and every part was subjected to a gruelling test. The 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers was chosen at the end of these exeperiments because it qualified best as to all-around performance, fuel economy and excellence of workmanship.

The first order for 41 cars was distributed among the different concentration camps from Halifax to Victoria, individual cars being placed at Halifax, Victoria, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Valcartier, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Seward, Winnipeg, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Camp Borden, Calgary, Vancouver, etc.

After six weeks in actual service the officials were so well pleased with the performance of these Chalmers that a repeat order has been placed with the Chalmers Motor Company of Canada, Limited, for 20 more. Present indications point to an early call for additional cars in substantial quantities.

The Chalmers Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is now in a position to make prompt deliveries and the large factory at Walkerville is working on full schedule.

MISS KELLERMANN TERMS THE TRUDGEON GREATEST STROKE

Famous Swimmer Tells Members of the Plainfield Daily Press How It Helped Her Make World's Records In Many Lands.

Article No. 21.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

And at last we come to the trudgeon stroke.

I consider this the greatest of all strokes in swimming. It is not a stroke, however, that I would ask the beginners in the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming Class to study. But now that three weeks of instruction has passed we are ready to take up the trudgeon stroke.

As an exmaple of what this stroke can do for any one I will take my own case in example.

I have always used the trudgeon stroke. With it I was able to make records from one hundred yards to twenty-six miles. You can obtain a copy of my swimming records if you are interested, from the back files of this newspaper.

And, by the way, I would like to know whether you have clipped out and saved all these swimming lessons?

The great modern newspaper, living and moving as fast as the world, has a new individuality each day under the same title heading. But thousands of you save favorite editorials, favorite poems, good recipes, etc., from the woman's pages. Therefore, why not save a useful and beneficial series like this and later, if not now, place it in the hands of some one who cannot swim? The editor of the Plainfield Daily Press may be averse to advising you regularly. Therefore I shall do so for him.

The one great mistake most swimmers make while doing the trudgeon is this: They make two leg movements. This is wrong and should be remedied at once.

Any person learning the trudgeon properly can swim any distance within reason. I have averaged 38 strokes without once resting or changing it.

For grace it cannot be excelled. Contrary to some statements to the effect that it is tiring, this is not true.

Of course it must be done properly.

Take your position on the beach. Lying flat on your stomach with legs extended. Place the right arm out ahead of you in a line with the head. The left hand should be placed at the side of the body with the hand resting on the thigh. Now start with the right hand and with a broad sweeping motion plow through the imaginary water until the hand rests on the thigh. While the right hand is exercising this movement the left hand should leave the side of the body and feather the water, as I explained in my previous lesson, until the hand is alongside the position the right hand has been in previous to starting. While the left hand is on its upward movement the legs should be brought up the same way as in the side stroke. Then as the right hand comes down the legs should kick out. Don't forget the scissors.

This movemeent will require a little practice for the body plays a small part in the success of this movement. This slight roll of the body will come with practice.

Now you are reeady for the water. As you enter the water throw yourself forward with the right arm extended and commence to strike out at once. As soon as the right arm has reached the side the left arm should be ready to enter the water and make the alternate stroke. The legs should come up with the left stroke and kick out with the right stroke. Now work on this stroke until you perfect it. Keep at it for now you can consider yourself a swimmer and all you need now is perfection.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann will tell you about sensible bathing suits and also about how some women can protect their hair in the water. Both subjects are of importance to swimmers of both sexes.

Daddy's Bedtime Stories

A Mermaid Listens to Her Grandmother's Stories.

"You must not be thinking such things."

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

SUPPER time past, Jack and Evelyn cuddled down for a story. "Once a little mermaid fell in love with land people," daddy started, "but she never could learn all that she wanted to about earth, so she asked her grandmother: 'If men are not drowned, do they live forever? Do they not die as we do down here in the sea?'

"'Yes,' answered her grandmother; 'they have to die just as we do, and their lifetime is even shorter than ours. We mermaids may live to be 300 years old. But when we cease to exist we become mere foam on the water and do not have so much as a grave beside our dear ones. We have no souls that live forever. We have no future life. We are just like the green seaweed, which, once cut down, can never grow again. But men have a soul which lives forever—lives after the body becomes dust. It rises through the clear air, up to the shining stars. Just as we rise from water to see the land of mortals, so they rise to unknown, beautiful regions which we shall never see.'

"'Why have we no immortal souls?' asked the little mermaid sadly. 'I would give all my 300 years to be a mortal for one day and afterward to have a share of the immortal kingdom.'

"'You must not be thinking such things,' her grandmother warned her. 'We are much better off and far happier than human beings.'

"'Then I shall have to die and float as foam on the water. I shall never hear the music of the waves or see the beautiful flowers or the red sun. Is there nothing I can do to gain an immortal soul?' cried the little mermaid.

"'I think not,' replied her grandmother; 'only if a human being so loved you that you were more to him than father or mother. If all his thoughts and all his love were so centered on you that he would let a priest join your hands and would vow to be faithful to you here and in all eternity, then your body would become part of his soul. Only thus could you gain a share in the happiness of all mankind. He would give you a soul, while still keeping his own. But that can never happen. That which is your greatest beauty in the sea, your fish's tail, is thought to be horrid on earth, so little do land people understand us. To be beautiful there you must have two clumsy supports which they call legs.'

"Then the little mermaid sighed and looked sadly at her fish's tail.

"'Let us be happy,' said her grandmother. 'We will swim and float away our 300 years. Then we shall rest peacefully on the foam. There is to be a court ball tonight, my dear.'"

"Stirring news" today—war news, local news, store news.

Sometimes a store will decide to perform a real "stunt" in value-giving on some special line. You may be sure that in all such instances the ad-readers will have earliest knowledge of the details.

CAPE COATS FEATURED FOR FALL.

Stunning Materials Lend Themselves Admirably to These Styles.

By Mary Glynn.

Should one see a chic Parisienne wearing an afternoon coat which showed a decided princess waistline, flaring skirt and long, cleverly cuffed sleeves, one would not wonder that American women follow suit and wear the same thing, though possibly modified to suit her own particular style. These capes lend an especially attractive and distinctive note to an outer garment, and often, as in the case of the illustration, two and three capes are cleverly introduced. The coat illustrated was developed in gray broadcloth, and was so cut that the waistline fitted perfectly while the skirt fell in deep folds. Three buttons trimmed the cuffs and a double cape collar afforded the particularly timely feature. A close fitting turban of matching colored pontine afforded the finishing touch to the outfit.

THE FALL NECKWEAR.

Because of the vogue for dark colored street dresses of serge, satin, and fancy taffeta, collar and cuff sets promise to be very popular this fall, for a fresh, crisp organdy or soft crepe collar and cuffs do much to brighten up and enhance a costume, as every woman knows. Conservative styles will mark the new season as regards neckwear, and the lending materials used will be organdy, soft silk crepe and washable satin. At a glance, the styles will be semi-high effects, with vestees, fichu pleatings and high choker stocks with or without jabots holding a place. The cape idea will continue to influence the size and the shape of the separate collar and new shawl effects will also be featured. Hand embroidery for trimming will be much in favor.

HINTS FROM THE FIFTH AVENUE SHOPS.

Among the novelties in millinery shown by Fifth avenue milliners are organdy and batiste hats trimmed with bead embroidery. English eyelet embroidery for covering hat frames is also favored by a leading house.

The newest shape in hats is the bell-crown, this being used in connection with the mushroom brim.

White silk gloves in wrist length are again in strong demand.

Silk velvet and plush stole, or scarfs, made exactly like flat furs, are a new feature in neckwear. Black is being greatly used for this purpose, with white lining, also white with vivid tones in contrast. Marabout and ostrich edges are sometimes seen on these velvet scarfs.

A present craze for blue serge in dresses is folloing that of dark blue taffeta dresses.

White satin sport suits are a high-class novelty in this line. Separate skirts of white satin to be worn with silk sweaters in high colors are also a novelty.

Indications are that pleated skirts will show marked revival in fall models.

Present demand in waists continues to hold big on Georgette and foulards. Hand embroidery and hand beading are much liked as waist trimmings.

Jabot waists in white and color continue in favor. Waist retailers anticipate good demand on lace waists as an August novelty.

Gray suede shoes, gloves to match, a gray hat, and a gray veil with a blue serge suit dress is a Fifth avenue combination.

Training a Husband

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

It Is Unfortunate that Morris Southy Cannot See Himself as His Wife Sees Him.

"Can't those boys clean out the basement? They disappear every morning right after breakfast. I should think they were old enough to help in a time like this." Mother Southy frowned darkly.

"I am afraid they are not old enough to tell what we would want to take, and so some one must work with them. You were not ready to do that this morning, so I thought the most effective help they could render would be to get out from under foot." Mrs. Morris was pale and tired looking, the baby had passed a restless night and she had slept very little. The morning was hot and sultry.

"These boys are old enough to do something to help. If you had the whole responsibility of the moving on your shoulders, you would try to use all the forces at command," continued her husband.

"You talk as if these boys were a luxury I had set up on my own account," she answered with unusual heat. "Why do you not put them to work if you have anything for them to do?"

"Now, don't fly the track. We can't get along with this exhausting work if we do not keep our tempers." Marian's lip curled disdainfully but her back was turned and as she said nothing her husband felt that he had thrown oil on the waters.

"Is there not some work that you can do that will not make a noise to wake the baby?" she asked after a pause. "He slept very little last night, and if he is wakened again today as he was yesterday by the pounding, I am afraid he will be sick."

"We can't afford to have a sick baby now," replied Morris, frowning. "It's a pity you would never listen to me and accustom the child to noise. You make yourself a great deal of unnecessary work and trouble by your short-sighted policy."

"We will not go into that again, please. I have explained that I have done everything possible to get him used to noise, and when things are running normally, he gives very little trouble. Older people than he are upset by moving, however." Morris was supremely unconscious of the veiled sarcasm in his wife's remark. He sniffed a trifle contemptuously and asked:

"What do you suggest that I do that the young tyrant will not object to?"

"Have you packed your books and school papers down at the office?" Marian felt that if she could get him and his nagging fretfulness out of the house for an hour or two till she could get her breath and her composure "the country would be saved," as she expressed it. "That has to be done and the things should go in your own desk so that nothing will be misplaced."

The prospect of getting out of the confusion looked alluring to Morris and he decided to go to pack the office things.

"This moving is—it is what Sherman said war was." He made a wry face. "I am glad the responsibility of it all does not come on you. I do not think a woman could stand such a strain. The worst of it is a school superintendent has to look forward to an ever-shifting home." He sighed and took himself off. Marian dropped wearily onto the couch and was just dozing off to sleep when a loud wail rent the air, and Roger rushed in to tell that George had fallen down and made his nose bleed. By the time the child was comforted and the blood washed off the baby waked and all chance of sleep was gone.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

GREAT FIELDER, BUT CANNOT HIT.

Jack Martin is a great fielder, but he cannot hit. That one short sentence sums up a whole situation and it is applicable to most of the shortstops in the big leagues today. There are sixteen recognized shortstops in the "big time" and of these not one is a hitter of renown. Davy Bancroft, who supplanted Jack Martin, burst into the National League with a "rep." But in his first year's work he shows a batting average of only .254 of which he has but little reason to be proud. Of the shortstops, probably Rogers Hornsby, who has been shifted to practically every position in the infield, is "the" hitter. Rogers has been clouting the ball ever since he entered the big show and has made very favorable impressions on several magnates. But he is the exception to the general rule. There are many fine shortstops, who can field in great style, but there are few of these lads who can hit the pill to advantage. Jack Martin is one of the many, although his friends still hope that he will join the ranks of the few.

THE PITTSBURGH EPISODE.

There's a little argument in progress in dear old Pittsburgh and the sport writers of that city are endeavoring to provoke a settlement. Albert Mamaux has been suspended by Jimmy Callahan. "Cal" says Mamaux broke the training rules and, as far as we know, Mamaux offers no direct denial. He does say that he is being treated wrongfully and that he is through with the Pittsburgh club. Callahan says that "Al" is through for ten days. Neither party is willing to arbitrate the matter and the situation is acute. There is one sport writer in the Smoky City who is arguing himself sick over the affair. They say that the public is directly concerned in the matter, but up to the present time both Mamaux and Callahan have turned a deaf ear to all moaning.

ENERGETIC MANAGERS.

There is a "Hall of Fame" for energetic managers and we believe that Pete Simmons is deserving of a place in that hall. Pete is a busy man these days and is giving the public the best of baseball. His gentlemanly ways earn him respect and he has experienced no difficulty whatever in securing games with City League teams. His challenges were all given in good faith and met with ready response. Keep the ball rolling, Pete.

NATIONAL TENNIS SINGLES.

The draw for the first round in the national tennis singles, which will start on the West Side courts at Forest Hills, Long Island, next Monday, is a record breaker and presents a fine array of tennis stars. As the chance fell the lower bracket will probably be much more interesting than the upper. In the latter R. Norris Williams, Clarence J. Griffin and Walter Merrill Hall are the only high-raters drawn. In the lower are William M. Johnston, national champion; Maurice E. McLoughlin, George M. Church, R. Lindley Murray, Willis E. Davis, Ichiya Kumagae and N. W. Niles. There is talent for you, and fast close matches fairly well assured for rounds before the semi-final, providing, of course, that nothing new in tennis appears. One must always make such a proviso.—Newark News.

TAKING HEED.

Evans, the newest pitching rookie, has made a decided hit with baseball experts. Of course, he is just beginning and would not be able to go in as a regular, but his crudeness looks like it could be toned down and developed into a valuable asset to the Buc outfit. The Pirate catchers say he has speed, Callahan has become favorably impressed with him, while other pitchers on the club say he masters a delivery far above the ordinary heaver coming into the big league. Evans' main dependence is a good curve ball. He does have a puzzling breaker, and his good control of his curve will make him a permanent place on the Pittsburgh team, if the dope runs true. Pittsburgh needs a good curve pitcher. Mamaux has a curve ball, but Callahan does not like him to use it. Last Thursday, in the game that resulted in the present squabble between Al and the officials of the team, Mamaux was using a curve and it was being hit. The triple made by Pfeffer and the double by Meyers were both curve balls. Evans should listen to advice from Callahan and follow instructions, however, and not fall for some of the temptations of the gilded cafes that is claiming some of the other members of the team.

GETTING PEEVISH.

Joe Villa, of the Sun, says:

"With another defeat inevitable and the Boston Red Sox drawing farther away from them, the White Sox were not a bit good natured. In fact, Weaver and Fournier became so peevish that the crowd soon got after them. After Fournier had flied to Oldring in the fourth inning a joshing remark from the Yankees' dugout reached his ears. The big Frenchman turned pale with anger and made his way toward the New York players. He looked as if he intended to punch somebody but Field Umpire Owens took Fournier by the arm and led him back to the diamond. While Weaver was at the bat in the seventh inning Shawkey insisted that he was standing with one foot on the corner of the home plate. Weaver quickly lost his temper and shook his bat in Shawkey's face. Players of both teams stepped between them and possibly prevented a scrap. The umpiring was well nigh perfect and in spite of the intense rivalry there was no kicking."

M'GRAW WANTS "ZIM."

While the Giants were traveling from St. Louis to Dayton yesterday John J. McGraw dropped into Chicago to make an offer for "Heinie" Zimmerman, the Cubs' third baseman, who is on the market but seems to be a hard man to obtain. Several clubs have tried to procure Zimmerman, but none has made a proposal that Charles H. Weeghman, owner of the Cubs, thought worth while considering. Zimmerman's days of usefulness to the Cubs are considered at an end because of his indifference, but no one doubts that "Heinie" is yet a great ball player and would strengthen any club in the league. McGraw has not stated the offer he made to the Cubs for Zimmerman, but it was asserted yesterday that Mr. Weeghman would not consider a trade that did not include the transfer of Arthur Fletcher, shortstop of the Giants, to the Cubs, so McGraw left Chicago without landing Zimmerman.

MAHAN TO PROVE IT.

Eddie Mahan, least year's captain of the Harvard football team, and the man who shattered the dream of victory for Yale, left yesterday for Berkley, Cal., where he expects to show young backfield players on the eleven of the University of California how he did it back East.

FRED MILLS EXPECTS TO HURL VICTORY

Or Rather His Manager Expects Him to Pull Through

The baseball match between the Baptists and Dunellen is carded for Saturday and is already attracting considerable attention. The attention is not being aroused because the Baptist team is such a strong aggregation, but because of the game fight being made by the Dunellen team, which is now in undisputed possession of second place. The Hopes, by virtue of a decision handed down by the City League moguls, are no longer in second place.

If the Dunellen team is successful in its tilt with the Baptists, then there is little doubt but that the club will remain in the second position. The Baptist intend to do their best and have announced Freddy Mills, who has been doing great work of late, as their pitcher. Banks is the catcher. The Dunellen battery will probably by John Dixon and Eddie Bergen. The game will be played at Dunellen.

It was announced yesterday that the Dunellen team would play a series of games with the Tabs after the series with the Royal Giants is completed. This series will probably decide the Sunday championship in this city.

WATCHING JACK MARTIN PROVES PLEASING TASK

The following clippings have a little tale to tell:

"Pitcher Scheredell, a southpaw from the Hanover, Pa., club of the Blue Ridge League, reported to Manager Martin on Monday. He will probably be used in one of the games today. Slapnicka will probably work in the other, and as the vet is going great guns right now, he ought to stop the Indians."

"Martin got a hard rap from Wickland's bat back of second in the sixth by a great play and stepped on second for a force play on Schang, who had opened the round with a single."

"Martin played a great game at short again, and also came through with two hits."

ARMSTRONG VICTOR.

Joseph J. Armstrong, Pennsylvania State winner of 1915, won the important contests in the fourth round of the Meadow Club cup tennis singles tournament at Southampton yesterday, in which eight contestants now survive. Armstrong defeated Theodore R. Pell, of New York, Middle States and formerly national indoor champion, by 5—7, 7—2, 6—2. Using stroke drives and clever placing, Armstrong kept his opponent on the defensive. Rowland Roberts, of San Francisco, in defeating Colket Caner, of Harvard, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2, used a speedy net attack, which blocked and smothered Caner's returns.

PLAINFIELDER NOT AMONG WINNERS

Rain Permitted Holding of But One Event In Newark Casting Contest.

John Doughty, the North avenue sporting goods man, who is recognized as one of the best casters and anglers in this vicinity and who has won many prizes for his ability, was among those present at the casting contest conducted in Newark yesterday afternoon. Mr. Doherty did not compete yesterday, as the rain permitted to the holding of one event only. However, the local man will undobtedly be among the successful ones in the events that are to be held today and tomorrow.

Rain, wind and darkness all conspired to knock the schedule askew, and instead of three events being decided only one was finished before the sun had sunk in the west. The gathering was a representative one of the disciples of Izaak Walton, and it was the occasion not only of some good competition, but it also afforded an outlet for fish tales by enthusiasts who have whipped the streams in every nook and corner in the United States and Canada. The affair was staged in a picturesque wooded spot on the shore of Weequahic Park Lake. A tent was pitched close to the platform from which the anglers made their casts and there was a picnic atmosphere about the whole affair. An early start was made and there was good headway up to lunch time, when hampers were brought out and refreshments served under the trees.

Only one of the events was completed, the cast for accuracy with one-ounce bait. William Stanley, of Chicago, representing the Illinois Country Club, was the victor, with a percentage of 99 4-10. Mr. Stanley was the winner of this first event the first year of the tournament, with a percentage of 99 2-10, and made the high water mark of 99 6-10 two years ago.

NO ATHLETIC MEET FOR PARKER FIELD

Epidemic of Infantile Paralysis Would Put End to Contemplated Plans.

It was announced yesterday that the Playground season in this city had not been a success, but had on the other hand been a dismal failure. Various reason were assigned for the failure of the well-formulated plans of the local authorities to work out, but the epidemic of infantile paralysis undoubtedly had considerable to do with the discontinuing of the season's work.

At Parker Field Supervisor George W. Wriston has been doing his best to make this season a successful one, but, unfortunately, his efforts seem to have been of no avail. He organized a baseball league and drew up a very good schedule for the league. The boys who were registered as players in this league took an active interest in the circuit and will undoubtedly miss their daily exercise. The Shamrocks have been officially announced as the pennant winners, having captured about twelve victories at the expense of only two defeats. Such a record is an enviable one indeed. Each of the other aggregations also made splendid showings and much credit is due Mr. Wriston.

The only regret that the citizens of this city have is that an athletic meet cannot be staged at Parker Field this year. That such a meet cannot be staged is a foregone conclusion. What little chance there was of working up enthusiasm for a meet has been offset by the epidemic which is prevailing in this and surrounding towns. It is to be hoped that a meet will be held next year.

SPORT FRAGMENTS.

There will be no regular rifle meeting on the Sea Girt ranges this year, and all the New Jersey State matches will be abandoned, with the exception of a militiamen's trophy match, a regimental team competition. This will be held next week between the Second and Third regiments, all other commands being out of the State.

Tryouts for the national track and field championships will be held at three different cities this Saturday—Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston.

CALEDONIAN GAMES.

The sixtieth annual Diamond Jubilee games of the New York Caledonian Club will be held at Washington Park, Grand street, Maspeth, L. I., on Labor Day, Monday, September 4.

The program, which has a fine list of Scottish events, has in addition seven amateur events of the first class order; these are governed by the A. A. U. rules.

Premeditated.

"And why do you claim that it was with malice aforethought that the automobile defendant ran down the complainant?"

"On the morning it happened, your honor, I heard him say that he was going to take out his new auto and see if he could not run across a few people he knew."—Houston Post.

COLLEGE SPRINTERS NOT ALLOWED TO RUN

Andy McDonough, of North Plainfield, Not Allowed to Compete In D. U. Games.

The many friends of Andy McDonough, the Notre Dame athlete, were elated to learn that he would represent the St. Rose of Lima Club in the Diocesan Union games just past. But these friends were surprised when news was received to the effect that Andy did not compete in the various events. At the time no reason was assigned for his non-appearance, but it was announced yesterday that the various college athletes who were entered in the games were prohibited from competing by a ruling recently enforced. This ruling states that no college athlete may represent a club in the Diocesan Union games. Therefore, Andy had to stand aside and look on.

But the North Plainfield lad was not the only one affected by the new ruling, as Frank Lagay, the Newark Tabs' star athlete, being a college youth, was not allowed to compete. There is considerable discussion regarding the case of Dorsey, the University of Pennsylvania captain, who was allowed to take part in the various runs.

It is now highly improbable that McDonough will be able to take part in any meets in this vicinity and it is to be regretted that he was not given an opportunity to show his wares in this, his home city. But such is fate.

RELEASED THE LADY.

But the Ungallant Judge Did It In His Own Peculiar Way.

There are many interesting references to Lord Chief Justice Campbell scattered about in the memoirs and biographies of his contemporaries. He was a man who inspired strong likes and dislikes. The famous Dr. Kenealy hated him. He declared that Campbell found luxury in the infliction of torture and had a ratlike, cruel look on his face, which settled immovably as the judge got older. The following reminiscence of Dr. Kenealy is remarkable:

"I remember an incident which shows, although only in a slight degree, his natural lack of courtesy and consideration. A number of ladies crowded into one of the passages of Westminster hall for the purpose of getting a glimpse of the lord chief justice, who was then a celebrity of some note. As he passed his button caught in a beautiful lace bertha worn by one of his fair admirers. After a vain struggle to disengage himself Campbell deliberately took out his penknife—everybody thought for the purpose of cutting off his button and releasing the lady. Not at all. He coolly cut a hole in her handsome lace and passed on with his sweetest smile."—Law Magazine and Review.

A KANGAROO AT BAY.

Its Cunning Defense When Pursued Into the Water by Dogs.

In the kangaroo hunts of Australia capture is sufficiently easy, but sometimes the kangaroo makes an original defense.

If possible the kangaroo directs his flight toward a river. If he reaches it he enters, and, thanks to his great height, he is able to go on foot to a depth where the dogs are obliged to swim.

There he plants himself on his two hind legs and his tail and, up to his shoulders in the water, awaits the arrival of the pack. With his forepaws he seizes by the head the first dog that approaches, and as he is more solidly balanced than his assailant he holds the dog's nose beneath the water as long as he can. Unless a second dog speedily comes to the rescue the first one is inevitably drowned. If a companion arrives and sets him free he is glad to regain the bank as quickly as possible.

A strong and courageous old kangaroo will hold his own against twenty or thirty dogs, drowning some and frightening others, and the hunter is obliged to intervene with a bullet.—London Spectator.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

The champions of the Pennsylvania Railroad will endeavor to take the Tabs into camp this Sunday. The trick is to be accomplished on Avon Oval, says the leader of the Keystone forces. If the Tabs do lose some consolation can be found in the fact that their conquerors are managed by a local young man, Edward Harding.

Frank Mullin is going to play with the St. Joseph baseball team for the rest of the season, according to the plans formulated by the manager of the Saint squad. Vincent Mullin has also been captured by the Canadians, and it is now up to Tommy to round out the corps. And how about Willie?

"Box" Apgar, who is now employed in Bethlehem, took a homeward trip on Saturday in order that he might get a chance to play against the Royal Giants. And "Box" performed excellently at the first station, although he failed to hit to any great advantage.

Eddie Coughlan is a demon slugger and any pitcher the Royal Giants bring to this city must realize this. Eddie will play with the Tabs on Sunday, September 3, and will play with the Netherwood team on Labor Day. All of which goes to show that the Royal Giants will be given a fair opportunity to look Edward over.

Wonder if Russ Stewart will be just as effective against the Royals as John Dixon and Jimmy McFadden were? There are those present who are willing to wager that he will.

When Herb Johnson starts whipping the ball to second, very few of the Royal Giant runners will make much headway in that direction. At least, that is the way the Netherwoods feel about the matter.

Lou Coriell can see three days' work ahead for him. Lou is an umpire worthy of the name and is entitled to all the honor and work—with the attending cash—that can be showered upon him. There is no doubt but that he will be assigned to umpire all three of the proposed games.

Perhaps Morris will pitch again for the Royals. There are a few fans in this city who believe that Morris can "come back." But there are other fans who believe that he had better stay in Harlem.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

WRITE FOR PARTICULARS.

If it's advertised today it is likely that it is of timely interest to you today.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

CORPORATION NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., will receive sealed bids at the Council Chambers, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting of said Council to be held therein on Tuesday, September 5th, 1916, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., for the erection and construction of a City Hall Building on Watchung Avenue, corner of East Sixth Street, in said City.

Plans and specifications and forms for proposals for such proposed building can be obtained by bidders on application to Messrs. Peck & Bottomley, Associate Architects, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York city by filing references for approval and depositing with said Architects certified check for $25.00, payable to the order of the Treasurer of the said City, which check will be held until the return of such plans and specifications. Also the plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The work will be let in four (4) contracts: 1st—For General Construction; 2nd—For Plumbing, gas fitting and work kindred thereto; 3rd—For Steam heating; 4th—For Electrical work. Separate bids will be received for each of these contracts.

All bids must be on the forms furnished with the specifications and in compliance with the "Instructions to bidders" accompanying the same, and accompanied by certified check on some solvent bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Treasurer of said City, to the amount of five per cent. of the bid submitted. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

Dated August 7, 1916.

DISCHARGED MEN DEPART FOR HOME

RECEPTION FOR "MAC"

Delegation to Meet Him at Train—Will Ride Susan, Maybe—New Routine of Drill Began Monday Morning.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Douglas, Ariz., August 25.—Privates Rogers and Ramsey left Douglas last night for Fort Du Pont, Delaware, where they will be discharged from the service of the United States. They should arrive home free men early in the week.

The men of Troop D are making arrangements for the welcoming of James J. McNamee, correspondent of the Press, who is on his way to the border. A delegation will meet him at the train, and Susan has been officially designated as carrier from Douglas to the camp. He will have the honor of riding the burro mascot, provided Susan can be persuaded it is the proper thing.

Douglas, Ariz., August 20 (by mail).—All preparations for launching the troops on the new schedule of training tomorrow morning have been completed. The course is a rigorous one and is generally taken as an indication of a prolonged stay on the border here. The camp is alive with all manner of rumor as to how the soldiers will leave for the East. None of them are based on anything but the flimsiest speculation so far as can be ascertained, and confidential information tends to the belief that it will be a long drawn-out tour of duty. There are added reasons for reaching such a conclusion daily.

The Eighteenth Infantry of regulars started on a long practice hike to Fort Runchuea today. They will be gone several days. The New Jersey infantry regiments, were each directed to send two officers to accompany the regiment for observation purposes. The Fifth Regiment is represented by Lieutenat Robert A. Livingston and Lieutenant G. Fred Meyers. The First Regiment sent Lieutenant William H. Gardner and Lieutenant Robert W. Roloff.

The long expected band of the First Regiment will get here in the near future. Advices received by Colonel John D. Fraser state that the band will leave Fort Du Pont, Delaware, on Tuesday, together with 100 rookies for the First Regiment. They should arrive here late in the week. With the arrival of the band there will be a musical organization with each infantry regiment.

There was a gala celebration in Douglas last night with the official opening of the new Elks' Home. This Southwest is a great stamping ground for the antlered herd, and they flocked into the city from all corners of the country. The rush was so great that the music room of the Gadsden Hotel was filled with beds and even the piano was almost put into use providing sleeping accommodations for them. Incidentally, every one had a good time.

A lot of prize fighters from the Fifth Regiment of New Jersey gave some exhibitions during the evening's entertainment. Captain Augustus W. Dunning, of Company E of the Fifth, acted as referee. Joe Knapp, of the Passaic Company, lost to Jack McGarry, of Company I. Battling Frenchie of the Rutherford Company, got the decision over Joe Pescho, of G company. Another Rutherford man, Private Tommy Edgar, was given the best of the contest with Mike Reno, of Company A. Jimmy Henry, of I company, defeated Jimmy Reynolds, of Company M. Young Nicholas, of the Rutherford outfit, beat Kid Murphy of L company. Sergeant Mott, of F company, who lays claims to being the champion wrestlor of Passaic county, N. J., and Private Grimstead, who is the champion of Norway when he is home, wrestled to a draw in a pretty exhibition.

Captain William Y. Dear, of the Signal Corps, who was granted a five-day furlough to take his family to California and find suitable living quarters for them, wired tonight for an extension of five days in his furlough. He claimed that he had to go to San Francisco on business. The request was turned down by General Davis, commanding the Arizona district.

Lieutenant Gale, medical officer of Battery A, of East Orange, has been granted a ten-day furlough.

Reports of growing unrest in Western Sonora that have been reaching Douglas at frequent intervals lately seem to be proven by the annihilation of almost 200 Carranza troopers there by Yaqui Indians about ten days ago. It is said that the Twenty-second Battalion of Infantry was ambushed by the Indians and practically every man killed. These reports come to Douglas through private dispatches and are believed by the officers and men, as well as the border natives.

GEORGE HOPE SMITH DIES AT FANWOOD

Clot On Brain Proves Fatal After Two Days' Illness.

Following a fall two days ago that caused a clot on the brain, George Hope Smith, aged 53 years, died last night at his home on South avenue, Fanwood, after a short illness. He had a stroke of paralysis early Tuesday morning and during it had a fall, striking his head.

He had been a resident of Fanwood for the past four years and before that lived in Newark. At one time he was court stenographer in the Supreme Court at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, but for the past few years had been connected with the Remington Typewriter Company, having perfected several devices for the improvement of the machine.

Mr. Smith was born near Gettysburg, Pa., and had traveled through the United States extensively. Besides a wife, Adelina Smith, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. C. Jones, of Newark. The funeral will be held from his late home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and interment will be made in Elizabeth.

BLATZ FILES PETITON--NO OTHERS IN CLERK'S OFFICE

The petition of Francis J. Blatz for nomination on the Republican ticket for councilman from the Fourth ward was filed in the office of City Clerk John J. Carroll yesterday afternoon. This is the only petition for the primaries that has been filed. An afternoon paper stated early in the week that the petition of Councilman Edgar, of the First ward, had been filed, but the report was not true.

COLONY OF PLAINFIELDERS ENJOY MOUNTAIN LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, their daughter, Miss Dorothy Hubbard and Mr. Hubbard's father, Joseph A. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, who have been sojourning at Long Lake, N. Y., are now en route for home in their automobile by way of the Green Mountains, Mohawk Trail, etc. The forepart of the week the party enjoyed a picnic on Long Lake, where one of the "eats" was seventeen fine bass which were caught in the lake by the Plainfielders.

Plainfield is well represented at Emerson's, Long Lake. Among those enjoying life there being Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Maxson, who are occupying their bungalow; Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Titsworth, who are also in a bungalow; De Witt P. Brokaw and family, who arrived a few days ago; Mrs. Raymond W. Charles and two sons and Mrs. W. M. Murray, who have been there since July. Mr. and Mrs. Orra S. Rogers arrived Saturday, having toured there by way of the Thousand Islands, Saranac, from Lockport, N. Y., the former home of Mrs. Rogers.

STOLE BANANAS.

James Brown, colored, was held over for appearance tomorrow morning when he was arraigned before Judge De Meza in city court this morning, charged with stealing a bunch of bananas so as to allow time for his case to be investigated. Brown is alleged to have taken the fruit from a North avenue stand, but when questioned this morning he talked incoherently and seemed unbalanced, not even being sure where he came from.

CHARLES RUSSEL.

Charles Russel, the four months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russel, of 302 East Fourth street, died last night at the home of his parents. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

Health Officer.

NOVICES HONOR MOTHER RAYMOND

With Sister Isidore She Ends Forty-five years of Service.

IS NOW AT ST. MARY'S

Founded St. Gabriel's In North Plainfield and St. Mary's of the Lake at Lakewood—Address of Sister Xavier.

As a token of love and gratitude to Mother M. Raymond and Sister M. Isidore on their forty-fifth anniversary, the novices of Mount St. Mary's last night tendered a musical program in their honor. Mother Raymond is at St. Mary's for the summer months. She founded St. Gabriel's Academy, in North Plainfield, some time ago and then went to Lakewood, where she founded St. Mary's Academy of the Lake.

The address in which the noble works of Mother Raymond and Sister Isidore were set out was made by Sister Xavier. Sister Marion was the soprano soloist, Sister Teresita directed the orchestra and accompanied on the piano, Sister Tierre was the violinist, Sister Gregory the pianist and Sister Eymard the cornet soloist. Sister DeSalle gave a recitation, "The Painter of Seville."

The address of Sister Xavier follows:

"It is eminently fitting that we turn aside from the customary ways of life and pay tribute of affection, esteem and honor to those who during lengthy years have done valiant service in their chosen walks of life and wrought that service well. It seems to me an empty and thankless task to eulogize one who has departed this life and spread oral wreaths above the silent clay. We rather choose to follow the Scriptural injunction, 'Honor to whom honor is due,' so we are bent tonight on casting our oral garlands and wreaths on the brows of living, however much their humility and simplicity forbids.

"Forty-five years of religious life in New Jersey takes us back to the pioneer days, and we hail and greet you, dear Mother Raymond and Sister Isadore, as pioneers—survivors of those noble bands of religious that planted and watered the seeds of Chirstian charity, mercy and education within the confines of the present Trenton diocese, and to which God, in His goodness and bounty, gave increase in abundant measure.

"Listen, then, while I briefly recount as best I can in my own feeble way the history of those pioneer bands, laying emphasis in a more special way upon your part, dear Mother Raymond and Sister Isadore, since it is your happy day in the calendar of glory. Yest, it is truly a calendar of glory that records the fruitful labors and endeavors of the early pioneers that link the past with the present. Noble achievements that win for them, without exception, the deepest gratitude and lasting remembrance of the present generation of sisters, who are continuing their good work and reaping in a measure the harvest of their untiring labors.

"Manchester would tell us of the foundation laid there under the direction of the Venerable Mother Warde, whose name is enshrined in the annals of the Sisters of Mercy in this country. It would tell us also of noble souls, heakening to the voice of the Master and writing in luminous letters the word so pleasing to Him—Sacrifice. You, dear Mother Raymond and Sister Isadore, we can truly register among the number. New Jersey would tell us, moreover, how the Manchester Community branched out to Jersey City in 1871, at the request of Father Hennessey, but by the desire of the bishop remained attached to the old home in New Hampshire. Sister M. Regis, Sister M. Austin, Sister M. Grabriel, who have departed this life, and Sister M. Isadore, who is with us this evening, were volunteers for this work. After doing good work in this new field, conditions arose that necessitated their temporary recall to the mother house. One year later, however, Father Leonard, of Bordentown, made a request to Mother Warde, who conducted to Borden town this band of religious: Dear Mother Joseph and Sister Martha still with us—Sister Stanislaus and Sister Clare gone to their reward, and you, our own beloved Mother Raymond, not only with us but to whom we are paying our tribute of love and affection tonight amid this scene of joy and gladness.

"These formed the first permanent establishment within the confines in the present Trenton diocese, and enshrined the dear old cherished Hill Top in our hearts, aye, forever and aye.

"Five years later Mgr. Moran's appeal was answered, when the former Jersey City Band were again sent to Jersey soil and Princeton became the scene of their earnest labors. Some years later both communities united with Mother Joseph as its first Superior. Growth, progress and development, both spiritual and material, followed under the regimes of the various Superiors of the Trenton Diocese Community, who, respectively, ruled it so well and shaped so wisely its future destinies. Recognizing your untiring labors and administrative ability the Sisters made you its Superior for six years— a period

OUTING WILL OPEN G. O. P. CAMPAIGN

State, County and Local Candidates Will Attend Gathering Tomorrow.

A large delegation of local Republicans will go on the annual outing of the Union County Republican Committee tomorrow. The trip this year will be made to Pleasure Bay, where a clambake will be enjoyed. The train will leave this city at 833, making stops at Fanwood, Westfield, Garwood, Cranford and Roselle. Returning the train will leave East Long Branch at 7 p. m.

The outing will mark the real opening of the Union county political campaign and will bring together the various candidates, including the following Senator Austen Colgate, Senator Walter E. Edge, both of whom are running for Governor; Congressman John H. Capstick, Richard Boardman, Charles B. Fowler, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and others.

The clambake will be held at Wardell's Port-au-Peck Hotel and it is expected that many a campaign will be given a decided boost at the shore resort.

ORGANIZE COUNTY HOME RULE LEAGUE

Control of Excise Matters In Every Municipality Is Aim of Body.

Formal organization ,with the exception of the election of officers, was completed by the Somerset County Home Rule League at a meeting in the Somerville Y. M. C. A. last night. There was a large attendance of members, every municipality in the county being represented. Judge L. A. Schenck presided as the temporary chairman, while C. C. Wheeler, of North Plainfield, was the temporary secretary.

The organization has been formed for the purpose of promoting home rule in excise matters in every community and controlling the question, and to secure legislation which will further the interest of candidates who are in sympathy with the league and its work. The membership is composed of both Republicans and Democrats. Officers will be eelcted at a meeting to be held next Thursday.

JOHN LORGERSON BREAKS ARM ABOVE WRIST

John Forgerson, of Summit avenue, a blacksmith and wheelwright, broke his arm yesterday afternoon and is now under the care of Dr. A. H. Dundon. Forgerson was rearranging some belting on machinery in his shop when in some way his arm caught in the revolving mechanism. According to an x-ray photo the large bone in the right arm was broken a little above the wrist.

CHARGES JUNKMAN WITH RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Max Michaelson, a local junk dealer, was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss, of North Plainfield, yesterday morning, on a charge of having received stolen goods from Walter Johnson, the negro who is being held to await the action of the Grand Jury. Michaelson was to have been tried in the borough court last night, but his counsel, City Judge William G. De Meza, asked for a postponement. The case will come up for trial on Monday.

25 INJURED IN CAR WRECK AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 25.—Twenty-five persons were injured in a rear-end trolley collision on the Birchman Bend line near the Fiberloid factory in Indian Orchard, at 6:45 this morning . The most seriously injured were taken to Ludlow Hospital.

FOOTBALL IN SWEDEN.

Stockholm, Aug. 25.—The American football team, which is visiting Sweden, was defeated in today's match by a picked team of the Stockholm players. The score was 3 to 0.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

WILSON WORKING HARD

Conference With Union Men at White House This Morning—Managers Called There This Afternoon—8-Hour Day Agreed On.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Hopes for the settlement of the railroad strike controversy are not as high today as they were yesterday at this time, and yet there still remains a ray of light which may burst forth into a sunshower of peace to drive away the clouds of dissension before night. The executives have agreed to the eight-hour day—but. They want a number of concessions, and President Wilson had no authority to promise these concessions until he has had another conference with the brotherhood representatives.

This conference was held commencing at 10:30 today. It was arranged by Judge Chambers, of the Federal Mediation Commission and was designed by the President to acquaint the union men with the progress the President had made in his efforts to secure the eight-hour day concession from the railroads.

The four brotherhood heads, Garretson, Stone, Lee and Carter, left the White House shortly before noon, after having been closeted with President Wilson for almost an hour and a half. Mr. Garretson, who is spokesman for the brotherhoods, said they had visited the White House at the request of President Wilson, but he declined to indicate the outcome of the conference.

Railroad executives will be called back to the White House this afternoon. They will be acquainted with the terms that are agreeable to the union leaders. If the two propositions are anywhere near together the threatened strike will be ended.

Many of the railroad presidents had prepared to go home last night, and still expect to get away late today.

EIGHT LARGE SHARKS CAPTURED AT SEIDLER'S

The capture of eight sharks, from five to eight feet long, was an interesting sight witnessed by the Owl Club, of New Market, at Seidler's Beach last night. Judge R. F. P. von Minden, who chaperoned the party to the beach, was among those who helped to land the sharks, after which a photo was taken of the fish, with the party in the background. The landing of the sharks was watched by a crowd of over one hundred people.

In the same haul, which was made with a net, was between 300 and 400 bushels of fish, one of the largest catches of the season. While the sharks were not of the man-eating variety, they were large enough to give anyone a lively battle for supremacy.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WALTER H. COOPER HELD

The funeral of Walter Howard Cooper was held this morning at the late home, 81 Franklin avenue, North Plainfield, and was largely attended by relatives, friends and business associates. Father P. J. Hart, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, was in charge and he offered prayers for the dead.

During the service Mrs. Alfred Seidel sang two appropriate selections, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Harry De Meza. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including a pillow bearing the word "Papa," and another from the Nest of Owls of which Mr. Cooper was a member.

The pallbearers were John Stevens, Jeremiah O'Connor, Peter McDonough, James Conroy, Edward Gottlick and Charles Harned, representing the local horse shoers' union, and William H. Randolph, James W. Meeker and Jacob Long from the nest of Owls. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MARSHMALLOW TOAST.

The young people of the Temple Baptist church enjoyed a marshmallow toast on the Watchung Mountains last night. Those in the party were the Misses Bessie Carson, Edna Stewart, Verna Stewart, Lillian Scherb, Grace Baker, Christine Vestergard and George Simon, William Simon, Russell Stewart, Foster Campbell, Clarence Carson and Lawrence Barrett

GETS VERDICT OF $52.50 FOR HORSE

Jury In District Court Gives Small Damages to Lewis Van Ess.

A verdict of damages in the amount of $52.20 was given by a jury in district court this morning in the suit of Lewis Van Ess against Charles Arnold. On April 6 a horse belonging to Arnold ran away and at the corner of Park and Second struck an animal belonging to Van Ess. The Van Ess horse had a leg broken in the accident and it was necessary to kill it.

Judge William G. De Meza, appearing for the defendant, admitted liability for the accident, and contended that the horse was not worth more than $25. Attorney Robert Newton Crane put the value of the horse much higher, and asked that $150 be paid Van Ess for it.

Mrs. Van Housen, agent for the S. P. C. A. was one of the witnesses called by Judge De Meza, and she swore that she had condemned the horse as unfit for work, and ordered it sent to the pasture. The jury sustained the value put upon the animal by the defendant and gave damages of $25 for the horse. The remainder allowed was for repairs to the harness.

THIRD WARDERS TO MEET IN WASHINGTON SCHOOL

A meeting of the Third Ward Republican Club will be held tonight in the washington School. The purpose of the meeting is to elect new officers and decide on candidates for city offices.

DOROTHY DICKSON, SIX YEAR OLD GIRL, PLAGUE VICTIM

One death was the extent of the ravages of infantile paralysis in this city since yesterday's report from the Board of Health, bringing the total to twenty-two cases and six deaths since the plague developed here. After being stricken Wednesday, Dorothy Dickson, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Dickson, of 1008 South avenue, died at 6 o'clock last night. Interment was made privately today.

MISS ETHEL GORDON AND R. C. M'CREA QUIETLY WED

A quiet wedding was celebrated last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gordon, of 311 Filmore avenue, when their daughter, Miss Ethel Gordon, and Roland McCrea, of Berckman street, were united in marriage by the Rev. R. M. Johnson, of Pennington, in the presence of a company of friends and relatives. The bride was attended by her sisters, the Misses Mamie and Bessie Gordon and the best man was Ralph Green. Mr. McCrea is employed in this city. He and his bride will reside on Berckman street.

JOHN S. AMMERMAN SEEKS THE ASSEMBLY NOMINATION

John S. Ammerman, of Neshanic, today announced himself as a candidate for the Assembly on the Republican ticket in Somerset county. In a statement to the voters of the county Mr. Ammerman says:

"At the urgent solicitation of many Republicans of this county, whose opinion I value, I have consented to allow my name to be presented at the primary election to the consideration of the Republican voters for the nomination for member of the Assembly. I am in full accord with the principles set forth in the platform adopted by the Republican party at its recent national convention, and very heartily endorse the candidates chosen.

"In State matters I believe that proper provision should be made for all the needs of the State and that the administration of the State government should be conducted in all departments upon strictly business principles and with the care, prudence and economy that is necessary in any well managed business.

"I also believe in the principle of majority home rule on the license question and if elected as a member of the General Assembly will support that principle in the legislature."

INJURED AT POND'S.

Charles Brudur of 311 Fortieth street, Brooklyn, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon, suffering with contusions and bruises on his leg. Brudur had been employed on the big addition being built to the Pond Machine Tool Works, and a heavy beam fell and struck him. His condition is not thought to be serious.

NEW POLICE PATROL.

Plainfield's new automobile patrol has arrived and is now stationed at the police station with Driver O'Gorman ready for the initial call. It is mounted on a Ford chassis and is painted a brilliant green.

GREEKS HARD HIT BY BULGARIANS

Suffer Heavy Losses With English and French Troops.

SERBS MOVE FORWARD

Macedonian Battle Results In Loss For Allies—Roumania and Russia May Join In Balkan Fighting.

Saloniki, Aug. 25.—Greek troops that are fighting with the British and French in an effort to check the advance of the Bulgarians through Macedonia have been forced to fall back in the region of Lake Tahinos, after suffering heavy losses. On the Allies' west wing, where the Serbians and Russians are facing the Bulgarian forces, the Bulgars have been compelled to retire in some sections, after furious fighting in which both sides struggled to the last gasp. The Serbs moved forward, occupying Lunzi and in the direction of Kaimakala.

Roumanians and Russians Ready.

London, Aug. 25.—Russia and Roumania are today reported ready to invade Bulgaria and add to the fury of the most cosmopolitan battle the world has ever known.

The Czar has concentrated a large army on the Roumanian frontier and on the banks of the Russian Danube, in preparation for a thrust at the Bulgars and Hungarians through Roumania.

A strong Roumanian force, dispatches say, has been massed on the lower Danube and the Pruth in readiness to join the Russian army as it sweeps through. It is assumed Russia's plan is to enter Bulgaria through Dubrudja and invade Hungary by way of Serbia across Moldava.

French Still Hold Fleury.

Paris, Aug. 25.—Attempts by the Germans to recapture Lauerepas, on the Somme front, and Fleury, on the Verdun front, have been repulsed by the French, the war office stated today in its communique.

Danish Ship Captured.

Copenhagen, Aug. 25.—The Danish ship Sorseti has been captured in the North Sea by armed German trawlers.

Air Raid on England.

London, Aug. 25.—German airships have again raided the east and southeast coasts of England, dropping bombs ,according to an official communication issued early this morning. The communication says:

"Several airships crossed the east and southeast coasts of England shortly before midnight. A number of bombs were dropped, but there has been no report of causalties or damage."

Thirty Zeppelin bombs were dropped on England on Wednesday night, but as all fell in open fields, no damage resulted, according to an official report issued yesterday.

London, Aug. 25.—The British government, following the lead of Sweden, has made public the entire correspondence with Sweden concerning British seizure of the Swedish parcel post from the United States and Swedish retaliation in stopping all English parcels in transit to Russia.

The correspondence discloses that the situation has not yet been satisfactorily adjusted. Some of the letters and notes teem with a language so sharp as to indicate that the relations of the two countries at one time approached the breaking point. As a result of the negotiations Sweden recently released 60,000 parcels to Russia under agreement with the British government to submit the matter to arbitration after the war.

CARRANZA GOES AFTER ALL DODGERS OF TAXES

Mexico City, August. 25 (via Galveston).—A decree ordering all property owners in Mexico to immediately prepare a statement showing their holding was issued today by Carranza. The decree was issued presumably to determine the amount of taxation necessary to secure adequate revenue. Carranza officials will check up on all statements in order that there will be no tax dodging.

HENRY NEWTON.

Henry Newton, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newton, of Jerseyland Park, who died at his parents' home on Wednesday, will be buried on Sunday services being held from the Church of God and Saints of Christ Tabernacle, 602 East Third street, this city. Interment will be amade in the M. E. cemetery.

CONFERENCE ON CUSTOMS.

Washington, Aug. 25.—One of the most important conferences to be held by customs officials is scheduled to begin in New York at the Custom House on November 20. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is expected to attend and will make announcement of the new policy to be inaugurated by the government in collecting customs.

ENGLISH HAVE TROUBLE WITH FRENCH LANGUAGE

Fearful, Yet Wonderful, Pronunciations of Simple Words.

Fearful and wonderful from the French viewpoint are the pronunciations given by Tommy Atkins to the names of French places, localities and geographical features. Tommy's rather lame attempts to "parler" the Francais are a constant source of amusement to the natives, although M. Atkins is now showing great improvement, and before he returns to his tight little isle he is likely to be an accomplished French conversationalist—regular parleur, in fact. Tommy has now learned that Somme is pronounced "sum," although even that is not so easy as it seems, for the French "u" sound has no English equivalent. The French "u" sound is pronounced by pursing the lips as if to say "o," but to say "e" instead, the combination producing the French version of a "u." Aisne is pronounced "ayne," Loire is "looare," Meaux is "moo." Meuse is "Merze," but with the "r" silent. Oise is "was," Seine is "sen," and Ourcq is "ourk." Peronne is "pearron." Valenciennes is "val-on-see-en," Thiaucourt is "tee-o-koor," Chantilly is "shan-tee-yee." Maubeuge is "moburzh," with the "r" silent; Mezieres is "may-ze-air," Mons is "mawngs," with a nasal sound; Toul is "tool," Soissons is "swas-sohn," Rheims is "rance," and Nanteuil is "nawng tehyee." Argonnes is "argon," Compiegne is "com-pe-eyne," and so on. These are but a few of the stumbling blocks which have stood in the way of Tommy's mastery of the Francais as she is spoken, and in hurling them he has given no little pleasure to his French comrades in arms. Many of the latter, however, are striving to learn English, so that the enjoyment is mutual.

TO AID BELGIAN CHILDREN.

Swiss Refuge For 500 In the Fighting Zone.

The Rockefeller foundation announced that it had received from Warwick Greene, director of its war relief commission, an appeal to the American public for the relief of about 500 Belgian children who were living in the fighting zone. Money from Swiss sources provided for the removal of 760 children who were similarly situated to the canton of Fribourg, in Switzerland, where provisions have been made for their protection, maintenance and education.

The first appeal for the 500 still neglected children was made by the queen of the Belgians, and the Rockefeller foundation took the matter up with the Belgian relief fund in New York and with the New England relief fund in Boston. The cost of maintenance of the 500 children was estimated at $37,000 for the first year, or 40 cents per capita each day. The cost for the second year would be $51,000, or [illegible] cents per capita each day.

In order that the removal of the children might not be delayed the Rockefeller foundation instructed the director of the war relief commission to authorize the removal of the children to Switzerland. Toward the necessary cost the Belgian relief fund of this city appropriated $25,000.

The New England Belgian committee appropriated $5,000 and undertook to raise $5,000 more and the refugees' relief fund appropriated $1,000 and agreed to furnish $500 a month until further notice. Contributions for this purpose may be sent to the Belgian relief fund, 10 Bridge street, New York, and marked "Belgian children fund."

U. S. HAS TORPEDO CATCHER.

Connecticut Man's Invention to Be Tested at Newport.

A new "torpedo catcher" to be tested officially by the United States authorities arrived [illegible] London, Conn., from Bridgeport [illegible] was towed to the torpedo station, Newport.

The torpedo catcher was invented by Fred Lapan of Milford, Conn., and is reported to be the only successful one of its kind. Its use by the United States government seems assured. The inventor asserts it will absolutely protect ships from damage by torpedoes. It will be used also for saving torpedoes during practice.

The catcher is an arrangement of half inch wire cables in net form on an L shaped sliding steel frame and is hung from the ship's sides about twenty-five feet away, from the water line down. While thirty pounds' pressure is required to explode the warhead of a torpedo, less than a pound pressure trips this net, which is "fool proof" and works from any angle.

As the torpedo hits the net its head is held, and the striking releases hydraulic pressure, which raises the lower frame of the catcher and the rear end of the torpedo above water.

BARS CIRCUS AND TOBACCO.

Pennsylvania Farmer's Will Forbids Either on His Estate.

Isaac S. Long of Mill Creek, Lebanon county, Pa., who died on May 7, had an aversion to the circus and to tobacco, and in his will he provided that "no circus or show horses shall ever be pastured on my estate" and that "no tobacco shall be grown on my property."

Mr. Long left a large tract of farming land in Lebanon county and a good sized personal estate in New York. He left $1,000 to the Reformed Lutheran church of Newmanstown.

An Ironclad of 1585.

It is generally supposed that the first use of armor for battleships was during the Crimean war. As a matter of fact, the Dutch claim to have been the pioneers of ironclad building more than 300 years ago. During the famous siege of Antwerp by the Spaniards in 1585, says J. R. Hale in "Famous Sea Fights," the people of the city built a huge flat bottomed warship, armed with heavy iron plates, which they named the Finis Belli, a boastful expression of the hope that she would end the war. An old print of the Finis Belli shows a four masted ship with a high poop. But the vessel steered badly and eventually ran aground under the Spanish batteries and fell into the hands of their commander, the Duke of Parma. He kept the Finis Belli as a curiosity till the end of the siege.

Chamber of Commerce Finds That Country Might Have to Go Short on Coffee and Tea In Case of a Blockade, but These Are Considered Luxuries Production Increasing.

One worry of the fighting nations need not keep the United States awake, the National Chamber of Commerce finds.

The report of the chambers committee on statistics and standards, just published, proves that no matter how severe a blockade might be drawn about the country it would be impossible to starve American stomachs into capitulation.

It would be necessary to get along without importations of coffee, tea and cocoa, and these are not extensively grown in this country, but all these are classed by the committee as luxuries.

The most impressive point, the committee says, is that while the population of the country has increased 200 per cent in half a century its food production has been increasing in that same period from 250 to 3,000 per cent in prime commodities.

The most important product—wheat—has increased in production 500 per cent and corn 270 per cent. The production of rice shows the greatest increase, being 3,000 per cent; and barley comes second, with 2,000 per cent. Oats and Irish potatoes have increased in production 475 per cent and 250 per cent respectively.

Wheat Exports Vary.

"The usual argument that we are becoming a food importing country is based on the statement that our exports of foodstuffs are decreasing while imports are increasing," the report goes on.

"In the case of wheat, the greatest of all cereals used directly for human food, it will be seen the exports vary decidedly from year to year, being affected by a great number of contributing causes, but that exports have shown an appreciable increase during the last five years, while the imports always have been and still continue a negligible quantity.

"The falling off in exports of corn is due largely to the numerous new uses found for it at home in ways often not directly as human food. The last two years show a large increase proportionately in imports, principally from the Argentine.

"These imports were actually in small volume compared with the production of any surplus growing corn state and had small relation to the question of food. They were largely the result of decreased domestic production owing to drought in the two years in question and consequent high prices."

The importance of luxuries is held to be entirely a question of taste and our extensive use of them an evidence of our ability to gratify this taste and not a matter of necessity. In case of stress we could well get along without them, as was generally done in the south during the civil war, which is a different proposition from not raising enough wheat for our own use and trying to get along without that.

Rice is not a natural North American product, being a plant of tropical and subtropical countries, yet while both importations and exportations have increased in about equal proportion production has outstripped them both, indicating that the largely increased demand is being met by domestic production even more than by foreign importation.

A definite proof of surplus production of agricultural products beyond our needs, according to the report, is the fact that each year we carry from the former harvest into the succeeding harvest from 20 to 25 per cent of the yield of the principal cereals.

Cane Sugar Booms.

Cane sugar is pointed to as a most remarkable exhibit. It is largely a tropical and subtropical product and consequently can be grown only in a limited area in the United States. Likewise the production of sugar in this country has always been complicated by the matter of tariff.

Yet despite these facts, according to the report, domestic production increased about 1,000 per cent against about 1,000 per cent in imports. Meanwhile exports from this country have increased over 2,000 per cent.

There is scarcely an agricultural food product, either primary or secondary, the production of which has not outstripped the growth of population in the last fifteen years, and "the real problem is not to seek needed supplies abroad, but to find an adequate and satisfactory market for the constantly increasing output."

So far as the money value is concerned, according to the national chamber authorities, the exportation in 1914 of pork packing house products alone was seven times greater than all the live cattle brought into the country during that year. Of the $154,000,000 of packing house products imported in 1914, only $20,000,000 was meat intended for food, while pork packing house products exported totaled $154,000,000 for the same period.

Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Mendelssohn in 1837 read the nineteenth chapter of the first book of Kings and was so struck by the verse "Behold the Lord passeth by" that he took it as the foundation for his oratorio "Elijah," which was begun in 1840 and in 1846 sent for translation to England, where on Aug. 18 rehearsals were begun for the first presentation of his work.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Miss Helen Maitland Armstrong was the designer of five remarkable stained glass windows which adorn a room in Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's house in New York called the armory, and which are universally pronounced a most unusual work of art. Miss Armstrong is the daughter of David Maitland Armstrong, himself a leading American artist, now in his 81st year, and who was at one time consul-general to Italy. His talented daughter was born at Florence during his residence in Italy as a U. S. representative.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, who will be 36 this month, is often referred to as the queen with the finest complexion in Europe, and people often wonder how she manages to keep the wonderful girlish freshness of her skin. It is all due, it appears, to her having adopted the Dutch Indies custom of taking lemon baths. A dozen lemons are squeezed into the bath, with the addition of eau-de-cologne and various scents, making a highly invigorating and cleansing compound which is now popular not only with the Queen but with Dutch society beauties in general, who as a class are favored in the matter of skin texture and tint.

Among the women who are making good in the business world, Mrs. Anna F. Wood, of Chicago, holds an enviable place. She is manager and sole owner of two large tea room and candy shops, which bring her a net earning of $25,000 a year or more, an income which rivals many a railroad magnate's or bank president's. All this has been accomplished in seven years, during which time she has been in business for herself. Previous to that she had worked for others nineteen years, coming from Germany a poor girl and beginning as a menial, with the simplest tasks in such an establishment as she now conducts. She started her own first establishment with her hard-earned savings and as fast as the business made money for her she put it into the aggrandizement of a second one. The business includes the manufacture and sale of candies, serving of luncheons and afternoon tea, and her candy trade is so large that it reaches all parts of the United States.

Miss Olwen Lloyd George, eldest daughter of the famous British statesman, who directs his country's destiny in the war, is described as her brilliant father's pal, with whom he is particularly fond of going on camping excursions in the woods, "roughing it," fishing, cooking their own meals and tramping along with their portable tents like a couple of Gypsies. Aside from this sympathy of temperament between the great Welshman and his daughter, she has shown remarkably helpful tact in husbanding her father's strength for his great tasks. She knows just what amount of work his strength will allow, and it is a legend with secretaries that Miss Olwen will appear as if by magic at the psychological moment and very gracefully and politely but firmly end his day's work. He has so learned to count upon the wisdom of her judgment that he complies as gracefully, knowing that he is in good hands.

Miss Emily Balch, professor of economics as Wellesley College, who was the only woman delegate to the Stockholm Neutral Conference for Continual Mediation, which grew out of the famous Ford peace excursion of last year, has ben in this country for a brief time, after living abroad since going over with the peace ship. After conferring with Henry Ford, the sponsor and financier of the conference, Miss Jane Addams and other American peace advocates, she intends sailing back this week for Stockholm to continue her work for peace. Like Miss Addams, Miss Balch is a member of the Women's International Committee for Permanent Peace and was one of the leading American figures at the famous congress of peace women at The Hague, at which Miss Addams presided. From this congress she was appointed a delegate to the Russian and Scandinavian governments. Her studies have covered a wide field, in this country, in France and in Germany, and the books embodying her observations have authority. One, entitled "Our Slavic Fellow Citizens," describing the influx from Slavic Europe to the United States and written in a spirit most sympathetic to the Slavs, is most often quoted.

Dr. Violet Smith Orleman Berger, of New York, is one of the few women who have ever refused a German degree, so coveted in the world of students. For services among the German wounded interned at Geneva, Switzerland, the German authorities offered the young American doctress a medical degree from their own medical faculties. She declined it because of its being conditioned on her becoming a German citizen.

5,000 EXPECTED AT WILSON NOTIFICATION

New York, August 25.—At Democratic national headquarters in this city and at the White House thousands of requests have been received for tickets to the Wilson notification ceremonies, which will be held at Shadow Lawn, the President's new summer home at Long Branch, on Saturday, September 2.

It was expected at first that perhaps 5,000 might attend the ceremonies, but the interest has become so great that plans are now being made for an attendance of 15,000 to 20,000. Applicants for tickets are beneessary and no invitations are being issued except to delegates to the recent St. Louis convention, members of Congress and a few others.

All who are interested in President Wilson's campaign for re-election are invited to attend the ceremonies, his managers say. It is eexpected that there will be a great outpouring from New Jersey and large numbers are expected from New York, Pennsylvania and other States. Provision will be made for the comfort of all who appear.

KINKEAD COMES OUT AS A CANDIDATE

Will Run For Congress in the Eighth District.

Announcement was made formally yesterday by Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead, of Hudson county, that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative from the Eighth District. The district is divided about half and half in Essex county and Hudson. Mr. Kinkead was elected three times to Congress, representing the old Ninth District twice and being the first Representative from the present Eight district.

It is understood the sheriff will have no opposition for the nomination. In the Republican primary Repreesntative Edward W. Gray will have a clear track, so the indications are that the utimate battle in November will be between the two.

With the announcement of Mr. Kinkead's candidacy, it became known that Cornelius F. McGlennon, of East Newark, brother-in-law of Harry Rockafeller, of Asbury Park, who has been ambitious for the Congress nomination, would give way to Mr. Kinkead and would become a candidate for the Democratic nomination of State Senator if Senator Charles M. Egan enters the fight for the nomination for surrogate, as is expected. Senator Egan will be the Wittpenn candidate for surrogate. The present surrogate, John P. Egan, an anti-Wittpenn leader, already has filed his petition for renomination.

If McGlennon seeks the senatorial nomination, he will have a contest on his hands, according to the present outlook, because Assemblyman Alexander Simpson already has announced that he intends to become a candidate for Senator Egan's seat. Both Simpsan and McGlennon are Wittpenn men.

Mr. Kinkead's term as sheriff will not expire until November, 1917. If he should be chosen in the November election he probably would be able to finish the shrievalty term without conflict with Congressional duties. In the ordinary course of events, the Congress to be chosen this year will not meet for the first time until December, 1917. With the international situation in an unsettled condition the possibility exists, of course, that the members might be called together before that time. The nominal term begins March 4, 1917, and the members after that date would be subject to call to Washington in special session.

LOCAL MEN HONORED BY GOVERNOR FIELDER

Governor Fielder yesterday appointed William L. Saunders, J. A. Van Mater and Thomas H. Legget New Jersey delegates to the nineteenth annual session of the American Mining Congress, to be held at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, from November 13 to 16.

The State representatives will be W. Rowland Cox, Short Hills; Evans McCarty, Perth Amboy; William L. Saunders, North Plainfield; Francis C. Newton, Perth Amboy; J. A. Van Mater, North Plainfield; A. Clayton Clark, Perth Amboy; Knox Taylor, High Bridge; Robert M. Gatlin, Franklin Furnace; Thomas H. Leggett, Plainfield.

The Governor also appointed Joseph J. Mullen of Newark, as a member of the State Board of Undertakers and Embalmers, to succeed Lewis S. Pierce, who resigned.

Captain Joseph P. Ford, Jersey City, was named harbor master for Hudson county, to succeed Martin Mulry.

Must Try Something Else.

JUDGE CAREY COMES OUT FOR FRELINGHUYSEN

Former Judge Robert Carey, of Hudson county, last week came out strongly for Frelinghuysen for Senator, declaring that he is one of the vigorous men in the political affairs of the State today, and if nominated, he will be assured of securing the full Republican vote of the State, including the so-called Progressive element. Mr. Carey said he deprecated the withdrawal of former Governor Stokes from the race, but Stokes having decided not to be a candidate, he was unqualifiedly in favor of Frelinghuysen.

JERSEY LIGHTNING KILLS COW AND HURTS MAN

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 25.—Charles Willcox was severely injured, a cow was killed, several houses were fired and trees and trolley wires were blown down during a lightning storm here.

Willcox was standing with three companions on a veranda when the house was struck. He was unconscious for an hour. His companions were not injured.

The cow was killed on the farm of J. Herbert. A second bolt set the house afire. The home of J. E. Nagel was practically demolished by lightning.

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN DIES OF RARE DISEASE

Charles Norry, of Jamesburg, is dead today in St. Peter's Hospital, New Brunswick, the victim of a peculiar disease. Physicians said he had inhaled sulphuric acid while working in the Gillespie Powder plant, Sayreville, until his entire body was yellow.

The man suffered great pain, and the tears he shed were the color of the acid. The bursting of his blood-vessels was audible.

TRENTON WILL HONOR BILLY SUNDAY TODAY

Trenton, Aug. 25.—Announcement is made by the committee in charge of the arrangements for "Billy" Sunday's brief visit to Trenton this afternoon that the evangelist will give a short talk at the Second Regiment Armory. It has been decided to refuse admittance to children under 16, owing to the danger of infantile paralysis.

Sunday, who will stop in Trenton while en route from Philadelphia to Ocean Grove by automobile, is expected to arrive about 2:30 o'clock. He will beaccompanied from Philadelphia, where he is to be given a testimonial dinner, by a delegation of Trenton men. From Trenton to the shore the evangelist will go by way of Yardville, Allentown and Freehold.

While "Billy" is at the shore he and Homer Rodeheaver, the trombone artist, will be entertained on a fishing trip to Beach Haven, as the guests of Mr. Gill, H. M. Voorhees and A. C. Reeves.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

SPRING LAKE RIVALS WINSTED, CONN., AS PRODUCER OF UNUSUAL FISH STORIES

(By Staff Correspondent.

Spring Lake, August 25.—This place will soon rival Winsted, Conn., as a producer of unusual fish stories, if the reputation thus far acquired this season keeps up. The first shark to kill a man put in an appearance off the beach here; then shark hunters chased a porpoise down the beach with a rifle, attracting scores of summer folk who would not believe it was not the shark. Earlier this week Joe Cawthorne, Van Campen Heilner and a group of ardent fishermen from here had a whale turn his aerial water works on them, when fishing out to sea, and yestorday the place had a visit from two regular whales. The imagination of a reporter, or the story of four or five men who went to sea in a boat does not have to be believed in this case. Fully three thousand people gazed long and inquiringly at the big objects, less than 300 yards from the beach, just outside the surf line, and they are all willing to swear it was whales.

The big fish appeared off the north, or Como, end of the resort. They remained on top of the water, evidently realizing that their presence was creating a commotion, and for fifteen minutes made no effort to move. Then Captain William A. Osborne, keeper of the life saving station, started peppering away at them from the tower of the station with a revolver. The whales evidently thought that a Jersey mosquito was after them, for they sent a stream shooting skyward, and started for the south, diving first. The captain soon had a little boat out, and keeping at a discretionary distance he again banged away at the critters, but apparently without effect, for they took a full hour and a quarter to swim the length of the boardwalk, a mile and a half. In the meantime the word had gotten around, and the entire beach front road, the boardwalk, roofs of hotels and houses and every other available place was filled with curious spectators.

Oblivious to the fact the two continued on their journey southward. One facetious person remarked that they were evidently on their honeymoon, and din't care what people said, anyway. It was also suggested that they had heard of the infant paralysis and the sharks, and the general effect of those two on the summer resort business, and had come near shore to give the press agents a real chance to tell of the attractions of the resort.

The two big fish, which Captain Osborne, who went nearer to them than anyone else, declared were not less than sixty feet long, were last seen heading south, near Bay Head.

THE FORUM

Editor the Plainfield Daily Press:

I hereby submit a few reasons why Mayor Leighton Salkins should not be re-elected:

First—Under Mayor Calkins every office holder in Plainfield, except two, I think, has had his salary raised, thereby adding greatly to our already heavy taxes.

Second—Because he did not have commissioners appointed to appraise and condemn the city hall plot, giving according to experts $9,000 more than it was worth.

Third—Because he had the city hall plans decided upon in New York by three architects, himself and some members of the building committee that do business in New York, leaving Plainfielders who are on the committee at home. Didn't look good to say the least. The cost has not been made public.

Fourth—Because he has been the most expensive Mayor Plainfield ever had according to the opinion of a large number of taxpayers.

Fifth—Because he is not financially interested in Plainfield according to the tax book, not owning any real or personal property.

Sixth—Because building has been the lowest under his administration. Builders are skeptical.

Seventh—Plainfield needs a Plainfield business man for Mayor, one who knows the hardship of the taxpayers in Plainfield, one who has business enough about him to have accumulated Plainfield property.

Eighth—There will be lots of other reasons before the campaign is over.

THE GREAT WHITE PLAGUE.

Women Teachers Have Good Reason For Dreading Tuberculosis.

That teachers are especially prone to tuberculosis is the statement made by the bureau of educational hygiene of the city of New York. This department says that this disease is 20 per cent more prevalent among teachers than among others of corresponding sex and age and that about half of all deaths among women teachers is caused by tuberculosis, and this in spite of the fact that teachers belong to a better hygienic grade than the general average.

Strenuous, nerve taxing work that causes physical exhaustion and nerve breakdown is given as the main cause. Terman states that "four hours of actual teaching represent about eight hours of ordinary office work." What is probably the second cause is lack of sufficient rest and regular exercise in the open air.

Speaking along this line, the state board of health says: "The wan, tired look that usually marks the teacher, especially about the close of school, is too often a condition of serious consequence. It may be just a 'tired, run-down condition' or a case of 'wornout nerves' or both, but these are predisposing causes of tuberculosis as much or more than others.

"Unless the teacher is wise," says the board, "and as quickly as possible overcomes this tired feeling and regains her usual state of health and vigor she subjects herself to an open risk against tuberculosis as well as to other diseases.

"What the wise teacher will do is to avoid overwork and a nervous strain and see that she gets sufficient rest daily as well as daily exercise in the open air. This wornout condition that is too often the beginning of a long, sad story is easy to prevent. To prevent it should be the teacher's first duty."

MADE A POOR GUESS.

The Chinese General Knew More Than Did the Tibetan Buddha.

At the entrance of the lamasery at Kumbum are eight large monuments, which contain the ashes of eight Buddhas. Long years ago, at the beginning of the Ming dynasty, after hard fighting the Tibetans were driven back from Chinese territory, which they had overrun for hundreds of miles. When the victorious Chinese general reached Kumbum he sent for these eight Buddhas and said to them: "You can read the future. Can you tell me when you are going to die?" One of them, shrewd enough to understand the general's mind, said, "Tomorrow." "No," said the general; "it will be today." And it was.

Quite a number of temples and buildings make up the lamasery. The chief temple, which is dedicated to Tsong Kaba, the great reformer of Tibetan Buddhism, has a roof of gold, variously conjectured as being from one-eighth of an inch to half an inch thick. Inside is a large image of Tsong Kaba, said by some to be of gold, but it is probably overlaid with gold. The temple threshold is covered with planks, and we saw many poor deluded people prostrating themselves in worship there. Around the main building are many large prayer wheels, which are kept well on the turn by the devotees to obtain merit.—Christian Herald.

Miseries of the Red Sea.

In the waters of the Red sea the cessation of the engines on a steamer for an hour means extreme physical suffering for passengers; for a day it would involve absolute torture. The wind which prevails every day is a hot, asphyxiating blast, and its continuous directions are from north and south toward the center. As a result every passing vessel is subjected to two days of almost intolerable heat, followed by two days of comparative comfort, but instances have been known of crowded liners being compelled when traveling with the wind to turn round and stem back for an hour or so in order to give the passengers even a brief respite from the sufferings induced by the dull, dead, unbearable atmosphere.

HOW LONG WILL THEY STAY?

Members of Troop D feel that they "are in" for a year of border patrol duty, according to the four Plainfielders who returned this week, and this opinion is not based on any of the irresponsible rumors that circulate so freely in the dry Southern air. Events of the past week in Washington indicate that the stay will be much shorter. The American and Mexican mediators named to settle differences between the two countries are to meet the first week in September, according to an announcement sent out from Washington, and after a few days in conference some definite statement as to the disposition of the United States troops may be made. If this attempt at arbitration is successful, and the signs are hopeful, militiamen should all be home before Christmas, at the latest, because any kind of an agreement between the Wilson and Carranza governments acceptable to the American people must call for protection from border raids. Our regular army will guarantee that those south of the Rio Grande shall not suffer from Americans, and Carranza must do the same. The guard is winning bloodless victories daily by its presence on the border, said Secretary of War Baker recently, and the men who are giving their time are being benefitted by a preparation for actual warfare that will mean much in case of another emergency. The only official statement that has come out of Washington has been the following from the Secretary of War: "Clearly as soon as a restored state of order on the border justifies it, these men will be returned to their homes."

If the charge of a Newark negro that Police Chief Mulcahy, of Elizabeth, singed his hair and burned him with a lighted cigar while putting him through the "third degree" is true, the chief should be dismissed and prosecuted on criminal charges. Society has determined that the "third degree" is not to be tolerated in the vicious form that has made it famous. There is little chance of the case being proven, however, for the police are too wise to leave any evidence against themselves when they stage one of these little torture sessions.

All lovers of sport in America turned from the box scores for a few minutes yesterday to read the story of the arrival of Capt. Koenig and his U-freighter Deutschland safely in Bremen. Capt. Koenig and his crew took a desperate chance. They won, but fortune will not be so kind, perhaps, on the second trip, or the third. All the world admires a brave man, whether he be Briton or German, and these bloodless adventurers have shown us what German efficiency and courage can do besides kill.

New York isn't the worst place in the world. They pulled off a street car strike down in Chattanooga this week. Only one man quit work, and yet the rioting that followed his act was so furious that the entire police and fire departments had to work for hours to restore peace. If half the conductors and motormen had walked out they would probably have burned the town.

Rupert Hughes pays a deserved tribute to the courage of Clark J. Martin, of Plainfield, in this week's edition of Collier's. Martin succumbed to pneumonia and sunstroke soon after reaching the border as a mounted orderly in the Fighting Sixty-ninth of New York. He gave his all, says Hughes, and his offering on the altar of patriotism was taken.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Well produced and acted, "The Man Behind the Curtain," a five part Vitagraph production appearing at Proctor's today with Lillian Walker in the leading role, is a melodrama embodying the element of human interest to a degree which makes the picture seem assured of an enthusiastic reception on the part of local film fans. As implied by the title, "The Man Behind the Curtain" is a mystery story, but only to a small extent is this so, for the main action follows the fortunes of the girl who is innocent and her innocence of the crime committed by an unseen hand in the early sceenes of the picture is shown to the spectator. It is the struggle with the suspicion which falls upon her which makes the real basis for the story. C. J. Van Deusen directed the production and the story is by Minnie Krakauer. Evart Overton plays the leading male part well and the heavy role is rendered effectively by William Dunn. In addition today those two popular Mutual stars, Anna Little and Frank Borzage are featured in "That Gal of Burke's," and comedy films are furnished for diversion.

Tomorrow patrons of Proctor's are greeted with a pleasant surprise, for Valeska Suratt, one of the most popular Broadway favorites, and a recent recruit to the screen, will be seen in her most successful vehicle, "The Immigrant." This is a famous Paramount production and was secured by the management at the urgent request of a number of local amusement seekers. In addition to "The Immigrant" tomorrow, a five-part Metro offering will also occupy the screen at Proctor's. It is entitled "Notorious Gallagher," and features William Night and Marguerite Snow.

Monday will be known as V. L. S. E. day, and two big V. L. S. E. successes have been secured for presentation on that day. Edith Storey will be seen in "The Shop Girl," and Warda Howard and Ernest Maupin will co-star in the Essanay production, "That Sort."

ANNOUNCES FURTHER PLANS FOR Y. M. H. A. CONVENTION

Further arrangements for the fifth annual convention of the Associated Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Associations to be held in Newark September 3 and 4 have been announced by the committee on arrangements.

After registration Sunday morning, September 3, the convention opens at 2:30 in the afternoon. Louis A. Fast, Rabbi Julius Silberfeld, Harry Kalisch, Mayor Raymond, Rabbi Solomon Foster, Rabbi Charles I. Hoffman, Rabbi Hyman Brodsky, Philip J. Schotland and Frederick Jay are scheduled as speakers.

At the business session beginning Monday morning at 10 o'clock, consideration will be given to the inauguration of religious work, appointment of a field secretary, the extension of educational work and the strengthening of the State federation paper.

At the election of officers a brisk contest is looked for. Present officers are Max Levy, of Bayonne, president; Ben Goldwater of Perth Amboy, first vice president, Jacob Weinberg, of Camden, second vice president; Mollie Kanengeiser, of Newark, third vice president; Samuel S. Weinstein, of Trenton, financial secretary; Harry Cassman, of Atlantic City, treasurer, and Ben Levy, of Elizabeth, sergeant at arms.

MAYOR WILL RUN AGAIN.

Westfield, Aug. 25.—It has been practically settled by his Republican friends that Harry Wade Evans will be a candidate to succeed himself for third term as Mayor.

On the Spur of the Moment

Maid With Water Jar..

Oh, the vision haunts me still,
The gleam of the vesper star.
Peering over the purple hill
And the maid with the water jar!

Just a vision out of the past,
With never a blur to mar,
Of the night, and the star and the desert vast,
And the maid with the water jar!
—Clinton Scollard in New York Sun.

Yees, a vision haunts me, too.
I can never more forget;
For a naughty birthday stew
Filled my inwards with regret.

Like a vision out of heaven,
Like a gift beyond all price
Came that boy at half-past seven
With a jar of fresh cracked ice.
—W. Kee Marshal in Peoria Journal.

I am haunted by a vision
Just a vision of the past;
'Twill be with me all my days,
Yes, until the very last.

I was stranded nine miles southward,
In my up-to-date machine,
When a maid drove up and loaned me
Just two quarts of gasoline.

There don't seem to be much use in learning the English language any more. Nobody uses it in this country.

Now Is the Time.

This is the gladsome season of the year when shiny gentlemen happen along to sell glass cutters. It has often been said that one-half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives. Beyond the shadow of a doubt the other half lives by selling glass cutters.

It matters not how busy you are, you must lay everything aside and listen to the siren song of the glass cutter agent. He takes from his pocket a perfectly good piece of glass, then produces the cutter and does more tricks with it than Howard Thurston can do with a plug hat full of hard boiled eggs. After he gives his free exhibition you buy a glass cutter. You can't escape it, though you have 900 glass cutters at home and 300 tucked away in your office desk.

There is a good deal of psychology about the glass cutter business. If you are like the ordinary man you have bought an average of seven glass cutters a week ever since you have had an office, and when you want a piece of glass cut you have to take it to a glazier. Nobody on earth can make a patent glass cutter work except the man who sells it.

Some men blow their money foolishly over the bar or for gasoline, but the major portion of our surplus has gone for glass cutters. It is a habit, and yet there is a sort of ambition in it, too. We hope some day to run across a glass cutter that we can operate when alone with it at home. We have never found one yet that didn't quit business just as soon as we had paid our money for it and the agent had departed in his shiny Prince Albert coat to land another victim.

Who envies you the togs you wear and covets all your pelf?
Who could it be, now frankly, but your "friend?"

Plainfield Theatre.

Mary Nash, With "The Man Who Came Back," at Plainfield Theatre, Tomorrow, Matinee and Night.

Jules Eckert Goodman, who wrote "The Man Who Came Back," the drama which William A. Brady will present at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and night, just before its New York opening, is one of the successful playwrights of the younger generation. He is a Harvard graduate, but while in college he did not take the playwriting course. After some magazine work he wrote "The Man Who Stood Still," a comedy in which Louis Mann played for two seasons, and "The Test," a drama in which Blanche Walsh starred for two seasons. But Mr. Goodman's first big success was "Mother," which, like "The Man Who Stood Still," came on the stage under Willam A. Brady's direction. Mr. Goodman's last big success was "Treasure Island," a dramatization of the Robert Louis Stevenson novel which ran last season at the Punch and Judy Theatre in New York, and opens there again in October.

Mr. Goodman, soon after "Treasure Island" began its long run, started work on building a play around "The Man Who Came Back," a story by John Fleming Wilson, which appeared in McClure's Magazine. Several managers bid for the dramatic rights of this unusual story, but Mr. Wilson gave permission to Mr. Goodman. The two authors are close friends, both having come from Portland, Oregon, and now that the play is done, each unselfishly declares that the credit goes to the other. Mr. Brady says that they will both get credit—and royalties from what promises to be a long run of the drama at The Playhouse in New York. His big production of "The Man Who Came Back," with Mary Nash and an unusual cast comes directly from here to New York.

SEPTEMBER BEST FOR MAKING LAWNS

Work Done In Early Autumn Is Likely To Be Most Successful.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—The early part of September is the best time for seeding a new lawn in the States south of New England and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers, according to plan specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Likewise the repairing of lawns in this region is much more likely to be successful if undertaken in the early autumn rather than in the early spring. The reason late summer and fall planting is preferable where climatic conditions will permit is that young grass does not stool well in spring and summer and is not aggressive enough during these seasons to combat weeds. In the northern tier of States and New England these conditions do not hold, and spring is the best time for lawn work. At that time in the extreme north the soil is more open than later in the season and offers a better seed bed.

The first consideration in making a new lawn is a suitable soil. This should be well drained and of good texture, and should be thoroughly prepared. A good loam will need only enrichment. This may be brought about best by a dressing of well-rotted barnyard manure thoroughly worked in. If manure is not available twenty pounds of bone meal for each 1,000 square feet may be substituted. If the lawn site is of a stiff clay both sand and humus, or decayed vegetable matter, must be worked in if a good turf is to be secured. There is little danger of using too much of either of these materials. Light, sandy soils should have clay and humus worked in to increase their water holding capacity. The humus may be supplied in the form of manure compost or soil from mushroom beds at the rate of one-half ton to 1,000 square feet of area. After the proper constituents are supplied the lawn soil should be thoroughly stirred and fined. This preparation should begin several weeks before seeding time to allow sufficient time for the gound to settle and for weeds to germinate.

MESEROLL TO BE PRINCIPAL OF TWIN BOROUGH'S SCHOOL

Peacock-Gladstone, Aug. 25.—Lester Meseroll, of Bernardsville, former supervising principal of the schools of Barnards Township, has been elected principal of the grammar school here. With the position of principal goes the charge of the eighth grade. The salary is $1,200 a year. The vote was unanimous.

Miss Hazel M. Cavenaugh, of Netcong, a gradute last June of Trenton Normal School, was elected teacher of the fourth grade at a salary of $500 a year. The choice of a manual training teacher was left to the committee.

The board voted to open the schools October 2 instead of September 5, on account of the epidemic of infantile paralysis.

MURPHY, COLGATE, EDGE AND GRAY HAVE PETITIONS FILED

Trenton, August 25.—A petition containing the signatures of approximately 8,000 voters, was filed with the Secretary of State yesterday by former Governor Franklin Murphy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. The designation "Republican party" will be placed opposite his name on the primary ballot. John L. Henderson was appointed in the petition by Mr. Murphy to act as his committee in the receipt and disbursement of the funds.

Senator Austen Colgate also filed a petition for the Republican nomination of Governor. He selected the designation "Republican party," and Milton E. Crawley is named as his committee to handle finances. The petition contains the names of about 7,500 voters in various sections of the State. Another petition filed for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination was that of Senator Walter E Edge, of Atlantic. Senator Edge has selected the designation "Republican," and his petition contains the signatures of 6,000 voters.

Edward W. Gray, of Newark, filed his petition seeking a renomination on the Republican ticket for Congress for the Eighth district. His designation is "Regular Republican," and Thomas P. Alworth has been selected as his financial manager.

Former Mayor Millard F. Cattell, of Woodbury, filed a petition seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in the First district.

CATHOLIC WOMEN WIN FIGHT FOR SEPARATE ORGANIZATION

New York, August 25.—"Catholic Week" officially ended following a mass of thanksgiving at the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer for the delegates of the German societies yesterday morning.

Women won their fight to form a separate organization in the American Federation of Catholic Societies. The proposal provoked a storm at Tuesday's meeting. Subsequently those interested met with Bishop P. J. Muldoon, of Rockford, Ill., but what occurred at this conference didn't transpire.

When the executive committee met following adjournment of the federation the plan was presented and met with no opposition. The women were authorized to form separate sections under the supervision of the social service committee of the federation. Oragnization was promptly made, Mrs. Sarah A. Conboy, of New York, being named chairman, and Miss Catherine Germerhausen, of Hot Springs, N. C., secretary.

Before adjourning the German Catholic Central Verein adopted resolutions demanding that the government of the United States hold the de facto government of Mexico to the strictest observance of its guaranty of religious liberty for Roman Catholics in Mexico. This demand was telegraphed to Secretary of State Lansing. The verein will meet in St. Louis next year.

WORK AGAIN DELAYED.

The resurfacing work on West Front street, which was held up for several days waiting for a new sliding gear shaft to replace a bent one, has again been delayed by an accident at the quarry, but it is hoped to resume the work in a few days.

HEARING ON CIVIL SERVICE EXTENSION OF TIME RULE

Trenton, Aug. 25.—For the purpose of extending for a period of three days the time within which a candidate in a civil service examination might have to apply for a review of his papers, the Civil Service Commission will hold a public meeting at the State House Tuesday, September 5, on the question of amending the rules in this respect. At present a candidate may make application to inspect his markings within five days after he has been informed of his ratings, but if the rule is adopted he will have eight days. If adopted the rule will read as follows:

"No request for a review of the markings shall be entertained by the commission unless made within eight days of the date when the notice as to the standing of the candidate is sent out, and no change in rating shall be made unless some manifest error shall appear on the face of the papers. No person shall be allowed to inspect his papers for the purpose of having a review made of the marks unless such inspection is made within the said eight days."

BATHING SUITS, CAUTION AS TO ALCOHOL AND CARE OF HAIR, MISS KELLERMANN'S THEMES

Never Use Whisky or Brandy For That "Chilly Feeling," Famous Swimmer Warns.

Wear One-Piece Suits Wherever They Are Permitted. Other Valuable Advice.

Article No. 22.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Of vast importance to swimmers is the bathing suit. There is only one kind of suit to buy; that is the one that is hung from the shoulders, with a one-piece garment underneath.

I believe that on a great many beaches the one-piece suit is now regarded as wholly proper. The fastidious prejudice against it has worn away a good deal. That, as I say, is the ideal bathing suit. But where it is not allowed, the loose garment that is slung from the shoulders will not add much weight or discomfort.

Never have a tight waistband—or even one that is not tight—if you wish to be a good swimmer. It is a decided hinderance. Also, your one-piece undergarment must have feet, so that the stocking and its attendant garter is abolished.

Never forget to take with you a large box of talcum powder. This simple little toilet adjunct is worth its weight in gold in a bath house. A great many women dislike bathing because they say it is so hard to dress afterwards—and that their clothes "stick" when they put them on after a dip.

All this is done away with by using talcum. Use it profusely, all over the body, and dressing after the bath will be a pleasure, instead of a task.

Fear of ruining the hair is, I believe, another great drawback to the sport of swimming for women. I believe in wearing caps. For two reasons! To keep the hair out of the eyes; and to protect it as much as possible. There are few bathing caps that are absolutely waterproof—and when they are they bind the head too closely for comfort.

One reason why women do not become proficient swimmers, as often as men, is because they do not want to wet their hair.

With this end in view they try to keep their heads out of the water; this distorts balance and causes neck strain—both drawbacks to good swimming. I have always advised washing the hair in fresh water, immediately after coming out of a salt bath. And if the swimming has been done in fresh water, a brisk rubbing of the scalp with a rough towel. Do not go around with your hair damp and dripping until it dries naturally.

I want to do away with another custom that is almost universal, if I can. People have a habit of taking a flask of brandy or whiskey with them in case they "become chilled." Indulgence in alcohol after a bath is the worst possible thing. Of course, in a case of heart exhaustion, or fainting or any of the unusual things that may happen to a person unaccustomed to the water, alcohol should be used—but not for the little chilly feeling that sometimes follows a bath.

Exercise is the cure for that. Just three minutes of brisk moving around, running, jumping or simply calisthenics will cause the blood to circulate rapidly. Do not use alcohol execept externally.

I have given you the don'ts. I have outlined the necessary preparations for successful swimming. I have told you how swimming is going to tone up your health and improve your looks. Now it is up to you. If you are really in earnest—and have ambitions toward any of these things—swim and be beautiful!

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann will write about the importance of breathing properly. Not until you have read this article will you understand of what vital importance correct breathing really is.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Little Mermaid Visits A Land Party.

The Great Ship Rocked and Rolled.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

HALF an hour before bedtime daddy told Jack and Evelyn the story of a little mermaid who on her fifteenth birthday visited land and happened to see a young prince celebrate his sixteenth birthday.

"This birthday party was on board of a beautiful ship," daddy began, "and all the sailors were dancing on deck. Suddenly the prince appeared. Then hundreds of rockets went off and made the sea as light as day. This frightened the little mermaid so much that she dived under water.

"But she was very eager to get a good look at the prince. So she soon ventured up again. It was just as if all the stars of heaven were falling in showers around her. She had never even imagined such magic fires.

"Great suns whirled around her, gorgeous firefish hung in the blue air, and all this magic was reflected again in the calm water. It was so light on shipboard that every little rope could be seen. The little mermaid could see the people just as if it had been noon.

"Oh, how handsome the prince was! How he laughed and smiled as he greeted his guests! And all the while the music rang out on the quiet night.

"Finally it became midnight, high time for the little mermaid to dive for her sea home. But she simply couldn't take her eyes off the ship and the beautiful prince. Little by little the colored lanterns were put out, no more rockets brightened the night, and all cannon ceased roaring. But deep down in the sea, where the little mermaid lived, there was a dull murmuring and moaning sound.

"Meanwhile the night waves rocked the little mermaid up and down just like a sea cradle. She enjoyed this very much, but the motion kept her from peeking in at the cabin windows. Toward morning the ship got under way. Sail after sail was filled with wind. The waves grew stronger. Great clouds gathered, and lightning flashed in the distance near the horizon.

"Oh, there was going to be a fearful storm! Soon the sailors had to shorten sail. The great ship rocked and rolled as she dashed over the angry sea. Black waves rose like mountains, high enough to overwhelm the little mermaid. But she dived again and again, like a swan, and always arose safely on their towering crests. She thought it the greatest fun, the most amusing race she had ever been in. But not so the sailors," daddy finished.

"Oh, daddy," cried Jack, "I hope there will be a shipwreck!"

"So do I," Evelyn clapped.

Training a Husband

BY MARGARET LEONARD

The Nervous Husband May Have the Responsibility of Moving, but His Wife Has the Work.

"Marian, our train goes in an hour and a half. How much more have you got to do to get ready?" Morris Southy breezed into the room where his wife was sweeping up the refuse after the packing cases had been removed. "Never mind about the floor. They will have to clean the house anyway."

"I want to leave it respectable. I have a little pride left about my housekeeping." Marian's smile was not indicative of happiness.

"Well, I suppose you know that if we miss the train to Grandport we shall have a big hotel bill to pay and we can hardly afford that." Morris was dressed for the trip and it did not occur to him to help pick up the papers and wads of excelsior on the floor.

"You might get the boys in and wash them. The towels and washrags are in the suit case," suggested Marian.

"You do it much better than I do, I think I will let you do that." Morris began to walk up and down the empty room and whistle.

"Can you empty this basket of trash?" His wife pushed a basket stuffed with excelsior and paper toward him.

"Why, Marian, I have on my good suit. I can't get it all covered with dust." Morris's voice showed great annoyance. Two red spots burned in Marian's cheeks, but she said nothing. After she had emptied the basket and finished the sweeping, Morris, after looking at his watch, announced that only an hour and ten minutes remained before train time.

"Call the boys," she said, as she tiptoed into the bedroom, where the baby was sleeping in his little folding cart. The boys arrived with a whoop and a flourish that waked the baby and set him crying, and ten precious minutes were consumed in quieting him. Robert washed himself and put on his clean clothes while Marian gave her attention to the other children, the time being regularly punctuated by the staccato nagging of her husband. Finally the three children were dressed.

"Pack these clothes in the small suitcase, Morris," called Marian breathless with hurry, taking the baby up to dress him.

The child's nap had been broken and the heat and confusion of the packing had made him very nervous. He protested violently against any further ministrations.

"Can't you stop that child's infernal racket?" snapped Morris irritably.

"I am annoying him on purpose to hear the music," snapped Marian, her nerves at the breaking point. "Here," she said a few minutes later, "he is dressed;; now put his things on and wheel him up and down the sidewalk while I change my clothes." Marian reached out her arms with the crying baby in them to her husband.

"If you think I am going to wheel a screaming child up and down the sidewalk you are mistaken. That is a little too conspicuous." Morris' tone was tart in the extreme.

He again referred to his watch.

"Put these clothes in the suitcase with the others," directed Marian, stepping out of her soiled work clothing and putting them in a pile with the baby's. With fingers trembling with weariness and nervous tension she began to comb her hair. "We have just twenty-five minutes to get to the train," announced the unflagging timekeeper, snapping the suitcase shut and fastening the strap.

Marian sank down on the large suitcase and buried her face in her hands.

"What are you stopping for?" sharply asked her husband. "Do you want to miss the train?"

Marian uncovered her face, pale and tear stained. "You take the suitcase and the children and go on. I must be alone to get control of myself. Leave the baby for me to bring."

"But you will miss the train," Marian put her hand over her ears.

"If I am not there go on without me. Father will come after me tomorrow. Leave me money for a bed at the hotel." There was a look of desperation in her eyes that decided him to do as she said.

"I do not know what you would do, if you had married a man who did not look after things, if you fly the track like this after I have taken all the responsibility," he remarked as he left the house.

Marion made her train.

MEETING OF BANKERS.

Miles City, Mont., Aug. 25.—The success of the Federal Reserve banks, with particular reference to the new system of check collections at par, is to be one of the leading subjects of discussion at the annual convention of the Montana State Bankers' Association, now in session here. Nearly all of the prominent banking institutions of Montana were represented when the convention was formally opened today by President O. W. Butler. Prominent among the speakers to be heard during the two days' sessions will be J. J. Arnold, of the First National Bank of Chicago; Theodore Wold, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis; H. S. Magraw, State bank examiner of Montana, and Dr. E. O. Elliott, chancellor of the University of Montana. Several features of entertainment for the visiting bankers will intersperse the business sessions of the convention.

SILK STITCHING A NEW FORM OF TRIMMING.

Replaces Braiding in Great Many Instances — Fullness Still a Feature of Coats.

By Mary Glynn.

Taking a casual glance of the models already launched for the fall, the predominant features in the way of trimming, it will be noted, seem to lean towards the extensive use of fur trimming and also silk stitching. Many of the most distinctive coats and suits are shown with either or both of these as trimming. A very smart coat has been designed by Bernard in deep red velour de laine and trimmed with Belgian hare fur. From the yoke back the fulness drops in deep folds. The raglan sleeves join to his yoke in balloon effect of Belgian hare. Handsome red silk ornaments trim the sides. On this as in many other new models, silk stitching is used. Seven rows in the same color are shown just above the edge. This lends a rich and attractive form of trimming. The coat was attractively lined with gray soiree silk. High kid button boots and an attractive sailor hat complete the outfit.

ELABORATE BORDER VEILINGS.

A great veiling season is promised for fall and winter not only as accessories, but also as an important part of millinery trimming. Such vogue is on at the present time, and elaborate draped styles are used for the double purpose of trimming the hat and for use as a veil. This fashion will continue for fall.

There will be a place of importance for the bordered nose veil, which is being prepared in a variety of new designs, including dainty woven patterns and motifs in velvet and in chenille. Elaborately bordered novelties will also be strongly featured, especially in hand-run patterns. There are also new veils mounted on bands of rich embroidery which are intended for wear around the crown of the hat. A rich effect is completed by the repetition of embroidery for a band. There will also be a vogue for novelty color combination.

DEMONSTRATE CO-OPERATION.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 25.—The disposal of a carload of meat and other provisions at co-operative prices will be one of the educational features at the two-day outing and convention of farmers and city consumers of farm products, which is to be opened at the State Fair park here tomorrow. The gathering will be held under the joint auspices of the Farmers' Equity Society of Wisconsin and the Federated Trades Council of Milwaukee. From present indications it will be one of the biggest affairs of its kind ever held in this country. A big free barbecue will be given each day, and all of the items on the bill of fare will come from the big co-operative plant in Wausau, which has been built up as a result of the agitation of the Farmers' Equity Society.

INDIANA CHAPLAIN EXPLAINS HIS NUMEROUS DUTIES

Called Up to Do Many Things Besides Looking After the Spiritual Interests of His Regiment.

Some of the Men Who Seldom Attended Church at Home Are Most impressed at the Camp Services.

One of the popular men in the Third Indiana regiment, stationed at Mercedes, Tex., is the Rev. Fred Thornburg, who is the regimental chaplain and the pastor of the First M. E. church of Decatur. Chaplain Thornburg's tent has a library, a desk and a whole lot of things crowded into a small space. But he is so busy that he does not have much time to enjoy its comforts.

"The primary duties of a chaplain are, of course, looking after the spiritual interests in his regiment," said Chaplain Thornburg. "There are other duties, however, that are placed upon him. He is the regimental postmaster and hence has a varied experience along lines that only a postmaster can have. I think a few observations regarding the mail would not be amiss to our friends back home.

"Letters to a soldier should be addressed clearly to his company and regiment, not forgetting the state from which the regiment comes—thus. 'John Brown, Llano Grande, Texas, Company A, Third Indiana Infantry.' There are the First, Second and Third Indiana regiments, the First, Second and Third Minnesota regiments, the Third Texas and the Fourth and Fifth Nebraska regiments in this camp, so that unless mail is distinctly addressed there is sometimes great difficulty in locating the soldier for whom it is intended.

Always Buy a Money Order.

"We also have the field hospital, the signal corps, ambulance companies No. 1 and 2 and Batteries A, B and C. All of these should bear the distinct designation 'Indiana,' not 'Ind.' or 'I.,' to be absolutely sure of delivery. Never put money in a letter. Buy a postoffice money order, an express order, a bank draft, or send a check. There are chances of mail getting lost, and money cannot always be traced. Care in this matter may not only save money, but save from disappointment, homesickness and anxiety at both ends of the line.

"The Third regiment also gives the exchange into the care of the regimental chaplain. The outdoor services on the Sabbath and at other times are full of inspiration. Last Sunday we had a regimental service at 7:30 o'clock in the morning. Holy impressions are made by the Spirit under these conditions when he would not get the attention of many of these men and boys in their own towns. The consciousness that at the time we meet here there are all over the dear old Hoosier State thousands who lift hands of prayer for the boys on the border has a wonderful uplift in it for us.

"Every Saturday evening I distribute Sunday school leaflets for the lesson of the day following, and it is a joy to note the eagerness with which the boys receive these leaflets.

Power In Associations.

"There is a power in these associations on the camp grounds which amounts almost to a hypnotic influence, and many are led into habits of speech and practice which would not perhaps appeal to the boys under other circumstances. To direct the thoughts of these boys along other and holier lines is the great task of the chaplain, and how his heart is exercised that this may be accomplished under the leadership of the Holy Spirit! Last Sunday night the union service was a great event. Chaplain Elijah P. Arthur of the Second Indiana led in prayer, Chaplain Will Emory of the Third Minnesota read the Scripture. Chaplain Clemens of the Second Minnesota delivered the address, which was an impressive one, and I, as chaplain of the Third Indiana, sang 'The Old Flag Never Touched the Ground,' the great congregation, made up of men and youths from all parts of the country, joining in the chorus and the band of the Fifth Nebraska furnishing music. The evening hour, the olive drab atmosphere, the city of tents, the interested faces, the pulsations of human spirits, joined to make an unforgetable impression."

Describes a Hike.

Our correspondent at Selma, Tex., writes:

"Through a land of cotton the First brigade, Illinois infantry, is tramping along today. On an arching road between great fields tipped with white as if by flakes of snow the Chicago infantrymen are hiking and singing. They are on their way to Landa's park, thirty-three miles from Camp Wilson, a region of lakes and woodland which forms the Texas notion of fairyland. This afternoon and tonight the First, Second and Third regiments will pitch pup tents at Selma, and early tomorrow the long eighteen mile leg to the land o' Landa will be completed.

"'Dixie' is the marching song, the whistling song today. Here is the real southland, breathed by the winds which sweep over fields of cotton. It is a different landscape from the rocky, near mountainous, almost tropical region on the road to Leon Springs. There is no thought of dropping at the roadside today, although the sun is beating down fiercely and the road is reflecting heat like the main floor of a bake oven.

"The start was made in solid column early today, with the Second infantry in the lead. A detail from each regiment was left behind at Camp Wilson, and these will be set to work building screened 'banquet halls' for every company. When the regiment returns within a fortnight Camp Wilson will be for all purposes a permanent soldier city, with wooden mess halls, brick kitchen incinerators, fine gravel roads, even an elevated railroad.

"The Seventh infantry is rolling in wealth today, although not in luxurious automobiles. It is marching 1,300 strong and $36,000 rich. Officers and men were paid before the departure from Camp Wilson. While the regiment goes to Landa's park, more than $25,000 of its government pay is going home. The Rev. Father O'Hearn is directing this financial detail."

Apache Scouts Hate Peace.

Indian scouts with Pershing in Mexico are becoming restless in their inactivity. The score of Apaches have been placed in a camp by themselves. There war dances and disputes over the number of notches each is entitled to cut in his pistol stock disturb the peace of the entire base camp. The old scouts who hounded Chief Geronimo thirty years ago have united against the younger element. One of the chief trouble makers, Jesus Valesquez, who laid claim to nine "kills," has gone. Rumor says his departure was due to official invitation.

It also requires close watching to keep beverages with more than 3 per cent alcohol out of the Apache camp. On one occasion Lieutenant Shannon, who is responsible for the good conduct of the Indians, had to call upon his boxing ability to subdue two scouts on a celebration.

War Game on Border.

The game of war is now being played by hundreds of regulars and national guardsmen in the Brownsville district of the Mexican border patrol.

The enactment of one of the most elaborate maneuvers in the solution of war problems since the "red" and "blue" armies' demonstration in New England a few years ago was started simultaneously from Point Isabel, twenty miles from Brownsville, on the gulf coast, and San Benito, twenty miles north of Brownsville. The "invading army," which figuratively has landed in force on the gulf coast, is marching inland to "capture" San Benito. The resisting forces, almost a brigade, which has been stationed at San Benito, have been thrown into the field to protect the town from the invaders. Colonel Robert L. Bullard is in command of the San Benito brigade.

The invaders are the First and Second Virginia infantry, who were sent by motor truck to Point Isabel under command of Colonel William J. Perry. They camped at Point Isabel after executing a maneuver to the coast, where they prevented an imaginary ehemy from landing and marching to Brownsville. It is twenty miles on an air line from Point Isabel to San Benito.

All military tactics with the principles of marching and combat are being fully tried out by the commanding officers. Brigadier General James Parker, commanding at Fort Brown, is accompanying the invading army.

Dye the Army Horses.

"Invisible horses" will be an adjunct to the American army if Uncle Sam fights with Mexico or any other country.

They're making them invisible now at Camp Jones, just east of Douglas.

Conspicuous gray horses are treated with a dye that darkens them to such a color they're almost invisible at 300 yards or more on the deserts of Arizona or Mexico.

In the low desert hills you can sometimes see a man sitting on nothing and galloping through the air. You know he's on a horse, of course, but you can't see the horse.

Veterinary Coleman Nockolds of the First cavalry started dyeing horses. They were the first dyed for United States army use.

In 1905 an effort was made to introduce the system in this country, following its successful use by the British army against the Boers in South Africa. But the war department notified the veterinaries, "There are no paints on hand for this purpose," and the plan was dropped.

Nockolds and Veterinary A. L. Mason of the Sixth field artillery have dyed a number of mounts at Camp Jones with good results. Gray horses are colored so they can't be identified in a group of six pulling a gun.

The dye lasts until the horses begin shedding hair, then it must be renewed. But it's a simple operation, and the animal can be dyed and dried in an hour. Generally he gets a second coat to give him a more even color.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

HE ENTHUSED OVER MARTIN, TOO.

Scout "Cap" Neal, of the Pirate club, is enthusiastic over his latest protege, Billy Evans, picked up from North Carolina. Evans is very green, and has a lot to learn, and it may be that a season in the bushes would be a valuable asset to him, but he has shown in the big league twice, once as a relief man, allowing one scratch hit in four innings against Brooklyn, and beating the Phils in the second game of the double-header on Monday. Evans never seen a major league ball park before he went to Pittsburgh. He was working on a college club and pitched against a couple of minor league teams, but he is one of the real amateurs brought forth. Of course, he will be taken south on the training trip in the spring, and it may be that with the advantage of experience the balance of this year with the Bucs he will stick right with the team, as it looks like a bad season for picking up hurlers of ability, as so many of the would-be phenoms coming out of the bushes have already fallen by the wayside. Neal believes Evans is another Alexander, and the judgment of "Cap" has been justified repeatedly on the showing of youngsters now starring with the Philadelphia Nationals.

UMPIRES TOO "BOSSY."

There is no doubt in the mind of any baseball follower that the umpiring in the National League this season has been about the worst shown for years. All over the circuit comes reports of bad judgment on the part of the umpires, and the meeting in New York recently was for the purpose of discussing conditions. President Tener upheld his men and intimated that whatever they did he would stand by them. This has caused an arrogant spirit among the umpires. A manager or captain of a team has a right to discuss the decisions with the umpire, but since the Tener ruling the umps simply wave their hands for the manager or captain to get back to the bench, or off the field. Baseball managers are managers because they know baseball. They can interpret the rules and plays the same as the umpires, most of them a whole lot better. Yesterday several bad decisions were given in the double-header between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the one in the eighth inning of the second game being about the rankest ever perpetrated at Forbes Field. Warner was called out at third base on a play when the ball was, at the very least, eight feet from him, held by Stock. The only excuse Orth could give for rendering such a decision would be that he thought it a force play, when it was not. But when Manager Callahan went on the field to protest the decision he was told to hustle back to his lair. Umpires should keep the game and the players well under control at all times, but they are going away over the limit since Tener said he would uphold them in anything they did.

M'CARTY ON GIBSON DEAL.

"New York was playing safe. McGraw tried to get Gibson in every way. As soon as Bill Rariden was injured McGraw telegraphed Dreyfuss that he would take Gibson's contract for the balance of the season. He did not offer to pay anything for the release. The day before Dreyfuss had asked for waivers on Gibson, and, according to the rules, a player cannot be sold, traded or released during the waiver period. A few hours after the McGraw offer Dreyfuss was notified by the league offices that New York had laid claim to Gibson. Thus McGraw tried to get Hack for nothing at first, and when he found it would not work at once laid claim. It is understood that there was a sort of mutual understanding among the club owners to pass up Gibson, so that Dreyfuss could give him his unconditional release, but New York took advantage of the waiver clause."—McCarty.

Another tennis star appears who may cause some trouble for the leading lights in the National Tournament next week. One Joseph J. Armstrong, of Philadelphia, seems to be giving some of those with a higher ranking something to worry about. Armstrong was rated in the second ten last year, but showed no great promise for another season. Teamed with W. F. Johnston, a fellow Philadelphian, in the Newport tourney, he won the doubles, defeating the national champions, Johnston and Griffin, and, further back, at Longwood, he was fast enough to defeat Ichiya Kumagae and Griffin in singles. Yesterday he took T. R. Pell into camp on the Southampton court. Pell is fifth in the national ranking. Armstrong uses the chop stroke drive, a precarious method of attack for one who would play consistent tennis, but nevertheless dangerous at any time. He may fail completely at Forest Hills, but his work at least is worth the notice of other contenders.—Newark News.

VAN DEVENTER BOYS SUCCUMB TO DEFEAT

Fail to Register In Semi-Finals at Southampton.

Four individuals and three pairs emerged as victors at the close of play in the Meadow Club tennis tournament at Southampton yesterday, and will play in the semi-finals today. The contestants for the singles cup will be Watson M. Washburn, William J. Clothier, Roland Roberts and Joseph J. Armstrong.

The winning teams in the doubles today were William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, Theodore Roosevelt Pell and Joseph J. Armstrong, and R. Norris Williams and Richard Harte.

The feature contest in the doubles play this afternoon was that between Johnston and Griffin, and William A. Larned and William J. Clothier, formerly holders of the national doubles title. The younger men from California won by 6—4 and 6—4. Although Larned and Clothier played valiantly the pace was too fast for them.

Phil and Ludlow Vanderventer, of this city, representing Princeton, were defeated by C. B. Doyle and John S. Pfaffman, 6—2, 6—2.

KUMAGAE AND MIKAMI TENDERED RECEPTION

The Japanese Society entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Bankers' Club the two Japanese tennis players, I. Kumagae and H. Mikami, who are competing in tournaments in this country. Colonel Robert H. Thompson, who acted as toastmaster, complimented the Japanese on having real sportsmen, who played all games fairly and squarely, and warned the tennis players of America that it was possible that in the near future the Japanese would be the real champions of the game. The speaker said that he did not know of any better means of promoting the friendly relations between two nations than the meeting of sportsmen in athletic competition.

JIM SCOTT SUSPENDED.

Jim Scott, veteran right handed pitcher of the Chicago Americans, was sent home by Manager Rowland for failure to observe training rules, just before the team left New York Wednesday night for the series in Washington. His suspension is indefinite.

"REUBEN HAL" ENTERS WEEQUAHIC RACES

Adam C. Blair Will Drive Gelding Owned by A. C. Hensler.

A large entry has been received for the special matinee to be held tomorrow at Weequahic Park under the auspices of the Road Horse Association of New Jersey. Twelve horses are listed in the Class D trot, and there are eleven in Class C.

The Class A trot will bring together Dolly, S., Bobby Moreland, Duntmo and Coalta, the last named belonging to John C. Miller. The Class A trot will be a three-cornerd fight, the starters being Lustrous McKinney, Justabelle and Olive R.

Reuben Hal's victorious career will be put to a test against Nettie Patch and Captain Ambit. Another colt race will be put on for two and three year old trotters eligible to the 2.35 class.

"Reuben Hal," the bay gelding, owned by A. C. Hensler, of Montclair, will be driven by Adam C. Blair, of this city, and will have as opposition such horses as "Nettie Patch" and "Captain Ambit."

So far as is known, no local horses have been entered in the races.

SUSPENSION LIFTED.

The suspension of Captain John J. Evers, of the Boston Nationals, imposed by President Tener last Tuesday, was lifted yesterday, according to a telegram from the league executive received by President Haughton, of the Braves. Evers' suspension had been announced as "indefinite." It followed words with the umpires in a game at St. Louis last Saturday.

VAN KUEREN WINS.

George Van Kueren, of the Englewood Golf Club, played the 181-yard sixth hole at Ekwanok in a single stroke yesterday afternoon, thus establishing a record for the hole and at the same time reducing the selected hole score of the course from 7 to 36. The feat is remarkable in that during seventeen years of play the hole had never previously yielded a one.

GEORGE ORTLEIB MAY HURL FOR WESTFIELD

Pete Simmons Will Lead His Royal Giants Against Westfield.

Pete Simmons, manager of the Royal Giants, believes in giving the conquered a fair chance for revenge. It was with that idea in mind that he allowed his boys to arrange a third tilt with the Westfield A. A. Although the local team has defeated the Westfield aggregation in each of the two contests already played, Manager Simmons believes in giving the Westfielders a chance for revenge, hence there will be a contest between the Royals and the Westfield A. A. on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon.

According to Manager Simmons, George Ortleb will do the pitching for the visting team and "Senor" Maiden will act in the same capacity for the locals, who will have Condict behind the bat. On third Pete will have Borden, formerly a Pittsburg Colored Giant player. "Tune" Kline will pastime around the first section, with the rest of the line-up remaining the same as that used in the other two contests with the Westfield team. Hall, at one time a pitcher, will pastime in the outfield for the Royals.

INDIAN SIGN LANGUAGE.

Members of Every Different Tribe Can Read These Signals.

A white man who visits a foreign nation finds it hard and sometimes impossible to make his most ordinary wants known. The red man has no such difficulty. The problem of a universal language was solved centuries ago by the savage inhabitants of this western world.

Should an Indian from northern Alaska go to Patagonia he could by means of this universal language converse with his southern brethren almost as easily as he could with his neighbors at home. That would also be the case if he visited Central America or met the tribesmen of our own western prairies and mountains.

When this language was invented no one knows, but every Indian learns it in addition to his own. Recently two chiefs of different tribes met in the Geographical society rooms in Washington and held a conversation that lasted nearly three hours, and yet neither one knew a word of the other's language.

This universal language is, of course, made up of signs. For example, if an Indian is passing through a strange country and sees other Indians at a distance he makes the "peace sign"—that is, he holds up his blanket by two corners so that it covers his whole figure. The same thought is expressed by extending the hands, palms outward, slightly inclined from the face. Any Indian would understand either one of these signs.

Then there are the abstract signs by which these "savages" can express their thoughts with regard to the Great Spirit, heaven, good, evil, life and death, sickness, health, riches and poverty. Life is expressed by drawing an imaginary thread from the mouth and death by chopping this thread off. Another sign for death is to hold the tips of the fingers of one hand against the palm of the other and let them gradually slip downward and at last drop beneath the palm.

Most white people think that the Indian word of greeting, "How," is merely the abbreviation of the question, "How are you?" But that is not so. The word is really "aou," which means "brother" or "friend." So when he comes up and growls out his seemingly inquisitive "How" he is not asking after your health, but telling you that he is a friend.—Youth's Companion.

Jutland and the Sea.

Jutland is one of the few countries where political change has been avoided. Denmark has looked after the Jutes for over 1,000 years without challenge. But the sea has refused to let Jutland alone. Like Holland, it needs the protection of dikes, and but for these there would be considerably less Jutland. Even on the east coast, with its higher elevation, the sea runs into many inlets. One of the longest of these, the Lymfiord, was in 1825 broken into from the west by the waters of the North sea, and the north corner of Jutland has ever since remained an island.—London Chronicle.

Had His Title All Ready.

Disraeli's first novel affords a curious instance of intelligent anticipation. Among the host of characters in "Vivian Grey," most of them slightly veiled portraits of celebrities of the day, Lord Beaconsfield is one of the most important in the secondary rank. The novel was written in 1826, exactly fifty years before the writer assumed the title he had invented. It is usual for novelists to portray themselves in their first book, but no other instance can be found of an author christening a character with a name subsequently to become his own.—London Spectator.

Sheepskin.

Sheepskin was used as parchment before the invention of paper. Even then it was a substitute for vellum, which is made from calfskin and of a far finer quality than parchment, and was employed for fine illuminated work. Tanned sheepskins are in the trade called basils. For these there are many legitimate uses, but it is for imitation purposes that the sheepskin is most largely used.

CAN HARRY STITES REPEAT HIS FEAT?

Will Be Given Opportunity to Repeat His "No Hit" Victory.

The Plainfield A. C. manager has arranged to lead his charges against the St. Joseph club on Hyde Field tomorrow afternoon, and expects to spend a very profitable day in Canada. It is needless to say that the leader of the "Saint" force is equally as hopeful of victory. Therefore the prospects of a heated encounter are very bright.

Harry Stites, who hurled a no-hit game against the Saint team not so long ago, will again be on the mound for the local clan, and it is expected that Gleason will be behind the bat. Eddie Conshay, owing to the fact that he injured his arm, will not be able to adorn the mound for the Saints. Andy McDonough will do the catching as usual, while it is announced that his brother Francis will do the pitching work.

Should this game be won by the Saints a third contest will be necessary. The manager of the North Plainfield team is at a loss to understand why his challenge to the Netherwood team has met with no response. It might be well for Manager McDonough to hold an interview with Manager Jim Scott of the Tabs. It is highly probable that the Abstainers would be eager to take on the St. Joseph team.

ELIMINATION ROUND OF WOMEN'S EVENT

Mrs. Thurston Wright, Sister of Mrs. R. Storey Rowland, Qualifies.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Spring Lake, August 25.—All four matches in the first elimination round for the women's championship of the Spring Lake Golf and Country Club, played yesterday afternoon, resulted in one-sided contests, but the pairing for the semi-finals gives promise of some excellent golf. Mrs. Thurston Wright, of Pittsburgh, a sister of Mrs. R. Story Rowland, of Plainfield, defeated Mrs. Lester Wallace 6 up and 5 to play. Mrs. Frederick A. Potts, the Lakewood Country Club player, had little trouble in putting Mrs. Theodore Hetzler, of New York, out of the running, 7 up and 6 to play; Mrs. C. M. Bragg, of South Orange, defeated Mrs. A. Riesenberg of New York, 6 up and 5 to play, while Mrs. George D. Boschen, of New York, had little trouble in defeating Mrs. A. G. Ellis, of Columbus, Ohio, 8 up and 7 to play. In the semi-finals Mrs. Wright will meet Mrs. Potts and Mrs. Bragg will have to play Mrs. Boschen.

All four who are qualified for the semi-finals have been playing excellent golf all summer, and are thoroughly familiar with the local links, so that fine playing is expected late this afternoon on the round. It is expected that the match will be finished tomorrow.

SITUATION MORE CLEAR.

Andrew L. McDonough, of South Plainfield, says that he did not compete in the Diocesan Union games at Newark because of a Western Collegiate Conference ruling, which prohibits athletes of the "conference colleges" from joining athletic clubs.

An article on this question, appearing in the Sport Topics last night may have been misleading, although the article in question stated that "various college athletes were prohibited from entering by a ruling recently enforced." The information was first given out by a Newark newspaper and has been made more clear to us by Mr. McDonough.—Editor.

CITY LEAGUE ATTRACTIONS CARDED FOR TOMORROW WORTHY OF CONSIDERATION

Netherwoods May Not Bombard Farmers—Hopes and Tabs In Lively Engagement—Dunellen and Baptists Due to Battle—New "Umps" to Get Trial.

Each of the City League attractions carded for tomorrow is worthy of note, inasmuch as there is a very heated race on for second place honors. The contest between the Netherwood and Farmer teams may not attract a large crowd, owing to the apparent weakness of the Farmer squad. But it is reported that the cellarettes are out to win and that they have gathered together nine of the best men on their roster. And, friend fan, there are several good men on the Farmer roster. The trouble is these men have not been coming out regularly for the games. As usual, the Netherwood team will present a strong array of talent in an effort to make their capture of the pennant a valuable one.

The contest between the Baptists and the Dunellens is being well advertised the managers believing that in so doing they are but calling the attention of the crowds to a good attraction. With Freddy Mills on the mound, Manager Dunc Patterson can see nothing but victory. While Manager Apgar is well aware of the Baptist prowess and of the Mills "rep," still he is of the opinion that Johnny Dixon can take care of all the Baptists' aspirations. Time will tell.

The Hope Chapel and Tab baseball teams will get together in an old time clash tomorrow. Much depends on this battle, as each of the two teams is waging a terrific fight to capture third place and, for that matter, second place.

JOHN DOUGHTY IN CASTING CONTEST

Local Man Finishes Fifth In the Accuracy Event.

While John Doughty, the local angler and caster, did not capture any particular prizes at the casting event held at Weequahic Park, Newark, during the past few days, he did make a creditable showing, and was one of the few contestants who made things at all lively for the Chicago entrants, who ran off with practically everything in sight.

Doughty is a member of the Newark Casting Club, and was one of the many subjects for a cartoon in the Newark Evening News. In the light tackle fly the local man registered 87 feet and ranked fifth in this event.

Anglers from the Middle West followed up their success of Wednesday by winnig three out of four events and taking three second prizes in the ninth annual fly and bait casting tournament at Weequahic Park, Newark, yesterday. They proved equally proficient at both distance and accuracy casting, and even in the event in which the Eastern contingent finally broke the run of Chicago victories there was only a margin of one-fifteenth of one per cent in favor of the winner.

Guy C. Jenkins, of Montclair, was the expert whose skill prevented Chicago from making another clean sweep.

In the "quarter-ounce accuracy bait" Mr. Doughty and F. G. Henry, of New York, tied for fourteenth place. A toss of a coin proved lucky for the local caster.

DEAL HANGS FIRE.

The proposed deal involving the trade of Heinie Zimmerman, Chicago Nationals' third baseman, to the Boston National club was still hanging fire last night, President Weeghman, of the Cubs, said. Weeghman planned to confer further with Manager Stallings, of the Boston club. The players whom Boston wants to give for Zimmerman are Third Baseman Smith, Utility Player Fitzpatrick, Pitcher Barnes and Outfielder Wilhoit and Edgar Collins. The Chicago Nationals yesterday purchased Outfielder Earl Smith from the Omaha, Neb., Western League club.

IN MEMORY OF JOHN HAY.

Salem, Ind., Aug. 25.—Washington county today paid eloquent tribute to the memory of one of her distinguished sons when a memorial tablet was unviled to mark the birthplace of the late John Hay, Secretary of State, Ambassador to Great Britain and secretary and intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln. The exercises were held in the Court House park, and the program included addresses by several speakers of prominence. The unveiling of the Hay tablet marked the opening of a three-day celebration of the Indiana Statehood centennial.

10,000 New Yorkers Cheer Mme. Gadski And Show That They Still Love Her.

If Madame Johanna Gadski needed any demonstration of her unshaken hold on the public's affections, despite remarks attributed to her and denied at the time of her husband, Captain Hans Tauscher's arrest and acquittal for alleged complicity in the Welland Canal conspiracy, she received it August 1st. Ten thousand New York music-lovers jammed Madison Square Garden in the sweltering heat to hear the Wagnerian soprano at a Civic Orchestral concert.

Two thousand persons were turned away. Applause shook the rafters of the famous Garden and continued until the prima donna was forced to raise her hands in smiling protest.

Friends of the artist and several New York papers declare that the demonstration had special significance as a complete vindication of the celebrated singer and confidence in the genuineness of her love for this country, in which she has spent the larger share of her career.

Madame Gadski will make an extended concert tour in the fall and then return to the Metropolitan Opera House.

RIGHT AND WRONG WAY TO CUT ROSES

Choice of Latter May Injure Blossom—Producing Properties of Plants.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—There is a right and a wrong way to cut roses. The choice of the latter may seriously injure the blossom producing properties of the plants, it is pointed out by sepcialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This applies particularly, of course, to rose plants chosen and grown especially for cut flower production. Such roses will be largely of the perpetual blooming sorts.

When a rose is cut from such plants—tea roses or other perpetual bloomers—only two or three eyes of the current season's growth of that branch should be left on the plant. This should give the roses very long stems. Succeeding blossoms should be cut close to the ground. It will seem like destroying the bush to take so much off it, but if the object is the production of roses the cutting away of the surplus wood will attain the desired end.

If the spring pruning has not been sufficiently severe the plant is likely to have long, naked stalks and short stems to the flowers. With this character of growth only one or two strong leaf buds should be left on the branch when the flower is cut, so as to stimulate as much growth as possible from the base of the plant.

The greatest temptation to leave wood is where there are two or more buds on one branch, some being small when the terminal one is open. This temptation to follow a bad practice can be avoided by pinching off all side shoots after a bud has formed on the end of a branch. This prevents the formation of two or more buds on one stalk. This summer pruning will encourage additional blooms on varieties which bloom more than once a year.

FOOTBALL AT CALIFORNIA.

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 25.—Football practice begins at the University of California today, the players of the Berkeley institution being the first in the country to don their moleskins in preparation for the 1916 campaign. California is believed to have some excellent gridiron material this year, and there will be no end of competent coaches to whip it into shape. Andy Smith is to continue in supreme charge of the team, and among his assitants will be Bobby Vaughn, his old-time mate at Purdue, and Eddie Mahan the former Harvard star.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

DEMOCRATIC VIEW OF PRIMARIES.

Senator Martine is the victim of indiscretion in daring to express views in opposition to those of President Wilson. Having been elected to office with the favor and through the influence of Mr. Wilson because, forsooth, he was the choice of the people in the primaries, the same influences are now being used to defeat him. In other words, the man who was the choice of the Democratic voters of New Jersey for United States Senator is now being opposed by the machine politicians in every county because the word has been sent out that he does not agree with the administration at Washington. The primary election law, fostered and urged by Woodrow Wilson, has been a dead letter so far as the Democratic party is concerned, ever since Mr. Wilson has possessed the power to subvert it. By forcing candidates to withdraw from the primaries in the interest of party parmony he has repeatedly left the voters no alterpative except to vote for the candidate he and his political machine wanted.

The Gazette is not in favor of Senator Martine, because it does not believe in his thory of politics, but it believes in fair play and in a consistent policy. If the nominee for United States Senator is to be selected by the primaries then the political organization should keep its hands off. If the primary law was as important to the welfare of the country as Mr. Wilson told the people of New Jersey when he made his campaign for Governor, then he should let the primaries select the candidate to succeed Senator Martine and not intercept free primary action by machine dictation.

The word is going about the State that Attorney General Westcott is the administration candidate for Senator, and every effort is being made to have him nominated. Independent Democrats should vote with this information in mind. — Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

'MEN' FOR 'MECHANICS' IS CHANGE MADE BY O. U. A. M.

Atlantic City, Aug. 25.—The national council of the Order of United American Men closed its sessions here yesterday with the installation of officers. It decided to drop the word "mechanics" and substitute "men" in the title of the organization. An attempt to change the laws of the order so that men of foreign birth may be admitted was defeated.

Officers installed were: National councilor, D. Arthur Courrier, Concord, N. H.; vice councilor, E. S. Burlingham, Providence, R. I.; secretary, H. O. Holstein, Harrisburg, Pa.; treasure; Joseph Shinn, Haddonfield, N. J.; marshal, H. C. Callahan, Cambridge, O. Next year's meeting will be held at Harrisburg.

Fifteen thousand fully equipped solders will be at the instant command of President Wilson as the result of action taken by the order. It was decided to equip the Loyal Legion of the order with modern rifles instead of swords and to furnish them with complete khaki equipment.

Song of the Flame.

Fire can be made to sing. A writer says: "Take a lighted candle and blow gently against the flame. You will hear a peculiar fluttering sound. The fluttering sound is fire's first attempt at music. Instead of the unsteady breath of our lips let us employ the steady blast of a blowpipe. Instead of the pale and flickering light of a candle let us use the bright and ardent glare of a chemist's lamp. When you have a lamp and blowpipe you can make fire sing in earnest."

HONOR MOTHER RAYMOND

of great achievements for the community. When in due time you were relieved of the burden of office your advice and encouragement were ever a bulwark to those in charge. Assistant Mother of our dear, lamented Mother M. Gabriel, you did valiant service in those hopeful days, when the dreams of the old days appeared to be realized, and a mother house, simple and majestic, capped the Watchung hills to add lustre to the labor of the old pioneers. Yet, the old pioneers were not destined as yet to rest from their fruitful labors. Their dreams shattered, hope still remained, and upon the ashes of the old, in God's own good time, the new mother house arose, more massive, more enduring, more cherished since refined in the furnace of affliction. Those trying days ever found you, dear mother, a prop to those sorely tried, as you have been since then to our present revered Reverend Mother Superior, Mother Cecelia, in all her great undertakings. You shared in the growth of infancy, you shared in the progress of former years. You shared in its joys and sorrows, and you rightly share in the latter day achievements, for truly there is glory enough for all.

"Short is the story but rich the results.

"Hill top to dear St. Joseph's—St. Joseph's to Mount St. Mary's which we may rightly style the Crown—the Cross, the victory of the early Manchester volunteers. Every volunteer a soldier, every soldier a hero, every hero a martyr, if need be, in the cause of restoring all things in Chirst. Some have answered the last rollcall—peace to their noble souls! You, Mother Raymond, and others survive, praised be to God, who reacheth from end to end mightily and ordereth all things sweetly.

"Thus was the present New Jersey foundation laid. You witnessed the difficulties and struggles of its inception. You braved its perils, shared the labors. You have a just claim to be ranked among its illustrious members and your name recorded on its scroll of honor. Truly the wilderness of New Jersey blossomed into a garden. The flowers of that garden we have endeavored to garner into wreaths and garlands to crown today your noble and deserving brow.

"You, Mother Raymond, have carride into your religious life the qualities of your strong character. Sanctifying these have made those years effective for good. We rejoice that those great talents were put out at interest, and our community and those who came under your benign influence have thereby been enriched.

"These can attest today that your friendship was of that character that meant going the limit to be of service. 'Going the limit' is a very expressive phrase. It reveals the person who despises profession when deeds are demanded. It reveals the character which enters into the joys and sorrows of others and becomes 'all things to all men.'

"It reveals the soul that takes the injunction of serving the neighbor with that seriousness which the words of Chirst always deserve, but which they do not always receive.

"That the lustre of such refulgence bedeck your honored brow, Bordentown, the North Plainfield and Lakewood voices ring down the years that are gone, but glorious records are written by angels' hands.

"We again greet you in this festive hour. We rejoice with you, and we thank God, the giver of every good gift, for the blessings vouchsafed during those years both to you and your community. We pledge you our ardent loyalty and fervent prayers that God, in His unbounded goodness, may give you length of day to continue your noble work in good health and strength; heartening the labors of the Sisters of Mercy, inspiring their ideals and linking the old with the new."

HITLESS BASEBALL.

Remarkable Record That Was Made by Cy Young In 1904.

The proud record for pitching consecutive innings of hitless baseball is held by no less a personage than the Hon. Denton Tecumseh Young of blessed baseball memory. Mr. Young, better known as "Cy," is the holder of several records in unusual feats in the pitching line.

It was back in April, 1904, that Young proceeded to shatter all figures in this line, and before he got through he had created a new record in hurling hitless ball and one which stands today clean cut and without a spot or blemish and without a doubt the greatest piece of pitching the game ever witnessed.

On April 30 against the Washington team Young took Winter's place in the third inning, no one out, and pitched out the game, retiring the next twenty-one batsmen in order. Young's next game took place May 5 against the Athletics. Cy pitched the best game of his long and honorable career that day and retired twenty-seven of those famous swatsmen of Connie Mack in a row. In a game against Detroit on May 11 Denton T. pitched his famous fifteen inning 1 to 0 game against the Tigers, and in the first seven innings Young set them down without a base hit.

This would give Cy twenty-three innings of hitless ball, or, in other words, as far as the records show, six straight batters stepped to the plate and were retired in succession. In that same period the big Ohioan pitched forty-eight consecutive innings where in his opponents failed to get a run across the plate. After his great no hit-no run game against the Athletics he pitched fifteen innings of runless ball, as mentioned, against the Tigers with Ed Killian opposing him. It was a battle royal, and the clever Killian met defeat by a score of 1 to 0.—New York Sun.

SUNDAY AT OCEAN GROVE.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 25.—The annual summer assemblies of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association have been famous for years, but the revival which opens here tonight under the same auspices promises to far eclipse any of its predecessors in the matter of attendance, interest and enthusiasm. The secret of the extraordinary interest in this year's revival is to be found in the fact that "Billy" Sunday is announced as the principal speaker and chief attraction. The meetings will continue until Labor Day. The engagement will be one of the shortest ever filled by Sunday, and it is expected to be as full of Sunday "pep" as any of the revivals conducted by the famous evangelist in any of the larger cities.

CORPORATION NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., will receive sealed bids at the Council Chambers, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting of said Council to be held therein on Tuesday, September 5th, 1916, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., for the erection and construction of a City Hall Building on Watchung Avenue, corner of East Sixth Street, in said City.

Plans and specifications and forms for proposals for such proposed building can be obtained by bidders on application to Messrs. Peck & Bottomley, Associate Architects, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York city by filing references for approval and depositing with said Architects certified check for $25.00, payable to the order of the Treasurer of the said City, which check will be held until the return of such plans and specifications. Also the plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The work will be let in four (4) contracts: 1st—For General Construction; 2nd—For Plumbing, gas fitting and work kindred thereto; 3rd—For Steam heating; 4th—For Electrical work. Separate bids will be received for each of these contracts.

All bids must be on the forms furnished with the specifications and in compliance with the "Instructions to bidders" accompanying the same, and accompanied by certified check on some solvent bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Treasurer of said City, to the amount of five per cent. of the bid submitted. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed enveloped addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

Dated August 7, 1916.

(Signed) JOHN J. CARROLL,
City Clerk.

RIVAL CANDIDATES SPEAK IN NEWARK

Colgate and Edge Appear Before Essex County Republican Committee.

BOTH WELL RECEIVED

Gubernatorial Aspirants Refer to Each Other In Complimentary Terms and Agree to Be Friends Irrespective of Result.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 26.—Rival candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, Senator Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic City, and Colonel Austen Colgate, who has just resigned as Senator from Essex county, appeared here last night before the Essex County Republican Committee at the most interesting meeting of the campaign thus far in Essex. The committee some time ago gave its unanimous indorsement to Colgate, and report had it that Edge would not be invited to address the official Essex organization. Recently, however, the Atlantic Senator made a request for a hearing, and it was immediately granted. When he appeared tonight he received a most courteous greeting, although naturally the meeting resolved itself into a demonstration in favor of the home candidate. Herbert W. Taylor, chairman of the committee, presided.

An interesting feature of the occasion was the appearance of former Governor Edward C. Stokes, who recently announced that, in the interests of party harmony, he would not be a candidate for United States Senator on the Republican ticket. Former State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, another Republican aspirant for the United States Senatorship, was also invited, but was not present. When Mr. Stokes announced that he would not enter the Senatorial contest it was expected that he would throw the weight of his influence to former Governor Franklin Murphy, now Mr. Frelinghuysen's only opponent. Tonight the expectation was fulfilled. In a characteristically forceful speech Mr. Stokes lauded Mr. Murphy for the services he had rendered to the State as Governor and characterized him as a distinguished citizen and patriot.

Other speakers were Congressman Richard Wayne Parker and Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, of Newark.

Colgate and Edge in their speeches referred to each other in complimentary terms, and declared they would continue to be friends, no matter what the result of the campaign might be.

"We are all good Republicans," said Senator Edge, the first speaker of the evening, "and though we may differ as to men we don't differ as to principles."

Under the direct primary law, the Senator went on to say, it remained for the candidate to make his own appeal to the voters. Friends and committees might help, but it was the candidate himself who really counted. He then explained why, in his opinion, he was the logical candidate. He referred to his work as party leader in the House and Senate, and declared that as a candidate for Governor he stood for economy and efficiency in governmental affairs.

Colonel Colgate said in part:

"I have sent in my resignation as Senator because I am going to be Governor. I hope Walter will find friends here, but not too many. As I said at our last county committee meeting, I sincerely wished him to appear before us, and felt confident you would give him a hearyt greeting. I was at Atlantic City on Tuesday of this week and find that I have a great many friends there.

"This is my first appearance here for some time as a private citizen. I have sent in my resignation as Senator of this great county of Essex. It has been accepted, and my railroad pass went with it. Nobody can ask for the votes of his fellow citizens for the high office of Governor without realizing the seriousness of its responsibilities, and no one should seek that office unless he believes himself and unless his friends believe him thoroughly qualified to assume those responsibilities. I have now completed eight years of service in the Legislature, and I wish to thank the members of this county committee in general for the loyal way in which they have stood by me whenever I have been a candidate for office.

"The direct primary is hard on the candidate, but good for the people, because it gives the man opportunity to see the candidate face to face and hear what he has to say, and this naturally develops an interest in him which leads to a more careful study of his record. No matter who the successful candidate may be in this contest, I will support the nominee of the party."

TROOPERS NEED TOWELS.
One of the needs of the men on the border is soap, according to a letter received in this city. The trooper said that there was a shortage of soap and towels, and that the men would appreciate gifts of this kind.

CARDINAL GIBBONS GUEST AT LUNCHEON

Presented to a Number of Summer Folk at "Seawood," Lakewood.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Spring Lake, Aug. 26.—Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop O'Connell, of Richmond, Va., who are spending a week here as the guests of Paul Marquis and Mrs. Martin Maloney, were presented to a number of well known summer folk at a luncheon given this noon by Samuel Heilner, of Philadelphia, at his summer home, Seawood. One of the guests at the luncheon was Alexander J. Hemphill, of New York, who has just returned from Belgium, where he went on work connected with the American Relief Commission, during which time he met Cardinal Mercier. The American Cardinal and Mr. Hemphill had a long talk prior to the luncheon.

On Thursday and yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Maloney held informal receptions for his eminence at Ballingary, and yesterday noon a luncheon was given for the priests from neighboring churches. Last night the Cardinal, who is 83 years old, and Rev. Aaron E. Ballard, president of the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association, who is 95, and who have been friends for several years, dined together at the Maloney residence, there being no other guests. Tomorrow noon Mr. and Mrs. James D. Callery, of Pittsburgh, will give a luncheon at their summer home at Brielle in honor of the guests. The Cardinal, who has visited Mr. Maloney for a week each year for many years, and Bishop O'Connell will leave on Monday.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED OF MISS IDA STEWART

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, of West Seventh street, today announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ida Stewart, to Louis A. Clausel, American Vice-Consul General who has been stationed at Panama for the past three years. Mr. Clausel has just been transferred to Havana, Cuba. He comes from a family of diplomats, his father, the late Louis A. Clausel, Sr., having been consul at Lima, Chile. Miss Stewart is a sister of former Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of this city. The marriage of Miss Stewart and Mr. Clausel will take place in the early fall.

BUSINESS COLLEGE HEAD CAUSES ARREST OF TWO

William Hill and Sam Pelligan were arraigned in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct. They were arrested on complaint of A. S. Herr, of the Plainfield Business College, who charged that they destroyed property in the rear of his building on Front street. The cases were allowed to go over until Monday.

ACCUSED OF COMPETING WITH MUTT AND JEFF

Robert Semer put on a performance of his own in the balcony of the Plainfield Theatre while Mutt and Jeff were holding the stage last night. He annoyed the other theatregoers and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct made by the management. The case was continued until Monday.

FINED $25 FOR DISORDER ALONG EAST THIRD STREET

For failure to observe the written laws of health and the common law of decency Joseph Feinberg was this morning fined $25 or thirty days by Judge DeMeza in police court. Feinberg was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct as a result of a complaint made by citizens along East Third street.

"THE UNSAVED DEAD."
J. F. Emerson, of New York, will give a free lecture at 204 West Front street tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, on "The Unsaved Dead. Where Are They? Is There Any Hope For Them?" Mr. Emerson will discuss the subject from a Biblical standpoint.

GOSPEL TENT MEETINGS.
The public is cordially invited to attend the evangelistic services of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in the Gospel tent located on Watchung avenue, between Front and Pearl streets, near the Y. M. C. A. Service every evening at 8 o'clock, except Monday. Also Sunday morning at 10:30. On Tuesday evening the fourth of a series of sermons on the "Second Coming of Christ" will be given.

Rev. Carl Anderson will preach at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Swedish Lutheran church on East Sixth street.

THIRD FAILS TO INDORSE MR. COX

Republicans Accuse Prohibitionists of Holding Up Action.

NO ONE FOR COUNCIL

Ask Calkins to Run Again—De Meza and Buckle Also Indorsed—Warm Debate Follows Efforts to Pick a Candidate For This Fall.

A brief, but stormy session of the Third Ward Republican Club was held in the Washington School last night and adjourned without action having been taken on a candidate for Councilman. Old line Republicans charge that the element present that voted down a resolution indorsing Councilman Robert H. Cox, have a Prohibition candiate stabled in a quiet secluded spot, but no mention was made of any man who may seek the nomination.

The club indorsed Leighton Calkins for Mayor, William G. De Meza for City Judge and J. F. Buckle for freeholder. The Calkins resolution was an indorsement of his record in office and a personal appeal that he content to run again. J. J. Carroll was re-elected president and John Osborne, secretary.

Opposition to the Cox resolution was led by John McLaughlin, of 1956 Arlington avenue, who insisted that the club has no right to take the initiative in the selection of a councilmanic candidate. He was supported in this by a vote of almost two to one when a vote was taken.

John J. Carroll, city clerk, chairman of the City Republican Committee and president of the Third Ward Club, fought hard to have the club indorse Mr. Cox. Mr. Carroll said that the councilman has answered the call of his country and was now on the Mexican border, exposed to the dangers of alien bullets and the hardships of border life. Mr. Carroll said that every man in the ward should be able to honestly indorse the work of Mr. Cox as a member of the Council for the past two years, and he suggested that such a resolution be passed. He did not believe that Mr. Cox would run again, but urged that the Third ward voters do all in their power to secure his consent.

Mr. McLaughlin objected. He thought that the work of selecting a candidate for public office was one which belonged to the people and could not be delegated to a political club. J. C. McClymont supported Mr. McLaughlin in this, and added that there were some in the ward who were not ready to fully indorse the record of Mr. Cox. A resolution by J. H. Cose, carrying out the wishes of President Carroll, lost by a vote of 26 to 15.

Mr. Carroll said that for three years heh sab been persuading men to run for the Common Council and he wanted to know where Mr. McLaughlin intended finding candidates if ward clubs did not take action.

William Power wanted to know who Mr. McLaughlin's candidate was. He was told that his question could not be answered in open meeting. He asked if he would be told in private later, but during the debate a motion to adjourn was made and carried.

DONATIONS WANTED.
Any donations of fruit, flowers, vegetables, delicacies and anything suitable for the sick will be greatly appreciated by the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild. Donations may be sent Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock and Tuesday morning from 9 to 10:30 to the rooms of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, 10 Madison avenue, Babcock biulding. Persons having no way of sending may notify J. M. Harper, 237 East Sixth street, telephone 758, and a messenger will call for same.

BOROUGH COURT CASE.
John C. Hill, of Woodbrook Farms, was fined $5 in the borough court this morning, the charge against him being brought by Chief Marshal Weiss. Hill was driving cattle through the streets and was allowing them to trespass on the sidewalk and lawns.

APPROACHING WEDDING.
Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Terry, of 216 East Fifth street, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Daisy Compton, to James F. Hill, formerly of Brooklyn, but now of this city.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

PAROLED PRISONER IS CAPTURED HERE

Wm. Cass Arrested By Chief Marshal Weiss After a Hard Chase.

Clever work on the part of Chief Marshal George Weiss, of North Plainfield, last night resulted in the return to the Rahway Reformatory of a youth named William Cass, who had been on parole at a farm in Deerfield, South Jersey, who had committed, it is alleged, at least two robberies while on parole.

Cass, who had been freed from the Rahway Reformatory, was secured a position as farm hand in Deerfield, a careful watch being kept on his actions while there. He, however, demonstrated that he cared but little for his freedom, for he was soon suspected of robbing the farmer who employed him. He was not caught and escaped to Camden, where he remained for some time, and where he is also wanted for robbery. As on the previous occasion, he was not caught and the Camden authorities sent out a general alarm for him. One of the messages was delivered to Chief Weiss, who received a verbal description of the culprit. The appearane of an officer from Camden strengthened the belief that the thief had taken refuge in this vicinity and that perhaps, he had fled to the Watchung mountains.

The Camden detective decided that he would scour the mountains, while Chief Weiss kept a strict watch while making his daily rounds. For some reason, instinctively, perhaps, Chief Weiss journeyed to the corner of Madison avenue and Front street, where he saw a man who answered the description given by the Camden authorities. The North Plainfield officer, in order not to attract the attention of the suspect, advanced slowly.

But Cass was also on the alert and, after taking one glance at the chief, started on the run down Madison avenue. Chief Weiss followed. The man turned in an alley, running between Simmons' pool parlors and a shoemaker's shop. This alley has not outlet, and the only thing Cass could do was to give himself up or climb to the roof of one of the adjoining buildings. He chose the latter course and climbed the fire escape of the Silbert building, where he was caught by Chief Weiss, who had been close at his heels during the entire chase. The man was turned over to the Rahway authorities today.

The part played by Chief Marshal George Weiss is today causing considerable commendation. Cass was known to have been a desperate youth and it was feared that he might have been armed. To corner such a character required nerve and incurred much risk, but the North Plainfield officer possessed the "nerve," took the risk and is still on duty, ready to repeat the feat at a moment's notice.

FOUR MORE CHILDREN ARE PLAGUE VICTIMS

Cases Now Total Twenty-five, Seven Deaths—First Victim Recovers.

Four new cases of infantile paralysis, bringing the total for the week up to twelve, the largest number since the epidemic broke out, were reported to the Board of Health today. There has now been twenty-five cases in the city up to date and of this number seven have died.

Stanley Bennis, the 3½-year-old son of Joseph Bennis, of 1353 West Third street, is reported as having a mild case of the plague. After several days observation it was decided that Edna Hughes, 9-year-old daughter of Edward Hughes, of 1218 Columbia avenue, had been stricken with the disease and the same was in the case of Ernest Johnson, colored, eight years of age, who lives in the Reed family at 312 East Fourth street. Raymond Hunt, the fourth victim of the plague, was stricken yesterday afternoon. He is 2 years old, colored, and lives at 617 West Fourth street.

Max Lewis, the first one in Plainfield to develop the disease, and who has been ill since the forepart of July, was released from quarantine this morning, and has recovered from practically all the effects of the plague. Dr. Ellis Campus attended the boy and hopes to effect an entire cure.

URGE NEED OF PUBLIC COMFORT STATION HERE

Members of the Public Affairs Committee of the Common Council are considering the erection of a public comfort station in the heart of the city, as the result of a request made Thursday night by a committee from the Business Men's Association. J. J. Varley, chairman of the committee, urged the immediate need of such a station. The Councilmen admitted that one should be provided, but were not convinced that it would be a good plan for the city to acquire property for this purpose. Conditions in other cities will be investigated and a report made within a short time.

ALLOW WILSON UNTIL TONIGHT

Strike Will Be Called Then If No Agreement Is In Sight.

UNION MEN DISGUSTED

Railroad Executives Called to White House Again For Last Conference—They Refuse Demands As to Eight-Hour Day.

Washington, Aug. 26.—President Wilson remained in Washington today, giving up his usual week-end cruise on the Mayflower. He stayed at the White House to be ready to meet the delegation from the presidents or the brotherhoods whenever they were ready to call upon him. The situation as it stands today is not very hopeful, although the railroad presidents are desirous of exhausting every means of adjusting the wage controversy amicably.

Early today the four brotherhood presidents held a conference at the National Hotel concerning yesterday's developments in the threatened railroad strike situation. At the brotherhood headquarters it was openly declared that if the President was not successful in bringing about an agreement today the men would take such action as would force the breaking off of all negotiations. The four presidents today decided to take up their discussion with the men at the Bijou Theatre in order that they may know exactly what the situation is. This conference is expected to last until 12 o'clock, when the borther-hood presidents are expected at the White House again to confer with President Wilson.

Three of the general chairmen of the employes have left for their homes in disgust after serving notice on the President that if the railroad heads do not act tonight the entire committee will disband and order the walkout.

The President is frantically endeavoring to avert the strike, and it was only after urgent pleading by him that the men agreed to delay action until this evening.

He will meet their general committee at noon to discuss the long delayed answer of the road executives, drawn at a session which lasted until after midnight. This is frankly admitted to be a disappointment, in that it proposes the arbitration of the eight-hour wage question.

The provisions of the plan grant less to the men than they would receive under the President's proposal. It gives an eight-hour basis day, but not at the ten-hour wage rate. The rate is to be put before a commission of five, to be appointed by the President.

PUBLIC WILL HAVE 5 DAYS' NOTICE OF STRIKE

If a tie-up of all freight and passenger trains in this country is ordered as a result of failure to reach an agreement at Washington the public will receive at least five days' notice.

This is how the big railroad strike will be declared—if the final break is not averted:

The brotherhood chairmen will leave Washington, each with a sealed envelope containing the strike order, with the hour it is to begin written in. They will open the envelopes upon the receipt of a single code word from the brotherhood leaders, who will be in New York, and thereupon follow the sealed orders.

It will take five days for some of the chairmen to get home.

MRS. E. D. PFENDER'S WILL IS PROBATED

Plainfield Woman Leaves Undivided Interest In Valuable N. Y. City Property.

New York, August 26.—That Mrs. Eliza D. Pfender, widow of Carl Pfender, and mother of Helen D. Pfender, of Plainfield, left an undivided interest in premisees at 468 West Thirty-third street, and in premises at 16 East Twenty-eight street here, when she died on July 10 last, is revealed by the filing today of an exemplified copy of her will in the Surrogate's Court here.

What she left outside of this State the papers on file do not show. Her will, however, which was admitted to probate in the Union County Probate Court on August 2 last, shows that she directed her net estate to be distributed among her three children, who are also the executors, as follows:

Helen D., the piano, clothing, jewelry, crockery, glass and silverware, table and bed linen, towels, spreads and blankets, and one-third of the residue.

The remaining two-thirds of the residue equally between Louis D., of East Cranford and Carl D., of 523 West Franklin avenue, Ridgewood. The instrument is dated April 5, 1906.

AERONAUTIC RIFLE PRACTICE ARRANGED

Official Orders Are Issued For Exhibition On Thursday, August 31.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Sea Girt, August 26.—Official orders for the first aeronautic rifle practice ever held in New Jersey, and so far as is known by General Bird W. Spencer, inspector general of rifle practice, for the country, were issued today by General Spencer. Because Governor James F. Fielder was unable to make arrangements to be present on Tuesday, the date originally announced for the exhibition, it has been postponed until next Thursday afternoon, at 3o'clock.

A special target is being constructed back of the 200-yard pit on the State range. It will be 50 feet long, and through the centre of it will be a black strip six feet wide which must be hit to count. All flights of the machine will begin from in front of Governor Fielder's summer cottage, at the west end of the grounds, and the aeroplane must approach the target at an elevation of 300 feet, firing from approximately 600, 500, 400, 300 and 200 yards, both approaching the target and while flying away. On the first flight the contestants will fire single shots at each distance, and on subsequent flights magazine rifles will be used. General Spencer has given specific orders that no shots must be fired while the aeroplane is making the loop, which may be over the ocean or over the Governor's cottage, and does not necessarily have to be confined to the camp grounds.

The aeroplanes will be of the latest army type, coming here from Governor's Island, and flown by Albert Heinrich, a licensed aviator. The firing will be done by Lieutenant J. Homer Stover and men picked from the group of twenty-three in the aeronautical section of the First Battalion Naval Reserves, of Hoboken.

HAROLD LEACH SERIOUSLY INJURED AT SPICER PLANT

Harold Leach, of 79 Manning avenue, was quite seriously injured while at work in the Spicer plant at South Plainfield yesterday. Leach was running an emery wheel, when several pieces of emery flew into his eyes. He was taken at once to a physician and the pieces were removed. It is not thought that his sight will be impaired by the accident.

LOIZEAUX LUMBER CO. ENTERED BY BURGLARS

Burglars got into the Rock avenue office of the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company some time last night and ransacked the room. The robbery was reported to the police station at 6:45 this morning by Mr. Loizeaux and Sergeant Saffron made an investigation at once. He found that entrance had been forced through a side door. All that was missing was thirty cents from the cash drawer.

MRS. JACOB VAN DEVENTER LEFT ESTATE OF $700

New York, August 26.—That Mrs. Marion Hall Van Deventer, of Plainfield, left about $700 in this State when she died on July 10, 1913, is shown by an application for letters of administration upon her estate made by her husband, Jacob L. Van Deventer, of 632 Woodland avenue, Plainfield, which today is on file in the Surrogate's Court, addressed to Surrogate John P. Colahan.

Mrs Van Deventer died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., and beside her husband, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall.

ASBURY PARK MAN HURT ON RAILROAD AT GARWOOD

William Clavis, colored, of 86 Fisher avenue, Asbury Park, is in Muhlenberg Hospital today with contusions and cuts about the head and shoulders and internal injuries as the result of an accident between Garwood and Westfield early this morning on the New Jersey Central railroad. At Muhlenberg Hospital this morning it was said that there was a chance for the man to recover.

Clavis is a workman on train No. 4 and was caught between two cars as he was coupling them. By presence of mind the man was able to keep himself from being drawn under the train. He was brought to this city and taken to the hospital shortly after.

There will be preaching services at Grace M. E. church tomorrow at 11:00 and 7:45 o'clock by a student from Drew Seminary. The Sunday-school will meet at 9:45 o'clock in the morning for persons over 16 years of age.

GERMANS DRIVEN FROM MAUREPAS

Kaiser's Son Has Narrow Escape From Capture By French.

THE BRITISH ALSO GAIN

Von Hinderberg Takes Offensive Against Russians—Germans In New York Admit Bremen May Have Been Captured.

London, Aug. 26.—Following successes won by the most desperate fighting, the French have cleared Maurepas of the foe, and today their lines are within two miles of Combles, which powerfully fortified village they are steadily flanking.

The British, likewise advancing in the face of stubborn resistance, have plunged ahead several hundred yards in the Guillemont sector, bringing their lines on even terms with the French advance through Maurepas. The Germans' lateral communications with Clery are cut and Combles is menaced from the south by the French and from the north by the British at Guillemont.

Prince Eitel Frederick, of Prussia, the second son of the Kaiser, was the German commander whose troops were driven out of the outskirts of Maurepas. The troops were the first division of the Prussian Guards, the corps d'elite of the eGrman army, Paris dispatches say. The French repulsed all their counter attacks and held their ground.

Believe Bremen Captured.
New York, August 26.—The story that the German submersible merchantman Bremen has been captured by the British, reported by passengers arriving on the Baltic and a week ago on the Andania, was generally accepted as true in German official circles todyy.

While men close to the German embassy deny any official news of the capture has been received, they say the Bremen is many weeks overdue and they believe she has been either captured or sunk.

The submersible which is expected at New London any day is the Amerika, they admitted.

Russians on Defensive.
London, Aug. 26.—The last twenty-four hours have brought a series of fierce attacks by the southern wing of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army, east of Lida, and by von Linsingen's troops defending Kovel, in Volhynia.

Petrograd officially announces that all were beaten off.

ENGLAND RAISES BLACKLIST ON MARINE INSURANCE

Washington, Aug. 26.—The Department of Commerce has received a cablegram from the American Consul General at London which says: "Controller Foreign Trade Department makes public license to British underwriters and insurance companies to carry into effect marine insurance contract made with persons in the United States, notwithstanding that such persons are on statutory blacklist, provided such contracts were made prior to such persons being placed on the list. The license applies to any contract for marine inusurance or insurance against fire or any other risk of goods or merchandise during transit from the shipper or manufacturers' warehouse until deposited in warehouse or termination of transit where any part of transit is by sea."

THE TEMPERATURE.
The temperature for today is as follows: 9 a. m., 74 degrees; 11 a. m., 82 degrees; 12:30 p. m., 96 degrees.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town. INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

VAN DEVENTER BOYS AT FOREST HILLS

Phil and Ludlow Van Deventer Draw Notable Opponents In Singles Event.

Although the challenge round for the doubles championship of the United States will be a big feature of the opening day of the national championship tennis tournament at the West Side Tennis Club courts, Forest Hills, L. I., next Monday, there will be a number of singles matches on the championship courts, which should which should prove of unusual interest. The fact that Maurice E. McLoughlin, of California, will make his first appearance in the East in the doubles match overshadows everything else on the opening day. McLoughlin will play on the challenging team with Ward Dawson against the national champions, William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin. At a meeting of the committee, held last night, the challenging round was scheduled for half-past three o'clock Monday afternoon.

In the official singles draw Phil Van Deventer, of this city, secured as opponent, C. Stanley Rogers, of the Merion Cricket Club. Ludlow Van Deventer drew Robert Leroy, of the West Side Tennis Club, as his opponent. The younger Van Deventer brother will participate in the third match.

PATRIARCH OF ANGLERS SPRINGS SURPRISE

Though In Ill Health, Julius Ranney, Aged Seventy-three, Captures Prizes.

Julius M. Ranney, of Chicago, patriarch of anglers, though in ill health, scored over younger occupants in the one-half ounce bait miss and out event in the National Fly and Bait Casting Tournament at Weequahic Park, in Newark, yesterday.

Because of his poor physical condition, Mr. Ranney, who is seventy-three years of age, was lightly regarded by his opponents as the possible winner of the competition. These, however, were quick to recognize the merit of the veteran's performance and heartily congratulated him on his success.

Another surprise in connection with the event was the elimination of William Stanley, of the Illinois Casting Club, and Lou S. Darling, of the Newark Bait and Fly Casting Club, in the first round.

John Doughty, of this city, was one of the competitors in the annual casting contests. Although out of practice, Mr. Doughty made a fine showing.

PRINCETON'S RALLY FOR PREPAREDNESS

Practically 15 Per Cent. of Student Body Enrolled In Military Training Camp.

Princeton, Aug. 26.—The military preparedness cause is receiving tremendous support from Princeton University students and alumni this summer, according to figures learned here today. Practically fifteen per cent. of the entire student body have thus far been enrolled in this year's military training camps and this number is three times greater proportionally than that of any other of the country's large colleges. Harvard's percentage ranks second and Yale's third, with Cornell, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and Williams showing much smaller enrollments. The figures are revised to the present weke.

In addition to sending large delegations to the training camps, Princeton is well represented on the naval practise cruise and several hundred men are in service on the Mexican border. The Princeton total of students in training camps is 259, compared with Harvard's 432 and Yale's 187, but the percentage, due to Princeton's smaller total list, is 15 per cent. for Princeton, compared with about five per cent. for Harvard and four per cent. for Yale. The total students and alumni is Harvard 1,548, Yale 902, Princeton 756, Cornell 615, Columbia 513, Pennsylvania 399, Williams 350 and Dartmouth 225. There have thus far this summer been 9,932 college men enrolled in the training camps of the country.

EGAN ROAD BILL IS CALLED A FAILURE

Road Commissioner Stevens Says It Is Not Lawful.

Trenton, Aug. 26.—After thorough investigation State Road Commissioner Edwin A. Stevens is convinced that the plan provided by the Egan road act, even if adopted by the voters at the November election, cannot be legally carried out, and he has so informed Governor Fielder in a formal report. Stating his conclusion, Mr. Stevens says:

"I have done my best to devize ways under which the plan laid down in the act could be lawfully carried into effect, but without success. I am finally persuaded that a State highway system is the only solution of our road problem."

The report of the commissioner is based on an official estimate of the cost of the roads designated in the act to be improved and an opinion by Attorney General Westcott. According to the estimates the work proposed would cost nearly $10,000,000 while the act authorizes a bond issue of only $7,000,000.

It is in this difference that the legal obstacle arises, the Attorney General holding that if the proads provided for in the act cannot be built for $7,000,000, the duty of the Road Department is at an end. In other words, according to the ruling of Mr. Westcott, the Road Commissioner would not be justified in diverting money from the motor vehicle fund or that received from the Federal government in carrying out the provisions of the Egan act.

REUNION OF REDHEADS.

Indianapolis, Ind., August 26.—Broad Ripple, which is the nearest approach to a summer resort within reach of the Hoosier capital, is to be the scene of a gathering tomorrow that promises to illuminate the surrounding country more brilliantly that did the first natural gas well that first brought prosperity to the community a quarter of a century ago. The gathering will be the first annual reunion of the Society of Indiana Redheads. Every redhead in the Middle West has been invited to attend. A banquet, boating, bathing and races on white horses will be included in the entertainment program. The chief promoter of the affair is Sheriff William Black, of Alexandria, who boasts a top-piece rivalling the lurid brilliancy of the red county lockup.

MARKET 90 YEARS OLD.

Boston, Mass., August 26.—Historic Faneuil Hall Market, familiar to all visitors to Boston, perked up a bit today in celebration of its ninetieth birthday. The long, low building, occupying a site immediately to the rear of Faneuil Hall, has practically the same outward appearance as it did when it was first opened on August 26, 1826. The structure is built of massive granite blocks which were hauled from the quarries at Quincy by ox teams. The market is familiarly called "Quincy Market," to distinguish it from the market in Faneuil Hall proper, the lower floor of which was used for market purposes as early as 1795, half a century after it was given to the town by Peter Faneuil.

Miss Marie R. Salisbury, of Plainfield, is at the New Monmouth Hotel, Spring Lake Beach, for a fortnight.

Mrs. Maze Edwards, of Plainfield, who has been spending some time at Caseville, Michigan, will return soon after Labor Day.

GRAND ARMY MEN TO MEET IN KANSAS

Elaborate Arrangements Made For the National Encampment of War Veterans.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 25.—The arrangements for the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, with its several affiliated bodies, which will hold forth in Kansas City next week, were completed today. In connection with the meetings of the Grand Army there will be held the annual gathering of the National Woman's Relief Corps, the National Daughters of Veterans, the National Sons of Veterans, the National Ladies' Aid Society, the National Ladies of the G. A. R., the National Army Nurses' Association, the National Association of Naval Veterans, and the National Association of ex-Prisoners of War.

The meetings and reunions of these through the entire week. The feature of the week will be the parade of the Grand Army men on Wednesday, when it is expected, veterans variously estimated at from fifteen to twenty-five thousand, will be in line. Another event of the week, though not included in the official program, will be the visit of Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President. Mr. Hughes is scheduled to be in Kansas City on Friday and it is expected that thousands of the old soldiers and their friends will crowd Convention Hall on Friday night to hear his address.

The court of honor and other main features of the decorative scheme are being hurried to completion. Convention Hall, where the main sessions of the encampment will be held, together with numerous other public buildings, hotels and large office structures are already brilliantly togged out in the national colors. A birds-eye view of the business center today shows workmen busy on tops of all the large retail stores preparing the decorations put in place on the fronts of their respective buildings.

A surprise is in store for everybody, for the displays will be most elaborate. Huge G. A. R. emblems, mottoes and other electrical effects and some entirely new displays are to be seen in the downtown district. A favorite form of decoration is a huge American flag of electric lights, which is equally effective day or night.

Although the opening of the encampment is still two days away, the railroad depots, hotels and downtown streets already present many advance signs of the great annual reunion. Visitors are already arriving in large numbers and tomorrow the rush will be on in earnest. None of the posts arrived today in bodies, and yet there were many uniforms among the visitors.

Special attention will be paid to the care and comfort of the women visitors who will be in the city during encampment week. The management of the large retail stores have offered to attend to this work. Rest rooms, toilet rooms and other facilities that will be needed and appreciated will be provided. Information booths and emergency hospitals and relief stations will be established at convenient points about the city. Hundreds of guides will be on duty and will assist the police and others in handling the thousands of strangers.

Much interest centers in the choice of the new commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. Although no active candidates have come into the field as yet, the names of several prominent veterans are already mentioned in connection with the honor and it is anticipated that a lively contest will develop before the election takes place.

Boston, according to advance information, intends to make a strong bid for the next national encampment. So far nothing has been done by any other city in this direction, at least publicly. As the encampment meets this year in the West it is expected that in accordance with established custom an Eastern city will be selected as the next entertaining place. Since Boston is the first in the field and is understood to have been doing considerable quiet campaigning for nearly a year it is the general belief that she stands an excellent chance of securing the encampment. In her efforts in this direction the Massachusetts city expects to have the support of all of the New England veterans and probably those of New York and several other States of the East.

A TY COBB ANNIVERSARY.

Boston, Mass., August 26.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who shares with Henry Ford the honor of being Detroit's most distinguished citizen, today celebrated his eleventh anniversary as a major league ball player by lining up with his team in a game against the Boston Red Sox. It was on August 26, 1905, that Cobb, then a tall, raw-boned youth with a brief experience as a ball player with the Augusta, Ga., team, made his American League debut in a Detroit uniform. It was not long before the young Southerner developed into one of the greatest ball players that the game has ever known. For nine successive seasons he has been champion batsman of the American League. His average for the present season is about .360. No batter has ever made such a record.

AMATEUR "WORLD SERIES."

Chicago, Ill., August 26.—The annual baseball derby, the Sweitzer cup competition, which is of as much interest to followers of the semi-pro and amateur game in Chicago as the world's series, is about to begin. The first brush toward the final games which will decide the ownership of the cup and the championship of Chicago will start tomorrow when the Amateur Baseball Managers' League will open elimination contests to decide what teams will represent that association against a team from the City League in the final clashes. The elimination contests will be known as the "Tearney trophy games," and will carry with them the championship of the Amateur Managers' League. President Albert R. Tearney, of the league, has donated diamond studed fobs which will be presented to each member of the winning team.

BIBLE CONFERENCE.

Chicago, Ill., August 26.—Speakers from half a dozen countries are to take part in the Bible conference which opens today at Cedar Lake, Ind., under the auspices of the Moody Church of this city. Prominent among the foreign speakers to be heard are Rev. P. W. Philpott, of Hamilton, Ont.; Rev. Charles Inglis, of London; Rev. William P. Nicholson, of Belfast; Rev. Joseph W. Kemp, of Edinburgh, and Pastor William Petler, who has been called "the Modern Apostle Paul of Russia."

DID NOT STEAL MARCH ON COLGATE

Gubernatorial Candidate Says He First Chose Designation of "Republican Party."

Newark, Aug. 26.—The published statement that Senator Walter E. Edge had stolen a march on Austen Colgate, his rival for the Republican nomination for Governor, by rushing his petition to Trenton half an hour earlier than Colgate's and thus succeeding in obtaining the designation "Republican," while Colgate had to be content with "Republican Party," is characterized by the manager of the Colgate campaign, former Postmaster Frank J. Bock, of Newark, as "utterly ridiculous."

Said Mr. Bock today:

"The allegation that Edge stole a march by half an hour and gained an advantage by selecting the designation 'Republican' is utterly ridiculous and characteristic of the picayune publicity methods which are being used to bolster up the Edge campaign.

"The designation 'Republican Party' was chosen by Colonel Colgate some time ago and was written on his petition the day before it was sent to Trenton for filing. As a matter of fact, the difference in designation will have no significance whatever in the mind of the voter. The real significance lies in the difference between the names Edge and Colgate."

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PETER EMMONS

Many Relatives and Friends Attend Impressive Obsequies Last Night.

Funeral services for Peter Emmons, who died Wednesday morning after a lingering illness, wehe held at his late home at 4(Khitewood avenue last night, and were attended by many relatives and friends.

The services were conducted by the Rev. C. C. Caine, pastor of Grace M. T. church, of which Mr. Emmons was a member, the Rev. Charles S. Gillespie, the present pastor and the Rev. William Culp, of Bound Brook. Mr. Emmons' favorite hymn, "Face to Face," was sung by a quartet, and many floral and set pieces were given in memory of him.

Mr. Emmons was born near Whitehouse fifty-three years ago, but had lived her practically all of his life. Besides a wife, he is survived by two sons, Walter, of this city and Stanley, of Somerville, and two daughters, Mrs. F. L. Streeter and Mrs. C. E. Metler, both of this city. Five grandchildren also survive him.

The pallbearers were Ralph Cay, Thomas Filly, Addison Ammerman and Frank Squires, of this city, and John Freeman and William Van Court, of Oak Tree. Interment was made this morning at Hillside cemetery.

MRS. ROSANN COLVIN, 82, BURIED AT CLINTON TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Rosann Colvin, who died at 14 West End avenue last Thursday in her eighty-second year after a year and a half of illness, were held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Clinton, at 10 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Colvin was a native of County Craven, Ireland, but came to this country when a young girl and lived at Clinton, coming to this city at the death of her husband. She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth McCoy, of Clinton; Mrs. Edward Richeimer, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Mary Higgins, Mrs. Ella B. Hannagan and Miss Catherine Colvin, of this city; and three sons, Bernard Colvin, of Jersey City, and Michael and James Colvin, also of this city. Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. ELIZABETH CASEY HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Casey, who died at her home at 215 Grant avenue, Wednesday, in her sixty-fifth year, following a stroke of paralysis, was held at her late home yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The service was conducted by the Rev. D. W. Skellinger, pastor of Hope chapel.

Mrs. Casey has lived here for fifteen years and was well known. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Fred Stillger, Mrs. Leonard Bunn and Mrs. George Vreeland, and one son, Frank Vreeland. Interment was made in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

REPUBLICAN OUTING AT PLEASURE BAY

Annual Gathering the Largest In the History of Union County.

A large number of Plainfielders went on the Union County Republican outing to Pleasure Bay this morning. The train left this city at 8.33 o'clock, about 150 local Republicans being included in the party.

While it has been the custom to conduct the outing to Rockaway Beach or some other point on the Sound, the committee decided that a change would be made this year, and Pleasure Bay was the spot chosen. A dinner will be served at Port-au-Peck, and the launching of political boom will occupy much of the time. The return trip will be made on a special train, leaving East Long Branch at 7:30 o'clock.

Among those at the station this morning was Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, a candidate for United States Senator. Mr. Frelingheysen was the centre of an enthusiastic following, and seemed in an optimistic mood.

Among the many Plainfielders who went on the outing were the following: County Chairman William Newcorn, Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter Hetfield, Councilman Charles Sminck, County Register Frank H. Smith, Millard Elderton, Councilman John H. Cose, Nathan Pollard, Dominick Parretti, District Court Clerk Horace Adams, City Clerk J. J. Carroll, Freeholder Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Police Captain John Flynn, Leslie R. Fort, James Ennis, James Morrison, William Townsend, Freeholder James Buckle, Frank Blatz, William Kline, Sr., and William Kline, Jr.

NIAGARA FALLS TO BE ILLUMINATED

Lights of the Brilliance of 50,000,000 Candles Will Play On Water.

Beginning today and continuing as a permanent feaure, Niagara Falls will be illuminated at night. Lights of the brilliance of 50,000,000 candles will play upon the American Falls and rapids. The effect produced, it is expected, will be startling in its beauty and will reveal the splendors of the falls as they never have been seen before.

The plan of illumination is an interesting one. There are 100 lamps in all, each of 500,000 candle power. The lamps are divided into five batteries. Two of the batteries are located above and below the mainland head of the Goat Island bridge, two below the falls on the mainland beyond Prospect Point and the fifth on a shelter of natural rock, so that during the daytime there is nothing to mar or deract from the natural beauty of the scene.

When in operation the lamps will throw their rays on the falls and rapids in a flood of radiance. A flood light is distinguished from a search or spot light in that that the rays are no concentrated but diffused and spread over a wide area. It is believed that the lights have been arranged so that there will be no glare or blinding reflection to hurt the eyes.

MEXICAN MEDIATORS ON WAY TO CONFERENCE

Mexico City, Aug. 26.—The members of the Mexican commission to the conferences in the United States for the settlement of interantional differences will leave here tomorrow morning. Luis Cabrera, president of the commission, will proceed by the way of Vera Cruz, in company with James Linn Rodgers, the American representative of the Carranza government, and Rodgers' secretary, John W. Bell. From Vera Cruz they will continue either by a Spanish steamer to Havana or on the United States tender Dixie.

Alberto J. Pani, president of the National Railways of Mexico, and Ygnacio Bonillas intend to go to the United States in Mr. Pani's private car by way of Piedras Negras and San Antonio.

The Mexican commissioners decline to discuss their instructions.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

TEXANS WELCOME GUARDSMEN WHO PROTECT THEIR FRONTIER

One Judge Says They Feared Invasion at Any Moment Prior to Arrival of State Troops.

Other News Notes From the Various Camps Situated Along Banks of Rio Grande.

S. P. SILVERS of Mercedes, Tex., former county judge and one of the men who converted the Rio Grande valley from a wilderness into a place of successful cultivation, has told why the troops came to this part of the border. And this explanation shows that President Wilson, when he said the troops were not there for drill or show, but to protect the country, knew what he was talking about. But for the arrival of the troops more than 18,000 Mexican soldiers would have invaded the United States and ravaged the Rio Grande valley.

"We had been having bandit raids and were calling for soldiers to protect us," Silvers said, "and finally we got some. There were perhaps 6,000 soldiers in the valley, so scattered at different points that there were only a few in any one place. When Villa raided Columbus, N. M., we had positive information that another such raid was contemplated and that the objective point was Brownsville. Many of the citizens of that place sent their families away, and preparations were made to defend the town. The situation was critical. Not only were the Villa bandits threatening us, but Carranza was massing his soldiers on the border for the purpose of invading Texas. He had about 18,000 troops spread along the border from Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, to Reynosa, and between that point and Carmago troop trains of soldiers were seen moving. These troops were under command of General Nafarrate, whose hatred of Americans is notorious, and a crisis was imminent. General Funston, knowing the conditions, rushed the state troops to the border and that is why they have been strung along the Rio Grande valley. It was to stop an invasion of the United States by Mexico, and the presence of the troops is what is keeping peace on the main border even now.

"There are plenty of troops to prevent any attack from the main side by a Carranza army. Now that the troops are here they are being drilled and acclimated and put into condition for service, if needed."

When the troops left Fort Harrison they were ticketed for Brownsville, but at Springfield, Mo., they were ordered to Mercedes, and the outcome of it was that the small number of regulars at Mercedes was not enough to prevent an invasion, and the state troops were hurried there for fighting purposes if the Mexicans made an attack.

Cleanup Day.

Members of the Indiana national guard in camp at Llano Grande, Tex., have not been able to wash or change their clothes as often as would be done otherwise. Therefore, in order to have the men put up their best appearance for inspection, a general order was given making one afternoon a time for cleanup. While the men were obtaining that virtue next to godliness their apparel in some cases was novel. Some wore "blue denims" (or overalls and jumpers), others wore nondescript materials, and some were attired only in a pleasant smile and a pair of shoes.

The camp resembled a co-operative Chinese laundry. The usual Llano Grande's serene landscape was broken by crowds of soldiers bending over buckets, tubs and washboards, trying to make old clothes look like new and sighing for the comforts of home, chiefly laundries and dry cleaning establishments. Every available tree, post or tent pole was used as a means of stretching clotheslines. Uniforms, underwear, socks, towels and handkerchiefs fluttered all afternoon in the gulf breeze.

The men have been limited as to clothing, owing to the fact that there is a shortage of uniforms in the quartermaster's department.

As to Eating.

According to Major Austin of the state of Washington troops, a few rules of diet can be laid down which if adhered to will enable every man to keep himself in the best of physical condition:

First.—Eat only at mess time, three times a day, and nothing but issued ration or authorized substitute therefor prepared and served with the mess.

Second.—Keep all organs of the body functioning normally.

Third.—Do not undertake severe bodily exertion immediately before or immediately following a meal.

Fourth.—Do not drink large quantities of cold water when heated by exertion, only small quantities. Do not drink ice water in large quantities ever, only a swallow or two at a time and not at all if heated. The same rule applies to other cold drinks.

Fifth.—Do not overeat. Too little is less harmful than too much. Stop eating before there is an uncomfortable sense of fullness, no matter how appetizing the mess may be. Extras should be as a substitute for, not an addition to, the articles of the regular mess.

Sixth.—Keep the mouth and teeth well cleaned.

Too many rules lead to confusion. If these few are followed and all the care which they imply carried out the training we are now receiving will be a benefit to every man and we will more rapidly become an efficient trained force, ready to do the needful not with delay, but with dispatch, when the order comes to move.

Why He Joined Army.

A youngster who said he was attending school at the University of Minnesota stood at a street corner and lamented his lot. He declared a willingness to fight for his country and to sustain the constitution of the state and nation, but he was not strong for ditch digging and street cleaning.

"I did not have to come here to learn how to dig post holes and make ditches," the youngster declared. "I could learn that at home. And I never see the regulars doing that kind of work."

Just across the street and about fifty feet away was a squadron of the Third cavalry pulling weeds, cleaning out gutters, making drains, and four of them were driving mule teams scraping the mud off the street.

"Not much soldiering," was suggested to a broad shouldered young fellow.

"Oh, it's all in the game!" he laughed, holding an armful of weeds.

"But you didn't come here to do that kind of work. You came here to fight," was suggested once more.

"Maybe so," he laughed again, "but it's all in the day's work. I know that when we are pulling these weeds and cleaning the gutters and doing this kind of work we are protecting ourselves against sickness, especially against malaria, and making our camp more healthful. It may look unsoldierlike, but really it is the foundation of making a soldier fit."

"You talk like a college man," said the correspondent, to draw him out.

"Yes, sir; graduated at the University of Chicago and also at Ann Arbor."

"Well," said the surprised correspondent, "you are a little out of place here."

"Maybe so, sir. But things didn't go just right, and I got pretty far along. I was on the toboggan fairly, sir, until I thought I would try the regular army and see if that wouldn't straighten me out a bit. I like the life, and when it's all over I will go back home in better shape than ever."

"Would you mind telling me your name?" This time the question was from no curiosity, but to know the man better.

"Private James Smith, sir; Troop B, Third cavalry."

It's a cinch that that is not his name, but he showed the real stuff, even if he was incognito.

Letter 110 Feet Long.

Five members of Company A, Fifth regiment, of Passaic, N. J., now at Douglas, Ariz., have received a letter 110 feet in length. It was sent to Jacob Eelman, Martin D. Karl, Willis E. Scott, Thomas Collard and Hubert Jones by the Tony Frylickn association.

The missive was wrapped up in a package that cost 40 cents to send. Writing the letter took the authors a week. Tobacco and other gifts accompanied the letter.

Had a "Tuberculosis Knee."

Sinbad of Indiana was getting by all right on the grounds of a tubercular knee until he was seen chasing a tentmate over the drill grounds, having forgotten about his sore knee, and then he was put to work. But he would not work. He was sitting at his ease and kidding his guard, who had no bayonet on his gun, when Colonel Coulter came by.

"What are you doing there?" the colonel asked sternly.

"Not a thing, sir, except admiring the beauty of this gent with the rifle."

"Well, you get to work," the colonel said, sterner than ever.

"Not on your life. Me and work had a falling out, and we ain't going to make up."

It was for those words that Sinbad will be on a hard labor job for at least a month.

Bootblacks' Eyes Open.

Even the Mexican bootblacks who visit the camp to pick up a few dimes by shining the officers' boots are familiar with everything going on in the camp.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles Danforth of the Second Minnesota regiment quizzed a couple of the bootblacks, and he learned the boys had knowledge of the exact number of troops in camp, the exact strength of the various arms of the service, the number of horses, mules and guns and even the number of patients in the field hospitals. It is difficult to beat the Mexican spy system.

Tattoo Artists Busy.

A professional tattoo man has set up a booth on one of the principal streets of Laredo and is kept busy day and night decorating the persons of the guardsmen with bleeding hearts, skulls and crossbones, pistols and daggers, snakes, female heads and figures and the first names of sweethearts to whom the tattooee intends to remain true through life. With patience worthy of a better cause the men submit to the tedious pricking of the needle and the injection of the colored inks into their epidermis.

MONDAY Opens the "Half-Price" Days Closing The August Furniture Sale

My Neighbor Mr. Polish Has Given Me Much Bother

He was introduced to me and highly commended by the first manager of the furniture business.

He insisted that it was impossible to get the wood from which furniture was made without knots and streaks and cracks, like growing pains, and that it was his special profession to cover them all up and polish them over so that people could not find them for years.

Well! backed up by the Expert Manager who at that time was supposed to be learned in woods, we took it as the gospel of woods and believed it, until experience led us to where we would have given up the furniture business years ago had we not found out that Mr. Polish was a liar and a cheat.

We then began the furniture business all over again by employing another set of manufacturers of the first class and better paid cabinet workers. We took unusual care to get selected woods and materials and compelled the use of dry lumber well shrunken before a saw or tool cut into it.

But Mr. Polish and his grown-up sons were living and they were such perfect gentlemen and had such good temper that it was hard to down them. They would shout out their guarantees and persuasions to make you believe that there were no limb marks, knots or imperfections, and it has only been by the utmost watchfulness and care that we have discovered to him that we knew better, and that he could not fool us and that we would not allow our customer to be fooled by him.

Mr. Polish got his passports to leave many years ago.

We converted our new managers against their will that people were willing to pay prices for genuine, undoctored, well doweled, properly polished furniture a san honest finish, but not, according to Mr. Polish's methods, studiously puttied and screwed up after the fashion so common.

Old Mr. Polish and the people whom he deals with say we are cranks, and that his ways, if good enough for them, should be good enough for us.

We wish them to know that we sell to our regular customers (and not seashore lump contracts to hotels) more furniture some months than some of them sell in a whole year; and we wish to impress upon them that no furniture can be too well made and finished for us to offer to our patrons.

(Signed) John Wanamaker

According to custom, duly announced each year, we close the August Sale on the last day of August (next Thursday), offering during the last four days—

—odd pieces at half;
—odd suits at half;
—pieces not to be re-ordered at half;
—stocks bought especially for the August Sale at Half.

Because the furniture stocks are to be condensed on two floors for the regular season, by the removal of other departments to upper galleries; the "last four days' riddance" will be more drastic this year than ever before.

—hundreds of pieces at half;
—for all rooms in the house;
—all woods and a variety of patterns;
—at prices from a few dollars to thousands.

All of it is Wanamaker furniture from Wanamaker manufacturers with the Wanamaker guarantee.

Marking down the price to half does not mark down the quality of the furniture; it actually doubles your money's buying power.

Thursday the Last Day

After Thursday the prices of all the home furniture on our Galleries goes back to normal prices.

No more August prices after Thursday.
No more of the August furniture at half.

Better look over your home and see what is needed for the Autumn—furniture will not be so cheap in so large variety for six months at least; until our next half-yearly sale, in February.

CORPORATION NOTICE

PROPOSALS FOR MACADAMIZING.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council at the Council Chamber No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at 8 o'clock, p. m., on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1916, for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the macadamizing contemplated in the ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 17, 1916, and approved by the Mayor, July 18, 1916, and as provided for in the specifications entitled "City of Plainfield, N. J., Proposal, Conditions, Specifications, Contract and Bond, for the Permanent Improvement of Streets, 1916," filed in the office of the City Clerk August 7, 1916.

Upon receipts of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of said prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

A separate price must be named for each street, and proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Macadamizing."

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Plainfield Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous, urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Plainfield readers.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, says: "I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains across my back. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action, and I was in a miserable condition for months. Nothing I tried seemed to give me any relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store. They seemed to take hold at once, removing the rheumatic pains and regulating the action of the kidneys. They improved my condition so much that I soon felt like a different person."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Gardner had. Foster Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. —Adv.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

TO HENRY E. WARMBOLD:

By virtue of an Order of the Court of Chancery made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein The Guarantee Mortgage and Title Insurance Company is complainant, and you are defendant, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of the said complainant on or before the 9th day of October, 1916, or in default thereof, the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

Said bill was filed to foreclose a certain mortgage given by George J. Warmbold to H. C. Lockwood Co., bearing date June 1st, 1914, and covering premises in the Town of Westfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, and you, the said Henry E. Warmbold are made a defendant, because it is alleged that you are the owner in fee of the mortgaged premises.

FAIRBANKS FAMILY REUNION.

Dedham, Mass., Aug. 26.—Several hundred descendants of Jonathan Fairbanks, who came from Sowerby, Yorkshire, England, in 1836, and settled in this town, came here today to take part in the fourteenth annual reunion of the Fairbanks family in America. One of the most notable members of the family association is Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, the nominee of the Republicans for Vice President of the United States.

Today's reunion was held in the old Fairbanks homestead, built by the founder of the American branch of the family soon after his arrival here, and believed to be the oldest dwelling in New England. Henry Irving Fairbanks, president of the association, presided at the reunion.

A Bit Thick.

Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation.

John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said some years ago that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater.

"Look here," she said; "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now."

"Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

THE FORUM

Editor of the Plainfield Daily Press:

There is now in committee the draft for a new law to be brought before the United States Congress, popularly called the Stephens bill, so named on account of the man who first introduced it. Like any law that will have a wide-reaching effect, it has caused discussion based on a misconception of what this law is intended to accomplish.

The first and most serious misconception is the one that this law, if passed, will be manadatory on every manufacturer in the country. This is absolutely not so. If he thinks that his business will be improved by making a list of prices that will be alike all over the country, then the law simply gives him this privilege, but any manufacturer who does not feel that this privilege will protect his business can ignore this law as though it were never passed. This disposes of misconception number one.

The next misconception is that it is against the accepted theory of Americanism, which is that this is a land of opportunity and gives the small individual the same opportunity that the big one enjoys. It is contended by those who for selfish reasons are looking for opportunities to discourage the enactment of this law, that it will create a monopoly for price-protected goods. This is exactly opposite to the truth, as will be shown a little further on.

The third misconception, which is really part of the second, is that the consumer is not interested in this law; in fact, it is to his interest that it should not pass because if it passes he will have to pay more for certain things. This misconception is fostered by the interests who are opposing the passage of this bill. This is very far from the truth, and can be easily demonstrated.

For example—In a certain store in a nearby city they sold last week a certain article for $2.28. This article is advertised by the maker to sell for $3.50. This article costs at the very lowest price that it can be bought, $2.29. The manufacturer charges as follows: $3.50 less the trade discount of 33 1-3 per cent., which bring it down to a fraction less than $2.34, from which the dealer is permitted a 2 per cent. discount for cash, which amounts to a fraction less than 5 cents, making a cost, as said before of $2.29. As it costs this type of store 28 per cent. at the very least to do business, and one per cent must be added for delivery, making it 29 per cent. to be added on this particular item, it brings the exact cost to the store for this article to $2.95.

As they were selling this article for $2.28, they lost exactly 67 cents on the transaction. Now, no person with the smallest grain of common sense but can see that there must be an opening in the fence somewhere. He knows that no store can succeed unless is makes a profit. The trouble is that there is no one to put him wise to this thing. He cannot expect the newspapers to do it, because the firms that are doing this are the ones who are advertising the heaviest.

In this store to which reference was made above a set of furniture was priced $40 higher than the same set in another store where price-cutting was not practiced.

This type of store is the store that opposes the Stephens bill, because they know that this law will compel them to be honest. A store doing business by these methods is just as dishonest as a railroad that gave rebates. By selling trade-mark goods, such as kodaks, victrolas, Ingersoll watches, etc., at a cut price, to give the public who is ignorant of their real purpose, the impression that because they sell well known merchandise at cut prices, therefore everything they sell is sold the same way. The writer's experience with furniture proves very conclusively that this is not so.

The chain store situation in Philadelphia and the nation-wide chain stores in the tobacco trade, are examples. These systems restrict opportunity and monopolize the field to such an extent that a newcomer finds it too difficult to enter.

Do you think that this is exaggerating the situation? If you do, you will soon be disillusioned if you will look up who is fighting this Stephens bill. You will find that the Standard Oil interests, the tobacco interests, the chain store interests and the aggressive department store price-cutters are the ones that are against the passing of this bill. You can do a good deal to prevent their work from doing any damage. Every reader of this paper is a powerful factor, if he but used his power. If some day you expect to open a little store of your own, or, if you have a son that you want to see go into business for himself, then you should at once write to one who represents you in Congress, that when the Stephens bill comes up for a vote you desire him to vote in favor of it.

Don't wonder whether he will do as you wish. He will be only too glad to hear from you. The trouble with this country is that the small individual sits back when the time comes and thinks: "What is the use? I am only one." But every one counts, and if everybody thought the same way there would be no voting in this country on election day.

If any one desires any further information on this subject he should write to the American Fair Trade League in New York city. He will be furnished with facts and figures that will be a revelation to him.

SEVENTEEN BUILDING PERMITS ARE FILED FOR A TOTAL EXPENDITURE OF $60,225

Bosch Magneto Co. Granted Permission to Build Additions to Cost $18,000—Plans For New Dwellings and Garages Are Approved By Inspector T. O. Doane.

After experiencing the quietest two weeks that it has had since it was established, the building inspector's office was literally swamped with permits during the past seven days and yesterday afternoon it was found that seventeen permits, for a total of $60,225, had been granted. The total so far during August is now $63,898 and for the year $641,293. The year mark is now rapidly reaching the million mark and with the filing of a number of plans representing a considerable outlay now being drawn, that mark will probably be reached by the end of the year.

The largest permits, both alteration jobs, were issued to the Bosch Magneto Company, of South avenue. One set of plans calls for an addition to a building to be used as a storage house at a cost of $11,000. One section of the extension will be fifteen feet long and two stories high while the other section will be twenty-seven feet long and one story in height. The other addition will be to the factory building and will be one story high. It will cost $7,000. Cement concrete and steel girders will be used in the construction work. The contract has been awarded to the Caspen Ranger Construction Company, of Holyoke, Mass. Work will be started at the earliest possible date as the factory is at the present time cramped for room.

Two of the permits are for the partial or total wrecking of buildings. In order to comply with the resolutions adopted by the city to widen Madison avenue, the Samuel Drier estate filed plans for the changing of the three-story brick structure at Front street and Madison avenue at a cost of $4,200. Eight feet will be taken off the entire Madison avenue side and a wall erected at the new line. John Curry has the contract for the work. Preparatory to taking charge of the entire round in the near future, J. A. Staats, of Mountain avenue, was granted permission to demolish a number of sheds on the Second street side of the Queen City Hotel. The Hand Express Company will do the work.

Samuel Tauh, of West Fourth street, was granted three permits. Two were for the erection of two family houses at a cost of $3,100 and the other for a building to be used as a store and two-family dwelling, to be built at a cost of $3,300. Cohan and Isralsky have the contract for the work. All the buildings will be two and a half stories high and of frame construction.

Morris Israel, of 423 John street, filed plans for a two-family house to be built at 972 Arlington avenue for $2,500. It will be of frame construction and measure 24x24x28, and be two and a half stories in height. Israel will do the carpenter work and William Ritshert will do the mason work.

Permission was granted Alexander Vars, of 814 Webster place, to build a garage at a cost of $250. It will be of frame construction, of one story, and measure 12x12x20. L. T. Titsworth will do the work. Lawrence Hefferas also submitted plans for a garage to cost $75. He will build it himself at 316 Lee place. Francis M. Filly, of 933 Stelle avenue, is to erect a garage on his property to cost $300. It will be 12x12x18, and of one story in height. George Wilson is the carpenter.

The National Construction Company, of 204 West Front street, is to build a two-family house on McCrea place to cost $2,500. It will be of frame construction, of two stories in height, and measure 24x24x28. Israel Fredlander has the contract for the work.

The Industrial Home Company, of 518 West Third street, has awarded the contract to Louis Cohan for the erection of a two and a half story dwelling at 325 Bergen street, to cost $2,200. It will be 22x22x26.

A residence to cost $6,555 is to be built by Charles Force for Thomas MacDonald, on Evergreen avenue. It will be of shingle and two and a half stories high, with measurements of 32x32x32.

Plans filed on behalf of the George Burgess estate call for the erection of a one and a half story garage to cost $2,600. Charles Smith is the architect, Fred Shuck the carpenter and Howard Huff the mason.

Dr. Frank C. Ard, of Park avenue and Sixth street, was granted permission to build an extension to his residence to cost $3,600. It will be added to the south side of the main structure and be of frame, two and a half story construction and be 30x30x20. M. D. O'Keefe has the general contract.

A two and a half story frame house is to be built for Thomas Keenan at 520 Richmond street, by John A. Dahl, to cost $2,600. It will be a one-family dwelling and measure 19x19x30.

Plans for an alteration job to the barn of Mrs. Catherine Brown, at 1139 Sandford avenue, were accepted by the building inspector. The building, which is a one and a half story affair, will cost $400 to change into a residence and when completed will measure 22x22x18. William Runyon will do the work.

BUILDING NOTES

Work has been started on the tearing down of the Dreier building, at the corner of Front street and Madison avenue, to make room for the widening of Madison avenue. Other structures along that street affected by the widening will also be demolished.

Men are now at work draining the ground and otherwise making it suitable for the beginning of the construction of the J. D. Loizeaux East End yard, on South avenue.

A rather queer coincidence was noted in local building circles this week when it was found that the same Plainfield contractors that secured the work for the eight-room addition to the Scotch Plains School also secured the contracts for the same size building at Garwood. They were awarded on the Garwood structure at the following figures: William H. Pangborn's Son, mason and carpenter work, $31,890; Allen B. Laing Co., electric work, $590.50; George J. Tobin, heating and ventilating, $7,339; Den J. Galbraith, plumbing work, $1,107.

A COMMODIOUS RESIDENCE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

A RESIDENCE such as shown in this issue is well suited to a residential suburb where the lots are wide, there should be at least 60 ft. lot front and more would be better, the house is 36 ft. frontage of main portion with a glazed piazza at the left side 11 ft. in width, the depth is 25 ft. with a kitchen extension, making the total depth of 39 ft. The style is plain on the Colonial order with low pitched roof, wide projected eaves and the exterior covered with wide siding. The stories are 9 ft. and 8 ft. 6 in. in height. The estimated cost as described is $5,000 to $6,000 exclusive of heating and plumbing.

The general appearance is broad and low with a home-like appearance, a symmetrical front, central entrance with hall and stair-case in center, the living room on the left and the library and dining room on the right, well opened together. The living room would be a very cheerful room with good windows and opening with French windows into the glazed piazza and a wide fireplace on the long side. There are three chimneys, the two front chimneys have fire-places and project on each side. The stairs are on the combination order with a section from kitchen to the main platform and basement stairs beneath. There is a convenient toilet room on the first floor at the rear of living room. The kitchen, pantry, etc., are conveniently connected with the dining room and at the rear of dining room is a small sun room to be used for breakfast room. There are three good chambers and one room glazed on two sides for a sleeping porch, also a sewing room and bath room with ample closets. The basement is full and complete, the first story to be finished in hard woods and the second story in white enamel. The outside of house painted in "Old Virginia white" and roof in green shingles or tile.

IN THE SUBURBS

Building operations in the towns adjacent to Plainfield, while they are not at the present time very extensive, have increased rapidly this year, and bid fair to eclipse the records of former years.

WESTFIELD.

In Westfield this is especially true, the amount expended on buildings already totalling in the vicinity of a quarter of a million dollars. Unlike some of the other places, Westfield has not had its growth caused by factories, but residences. Many beautiful dwellings have gone up, and the town has expanded so that it is beginning to encroach on the limits of Fanwood. According to latest reports there are under way thirty-nine dwellings, eight garages, one factory and one parochial school and a parish house, besides additions and improvements.

FANWOOD.

Fanwood's growth in comparison with other places is nearly on a par. Building operations have been confined for the most part to houses and garages, although the policy to keep factories from the suburban borough has caused several.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Scotch Plains gives evidence of awakening from its slumber. The erection of an eight-room addition to School No. 1 has permitted the builders to become active. The building of the Pure Oil plant and the rebuilding of the paper mill will help considerably, while a number of dwellings are in the course of construction.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The addition to the Spicer plant will help building at South Plainfield considerably, and it is rumored that other manufacturing concerns are looking over locations along the Lehigh Valley. The new building to be used as postoffice and grocery is nearing completion, and several other dwellings are going up.

DUNELLEN.

Dunellen is going about the same pace in building it has maintained during the year, with a new house or garage here and there. The coming of several factories in the near future that will employ many men should make a decided change. Work on St. Stephen's church is progressing, the floor having been laid during the past week, and its completion is a matter of another month.

COTT-A-LAP FIRM ADDS TO BOUND BROOK HOLDINGS

The Cott-a-Lap Company has purchased the Hoffman farm, adjoining the property now occupied by the Calco-Chemical Company, at Bound Brook. This will make over 300 acres which have been acquired to meet the demands for the future growth of the Calco-Chemical plant. It extends to the Raritan river on the east and south and touches three railroads.

The large administration building which is in the course of construction is being rapidly completed, and other building work is in progress. This company has a great future in the sale of aniline dyes and other similar products.

FERGUS AUTO CONCERN TO LOCATE AT DUNELLEN

Positive information has been received that the Fergus Motor Car Company, a foreign automobile concern, formerly of Belfast, Ireland, is to build a plant in this section. Mr. Fergus wanted to locate in Plainfield, as he had the financial backing of local men, but he was at last forced to buy land in Dunellen. The property purchased is known as the Sutphen tract, on South and Washington avenues, and consists of about twenty acres.

The company is at present a New York concern, but as soon as it is incorporated in New Jersey work will be started on the erection of a plant. The output of the concern, according to a recent statement to a Daily Press reporter made by Mr. Fergus, will only be a few hundred for the first year, but as the production gradually increases the original price of $2,500 will be lowered, and after a time Mr. Fergus expects to give employment to several thousand men.

$12,000 RESIDENCE.

Work will be started shortly on the erection of a $12,000 dwelling on Rockview avenue, North Plainfield. It will be of two and a half story frame and shingle construction, and measure 37x59. C. Everet Murray, of Willow avenue, is the owner, and the plans were drawn by J. P. Benson, of New York. Michael Rimmer has the carpenter and masonry contract and Tallamy Brothers the plumbing contract.

GERMAN RUNS FOR CONGRESS IN 11TH

Says U. S. Is Guilty of Murder In Selling Munitions to Allies.

J. Emil Walschied, of Union Hill, who makes a direct appeal to the German vote, is asking for the Democratic Congressional nomination in the Eleventh District. Mr. Walschied, who is a lawyer and a former Assemblyman, yesterday announced his candidacy in a formal statement, which condemned the exportation of munitions to the Allies, described as "spineless and wrong" the action of the present incumbent, John J. Egan, of Weehawken, in voting for the McLemore resolution, and declared for preparedness in an army strong enough to repel invasion by a foreign power, "coming by way of Mexico or Canada."

"I believe," said Mr. Walschied in his statement, "that the continued shipment of munitions to Europe is unchristian and a crime against humanity, and, if by prohibiting it, we can save human lives, it is our duty to do so, no matter how it may affect the results of the war. Our own wars have proved," continues the statement, "that if two persons are engaged in combat and a third hands one of them a mortal weapon that one is guilty of murder.

"The law of manhood," the statement says, "is but the law of man, and, if the foregoing rule finds no support, then that law forthwith should be changed." Mr. Walschied is, however, in favor of preparedness in America.

The entrance of Mr. Walschied, whose petition is in circulation, makes the fight a four-cornered one. The candidacies of Mr. Egan, William J. McGrath, of Hoboken, chief of the Lackawanna Fire Department and past sachem of the Independent Order of Red Men, and William Kavanaugh, a Hoboken lawyer. Mr. Egan's petition, signed by 350 voters, was filed with the Hudson county clerk yesterday with the title "Democratic."

QUININE A CURE FOR PARALYSIS?

Prominent Brooklyn Physician Tells How He Uses It With Startling Results.

Is quinine a cure for paralysis? One Brooklyn physician, and he is prominent in the practice of his profession, has used it in the treatment of his patients and he describes the results as startling. Howard H. Williams, of Plainfield, has kindly furnished The Press a copy of a letter that this physician, Dr. Neil McLeod Whittaker, is mailing to other physicians who inquire as to the quinine treatment he is using with such success. The letter follows:

"Since the outbreak of this epidemic I have used quinine in large doses on a number of confirmed cases of infantile paralysis with startling results. Since advocating this treatment I have received reports from other doctors and each one has stated where large doses of quinine were used that seemingly desperate cases cleared up within twenty-four hours.

"To see children apparently dying with the disease one day and almost well the next, should be convincing proof that this harmless treatment is worthy of trial.

"My chief object in writing this is to urge physicians to try this remedy, not only in positive but in all doubtful cases. Make a lumbar puncture if you like but don't wait to hear from it before beginning treatment.

"To obtain the best results quinine must be given as follows:

"A hypodermic injection (into the deep gluteal muscles) of from 10 to 20 grains of quinine and urea hydrochloride (25 to 50% solution) depending upon the age of patient and severity of attack. This is to be followed by 3 or 4 grains of quinine every hour or two (by mouth) until the child has received 40 grains or more or until marked symptoms of quinine poisoning set in, which does not harm and passes off in a few days. If there is much gastric disturbance, all doses can be given hypodermically. Treated in this way, a case of infantile paralysis will show a steady drop in fever even from 104 degrees to normal within 24 hours. The temperature does not go up again and all other symptoms disappear. I have not found it necessary to keep up this treatment more than 24 hours.

"I am firmly convinced if all the children exposed to infection are given small doses (2 to 5 grains) of quinine every night, all doubtful cases are given larger doses of quinine (15 to 30 grains in divided doses) for one day only, and all confirmed cases are treated as recommended, the number of cases will be greatly reduced.

"Quinine seems to be as active for infantile paralysis as for malaria, but as Poliomyletis is more rapid and fatal in its action and of shorter duration, the drug must necessarily be given sooner and in larger doses than for malaria.

MONTANA MASONIC JUBILEE.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 26.—A week of interest to members of the Masonic fraternity was ushered in here today with the assembling of the Montana Grand Commandery of Knights Templar. The meeting is the first of a series to be held in celebration of the golden jubilee of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Montana, which was organized fifty years ago at Virginia City. The meeting of the Knights Templar is to be followed by sessions of the State bodies of the Royal Arch Masons, the Eastern Star and the Masonic Grand Lodge. On Friday of next week the delegates will join in a pilgrimage to Virginia City, where exercises will be held in commemoration of the founding of the Grand Lodge.

ORGANIZATION'S ANNIVERSARY.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, which has its general headquarters in this city, today rounds out the first decade of its existence. The federation was organized at Chicago on Aug. 26, 1906, with Edward B. Goltra is first president. During the past ten years the organization has had a steady growth in membership and influence. It was largely instrumental in securing the enactment of the present eight-hour law, the Sunday time-off law, and the repeal of the so-called gag-rule.

Is Grammar Essential?

Sometimes it is urged that formal grammar teaches children to write and speak correctly, but as all Americans have studied formal grammar, including newspaper reporters and saleswomen, there would appear to be no guarantee that formal grammar study leads to correct habits of speech. On the other hand, I once knew a school where for fourteen years not a minute was spent on formal grammar, and, like the worm that does not miss a slice or two, no one ever knew the difference.—Atlantic Monthly.

LOCAL OPTION MEANS HOME RULE.

At the coming session of the General Assembly the Gaunt Local Option Bill (which was passed by the Senate in 1915, but defeated in the lower House) or a bill with virtually the same provisions will, in all probability, come before the two legislative bodies at Trenton for action. Plans are now being made throughout the State to pass a local option bill in the lower House. Its passage by the upper House is practically assured.

In order that the people of the various cities, boroughs and townships in our State may have an opportunity to vote directly on the question of whether or not intoxicating liquor shall be sold within their boundaries, organizations have been formed among Republicans and Democrats in the various counties in the State with the object of placing candidates for the Assembly on their respective tickets at the primary election in September who, if elected, will pledge themselves to work and vote for the passage of a municipal local option bill at the next session of the General Assembly. The local option candidate on the Republican ticket for Somerset county will be John S. Ammerman. As yet the local option nominee of the Democratic party has not been announced, but it is understood that a strong and well known man will be named.

The Gaunt Local Option Bill, referred to above, after defining what constituted "intoxicating liquor," provided among other things, for the holding of a special election in any municipality within the State on the filing of a petition before a judge of the Court of Common pleas, or of the Circuit Court, or the justice of the Supreme Court holding the Circuit Court in and for the County in which the petitioning municipality is located. The bill provided that the petition must be signed by not less than 30 per cent. of the legal voters of the municipality, the vote cast at the last previous election for members of the General Assembly to be used as a basis for the percentage of signers. If the petition when filed contained the necessary percentage of voters, the bill provided that the judge "shall" issue an order for a special election "to determine by ballot whether or not a majority of the votes to be cast at such special election shall be in favor of such municipality" banishing the sale of intoxicating liquor from its territory or continuing the sale within its borders. In order that the special election should be free from all political or party influences it was especially provided in the bill that the special election should not be held within sixty days of any general or primary election.

As shown in this rather brief summary the Grant bill was essentially a "Home Rule" bill, or a "Majority Rule" bill. It would give the people of North Palinfield, for instance, who now have absolutely no voice in the granting or refusing of licenses to sell liquor within the borough limits, the power to settle this matter for themselves by ballot, and would take from the County Judge at Somerville the rather sweeping power which he now has of granting or refusing liquor license applications in our borough. It would give North Plainfield "Home Rule" on the license question and would permit the majority of our voters to decide whether or not liquor should be sold within the borough limits.

So far as the granting of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors is concerned, a rather peculiar condition prevails in boroughs and townships in New Jersey and in a number of other States a condition that one would perhaps be justified in calling un-American. In North Plainfield we have home or majority rule so far as the election of our Mayor and Councilmen are concerned, but neither the Mayor nor Councilmen has any power to grant or refuse applications for the sale of intoxicating liquor, this power, autocratic in the extreme, being vested in one man—the judge at the county seat at Somerville. Frequently, as a matter of courtesy, the County Judge consults the Mayor or the Councilmen of a borough as to the advisability of granting or refusing applications for the sale of liquor within their borders, but a judge taking this action is not bound in any way by the advice of the officials consulted, and he can, of course, grant or refuse the application as he sees fit. The regular voters of the borough or township have absolutely no voice in the transactions one way or the other.

Unfortunately, politics are too often brought into the matter, and licenses are frequently granted in communities in this and other States when voters of the borough and township have overwhelmingly put themselves on record against the granting of the licenses. The Gaunt bill would do away entirely with this one-man power so far as liquor licenses are concerned, and would put the whole question up to the people of the borough or township for decision.

That the principle of majority rule is right, and just, and reasonable, no fair-minded man will question. It is the very foundation of our political and governmental life. To refuse this right at the polls to the people of any community (except so far as liquor licenses are concerned) would arouse not only a vigorous protest and righteous indignation, but perhaps something worse. Just why the State should vest this power in a County Judge and not in the Mayor or Councilmen of a borough or the officials of a township is not clear. Many voters, who do not believe in local option, but who believe in majority rule are strongly in favor of the passage of the Gaunt, or a similar bill. They take the stand that the question of liquor or no liquor in a community should be submitted to the people for decision and that the will of the majority should prevail. They admit that the local option question is not a political one, and would like to see it divorced from politics entirely. In this view local optionists concur. For years men in favor of local option in this State have protested against the linking of their cause with any political party, claiming that the people of a municipality should have the right to decide the liquor question for themselves in the good old American way, entirely free from party prejudice or party affiliations.

Some of the most pronounced opponents of local option take the ground that in equity neither the State nor a municipality has the right to abolish the business of an individual or a company without compensation for any loss that may be sustained. They maintain that men and women who are engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquor have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in the business and that it would be both unfair and unjust to drive them out of business without reimbursing them for the money invested. This contention, at first glance, seems not only plausible but just and right. A moment's thought, however, will clearly show how fallacious the claim is, and will most convincingly demonstrate that the individual who invests capital in an establishment for the sale of intoxicating liquor does so with the full understanding that the county or the municipality granting the license does not even inferentially promise or guarantee that the business will be permanent or will be continued for even a single day after the period of one year, for which the license is granted. In fact one is justified in drawing the inference from the terms of the liquor license that it is not to be permanent. Otherwise why should the license to sell be limited to one year?

The State realizes and virtually recognizes the fact that the liquor business at the best is a dangerous one. It therefore surrounds it with many special restrictions, chief among which is the one-year license period. It makes no exception to this rule. This being the case it follows that any individual who applies for and receives a license for the sale of intoxicating liquor does so with the plain understanding that any investment of capital made is made at the risk of the investor and that no guarantee is given or implied by the State or municipality that a renewal will be granted at the end of the year. Any investment made is, therefore, entirely at the risk of the liquor seller, should he be forced out of business by local option, and he has no right to expect the State or municipality to reimburse him for any expenditures incurred in fitting up his place of business. Should he for any reason lose money in the venture on account of a non-renewal of his license, he has nobody to blame but himself. This contingency should have been fully considered before he invested his capital in the business.

There is absolutely nothing unfair or unjust in the provisions of the Gaunt Local Option Bill. Its passage would take a vexing question out of politics and make it strictly a non-political and non-party measure. Many of the strongest supporters and most vigorous opponents of local option in our own and sister States have for years been identified with the two great political parties. In our own State there is a growing desire to make the issue non-political and to let the people settle it as they think best. For this reason, if for no other, it is to be hoped that a local option bill will be passed by the next General Assembly and the voters of each municipality given an opportunity to register their will either for or against the sale of intoxicating liquors within their own boundaries.

The "wet" or "dry" questions are not up for settlement at this time. The only question of moment now is whether or not the General Assembly at its coming session will give the people of each municipality the right to settle for themselves the all-disturbing liquor question.

Iceland.

I'd like to live in Iceland;
They have no telephones;
The gossips do not have a chance
To rattle old dry bones.

I'd like to live in Iceland,
They have no taxis there;
A man might save a buck or so
And have some change to spare.

I'd like to live in Iceland,
No sewing circles meet
To chew the end of scandal there,
Of scandal that is sweet.

I'd like to live in Iceland,
They do not pay a cent
For ice or gas or coal or coke
Or groceries or rent.

They burn whale blubber, eat it, too.
High cost of living's nil;
I'd like to live in Iceland
And never get a bill.

Real Cooking.

My maw she cooked no table dotes or ally carts or such,
And when it came to turowin' style, she wasn't very much.
There wasn't no French names hooked onto vittles she would cook.
She got 'em from experience, not from a furrin' book.

She didn't have no casseroles like they now have in grills,
Or other high-toned rig-majigs and she put on no frills.
She had an old-time cook stove and some kittles, that was all,
But she could cook the biscuits, that, by jing, would never fall.

Her pie crust, gosh, 'twould simply melt right in a feller's mouth,
Her johnny cake seemed like it came right from the Sunny South;
Her crullers made a feller sit right up and call for more.
Her bread was one thing upon which she set a lot of store.

No, friends, she wasn't very long on what they now call style,
But she could surely cook the stuff that made a feller smile.
There wasn't no dyspepsy 'round our place or gouty feet,
For she cooked up the kind of food that's really meant to eat.

Signs of the Times.

So the authors are to be unionized? But wouldn't the magazine editors be happy if about a million of them went on a strike?

In Germany they are using paper for shoe soles. Over here, if worst comes to worst, we can use round steaks.

Those who criticise the present army movements most severely are the ones who don't care to enlist.

German admiral predicts a renewal of the submarine warfare. What? More notes, with paper so high?

George Bernard Shaw asks, "Why not give Christianity a trial?" Well, let George do it.

Bridge.

She lingered at the bridge till midnight,
The clock was striking the hour.
Her husband stayed home with the children,
His face was a vision sour.
He was miffed at his wife's ambition
To gather the cordid pelf,
He'd a date at a poker party,
And wanted some dough himself.

There was an old woman
Who wanted a flat.
She had seven children.
So that settled that.

Uncle Abner

Every time Elmer Spinks falls in love with a new trimmer, who comes here to work in our millinery store he loses his appetite. It has saved him a good deal in the way of cost-of-living during the last ten years.

Just about the time a feller studies up so he partly understands the tariff they change it and he has to begin all over again.

There is no use getin' round shouldered carrying around other people's troubles.

It ain't so much in havin' the goods as it is in makin' people believe you have 'em.

A feller that can't control his temper, can't control nothing else in this world.

There ain't nothing strange about success. There is always good hard work at the bottom of it.

Beware of the feller that slaps you on the back. He is always the first one to slap you in the face.

Plainfield Theatre.

Since the habit grows among theatrical managers of presenting their good attractions in Plainfield now and then before offering them in New York, the new season will probably bring more local first nights than ever before. One of these comes on today, when William A. Brady will present at the matinee and night performances, a new American play, "The Man Who Came Back," at the Plainfield Theatre. Mary Nash, heading the cast, will be surrounded with a special selection of Broadway actors and actresses, for Mr. Brady takes the play from here into New York to present it at his Playhouse there.

"The Man Who Came Back" is a play by Jules Eckert Goodman, founded on a story by John Fleming Wilson which attracted a great deal of attention when published in one of the leading magazines. Mr. Goodman's last play before this, "Treasure Island," scored one of the big successes in New York last season. As that was a dramatization of the famous Stevenson novel with its vigorous story, so "The Man Who Came Back" is a dramatization of another vivid, adventurous story. Mr. Brady will himself be present at the performances today, as will a number of other theatrical producers.

ANOTHER SUMMIT MAN IS KILLED IN BIG WAR

With painful regularity, says The Summit Record, to those residents of Summit who have friends or relatives participating in Europe's awful conflict comes the announcement of the death or injury of some of those who formerly resided here or who are known to many of the city's inhabitants. The most recent Summit man to be numbered among the war's victims was George Moffatt, who resided there for about thirty years, but who returned to Europe soon after the war's outbreak to join the British army. Moffat was about 25 years of age, a fine specimen of young Irish manhood and had earned many warm friends during his residence in that city. He was employed for some time before leaving America in the Atlantic & Pacific Campany's store at Springfield avenue and Maple street. He was a member of an Irish regiment and had seen a steady active service for 17 months when he was killed in what has been described as the "big drive" of the Allies army on July 12. Moffatt has a brother and sister who reside in Summit, the latter a nurse at Overlook.

Proctor's Theatre

AT PROCTOR'S, WEDNESDAY.

By the request of numerous patrons of Proctor's the management has secured for presentation today the renowned Lasky production of "The Immigrant," in which Valeska Suratt assumes the leading role. It tells vividly all the vicissitudes in the life of a woman raised from poverty to sudden wealth and shows Miss Suratt as an unsophisticated girl seeking a better future in the new world. An instance of the many tense moments in the action is the scene where Walton threatens to have Olga, the sister of Masha, his wife, arrested on a charge of murder, though known to both as innocent of the crime, if Masha, the immigrant girl, does not exercise her powers of fascination over Harding, a successful contractor, to keep the latter from a dam just completed by him, while the minions of Walton blow up the structure. Walton is made a convincing character by Theodore Roberts; the uncouthness of the unscrupulous politician who has raised himself from the very gutter; his lack of moral sense, his insatiable greed, his venomous and uncompromising hatred toward business rivals, all this Mr. Roberts brings out with forceful acting. Another gripping five part production forms part of today's program, entitled "Notorious Gallagher," and starring William Nigh and Marguerite Snow. Written and directed by Mr. Nigh this picture abounds in great moments and tells a most unusual story, the theme of which centers around "Buttsey" Gallagher, a boy of the slums, who has never known anything but sordidness and abuse, until he is suddenly projected into the atmosphere of warmth and light by a curious route. As Gallagher, Mr. Nigh creates a real character—one of the most striking we have seen on the screen.

Monday will be known as V. L. S. E. day, two important features supplied by that organization being presented on that day. Vitagraph offers Edith Storey, a popular favorite here, in "The Shop Girl," one of her most pleasing successes, while Essanay contributes "That Sort," with Warda Howard and Ernest Maupain portraying the leading roles. On Tuesday, Douglas Fairbanks will greet his hundreds of followers in a brand new Triangle play entitled "The Half Breed," coming to Proctor's after an extremely successful run at the Rialto Theatre, New York.

James Bennett, of 403 Springfield avenue, who joined the French army about two years ago, has been taken a prisoner by the Germans, according to a letter received by Charles Kassler. Bennett praises his treatment by the Teutons. Before going to war, he was gardener for H. A. LaFetra, of Summit avenue.

HOW CORRECT BATHING IS GOOD SWIMMER'S REQUIREMENT

Annette Kellermann Tells How Correct Use of Lungs In Water Prevents or Banishes Fatigue and Aids Your Development.

Article No. 23.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

I have received a few letters from members of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming Class who find it difficult to swim any great distance without becoming fatigued.

From their letters I gather that they are blaming the failure of their efforts on what they term their "strength."

One letter in particular states that the writer fears that she is not strong enough to become a proficient swimmer. She writes me that she tires very quickly and "is all out of breath after a few strokes."

Now I will explain to her and all of you exactly why you tire so quickly. The reason is not that you are weak, but that those of you who suffer from this weakness are not breathing properly. Now bear this in mind: Nothing can or will tire you more quickly than improper breathing.

In fact breathing should be considered seriously and is just as important as the swimming itself. To be a good swimmer means to breathe properly. I feel that I must literally pound this into you all, so that you will remember it. Besides, I want you to be fully up to the mark in all lines of these swimming art for I will soon start the first lesson in diving and I want you all to be ready for it as soon as I start teaching.

Now as to breathing while swimming in the water.

Of course, when doing the breast stroke you are to breathe only through the nose, for if you should happen to open your mouth you would soon fill it with water, and that would not be pleasant.

But remember that you only breathe this way while you do the breast stroke, for all other strokes you must breathe through the mouth and nose. That is, you must inhale through the mouth as your head comes around during the motion of the body and exhale through the nose as your head resumes its natural position near to the water again.

You will find that after you have practiced this method of breathing you will not tire half so quickly.

After you have become accustomed to this way of breathing. I advise you all to try it also while swimming the breast stroke, for not until you have accomplished this perfectly will you really enjoy swimming any distance.

Do not gasp for the air when you breathe this way, but do everything naturally. A good intake of breath and a slow exhale and the lesson has been accomplished.

Now please do try hard to overcome this little effort and we will be happy once again.

One more suggestion: Now that so many of you know how to swim, do not attempt anything foolish. Remember that if you go beyond the safety zone so marked out by the swimming club or swimming beach proprietor you do so at your own risk. The very saddest thing that can happen to you is to acquire a reputation of being a good swimmer when in reality you know yourself to be a little weak. Do not attempt to show your prowess in the water or venture out to a distance where better and abler swimmers fear to tread. Try to be sensible. Try to acquire a clean-cut reputation that you will be proud of. Do not be a daredevil; it will never pay you in the long run.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN
GREATEST WOMAN SWIMMER AND STAR OF WILLIAM FOX $1,000,000 PICTURE

Monday — Miss Kellermann will tell you of her plan to induce you to form a local swimming organization for amateurs; an organization of a permanent nature to band together in a national amateur association.

they had one here.

"I suppose they will move here soon. A new family in our little society is an event. We are always so in hopes it will mean a widening of our friendly little circle." Olive reached out her hand for Nell's baby girl. "Come to your God-mother," she said, taking the rosy little creature in her arms.

"Mr. Southy is here now, to wind up the business, I suppose. I saw him at the postoffice as I called for the mail. I heard him introduced as our new superintendent."

"What does he look like?" asked Olive.

"He is tall and thin; a little stooped; partially bald; the regular nervous type. You have seen lots of them," answered Nell, taking her baby, who was beginning to fret.

"That is not my idea of a good superintendent," remarked Olive. "I think an ideal superintendent should be plump and jolly, with a capacity for friendliness. He should love children. That goes without saying, and he should not be nervous."

"They apparently did not consult you in this matter, for the new man has none of your qualifications, as far as I can judge from a hasty glance," laughed Nell.

"Well, I will not file my objections, and if he loves children probably he will get along all right—for a while at least," she added.

"Dick says he has four children, and that should mean added knowledge and interest in all children." Nell put her baby down on the floor to play. "If children in the home have not done that they have not completed their work."

"You are right there," agreed Olive. "All our knowledge that is workable is related to life through experience. So let's hope for the best from our new superintendent, and when they move here we will do as we always do—make the newcomers feel that they are among friends."

"Fairport is noted for its cordial spirit, its friendly welcome to newcomers. I shall never forget how it warmed my heart to be taken in as an old friend when I came here a stranger." Nell's tone was earnest. "I shall never forget Mrs. Parsons, sending down to that wretched hotel and inviting us up to dinner the evening we got here."

"We will pass on the good fashion with the Southys. Of course, having visited you before I married, I did not come among strangers."

"Here comes the doctor," said Nell, looking out of the window. "I will get him to take me home before he puts the machine in the garage." Olive flew to the door to keep her husband from driving in and Nell put the baby's wraps on and hurried out, while little Olive waved goodbye to Mrs. Ellson.

PARIS STILL SHOWS FULL SKIRT

Trotteur Frocks in One-Pieced Effects Very Popular—Skirts Show Drapery.

By Mary Glynn.

Smart serge frocks for street wear are very evident among those creations favored in Paris just at present. The ensemble might be considered rather simple, yet, when closely observed it will be noted that a great deal of the charm is displayed in the detail of its development. The skirts still show fulness that borders on to five yards, though this is not distended to any great extent. Wichtex is introduced in the hem, and this lends just the necessary stiffening. At a recent showing of fall garments a very distinctive serge dress caused considerable comment. Serge and plaid taffeta was combined, and the fact that the full skirt had a still fuller tunic proved very interesting. This was topped by a yoke of taffeta, the fulness disappearing under the softly blousing waist. The collar was unusually attractive, featuring a broad fluting, which stood up-stretching from shoulder to shoulder. Very high button boots and a close fitting turban completed the outfit.

MADEMOISELLE'S PETTICOAT IS IMPORTANT.

By Mary Glynn.

Mademoiselle must needs have many petticoats in order to produce with each of her costumes the necessary fashionable silhouette. Her afternoon frock, whether it be of taffeta, silk or serge, must have a petticoat that will afford the distended line at the hem, that is, if the skirt itself is not boned a little. The average suit is made with a narrow strip of wichtex set in the hem, and so as a result there is little or no urgent need of a petticoat. The garden frocks could not be worn unless they were worn over one of the dainty lace and net creations. It is most important that this accessory be most carefully selected, for unless it is right, the outfit will appear all wrong. The dainty lingerie garden frocks require a petticoat with a little distension or else the frock is sure to look too flat and limp. Very dainty affairs are shown for this purpose with top of silk, jersey or crepe de chine, and the lower part flounced with lace, ribbon and net. Invariably the flounce is distended by the cording or narrow binding, which is daintily arranged on the drop foundation. These petticoats are obtainable in dainty flesh shades or white.

She Saw Him In His Beautiful Little Boat.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Little Mermaid Visited Her Prince.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHEN bedtime came the children begged daddy to tell them about the little mermaid that used to visit the home of a prince she saved from shipwreck.

"The prince's palace was very big and beautiful," daddy began. "In the middle of the large hall a fountain played, throwing jets of spray up to a glass dome in the roof. Sunbeams gleamed down through it, lighting up the water and the charming plants that grew in the great basin.

"When the little mermaid at last found where her prince lived she often used to visit his palace in the twilight of evenings, floating along on top of the waves till she came near it. She swam much nearer land, you see, than any of her sisters dared. She even ventured right up to the narrow channel under the splendid marble terrace, which threw a long shadow across the water, so that nobody could see her. She used to sit here and look at the young prince, who thought he was quite alone when he sat outdoors in the clear moonlight.

"Many evenings she saw him sailing about in his beautiful little boat, with flags waving and music playing. She used to peep through the green rushes, and if the wind happened to catch her long, silvery veil and any one on the boat saw it he thought it was only a swan flapping its wings.

"Many nights she heard the fishermen, who were fishing by torchlight, talking about the prince's good deeds, and it made her happy to know that she had saved his life when he was drifting about on the waves half dead. She could never quite forget how closely his head had rested on her shoulder and how tenderly she had kissed him as she bore him unconscious through the great waves. But the prince knew nothing of this and never saw her.

"Daily the little mermaid became fonder of the earth and mankind. She longed more and more to be able to live among them. Their world seemed so much bigger than hers. With their ships they could scour the ocean. They could climb the mountains high above the clouds, and their wooded, grass green lands reached much farther than her eye could see. There was still so much the little mermaid wanted to know about land, so much that her sisters could not tell her and that she could never make sure of as she visited land herself. So she finally went to her old grandmother, the dowager of the sea, who knew the upper world very well indeed, having visited it since her own youth."

"Oh, daddy, what did her granny tell her?" cried Evelyn. And daddy smiled and kissed her.

Training a Husband

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Olive and Nell Discuss the New School Superintendent.

"Well, Olive," said Nell Morton, walking into Mrs. Ellison's parlor, "I hear the school board row is settled and a new man is hired as superintendent, a Mr. Southy, from somewhere in Michigan, I believe. He comes well recommended, and I hope the warring factions will have a chance to rest now." Nell sank into a chair and unbuttoned her coat.

"I am glad the thing is settled. You know you and I will soon have a very personal interest in the schools. Our children are growing up." Olive laid her hand on the head of her little girl as she spoke.

"Yes, indeed. Hal would be large enough for kindergarten next year i.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you [illegible] your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

PIRATES ARE "JOY-KILLERS."

When the Pirates were forced out of the pennant race last year the team played the biggest part of any faction in the circuit in deciding the winner. Several teams that had chances for the flag were knocked out by Fred Clarke's men, and it was largely through the upsetting of the dope last year at the end of the season that Philadelphia was favored. Looks like a repetition this season. Philadelphia was considered a big factor in the pennant fight when the club started on its last western trip. Putting their best bet in against the Callahan crew, it looked like the Moranites would grab four out of five. But the dope was just reversed, and the Phils left with a very big crimp in their aspirations. They have a tough road trip, and getting knocked off right from the start will have a rather bad moral effect. While the Phils were being hammered back the other clubs in the race were not losing any ground, and the gap between the lead and the Moran crew has been widened. John McGraw has not given up hope of getting into the home stretch dash. Pittsburgh owes the Muggsies a walloping, as that initial series, when New York won four straight at Forbes field, still rankles. If the Bucs keep anywhere near the gait in the New York series they have against Philadelphia, New York will drop two out of three, which will hurt them considerably, inasmuch as the Dodgers have easy picking in hooking up with the trailing Reds. Pittsburgh is going to be much in the fore in settling the flag, even if they have no chance for a very high berth. Certainly Callahan is piloting a bunch of joy-killers for other teams.

KUMAGAE A "BIG" MAN.

Kumagae is a small man almost as small as William M. Johnston, the national single champion and like Johnston weighs about 118 pounds. But the driving power in Kumagae's brown arms is almost uncanny.

Kumagae has developed his game until he can calculate almost to a hair's breadth where he will place his shots. There isn't an American tennis player in the game with such accuracy as is possessed by the Japanese racquet wielder. He plays a back court game, absolutely refusing to play at the net. He is skillful at playing the side lines and is exceedingly cunning at this style of play.

There wil be no chance for America's best tennis players to wear Kumagae down. Kumgae's endurance has proved almost his best stock in trade. The little brown man appears practically tireless. California cracks, who have fallen before the Jap's cunning this year and who are in a position to understand the Oriental better than any of the others say Kumagae is a former Japanese champion distance runner.

EVIDENTLY IT IS SO.

"The suspension of Mamaux has had a good effect on other members of the Pittsburgh team. Oakland is almost deserted of ball players these evenings. Formerly, when one of the Buc stars was wanted, it only needed a short circuit trip of about three blocks, with three stops, to round the whole crew together. Now the ale centers look bleak and barren, as far as the Pirate team is concerned. The boys are going to bed early, instead of sitting around little tables under the glare of electric lights. It needed something to awaken a bunch of the Buccaneers, as it was far different, up until a few evenings ago, as compared with the regime of Fred Clarke. Then the Pirate boss lived in Oakland, could keep in personal tough with his men, and he had them trained better at home than on the road. But it was not until Callahan began visiting the Forbes section that he realized he had one of the greatest little aggregations of white light lovers in the big leagues. Since Jim started to clean up he has had several players on the carpet and threatened to give them just what Mamaux got, or more, and it is taking a chance now to invite a Cosair to accompany you to any place of refreshment outside of the ice cream territory. And it all changed in less than a week. Maybe Callahan realizes now that a lot of comment and criticism of his men has been warranted."—S. P. McCarty.

HOWARD DREW, SPRINTER.

If Howard Drew, the colored sprinter, does not recover sufficiently from his illness to compete on the cinder path again the amateur athletic world will lose one of its popular short-distance runners. Drew for several seasons has stood at the front as a 100-yard man and has always been in big demand for outdoor meets and those on the boards during the winter months. Not only for his speed has he been welcome, but his clean sportsmanship has always brought him popularity. The officials have liked him, fellow-competitors, though pretty sure to be beaten, have always welcomed him, and the crowd, knowing him only by sight, has never failed to give him a "hand." Drew has enjoyed the popularity, but it hasn't turned his head.—Newark News.

By Peter P. Carney

Trapshooting is gaining in favor every day.

Not only are trapshooting clubs increasing their membership, but individuals are holding private shoots.

These are possible by means of a hand trap, the latest and most practical, portable device for throwing targets. It weighs but 6 1-4 pounds, and obviates the necessity of erecting a permanent trap for temporary shooting. Anyone can very easily operate it, and its uses are many. It is ideal for private shoots, picnics, on decks of motor boats or yachts, and for hunting parties.

It can throw targets in a variety of angles, and it fools the best of them. Good trapshooters admit that their scores are better at the club after they have had some practice with a hand trap.

Field shooters are also quite keen for the hand trap, because if taken on a hunting trip it will furnish plenty of enjoyment as well as practice when game happens to be scarce.

Those who love the water also take care to have the hand trap with them on trips, on their motor boats and yachts, for it proves a big help in entertaining all on board. Shooting from a moving motor boat is to many shooters the best kind of a shooting game.

The hand trap is now to be found in nearly all shooters' equipment, and with any kind of care will last many years. It is strongly constructed and while simple, is practical and efficient. It is so compact that one can carry it in a suit case or traveling bag.

THE BATTLING BRAVES

Right now the Braves look to be the best bet among National League outfits capable of giving the Robins a real run for pennant honors.

Boston joined the National Association of Professional Baseball Players, which later became the National League, in 1871. The first year Boston finished in second place and the next year the team romped home with the pennant. Thereafter, for a number of years, pennant-winning seemed a habit with the Beaneaters. They copped the bunting for four successive years, 1872 to 1875, and repeated in 1877, '78, '79, '91, '93, '97, '98 and 1914.

In 1906, 37 years after breaking into professional baseball, a Boston outfit took the count for the first time and finished last. All told, the Beanies have wintered in the cellar five times, in 1905, 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912.

After twelve years of second division pastiming, from 1902 to 1914, the Braves created a baseball sensation in 1914 by climbing from last position to the National League and world's championship.

The Boston team was christened the Braves in 1913 when James Gaffney, of New York, bought the club. Gaffney is a well known Tammany Hall leader, so the nickname of "Braves" was tagged to his team as a natural sequence.

Manager George Stallings, who is now rounding out his thirtieth year in professional baseball, took charge of the Braves in the spring of 1913.

Of the veteran pastimers on the Boston team, Evers has seen 13 years of service in the big show, Magee 12 years, Reulbach 11 years, Konetchy 9 years and Snodgrass 8 years.

"Rabbit" Maranville, one of the niftiest shortstops the game has ever produced, joined the Braves in 1912 after a year's experience in minor league company.

Tom Hughes, who is battling for the lead among National League pitchers, had two trials in the big yard before landing with the Braves. Under Stallings' guidance Tom has developed into a topliner.

In point of continuous service with the Braves, Pitcher George Tyler is the veteran of the team. George joined the Doves, now the Braves, in 1911.

None of the Braves has been performing more brilliantly this season than has Third Baseman "Red" Smith. A slant at "Red's" work makes the hot corner appear a soft occupation.

Young Fitzpatrick, who is Evers' understudy at the Braves' second cushion, may not be John's equal in fancy fielding, but he has Jonathan beat some 30 points in the batting averages.

While not performing out on the lot with the Braves, Coach Fred Mitchell must be handed a share of credit for the team's showing. Mitchell, besides being Stallings' right-hand man, is baseball coach at Harvard and knows the national pastime from turnstile to scoreboard and back again.

Evidently the Braves do not need .300 stickers in order to keep up in the race. Not a member of the outfit is within hailing distance of the select circle of batsmen.

SPECIAL ARCHERY EVENTS.

As a climax to the national archery championship, which was completed Thursday, several special events were shot yesterday morning at West Side Park, Jersey City. The team round of ninety arrows at sixty yards was won by the Keystone quartet, representing Pennsylvania. The members of the winning team wre Dr. R. P. Elmer, the new champion; W. S. Douthitt, J. S. Jiles and O. L. Hertig. The Massachusetts team, consisting of G. P. Bryant, C. P. Dallin, B. P. Gray and H. S. Taylor, finished in second position. New Jersey was third.

WOLTERS A CUB.

The Chicago Nationals yesterday bought Harry Wolters, an outfielder of the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League. The deal was closed by John Powers, president of the Los Angeles Club, and Charles H. Weeghman, president of the Cubs. Wolters played with the New York Americans several years ago. The deal for the sale of "Heinie" Zimmerman to the Boston Braves is still hanging fire, Weeghman said.

SWAM GOLDEN GATE.

Miss "Babe" Wright, a San Francisco girl, yesterday swam across the Golden aGte in 31 minutes 34-4-5 seconds, setting an official Pacific Athletic Association record for women for the event. The best previous record was made by Miss Nell Schmidt, of Aladema, who made it in 44 minutes 11 1 second several years ago. Yesterday's race was the first across the Golden Gate for women ever sanctioned by the association.

UNUSUAL ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES MARK END OF SECOND SUCCESSFUL SUMMER SESSION

Wilson Field, of This City, Captures Several Events at Y. M. C. A. Camp—All Sorts of Athletic Sports Indulged In—Passaic Wins Cup For Best Record—Plainfielders Make Good Showing—Social Aspects of Work.

The sixteenth camping season of the Jersey Boys Camp, on the shores of Lake Wawayanda, came to a close last Thursday. As usual, the entertaining capacity was strained to the limit, Passaic, Ridgewood and Cranford sent the largest delegation of boys.

The Wawayanda campers were peculiarly fortunate this year by virtue of their isolation from the ravages of infantile paralysis, which prevailed in the cities and towns. At home, the boys were confined to their back yards.

From the blowing of the "reveille" at 6:45 a. m. to the sounding of "taps" at 9:30 p. m., every camper was occupied with some camp activity. The day would begin with "flag raising." At this time the whole camp would stand at salute while Old Glory would rise and unfurl above the branches of the tallest pine tree on the island. Then they would daily pledge their allegiances to the Flag. The camp buglers were Herbert and Walden McNair, of Brooklyn, and Roland V. Talby, of New Brunswick.

The morning activities comprised baseball, boating, fishing, tennis and other outdoor sports. Before the noon and evening meal there is a fifteen-minute period of swimming. During the swim periods the boys were well guarded by three life saving dories, each containing a crew of men from the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps. In addition to this there were two men stationed on the diving dock, one on the shore and one in the "Crow's Nest" overlocking the whole field of activity

George Graham Hegan, of South Orange, was the captain of the life savers. He conducted an efficiency test for the life savers throughout the season: Olaf Olsen, of Perth Amboy, proved to be the best man by securing 120 points. His good work was rewarded by presenting to him the Mills Life Saving Efficiency Cup for faithfulness and unusual performance of duty.

One day of each of the four sections was set aside for an athletic meet and another day for the aquatic meet. All of the local Y. M. C. A. were represented by young athletes who worked hard to break long standing Kawayanda athletic and aquatic records. This year the following boys established new records in athletics:

Ninety-five-pound class—50-yard dash, L. Ebert, Cranford, 6 seconds; later equalled by Joseph Grundy, of Passaic, and Howard Cadmus, of Passaic. Standing broad jump—Harold Smith, Jersey City, 8 feet 3½ inches.

One hundred and ten-pound class Running high jump, Howard F. Mahon, Orange, 4 feet 9¾ inches.

One hundred and thirty-pound class—Running broad jump, Wilson Field, Plainfield, 18 feet 6½ inches; running high jump—Wilson Field, Plainfield, 5 feet 2 inches.

Unlimited class—Running broad jump, F. E. Walker, Passaic, 19 feet 6 inches.

By scoring 2,046 points for the entire season, Passaic again won the athletic cup. The Passaic athletic team was constituted of Howard Cadmus, Robert Hitchings, Joseph Grundy, F. E. Walker, Harold Sproul, George Hanson, Harry Philipps and Leon Kordell, Clintton Cadmus, E. Denholm.

Ridgewood team made second place with Montclair, Orange and Plainfield following. Ralph Dezman, assistant physical director of Orange Y. M. C. A., was the athletic instructor for the eight weeks.

The Ridgewood Y. M. C. A. swimming team won the aquatic cup by scoring 1,767 points. Her team was made up by H. Harmon, C. Osgood, W. Wells, J. Thomas, R. Titterton, R. Steves, B. Ashworth, L. Haldon, J. Ford and D. Craig.

The high men for the season in each class for the season were Robert Fuller, of Plainfield, 95-pound class, 217 points; Herbert Harmon, Ridgewood, 110-pound class, 216 points; N. Neidlinger, of Orange, 120-pound class, and Olaf Olsen, of Perth Amboy, unlimited class, 246 points. Each of these boys will receive the camp athletic fob as will the high man in the athletic events.

The aquatic meets were in charge of R. C. Smith, of Madison; Howard Le Roy, of Ridgewood; Kenneth Woodruff, of Elizabeth, and A. N. Ferriss, of Springfield College.

The social life at camp this year has been full of its usual vivacity. Camp fires and ghost stories, of course, have been most popular. Many of the evening entertainments were held in the lodge. Such events as illustrated lectures, mock trials, indoor athletic meets, banquets, vocational talks, would take place in the big building on the mainland when weather conditions did not permit a camp fire gathering.

The Fourth section had a treat in the persons and presence of Princess Chinquilla and her brother, Osknonton. They erected their tepee on the island in the afternoon and in the evening, with all the local color necessary, they sang Indian songs, executed Indian dances and told Indian legends. Their manner and method of presentation of their work made it an evening long to be remembered.

All at Wawayanda, however, is not sport and jollity. There is much that is serious and instructive. All educational features were made interesting by the nature of the method with which they were imparted to the boys. The boys learned woodcraft through "treasure hunts." On these hunts the campers came to recognize woodcraft signs and follow trails until they located the "treasure" for which they were seeking. The camp site and contiguous territory abounds with the wonders and beauties of nature. The boys learned to appreciate this fact all the more through the "Wantonit Club." In two-week periods, from fifteen to twenty-five boys learned more about birds, flowers, trees, farms, snakes, fish, insects, rocks, minerals, and stars than the average business man learns in a lifetime. Each boy had to recognize the hundred or more natural objects to belong to the club. In as short a space as one hour, names of fifty trees and flowers were learned.

The social work was in charge of J. W. Stokes, of Passaic; Charles F. Dalghren, of Springfield; Ernest Griffin, of Hamilton, and Albert Meder, of Cranford. The Wantonoit Club was directed by Ralph Fisher, of Philadelphia.

The Wawayanda Summer School was a greater success this year than ever. J. A. Corlies, who for many years was principal of the Cranford High School, and who now occupies a chair in the Hotchkiss School in Connecticut, was principal. He was assisted by Ernest Griffith, of Hamilton College and James Valentine, of Stevens.

Seventy-five students were in attendance this season, taxing the seating capacity to its limit. The curriculum provides for individual as well as class instruction. Grammar, preparatory and college subjects are taught. Pupils who have failed during the regular school term, have entered the summer school to prepare for the fall examinations, while others who have left the grade schools have taken up the summer study in order to fit themselves better for high school work. It is hoped that in the near future an uniform curriculum will be established, which will enable pupils entering high school to bridge over the transition period. This year in order to instill good efforts, deportment, attendance and scholarship, a watch fob was offered as a prize to the pupil obtaining the highest average.

In conjunction with the school work lectures on "First Aid to Injured Campers on Hike" were delivered by the Camp Physician, W. Roy Thompson, of Philadelphia.

In the shop the boys learn to make souvenirs from brich bark and rhododendron, with the result that many novel and useful articles were manufactured. Many bird houses were constructed this year. Wallace Weglau, of Plainfield, received a scout ax for his success in making the best bird house. The shop was in charge of A. T. Eavonson, of Masonville.

This has been one of the finest seasons at camp and Plainfield boys have shown a good camp spirit. The campers expressed sympathy to the parents of Plainfield boys who passed away—Homer Clawson and Gilbert Lewis. The dishes and silver presented by the women's auxiliary were appreciated by the boys and leaders.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 26.—The annau ltournament for the lawn tennis championships of Kentucky begins here today and will continue through the greater part of the coming week. Indications point to one of the most successful events of its kind ever held in the State. Many high ranking players are entered from clubs throughout Kentucky, in addition to those of the Audubon Country Club, of this city, on whose courts and under whose auspices the tournament is listed.

SEMI-FINAL CONTEST AT SPRING LAKE CLUB

Mrs. Thurston Wright and Mrs. C. M. Bagg In Finals On Monday.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Spring Lake, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Thurston Wright, of Pittsburgh, a sister of Mrs. R. Story Rowland, of Plainfield, and Mrs. C. M. Craig, of South Orange, will contend for the women's championship of the Spring Lake Golf Club in a final round to be played next Monday afternoon, as a result of the semi-finals played here yesterday afernoon. Contrary to expectations, both women had an easy time of it yesterday, but predictions are being made as to the outcome of the final match. Mr. Wright has made the lowest score thus far since the contest started on Tuesday, having made 99 in the preliminary round for qualification in the first eight. In no other one of the matches has it been necessary to complete the sixteen holes in order for the contestants to eliminate their opponents. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Wright defeated Mrs. Frederick A. Potts, the Lakewood Country Club star, 4 up and 3 to play. In view of the fact that Mrs. Potts was beaten in the sixteen holes on the preliminary round by Mrs. Thurston by but one stroke, this was surprising to the spectators. Mrs. Bragg bested Mrs. George D. Boschen, of New York, in the semi-finals, 6 up and 5 to play.

OLD GUARD SCORES.

High scoring in nearly all of their fifteen matches by the officers and men of the Old Guard veteran battalion of New York has been the rule during their annual visit to the ranges at Sea Girt, which began last Monday at the invitation of Governor Fielder and General Bird W. Spencer. The Keller trophy for teams of five, scores of the best three, at 200, 300 and 500 yards, to count, was won by a team made up of men from Company C. Teams from the official staff, the non-commissioned staff and Companies A and B were second, third and fourth, respectively.

RAILROAD PLAYERS AT AVON OVAL

Crack Pennsylvania Team to Do Battle With Tabs.

The Tabs and the champions of the Pennsylvania Railroad League will get together on Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon. The game promises to be a battle of managers' wits, and, inasmuch as the manager of the railroad team is a Palinfield young man, the situation is more than usually localized.

According to the press agent of the Pennsylvania outfit, the team has cleaned up everything in sight and has just completed a successful rush through the league standing. The pitcher is named Dunbar, and, although he is generally used by a Jersey City team on Sundays, he has consented to appear heer. His catcher is one Duncan, said to be a "demon" with the stick. The Pennsylvania outfit will be minus the services of the regular first baseman, who was slightly injured while at work the other day. Edward Harding, of this city, is the manager of the railroad contingent.

It is said that Mickey McFadden and Art Kyle will be in the points for the local team.

CLIFF RANDOLPH MAY HURL FOR HOPE CHAPEL

According to Latest Reports Tommy Mullin Will Catch For Abstainers.

Every fan who can spare the time should attend the baseball match between the Tab and Hope Chapel baseball teams on Baptists' field this afternoon.

According to semi-official reports received at the last moment, the Hopes are going to present a most formidable lineup, with Cliff Randolph as the possible pitching assignment. Cliff has allowed his name to be placed on the Hope roster and is willing to assist the boys if he can. As he has no Washington pitching assignment for today, it is highly probable that he will come out and help the Hopes. Jack Garretson will adorn the first station for the Chapel team.

It is reported that Tommy Mullin will do the catching for the Tabs, inasmuch as Frank Teeling is out of town. Tommy will be of considerable assistance to the Abstainers and will offset any unusual advantage that the Hopes may have.

JOHNSTON AND GRIFFEN IN SEMI-FINAL ROUND

William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, Pacific Coast and the national doubles champions, with R. Norris Williams, 2d, and Richard Harte, a Harvard pair, won places in the semi-final round of the doubles of the Meadow Club tournament at Southampton yesterday afternoon.

The California pair made a slow start against Watson M. Washburn and L. E. Mahan, of New York, who made a sweep of the first set with their drives straight through the court. Griffin missed all of his chances at the net in this set, but he got into action in the second.

CLARK WINS PLAY-OFF.

Manchester, Vt., Aug. 26.—Equaling his return trip of 2 up on bogie, which brought him into the deadlock with N. M. Peters, of Englewood, for the Arthur Tayor memorial cup on Wednesday at Ekwanok, Clarence M. Clarke, of Philadelphia, today won the play-off of the tie.

CORPORATION NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., will receive sealed bids at the Council Chambers, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting of said Council to be held therein on Tuesday, September 5th, 1916, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., for the erection and construction of a City Hall Building on Watchung Avenue corner of East Sixth Street, in said City.

Plans and specifications and forms for proposals for such proposed building can be obtained by bidders on application to Messrs. Peck & Bottomley, Associate Architects, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York city by filing references for approval and depositing with said Architects certified check for $25.00, payable to the order of the Treasurer of the said City, which check will be held until the return of such plans and specifications. Also the plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The work will be let in four (4) contracts: 1st—For General Construction; 2nd—For Plumbing, gas fitting and work kindred thereto; 3rd—For Steam heating; 4th—For Electrical work. Separate bids will be received for each of these contracts.

All bids must be on the forms furnished with the specifications and in compliance with the "instructions to bidders" accompanying the same, and accompanied by certified check on some solvent bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Treasurer of said City, to the amount of five per cent. of the bid submitted. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed enveloped addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

Dated August 7, 1916.

FRELINGHUYSEN STRONG FAVORITE

Politicians On G. O. P. Outing Show Perference for Somerset County Man.

CANDIDATES APLENTY

Colgate and Edge, Who Seek Gubernatorial Honors, Are Well Received—Col. Martin Still In Race For County Clerkship.

Two score or more Plainfielders attended the annual outing and clambake of the Union County Republican Committee, held at Port-au-Peck on Saturday. The weather was ideal for and outing of the kind, and the 450 men from all sections of the county enjoyed themselves to the limit.

The bake was served shortly after noon, and by the time the clams fish, lobsters, chicken and watermelon with the fixin' had been carefully attended to, a full two hours had passed. The only thing that marred the pleasure of the day was the wind, which blew the smoke of the bake directly over the tables in such a way that all of the party had a busy time of it keeping the water out of their eyes. The special train brought the party home about 9:30 in the evening, the late afternoon hours being spent by many at resorts along the beach.

There were candidates aplenty on hand, but no speeches were made. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen arrived early, and after a handshaking bee, left for Atlantic City, where he had another engagement. It was a noticeable fact that among the throng from the county aside from Hamilton F. Kean, little or no interest was expressed in the candidacy of former Governor Franklin Murphy for United States Senator, the politicians expressing a decided preference for Frelinghuysen.

Senator Walter E. Edge and Austen Colgate, who seek the nomination for Governor, were both present, and had a busy time of it. The so-called machine element in the party ranks were outspoken in their advocacy of the Edge candidacy, and County Register Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, took him around to the tables and introduced him to every man present, after the diners were seated. Colonel Colgate was in tow of Charles N. Codding, who is directing his campaign in this county, and he met many who assured him of their support, especially those who have been interested in the Progressive movement during the past few years. The Colonel expressed himself as much pleased with the reception, as his supporters have felt all along that Union county is the enemy's country.

Sheriff George C. Otto, Deputy Sheriff James Warner, Senator Carlton C. Pierce, Assemblymen Runyon, Morgan and Pierson, County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt, Assistant State Sealer of Weights and Measures A. C. Schwartz, Congressman John H. Capstick, former Congressman Charles C. Fowler and Richard Boardman, of Plainfield, who want to succeed Mr. Capstick, Edward Bauer, Colonel William B. Martin and Neil McLeod, all of whom wish to have the county clerk nomination, and many others, were in the crowd.

Colonel Martin was indignant because an Elizabeth paper on Friday night printed a statement that he was going to withdraw from the race for county clerk. He says that he is in it to stay, and that he is going to give the organization, who are supporting Bauer, the surprise of their political existence.

Among the Plainfielders were Acting Mayor Francis J. Blatz, Councilmen John H. Cose, Elias H. Bird and Charles F. Sminck, City Collector William R. Townsend, City Treasurer William F. Arnold, Republican County Chairman William Newcorn, City Clerk John J. Carroll, Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Chief of Police Patrick J. Kiely, Captain John J. Flynn, Assistant Fire Chief Andrew Jennings, Freeholders Samuel P. T. Wilbur and James F. Buckle, William L. Gloak, Joseph Harrigan, Peter McDonough, Dr. Chalmers L. Crist, Herbert Buxton, Charles Dunham, William G. Hutchcroft, Howard Woolston, George Andrews, Joseph Beard, Ralph Willis, John E. Nichol, secretary to Congressman Capstick, Constable George York, whom they say is to be a Republican from now on, Overseer of the Poor Garret T. Dunham and Martin B. Stutsman. George Johnson, who holds the political destinies of Scotch Plains in the palm of his hand, was also there.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

DECLARES THAT WILSON IS PLAYING POLITICS

Former Assemblyman Recalls Executive's Veto of Grade Crossing Bill.

In commenting to representatives of the press on President Wilson's method of handling the controversy between the railroad managers and their men, William Delaroche Anderson, who was an Assemblyman and member of the Committtee on Railroads and Canals when Mr. Wilson was in the Governor's chair, said:

"President Wilson's arbitrary attitude toward the railroads in the present controversy is an effort to bolster up his declining political fortunes. Mr. Wilson is in a hole. When Mr. Wilson gets in a hole he plays politics with the railroads.

"I am not one of those who have forgotten that in 1912, when Mr. Wilson, as Governor of New Jersey and as candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, and at a time when his opponent Champ Clark was winning over him in the primaries in whirlwind manner, and with the knowledge of a pitifully empty war chest, vetoed the bill passed by the Legislature to prevent the toll of human life taken by the railroads at dangerous grade crossings, and carelessly left inclosed in the veto message a letter from one of the leading railroad representatives of the State urging the veto and intimating most strongly the placing effect said veto would have on Mr. Wilson's political future. These are facts of which I am personally familiar and from which I draw my conclusions."

TROOP D APPRECIATES GIFT OF 600 TOWELS

Mrs. L. C. Whitall Receives Letter of Acknowledgement From Captain Borden.

Mrs. L. C. Whitall, of 1231 Martine avenue, today received a letter from Captain Albert Borden, in charge of Troop D, First Squadron, at Douglas, Ariz., acknowledging receipt of towels sent by the Citizens' Auxiliary of this city, the work being done by the sewing division of the National Special Aid Society of Plainfield and North Plainfield. These towels were sent to Douglas about two weeks ago and were made by the officers of the sewing division at Grace church parish house. Four hundred towels were made of Dixie crash 32 inches long and two hundred made of yard square unbleached cheese cloth.

Captain Borden's letter follows:

"Your letter of August 12 with reference to the box of 600 towels has been received and the shipment has arrived. I assure you your gift is a very welcome one. This is a very dusty country and towels are great essentials. I read your letter at retreat last night and it was received with great enthusiasm. It was very good of you indeed to have thought of us and it is such evidences of appreciation that we are receiving thaht have encouraged us so much in our work."

FINED FOR ILLEGAL SELLING OF WHISKEY

Fannie Rubin, Wife of Druggist, Found Guilty On Three Charges.

Fannie Rubin, whose husband, Samuel, conducts the Red Cross pharmacy, at Liberty and West Fourth streets, was found guilty on three charges when araigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza this morning—one for selling liquor without a license, one for selling two glasses of whiskey and one for selling a bottle of whisky, and was fined $20 on each count. The $100 bond of Irving Alderstein, a clerk, was continued for his appearance in court for trial on September 5, and Jacob Rubin and Samuel Rubin were bonded for appearance in court Thursday morning to answer to charges of selling liquor without a license. Besides the complaints now against them it is probable that the three Rubins will have to face State charges as well.

In the case of Mrs. Rubin when she was found guilty of the three violations two Italians, Tony Pasci and John Rossy, were the star witnesses for the city. They testified that on Sunday, August 13, they went into the Red Cross pharmacy and asked for drinks, which Mrs. Rubin gave them, and then Pasci purchased a bottle of liquor. The two had been searched before they entered the place by Police Captain J. J. Flynn and Lieutenant Higgins and when they came out were searched again, the bottle of whisky being found on them.

Alderstein changed his plea this morning from not guilty to guilty, and will be sentenced next Tuesday.

BRADY AND AUTHOR IN AUTO SMASHUP

Theatrical Men Bruised When Big Car Overturns Near Dunellen.

William A. Brady, New York theatrical producer; Jules Goodman, playwright, and John Turk, manager, are all in Muhlenberg Hospital here as a result of an automobile accident shortly after midnight Saturday. The big car of Mr. Brady turned over near Dunellen when an axle broke, and the three men were thrown into a ditch.

They were not seriously injured. It was at first feared that Mr. Brady had a broken shoulder, but an X-ray examination yesterday proved only only buises. Mr. Goodman was bruises. Mr. Goodman was bruised and cut, and Mr. Turk was badly shaken up. Turk will leave the hospital this afternoon and the others will be discharged tomorrow.

The three men were here to witness the opening performance of "The Man Who Came Home," at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday evening. The show is the first Brady production for the legitimate stage this season. It was written by Mr. Goodman from the story by John Fleming Wilson, and is to open at the Playhouse in New York on Wednesday evening. Mr. Brady brought the playwright along so that the two might make eleventh-hour suggestions to the director or to members of the cast. After the performance they left for Wilmington, Del., where the company plays tonight.

The accident happened just after they passed through Dunellen. The car was traveling at a fast rate when an axle broke, throwing the machine on its side in a ditch. All of the occupants had a narrow escape from death. They managed to crawl out from under the car and were found by occupants of another machine. An ambulance was called and they were brought to Muhlenberg Hospital shortly after 1 a. m. Sunday.

JAMES BELLCHAMBER DIES IN 73D YEAR

Resident of Middletown, Conn., Passes Away While Visiting Daughter Here.

James Bellchamber, aged 76, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew McCarthy, of 427 Orchard place, at 3 o'clock this morning. Death was due to the infirmities of old age and complications.

Mr. Bellchamber was a resident of Middletown, Conn., since coming to this country as young man from England. He was spending some time with his daughter when he was taken ill a few days ago. Engaged in business in Middleton, he was a well known resident of that place. During his stay here he was a communicant of St. Mary's church.

He leaves besides Ms. McCathy another daughter, Mrs. James Dempsey, of Boston and one son, James Bellchamber, of Middletown.

Funeral services will be held from his son's home on Wednesday and from St. John's church, that place, at 10 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. John's cemetery.

MOOSE TO BE REPRESENTED AT MARDI-GRAS CELEBRATION

Charles P. Freligh, of the Astor Theatre, has been appointed by the Mardi-Gras Association of Coney Island as a committee of one to represent the Moose of Plainfield at the coming celebration during the week of September 11-16. It has been decided to charter two or three buses, one of which will be entered in the parade for one of the many prizes offered by the Mardi-Gras committee.

The Moose will leave in a body from Moose Hall and it is understood that some of the business men will display emblems and bunting as the slogan for the day will be "Boost Plainfield." The route to be taken will be from the hall to Park avenue to Fifth street, to South avenue, headquarters at Coney Island will be at the Mardi-Gras Hotel.

HABITUAL DRUNKARDS.

Sheridon Jones, colored, was arraigned in the City Court this morning for the twenty-second time on a drunk and disorderly charge. He is on the blacklist in the city and borough, but he went to Scotch Plains. The judge gave him another chance. Edgar Robinson was also arraigned on the same charge. It made the third time for him in two weeks, but the judge gave him another chance, too.

CONDICT TO RUN IN THIRD WARD

His Friends Say He Will Be Candidate For Common Council.

NO WORD FROM COX

First Ward Fight Is On—Hamilton Petitions Being Circulated In Second—Blatz May Be Unopposed In Fourth.

G. Herbert Condict, of 922 Central avenue, will likely be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Council from the Third ward. Within the past few days many of Mr. Condict's friends have been urging that he make the race, and he is almost persuaded, they report. The filing of his petition is expected within a short time.

Mr. Condict is identified with large engineering projects and has a reputation that his friends feel would be of untold value in handling municipal affairs. He is a member of the Crescent Avenue church and is superintendent of Hope Chapel Sunday school.

If Mr. Condict should consent to run matters would be simplified in the Third ward. As a result of dissension that arose when the Republican Club there attempted to indorse a candidate the other night, no action was taken and a movement to name a committee of five for the purpose of suggesting some one to run for Council was lost.

Nothing has been heard from Councilman Robert H. Cox in answer to the telegram of the Third Ward Republican Club asking whether or not he would be a candidate for re-election. This telegram was not sent by the club officially, but by John J. Carroll, its president, for information of the members. Mr. Cox is a corporal in Troop D, New Jersey National Guard, now doing patrol duty on the Mexican border. It is not believed that he will be a candidate for re-election.

Christie P. Hamilton, Councilman from the Second ward, is to run again, say his friends. Petitions for Mr. Hamilton are being circulated now and will be filed within the next few days, it is believed. At a recent meeting of the Second Ward Club a resolution to indorse his record and request that he run again was voted down because he would not favorably answer a question as to saloon licenses put by a number of prohibitionists. Those who are opposed to the renewal of saloon licenses in Plainfield next January say that they will have a candidate out againt nim, and that the issue will be clearly drawn. However, they have not yet found a candidate.

So far Francis J. Blatz is unopposed in the Fourth ward. Mr. Blatz is president of the Council. He has not yet been sounded on the question of license.

The First ward fight is already on. Councilman Edgar filed his petition Friday afternoon and Fred S. Cutter has also agreed to run. Mr. Edgar will vote for the renewal of saloon licenses, he is quoted as saying, and Mr. Cutter has made no statement, but is understood to be for a "dry" Plainfield.

CLAN TO VISIT ELIZABETH.

Clan Mackenzie, No. 204, Order Scottish Clans, at its meeting tonight arrangements will be made to send a delegation to the meeting of Clan Gordon, of Elizabeth, Friday night, at which time the latter clan will initiate a large class of new members. An invitation has been extended to Clan Mackenzie and it is hoped that a large delegation will attend.

BUCKLE PETITION FILED.

The petition of James F. Buckle for the Republican nomination for Freeholder was filed with City Clerk John J. Carrol, Saturday. Mr. Buckle has been indorsed by all the Republican clubs in the various parts of the city.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

Health Officer.

SEE SUCCESS FOR NEW BRADY PLAY

"Man Who Came Back" Wins Favor With Plainfielders.

It is not often that Plainfielders have an opportunity of witnessing a show of such real merit as "The Man Who Came Back" without a trip to New York. The new Brady play that is to open at the Playhouse this week was tried out at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday night, and if the enthusiastic verdict of discriminating Plainfielders will be of any cheer to Mr. Brady, he is assured that his first night audience prophesies a long run for the drama. "The Man Who Came Back" has strength and originality that is refreshing, and one scene—that in an opium dive in Shanghai—threatens the melodramatic so close that but for the artistic acting of Mary Nash and Henry Hull it would drop the entire play into mediocrity. These two young leads rise to real stardom, and the most delicate situations are safe in their hands. "The Man Who Came Back" is a typical Brady play, and is the first important venture of that popular producer on the legitimate stage for some time. It was written by Julius Eckert Goodman from the story by John Fleming Wilson and Mr. Goodman and Mr. Brady, who witnessed the tryout here, were both well pleased with their effect, as they had a right to be.

DID NOT REFUSE TO INDORSE COX

J. McClymont Tells of Intent of Third Ward Republican Voters.

The following letter from James McClymont, including the Cox incident at last week's meeting of the Third Ward Republican Club was received at noon today:

Editor of the Plainfield Press

A careful reading of the account of the Third Ward Republican meeting as reported on the front page of your issue of Saturday, makes it evident to every intelligent man who attended the meeting that a deliberate attempt has been made to mislead voters.

You have seen fit to give prominence to the small part that I had in the meeting; I trust you will see fit to give the same prominence to this letter.

This was my first experience at a meeting of the organization; in fact I had never in my ten years residence here received a notice of a meeting. I attended, like many of my neighbors, to have a voice in the party's choice for city officials. The meeting had been advertised for 8 o'clock, but it was within a few minutes to 8:30 before the chairman called the meeting to order.

A very few minutes of the meeting was sufficient to indicate to all of us that our part was to do as we were told, ask no questions, but accept the cut and dried program of the self-appointed custodians of honor, the integrity, past, present, and future of the Republican Party of the Third Ward. The officers of president and secretary-treasurer were filled with a bold disregard for parliamentary ethics that would have done credit, as credit goes in such circles, to a Tammany Hall ward politician of a decade ago.

After this important bit of business had been transacted, the chairman advised the meeting that Mr. Cox had been communicated with "some time ago" as to whether or not he would be a candidate for re-election; subsequent requests for him to declare his position had all been of no avail and the letters and telegrams had been ignored. Despite this apparent indifference on the part of Mr. Cox, the chairman of the meeting suggested that any action be deferred and that a committe, which he insisted should be selected by himself, be appointed with power to name a candidate. Beautiful scheme, wasn't it? But there were enough men present who refused to betray the spirt of the Primary Law by permitting the chairman, through a committee of his own preference and picking, to designate the candidate in "the good old fashioned way."

It was conceded by the chairman and others that Mr. Cox would not be a candidate, nevertheless, a select committee with power, rather than the open meeting, was what the chairman fought for and was so ably assisted by Councilman Cose. The vote was taken on Mr. Cose's motion to appoint the committee and was lost. There was no motion, expressed or inferred, on the indorsement of Mr. Cox's record.

As you have, I trust inadvertantly, given circulation to a misstatement of fact, you will doubtless, in so far as is possible, in justice to Mr. Cox and in justice to Republicans of the Third ward, endeavor to rectify the false impression conveyed in your columns.

ROUMANIA AND ITALY DECLARE WAR ON CENTRAL POWERS WHILE GREECE IS TORN WITH EMOTION

FIFTEEN NATIONS NOW ENGAGED IN TERRIFIC STRUGGLE IN EUROPE—BULGARS TAKE BIG WAR STORES.

GREEKS AROUSED BY CAPTURE OF MANY TOWNS

Berlin Makes No Comment On Important Developments of the Past Twenty-Four Hours—Roumania Can Put 500,000 Men Into the Field Within Short Time—General Averescu to Command Army.

Berlin, August 28.—Within the past twenty-four hours Italy and Roumania have both joined the Allies by making official declarations of war against the Central Powers, and today Greece is tottering on the abyss. Berlin yesterday received through the Swiss government the announcement that the Italian government considered itself at war with Germany from August 28. This morning there was received an announcement that it had decided on a course of war with Austria-Hungary.

Roumania's entrance into the war places a thoroughly drilled and equipped army of nearly 600,000 men alongside the Allies.

The organization and equipment of the Roumanian army has been praised by many experts. Roumania's military service is obligatory on all able-bodied men between 21 and 46 years of age. This gives the country 50,000 new soldiers a year and enables Roumania, out of a population of 7,000,000, to muster an army of over half a million.

Roumania's formal entrance into the war makes a total of fifteen nations engaged in the greatest conflict in the world's history. It is possible Roumania's decision may exert a tremendous influence on Greece, where the Venizelos pro-war party held great demonstrations yesterday.

Though the Allied censorship on Balkan news has been very strict for serveral weeks, wireless advices from Berlin indicated uneasiness in German capital over the progress of the diplomatic battle being waged at Bucharest. It was plain that Germany feared Roumania would decide to join the Allies after Russia had swept through the Austrian crownland of Bukovina and while the Allies were preparing for a great offensive in the Balkans.

Averescu to Lead Army.

Paris, Aug. 28.—General Averescu, former Minister of War, is to command the army, it is reported. The Bucharest Journal quotes M. Filipesco as saying that Russian forces would proceed a cross the Polrudsha against Bulgaria within ten days, although this article made no mention of any declaration &

Bulgars Take Greek Stores.

Saloniki, Aug. 28. — Bulgarian troops that occupied the Aegean port of Kavala seized great stores of Greek war supplies. None of the guns nor munitions had been removed from the Greek ports at Kavala, and when the Bulgars took possession of these forts they took over all the war suppiles they could find. Serious damage has been inflicted upon the forts by British warships, which have been bombarding Kalava and its works at intervals since Friday. Complete reports of their fighting at Kavala have not been received here, but it is known that a number of Greeks were killed. Seven Greek officers who escaped in a boat have landed on the island of Thasos, where a volunteer battery is being formed to fight the Bulgars.

Pro-Alley Demonstrations.

Athens, August 28.—Bulgaria's continued advance into Greek territory and the occupation of Greek forts at the port of Kavala has brought Greece appreciably nearer to war.

No new decision has been reached by the government, but King Constantine was to hold another conference with his ministers and war chiefs today. Pro-Alley newspapers are demanding an immediate declaration of war agains Bulgaria and Germany, while the pro-German papers for the most part are silent.

Pro-Alley demonstrations were held throughout Greece yesterday, centring in Athens, where fromer Premier Venizelos, leader of the Greek war party, addressed 50,000 cheering adherents.

Venizelos charged that King Constantine has been victimized by Germany into violating the Constitution and thwarting the popular will. He urged that a committe of leading Greek citizens call upon the King and demand that he show the most benevolent neutrality toward the Allies, at the same time preparing the army, for possible war.

War Popular in Italy.

Rome, August 28.—Italy declared war on Germany because Germany sent both land and sea forces to the aid of Austria, enabling her to concentrate her maximum effort against Italy, said an official statement issued here today.

Excepting the capture of Gorizia, no event for several months has so stirred the Italian public as the news of Italy's challenge to the Kaiser. Newspaper extras flashed the word to the Sunday holiday crowds and an enormous crowd quickly gathered in Piazza Colonna.

A great procession formed and paraded through the principal streets, shouting "Down with Germany!" and "Long Live the Allies!" Until midnight the crowds swung through the streets, singing the national airs.

Turk Vanguards Driven Back.

Constantinople, August 28.—Fighting is continuing at Sakiz in Persia, says the War Office in the following official statement:

"In the neighborhood of Sakiz enemy reinforcements, mainly Trans-Baikal Cossacks, strongly attacked the left wing of our advance troops. Our vanguards were compelled to retire to the main force.

French Hold at Fleury.

Paris, August 28.—The War Office announced today that another attempt by the Germans to recapture Fleury, on the Verdun front, was frustrated by the French. The Germans assaulted the French positions with great violence, but were repulsed by the French with hand grenades.

STRIKE SEEMS SURE; WILSON DESPONDENT

Final Statement of Executives May Precipitate General Walkout.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The President does not expect to hold a conference with the railroad brotherhood presidents today, the only conference scheduled being that with the railroad executives at 2:30.

They will then present their "final statement," which is expected to precipitate a strike.

Those close to the President describe him as nearly exhausted and despondent, but still trying to devise new plans and new pleas which will at least postpone the great traffic tie-up, if they cannot prevent.

Leaders in Congress were consulting today as to the likelihood of a joint conference this afternoon or tomorrow, at which the President would appear and ask for a joint resolution to give expression to all the contenders that it was their duty, if they could not come to terms now, to declare an armistice of two months or more for better counsel.

ONLY 43 NEW PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED IN N. Y.

New York, Aug. 28.—The fewest number of new cases of infantile paralysis for any Monday since July 10 was recvorded by the Health Department today. Forty-three new cases were recorded, as against eighty-three yesterday. The authorities believe that with the cooler weather the epidemic is now under control.

KENDALL FOR MEETINGS OF TEACHERS ERE SCHOOLS OPEN

Trenton, August 28.—The holding of teachers' meetings in school districts where the opening of schools is deferred is strongly urged by Commissioner Calvin N. Kendall in a communication addressed to superintendents and supervising principals.

In his letter Commissioner Kendall says:

"In the event that the opening of the schools in your district is postponed on account of infantile paralysis, I recommend and strongly urge that some of the time during which the schools would ordinarily be in session be used for meetings with your teachers.

"Such meetings may be of great value. If properly organized and conducted they will increase the efficiency of teachers, and will be in a measure offset the loss to the pupils from the temporary closing of the schools.

"The kind of meetings which will be most profitable will readily suggest themselves to superintendents and principals. They may be grade meetings, general meetings, or meetings of teachers with special teachers or directors.

"In numerous districts the State monographs pertaining to the teaching of the several subjects in the course of study may be discussed with profit.

"It is gelieved that the time of teachers which will be available in many districts is too valuable not to be definitely used for one of the most important purposes of school administration—the improvement of teachers in service."

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Startup, of Westervelt avenue, have returned from a pleasant vacation at Carmel, Me.

Mrs. James Shores Pray, of East Sixth street, has returned hom, after spending the summer at The Pines, Branchville, Sussex county.

HIT TRAFFIC POSTS.

Cortland Van Able, of 175 Clinton avenue, West Brighton, S. I., and F. J. Burns, of 193 New Brunswick avenue, Perth Amboy, broke two traffic posts on Park avenue, near Crescent avenue, last night, in avoiding an accident. Van Able was going south on Park avenue when the nue into the thoroughfare. Both made sharp turns to avoid a collision and demolished the posts. Each agreed to pay the damages of replacing the posts.

CONFINED IN COUNTY JAIL.

Albert Lederer, of North Plainfield, who was taken to Somerville by Sheriff Charles P. Sebring, by virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery at Trenton, is still confined in the Somerset County jail and will have to remain there until he pays the $150.50, which was the amount of the installments due his wife, Florence S. Lederer, by whom the charge against him was made. The $150.50 is alimony, as yet unpaid.

CASE DISMISSED.

On the complaint of the Plainfield Theatre management, charging him with disorderly conduct, Robert Semer was arraigned in Police Court this morning, but because of lack of evidence the case was dismissed by Judge DeMeza. It was charged that at one of the shows last week Semer created a disturbance in the gallery, but as he denied the accusations of the only witness against him the judge had nothing to do but dismiss the case.

HENRY NEWTON'S FUNERAL.

One new case of infantile paralysis was discovered here over the week-end, when Dr. Raphael Yood diagnosed the illness of Harry Feldman, the 2½-year-old son of Samuel Feldman, of 946 West Third street, as an attack of the plague. The case was discovered yesterday and is not a severe one.

JACKSON'S INAUGURATION.

Unwelcomed by Adams, but the People Made Things Pretty Lively.

It was on Feb. 11, the day the electoral votes were counted, that Jackson arrived in Washington and took up his residence at Gadsby's, an inn famous in stage coaching days. He declined to call upon President Adams, implying that he could not bring himself to touch the hand of a man who had attained office through unworthy means. He busied himself with the office seekers, who rushed to Washington in incredible numbers, likewise avoiding Adams to flock around the power that was to be. Adams, resenting this breach of etiquette, took no official or social notice of his successor and left the city on the 3d of March, neither he nor any member of his cabinet remaining to welcome Jackson to office.

On the morning of March 4 those fortunate to secure a commanding position on Capitol hill looked down upon Pennsylvania avenue alive with carts and carriages full of women and children, their male escorts walking beside them. At last a small company of men was seen marching compactly through this crowd up the middle of the avenue, one tall figure holding his hat, while the wind played through his willful gray locks. There was something military in the sight, something most unmilitary in the rabble of people shouting themselves hoarse in acclaim of the spare, erect figure. It was an expression of popular will and popular trust that gripped the heart and sent an ache to the throats even of those who feared the "Tennessee barbarian" and his host.

After taking the oath of office Jackson returned to the White House on horseback, followed indiscriminately by white and black, rich and poor, men, women and children, who swarmed over the lawn and through the rooms of the executive mansion, where no police provision had been made for such an onslaught. The courageous old warrior was forced that day to do what he seldom did. He retreated and sought refuge in his old quarters at Gadsby's. Current rumor had it that a quantity of china and cut glass to the value of several thousand dollars was broken in an attempt to get refreshments to the multitude, and finally great tubs of punch were carried out in front of the house, but that "hogsheads would not have been enough."—Helen Nicolay in Century.

BOILING WATER.

It Is Not Always Hot and Sometimes May Be Barely Heated.

If you scald yourself with the teakettle you are apt to think that boiling water is a pretty hot proposition. But boiling water is not always very hot water, and this is the way it happens.

When water boils ordinarily it is because great heat has separated the tiny particles of the water, forcing upward and outward in lively bubbles the air which is contained in them. This is done in spite of the downward pressure of the atmosphere. After the water has become hot enough to boil it can get no hotter, because the air escapes as fast as it is sufficiently heated to do so.

There are places on the earth where the pressure of the atmosphere upon the water is so slight that it require but little heat to push apart the particles and set free the air bubbles which are confined in the water, so it begins to boil before it becomes very hot. It ought hardly to be called cold water, perhaps, but it is certainly far from being as hot as ordinarily boiling water. This state of things is found on all high mountain tops, as the atmosphere grows weaker and its pressure less as one ascends.

A man traveling at a great elevation in the Andes mountains put some potatoes in a pot of water over a hot fire. The water began to boil almost immediately, but the potatoes did not cook. All the afternoon and all the night the water bubbled and boiled, but still the potatoes were not cooked. The boiling water was not hot enough.

TERMS OF TREATY WITH DENMARK

Provisions Governing Sale of Danish West Indies.

DECLARE CESSION FREE.

United States Will Agree to Maintain Certain Grants, Concessions and Rights Bestowed by Danish Government—Rights of Citizens Are Also Outlined In Detail.

The treaty which, if adopted, will make the Danish West Indies the property of the United States consists of twelve articles compared with seven in that of 1902. In many respects they are similar. The most important changes are found in article 3, in which are enumerated the grants and concessions the United States will maintain in accordance with the terms of the grants when made by the Danish government.

Article 1 describes the territory ceded as the "islands of St. Thomas, St. John and St. Croix, together with the adjacent islands and rocks," and including the government lands and buildings.

In article 2 Denmark guarantees that the cession is free and unencumbered "by any reservations, privileges, franchises, grants or possessions held by any governments, corporations, syndicates or individuals, except as herein mentioned."

This article also provides for the protection of the property of the Danish national church.

Article 3 contains many special agreements. The arms and military stores of the Danish government are to remain its property, to be removed as soon as practicable.

The United States agrees to maintain certain grants, concessions and licenses given by the Danish government in accordance with their terms, including the following:

Concession to Det Vestindiske Kompagni (the West Indian company) granted Jan. 18, 1913, and April 16, 1913, being a license to drain, deepen and utilize certain areas in St. Thomas harbor and preferential rights as to commercial, industrial or shipping establishments in that harbor.

Concession of June 20, 1914, for establishment of a Danish-West Indian bank of issue.

Article 4 provides for the appointment of proper agents for the purpose of formally delivering and accepting the territory ceded.

Price $25,000,000.

Article 5 provides for the amount to be paid for the islands, the sum stipulated being $25,000,000 "in gold coin of the United States," to be paid within ninety days from the date of the exchange of ratifications and to be paid in Washington to the representative of the Danish government.

Article 6 relates to citizenship. Danish citizens may remain or remove from the islands at will, including the right to dispose of their property or its proceeds. In case they remain they will continue to enjoy all the rights, political and religious, secured to them by laws now in force. If the present laws are altered, the inhabitants shall not thereby be placed in less favorable position in respect to their rights and liberties than they now enjoy.

Those who remain in the islands may preserve their Danish citizenship by making within one year from the date of exchange of ratifications a declaration of their decision to preserve such citizenship. In default of such declaration they shall be held to have renounced it and accepted citizenship in the United States.

Article 7 provides that Danish citizens residing in the islands shall be subject in matters civil as well as criminal to the jurisdiction of the courts of the islands, pursuant to the ordinary laws governing the same, etc.

Article 8 relates to judicial procedure pending at the time of formal delivery of the islands ceded and provides for the disposition of civil and criminal litigation then under way. Cases pending before the superior or the supreme court in Denmark shall continue to be prosecuted before the Danish courts until final judgment according to the law hitherto in force.

Article 9 provides that the rights of property secured by copyrights and patents acquired by Danish subjects in the islands ceded at the time of exchange or ratification shall continue to be respected.

Article 10 stipulates that treaties, conventions and all other international agreements of any nature existing between the United States and Denmark shall eo ipso extend, in default of a provision to the contrary, also to the ceded islands.

Article 11 provides that in case of differences of opinion regarding the interpretation or application of this treaty, if they cannot be settled through diplomatic methods, the questions shall be referred to the court of arbitration at The Hague.

To Domesticate the Mink.

The United States department of agriculture will attempt to domesticate the mink, which has been bred sporadically in captivity for fifty years or so. The large number of types of American mink, no less than ten, prove it to be a "plastic" animal, and the governmental purpose is to develop a higher and more valuable type than any of those now known.

MISS NASH RELATED HERE.

Miss Mary Nash, who played one of the leading roles in "The Man Who Came Back," at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday night, is a cousin of Miss Rose Nash and James Nash, of 926 West Front street, this city.

Railroad cars may be tied up, 2,507,977.

Locomotives, 65,000.

Estimated number of railroad stockholders, 638,122.

Par value of capital stock (estimated), $8,638,286,892.

Receipts for April, 1916, $380,987,206.

Expenses for April, 1916, $189,923,465.

Railroads say demands would cost $100,000,000.

Men say they would cost $25,000,000.

FEW persons can realize the enormity of the effects that would follow in the wake of a general tieup of the railroads of the country. Every person of our hundred million population would feel the result in a greater or lesser degree.

Take New York, for instance, the biggest city in the world. A general railroad tieup would stop trains that are now taking to New York city daily food supplies that average as follows:

Dairy Products—7,200 tubs of butter, 3,500 boxes of cheese, 13,300 cases (4,788,000) of eggs, 2,250,000 quarts of milk.

Meats—3,000 crates of poultry, 3,000,000 pounds of fresh beef, pork and mutton.

Fruits—4,000 barrels of apples, 60,000 crates of grapes, lemons, oranges, peaches, pears, pineapples and plums.

Vegetables—13,000 barrels of potatoes, 6,000 crates of onions, 300 carloads of cabbages, peas, lettuce, carrots, etc.; 5,000,000 cans of peas, tomatoes, etc.

Grain and Cereals—46,000 sacks of barley, 70,000 bushels of corn, 3,000 sacks of cornmeal, 3,000 barrels and 21,000 sacks of flour, 6,500 bushels of malt, 293,000 bushels of wheat.

Miscellaneous—44,000 sacks of sugar, 1,650 barrels of wine, 60,000 tons of coal, 1,500,000 gallons of kerosene, gasoline and benzine, 1,000 tubs of lard, 3,000 barrels of molasses.

There is about a week's food supply in the city.

It would keep at home 3,000,000 passengers a day and would halt the transportation of 6,000,000 tons of freight a day.

It would stop earnings on more than $20,000,000,000 of railway capital and would cut off each day $10,000,000 in passenger and freight receipts.

It would stop the export of American products at the rate of $10,000,000 a day.

Would Halt Munitions.

A general railroad strike would stop the shipment of munitions from manufacturing points in the interior. War contracts for hundreds of millions are being filled in this country, and so rapid is the output that it is impossible to get ships to move it as rapidly as it reaches the seaboard.

Plants in or near seaports would be able to ship some of this output, but a railway tieup would be a serious matter for plants away from tidewater.

The Bethlehem Steel corporation, the largest producer of war material in the United States, is in Pennsylvania and depends entirely on the railroads. It is turning out some of the largest guns used by the allies on the western battle fronts.

On the Pacific coast the shipments affected would be, in the main, those intended for Russia, which for months have been very large. Russia is also being supplied from Atlantic ports, the ships going by the Panama canal to Vladivostok and also by way of Archangel. The American shipments to Russia are greater now than at any time since the outbreak of the war.

Autos Nearly All Made Inland.

The automobile industry is another whose European shipments would be seriously affected. All of the allied nations have made large contracts for motor vehicles in this country, and a majority of the plants are far from tidewater.

Shipments of grain and other subsistence stores to the allies would also be seriously hampered.

Buyers, who are just now beginning to flock to New York from all parts of the United States and Canada to make their purchases for the winter season, would be greatly inconvenienced in the event of a railroad strike. Because of the absence of suggestions from abroad, the designers here have been tardy in arranging their displays, and for that reason the representatives of the out of town houses have delayed their arrival by a fortnight. But each day now will bring hundreds in, and the suspension of railroad service would do untold injury to all the important business houses.

The hotels, too, would suffer greatly from a strike, for they depend for 98 per cent of their patronage upon more or less distant cities. August is the largest month in the business history of some of the hotels, when vacationists and general travelers, as well as buyers, arrive daily by the thousand.

Result of Coal Famine.

From the railroad point of view the greatest suffering a beleaguered New York would feel would be in the halting of its coal supply. The deprivation threatened by the anthracite strike of several years ago would become an actuality. The town would be shut off from the thousands of tons of fuel it consumes daily to keep its internal machinery running.

None of the huge plants that burn coal in daily trainload lots, the plants that keep New York lighted at night, that give it a telephone and telegraph service, that keep its dynamos whirling, that move its street cars and the subway trains, could continue operation for more than a few days. There is not enough reserve supply stored in Manhattan for the consuming activities.

It is estimated that Long Island and nearby New Jersey can keep New York alive on a limited diet if it can get its products into town. For this it does not have to rely altogether on the railroads, because trolley lines that have their terminals on Manhattan's two rivers form a network through New Jersey and Long Island. He considers himself poor, indeed, does the farmer nowadays, if he has not a small motor truck to carry his green goods to the market.

Milk is a different problem. Most of the supply that feeds the town's infants and colors the coffee comes from New England and Pennsylvania. Thus its delivery in New York becomes a railroad problem. Said H. N. Halleck, vice president of the Borden Condensed Milk company:

"The stopping of milk trains would paralyze milk distribution. It would be possible to bring some milk into the city by boats, but the amount would be comparatively small. We would also be able to get more here by tractors from a distance of perhaps fifty miles. In that way maybe we might get enough here to save the lives of the babies. I hate to think what would happen to the people of New York if the milk trains are stopped."

At this season of the year the railroads are congested with shipments of manufactured goods, most of them consigned to New York department stores for the fall trade. Any stop of these deliveries would empty the stores within a short time. It is just at this time too that the town gets the last of its summer fruit crops.

As a rule both of these kinds of goods are off the rails by September to make way for the shipments of grain from the west. Should the grain remain in western warehouses the effect of such stoppage would be felt as far away as Bagdad, because much of this year's crop already has been sold to the allies.

Strike That Failed In 1894.

The last national railroad strike in this country occurred in 1894, when the National Railway union, of which Eugene V. Debs was president, conducted a more or less sporadic strike, which at times caused scenes of great violence in the middle west. President Cleveland used the regular army under Major General Nelson A. Miles to deal with the situation. Scores of strikers were shot in the streets of Chicago and hundreds of cars burned by the strikers. Injunctions were issued by the courts and defied by the strikers. The president issued several solemn proclamations against rioting and participation in the strike. Finally the strike failed through the ability of the railroads, with soldiers on every engine and car, to maintain a crippled service.

The workers at that time were not as well organized as now, nor was the movement as concerted as that of 1916. Only a small proportion of the workers were members of the National Railway union, as compared with the highly organized character of the four big railway brotherhoods that are today making demands of the railroads.

In 1914 the western territory members of the four brotherhoods clashed with the national conference committee of railways which now represents the transportation companies. Mediation was tried, but failed, and President Wilson summoned leaders of both sides to Washington, as he did this time. It was the day after Germany had declared war on Russia on Aug. 1, 1914, that the President appealed to the factions to make peace in view of the worldwide crisis then. The railroad's reply was that they did not wish to imperil the welfare of the nation in a crisis, and would consent to withdraw their demands if the workers would arbitrate theirs. Thus arbitration was effected. The brotherhoods were dissatisfied with the results, and upon that dissatisfaction largely base their aversion to arbitration now.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

GRAFT IN THE ORIENT.

An Incident That Illustrates the Way of the Far East.

I had had experience with corruptible Turkish officers, and one day when barrack conditions became unendurable I went to the officer commanding our division, an old Arab from Latakieh who had been called from retirement at the time of the mobilization. He lived in a little tent near the mosque, where I found him squatted on the floor nodding drowsily over his comfortable paunch. As he was an officer of the old regime, I entered boldly, squatted beside him and told him my troubles. The answer came with an enormous shrug of the shoulders.

"You are serving the sultan. Hardship should be sweet."

"I should be more fit to serve him if I got more sleep and rest."

He waved a fat hand about the tent.

"Look at me! Here I am, an officer of rank and"—shooting a knowing look at me—"I have not even a nice blanket."

"A crime! A crime!" I interrupted. "To think of it, when I, a humble soldier, have dozens of them at home! I should be honored if you would allow me"— My voice trailed off suggestively.

"How could you get one?" he asked.

"Oh, I have friends here in Saffet, but I must be able to sleep in a nice place."

"Of course. Certainly. What would you suggest?"

"That hotel kept by the Jewish widow might do," I replied.

More amenities were exchanged, the upshot of which was that my four friends and I were given permission to sleep at the inn—a humble place, but infinitely better than the mosque. It was all perfectly simple.—Alexander Aaronsohn in Atlantic Monthly.

MILLION ACRE FARMS.

Those Are the Kind, as a General Rule, They Have In Mexico.

In the United States the farmer is a humble person. In Mexico he is a king of millionaires. You look out across a level plain and you see a magnificent house of stone, cement and great timbers, covering sometimes as much as half an acre. Surrounding it are other houses, hundreds of them, but all small, constructed of adobe, brush or even of cane stalks. You are not looking at a town, but at a ranch settlement. In the great house, which costs many times more than all the little houses put together, live the hacendado and his family. In the little houses live the peons.

The typical farm in Mexico is not of 100 acres, but of 1,000,000. In the state of Morelos twenty-eight haciendados own all the agricultural lands; twelve own nine-tenths of them. The territory of Quintana Roo, double the size of Massachusetts, is divided among eight companies. The greater portion of the state of Yucatan is held by thirty men, kings of sisal hemp. A major fraction of the agricultural and grazing lands of Chihuahua is owned by one family. Lower California, equal in size to Alabama, is nearly all held by five great corporations.

The 1,000,000 acre farms lie mostly fallow. Naturally a rich agricultural country, Mexico does not produce enough corn and beans to feed her own peon population. Modern machinery is needed, but modern machinery will never be used extensively so long as the peon is so cheap that primitive methods are cheaper than machine methods.—World Outlook.

Drum Fire and Curtain Fire.

"Drum fire" and "curtain fire" are modern war terms. "Drum fire" is the firing of artillery at stated intervals, the resultant noise being described as like the steady hammering of a great drum. When the desired effect of reducing the point of the attack has been accomplished the guns are elevated to a higher point and are fired continuously, making a "curtain of fire" to prevent re-enforcements reaching the point of attack from the rear and at the same time allowing the infantry to attack under protection of the guns.

Practical Religion.

The story is told of a little housemaid, far over the sea, who, when asked whether she realized that she was in any way different after uniting with the church from what she had been before, thought for an instant and then, smiling brightly, said, "Well, I sweep the corners." She could hardly have given a better demonstration of the reality of her religious life.—Christian Herald.

Not So Far Wrong.

"Have you written all the invitations to my party, mamma?" queried little Eva.

"Yes, dear," answered her mother. "They are all written and mailed."

"And how soon will the acceptions and deceptions begin to come in?"—Chicago News.

Work of a Beacon.

There is a flashing beacon on Richardson rock, a wave swept spot west of the Santa Barbara islands, California, which, without attention, will flash its warnings every three seconds for seven months, or over 6,000,000 flashes, before it requires recharging with gas.—Argonaut.

All Sorts.

"How's this—seven different styles of plug hats?"

"The line officers of our lodge. Each bought a plug hat the year he was elected."—Kansas City Journal.

To dread no eye and to suspect no tongue is the greatest prerogative of innocence.—Dr. Johnson.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard

PROPOSALS FOR MACADAMIZING.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council at the Council Chamber No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at 8 o'clock, p. m., on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1916, for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the macadamizing contemplated in the ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 17, 1916, and approved by the Mayor, July 18, 1916, and as provided for in the specifications entitled "City of Plainfield, N. J., Proposal, Conditions, Specifications, Contract and Bond for the Permanent Improvement of Streets, 1916," filed in the office of the City Clerk August 7, 1916.

Upon receipts of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of said prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

A separate price must be named for each street, and proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Macadamizing."

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

Please tell me the particulars regarding the work of an engine in an automobile and explain the running of an automobile motor from the time it is started until it has stopped.

There is nothing very complicated to the automobile engine. From the time it is started until it is switched off at the end of the run the following operations take place:

The engine is first cranked. In the older cars this is done manually by turning a hand crank on the end of the crank shaft. In the modern engine the cranking is done mechanically by an electric motor. The starting switch is closed, allowing current to flow from the storage battery to the starting motor. This motor is in engagement with the crank shaft of the engine, and as it turns over, due to the electric current from the storage battery, it cranks the engine. During the cranking of the engine the downward motion of the pistons on the suction stroke draws air into the carburetor and gasoline from the carburetor jet. These mix in the mixing chamber of the carburetor and pass into the engine through the intake valve. The next stroke compresses the charge in the cylinder, and when the piston reaches the top of the stroke a spark occurs, due to the electric ignition apparatus operated in connection with the engine.

The spark explodes the gas compressed in the cylinder, which causes it to exert a pressure due to its quick expansion upon the head of the piston, pushing the piston down toward the crank shaft. The crank shaft is connected with the clutch, and then the drive passes back through the gear box, drive shaft and axles to the wheels. Once the first explosion has occurred the action of the engine after that becomes automatic, and necessity for the cranking medium ceases to exist. While one cylinder is exploding another is taking in a fresh charge in the multicylinder engine. The action of the four cycle engine as used in automobiles is to draw in the gas on one stroke, compress it on the succeeding, explode it on the next and exhaust it on the last. The drive is from the piston to the connecting rod and then to the crank shaft. Geared to the crank shaft is the cam action for the valve and the auxiliaries, such as the generator, ignition distributer, unit, etc. All motion is stopped as soon as the ignition is switched off, stopping the gases when exploded.

Is the oxygen decarbonizing system successful and will it affect aluminum pistons or piston rings?

The oxygen method of removing carbon is successful. It will not harm aluminum pistons, since the action, after the burning has once started, is catalytic and local. The instant the carbon is burned off in a certain locality the combustion in that area ceases.

I have heard a great deal regarding the low gravity gasoline we are getting nowadays and should think it would affect the operation of the motor. Is not this the case, and, if so, what are the effects?

The present low gasoline contains a large amount of kerosene and less volatile oils. This, passing into the motor while it is cold, passes the rings and the pistons and apparently condenses and mixes with the oil in the crank case. Such a condition will naturally thin down the oil until it lacks all of its lubricating qualities, and if this condition is allowed to continue it will eventually ruin the motor. This is particularly noticeable in motors where the drivers are in the habit of using them for a few miles at a time and is especially noticed in small towns in the country where it is a short distance to and from the various places of business, when the motor never gets hot enough to assist in evaporating the heavy gasoline procurable at the present time.

The first symptom of this condition is the apparent economy of oil at the oil level, which remains at a standstill or shows a tendency to rise. In some cases it is necessary to drain the oil from time to time to keep the oil level from causing the motor to smoke. It will be found in draining this oil that it is very thin and in some places equivalent to kerosene.

Careful attention and the frequent draining of oil anywhere from 500 to 1,000 miles and replacing with fresh oil during cold weather is the only thing that will guarantee the user against an injured motor from this cause.

The average garage man and the average motorist immediately blames the oil. Then he tries another brand of oil, and it does the same until the cold weather is over and things right themselves.

Can a wheel equipped with an old style clincher rim be changed to a demountable rim, and is it then possible to use the clincher tire on the demountable rim?

It will be necessary to build up new felloes on the wheels. If you have the same size demountable rims installed it will be possible to use the same tires again.

What makes the current flow in the electric system of a car?

Electricity travels from the point of higher pressure to that of lower pressure. It travels in measurable quantities, and since these quantities have direction of flow and pressure they are capable of performing work. Electrical pressure can be measured by standard units. Water or air pressure is denoted by pounds to the square inch. Electrical pressure is measured by volts. The amount of water flowing through a pipe is calculated in gallons per minute. The quantity of electrical current flowing through a wire is calculated in amperes. Resistance to flow of water through pipes is given by the co-efficient of friction and by measuring the obstructions in the pipe. Resistance to electrical flow is measured in ohms.

The amount of current flowing is equivalent to the pressure divided by the resistance or, using the units of measurement just defined, amperes equals volts divided by ohms. This equation is the basis of practically all electrical calculations. A practical example is in a lamp. If we take a head lamp of twelve candle power and say that it has a resistance of three ohms and that it is intended for a six volt circuit it is possible to determine at once how many amperes are necessary to light the lamp. Applying the equation, the amount of current is equal to six volts divided by three ohms or two amperes.

Taking the simple elementary case mentioned before of a battery, a switch and a lamp, the resistance to the flow in the circuit is encountered in the wire, in the switch and in the lamp. The wire acts for the current the same as the pipe does for water. The smaller the pipe the greater the amount of resistance to flow. The smaller the wire the greater the resistance to the electric current. Poor connections between the wire and the switch would introduce resistance into the line, as the current would be compelled to flow through the poorly made contact at the points of connection. This would utilize some of the pressure that could otherwise be employed in lighting the lamp, and the result is that the lamp would be dim. If it takes six volts' pressure to bring the lamp to the proper degree of brightness and other resistances in the line due to poor connections, etc., weaken the pressure at the lamp until it is down to four volts, the lamp instead of lighting brightly will light dimly. If the resistance in the line becomes so great that current cannot flow at all the lamp will go out. When the circuit is broken, due to the fracture of a wire, for instance, or the disconnection of a lead, the current is interrupted and flow ceases.

If an extremely high tension circuit were used, or, in other words, a circuit in which the pressure or voltage ran up to thousands of volts, a small break in the wire would not be a means of altogether interrupting the current, as the pressure would be sufficient for the electrical current to be forced across the gap in spite of the resistance of the air. Such an occurrence takes place in the high tension ignition system where the current circle is completed by the high tension spark caused by the current jumping across the gaps between the electrodes in the spark plug.

I do quite a little car driving, but do not have time to take care of my car. I would like to know whether flake graphite in the oil would be of any help and how much? An oil man told me that it would keep an engine in perfect order, as it reduced friction.

If the proper grade of graphite is used it will be an aid to lubrication. It is very important, however, that you secure the correct graphite, as all graphites are not lubricants, strictly speaking. The manufacturers of graphites can furnish you with the proper grade for various purposes.

I was told that eight cylinder V engines have to be set at 90 degrees and twelve cylinder V engines at 60 degrees. I have before me an eight cylinder V engine set at 77 degrees and 22 minutes and am desirous of securing an explanation as to the disadvantage of this construction. Can you tell me something about it?

An eight cylinder V engine with the cylinder blocks set at 77 degrees and 22 minutes cannot be made to fire evenly. In an eight cylinder motor you have half as many power impulses. Inasmuch as a revolution means covering 360 degrees, it is evident that in an eight there must be a power impulse every 90 degrees, or one-fourth of a revolution. In the V type engine the impulses alternate from one side to the other. Therefore in an eight the crank shaft cannot travel any greater nor any less angle between impulses than 90 degrees, so that in order for a piston to be in proper position to fire after a previous firing in a cylinder across the V the angle between the cylinders has to be 90 degrees. With the angle at 77 degrees and 22 minutes there will be a variance of 12 degrees and 38 minutes in the firing of the cylinders.

ADVANCE OF NORTH FRONTIER IS MAKING CHICAGO "SOUTHERN CITY"

The shift on this continent of Chicago to the southward as the northern frontier is pushed north and further north amounts now to five degrees of latitude, according to economists' data, and the road building program in northern Ontario rapidly is adding to the mileage. The more northland is added, the nearer relatively is Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico.

This year armies of men in a hundred summer camps are slashing open new roads through the timber by which the lumber crews, and at northward in the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario country, the remotest outposts of settlement in eastern North America. In the program of road building inaugurated by the province of Ontario in 1912 as many as seven thousand men have been employed.

Nowhere has the direct value to a region of good roads more plainly been shown than in this north country since the road building program was inaugurated; the benefits extend to social life and economic gains of the settlers and to the encourage-

Metals and the Future.

Our ancestors did not live, work and prosper in an industrial age. They were an agrarian people, living from the earth, producing only a little more than they consumed. Metals were to them as jewels are to us. A Roman soldier retained his sword through life and transmitted it for use to his descendants. The factory system, in which the labor element is a fraction in productivity compared with what capital produces through machinery, is less than 100 years old. The United States consumes today about sixteen pounds of copper per capita per annum, while in the entire continent of Asia the consumption of copper is only a fraction of a pound per capita. This is because Asia is not an industrial country. It is in the position that the whole world was in a thousand years ago, and if Asia grows industrially the demand for copper and other metals will be such as to tax even the present resources of the world.—William L. Saunders in Engineering Magazine.

Our Growing Country.

We grow in these United States of ours at the rate of 4,433 folks a day, says the Country Gentleman. Think of it, ye descendants of the Mayflower pilgrims—enough new Americans every day to have crowded the passenger list of an armada of Mayflowers! And think of it also, ye raisers of dairy cattle and ye growers of foodstuffs—every week brings more than 30,000 new mouths to feed! A few years hence our growth will be at the rate of 10,000 a day. It will be as if little showers of hamlets and villages rained down constantly from the sky. These newcomers must all be fed and clothed. The farmer is the producer of the raw materials. He must follow closely our growth, speculate on it, prepare for it by progressive measures, keep abreast of all the live things that are doing. If he does not he will be left at the post.

Macaulay's Fifth Volume.

Macaulay lived to publish only four volumes of his "History of England," coming down to 1698. But after his death his sister prepared from his notes a fifth volume, carrying forward the history to the death of William III. This volume is included in all the later editions of Macaulay's "History of England." Macaulay's sister was Mrs. Trevelyan, the mother of Sir George Otto Trevelyan, who has written a history of the American Revolution. She was greatly devoted to her brother, as he was devoted to her. She alone was able to decipher his handwriting and copied the manuscript of his four volumes for the press. Consequently she was the best equipped person to prepare the supplementary volume.

EXPERT FINDS HEALTH OF GUARDSMEN NOW ON BORDER TO BE EXCELLENT

Sanitary Conditions of Camps Generally Good and the Diet of the Men Well Balanced. Quality of Food Good.

Other Interesting Notes About the Boys In Khaki—Bad Roads Make It Difficult to Handle Automobiles.

SANITARY conditions on the Mexican border, where regulars and members of the national guard are in camp, are generally good, according to the preliminary report of Dr. Thomas Darlington of New York to the soldiers' welfare committee of the National Civic federation. Louis B. Schram, chairman of the executive section of the committee, made public the report.

There are 7,300 guardsmen in camp at Eagle Pass, Tex., says the doctor, and he found the conditions there excellent. The diet of the men is well balanced and the quality of food good.

Of the hospital arrangements the report says in part:

"The hospital has accommodations for 100, but there were comparatively few in it, as the health of the troops in the camp is excellent. There are only 1.08 per cent sick, and the most of these cases are due to typhoid vaccination. There are seven cases of mumps. So far there have been two deaths—one of a young man who disobeyed orders and went into the Rio Grande. He could not swim and was drowned. The other was a cook who put kerosene on the fire and was burned to death.

"Since the beginning the United States army's medical department has endeavored to seek the co-operation of all local health officers, as it is not only necessary to have all of the camps kept in a sanitary condition, but also the surrounding premises."

Until a solution of the problem of regulating the dairies serving the camps is reached the doctor recommends that only condensed, dried or pasteurized milk be used.

When the doctor mailed his preliminary report he was on his way to Mexico to visit General Pershing's camp of regulars. He is to take special note of the methods used to transport food to the forces in Mexico.

Dr. Darlington suggests that the government provide a special type of railway car for the transportation of all troops, a car that can be used for other purposes in time of peace. Each soldier, he says, should have a separate bed, thus lessening the chances of spreading contagious diseases.

The report says that the measures now being taken along the border to meet sanitary requirements are so effective that when they are understood by the public the relatives of the men will have little cause for worry and the chances for increased enlistments will improve.

Belated Carrizal Story.

A belated story from Carrizal tells of the wild and splendid fighting of Company C, Tenth cavalry, which took a machine gun from the Mexicans while its demoralizing fire was mowing down the colored troops and their officers, then turned the gun upon the Mexicans themselves and probably saved all who were saved on that bloody field.

The Mexicans opened fire with four machine guns, and the destruction was terrible. Company C paid no attention to three of the guns, but like fighting devils charged the fourth gun, silenced it and killed those in charge, then used it against the late owners. Why? The gunner of the Mexican battery was a renegade trooper of the Twenty-fourth, a machine gun operator who once had been a soldier for Uncle Sam. And those colored troops of the Tenth thought him unfit to live. So they took revenge in their own way.

Few Americans remember the history of the Tenth cavalry, which is always at full fighting strength. This regiment has just celebrated its half century of service and the pageantry indulged in this lull in events at American field headquarters must have been an interesting break in the monotony of the arid days at Colonia Dublan, Mexico.

The anniversary celebration given in the early evening of July 28, before regimental officers and soldiers and all former officers of the regiment of the Tenth cavalry, now with the expeditionary forces, was unique in the annals of the military anniversaries and was almost entirely the inspiration of Lieutenant Colonel Charles Young of the Tenth, a West Point graduate who reached the highest rank in the regular army ever attained by a colored man.

Trouble With a Truck.

The following letter from an automobile expert who is stationed with his regiment at McAllen, Tex., vividly describes the severe camp conditions the guardsmen are encountering along the border:

"We have been battling against all sorts of weather down here recently, intense heat, terrific rainstorms and then sand blizzards. The following narrative will give you an idea what camp routine means down here:

"We received a new truck and unloaded it in a blinding rainstorm. We never did get to camp with it for two days. About a quarter of a mile from camp the truck practically sunk out of sight in a soft spot in the road. The nature of the soil here is very treacherous, and while it is hard when dry, it seems to have no bottom when the water hits it.

"I did everything possible to keep the truck out, but it went down like an old scow. I had a detail of ten men with me, and we all worked until 1 o'clock the next morning trying to budge the truck, with the result that it only went deeper all the time.

"I was in water and mud up to my waist all the time without boots or anything on. We were all weird sights at quitting time. I slept in my clothes and the next morning put on dry socks and borrowed a pair of hip boots. We were back on the job at 7:30 and worked until 9 that night, when I was finally able to run the truck out under its own power. Our detail, after reaching camp, quickly went to sleep in mud, slime, boots and all and did not move until reveille at 5 the next morning. We were then still covered all over with about half an inch cake of mud. I took nearly a quart of water and mud out of each boot. After taking two hours for a badly needed cleanup I received word that another truck was stuck. It was a continuous pull out that day, getting either our own or some other trucks out of the mud.

"The next morning the truck again ran into a washout, and I spent over eighteen hours getting it out. It seemed to be one thing after another. So many trucks were getting stuck that I would simply lay in the mud. Once I stepped into a hole just back of one of the front wheels and went down over my waist in slime."

Comfort Bags For Men.

Over 100 "comfort bags" have been forwarded to the men at the Mexican border by the National Special Aid society, New York, of which Mrs. William Alexander is the president.

Various contributions were received of articles for the filling of these "comfort bags." Each bag contains a wash rag, a bar of soap, mosquito netting, pipe and tobacco, a box of foot powder, face and bath towels, handkerchiefs, tooth brush and tooth powder, goggles and a pair of slippers.

The bags were made up by volunteer workers of the society and represent donations from several of its members.

A packing case of current magazines and newspapers was also forwarded. It is expected that the New York office of the National Special Aid society will make a shipment of these "comfort bags" every week.

Caught In a Saloon.

Sixty men were rounded up at McAllen by the military police in a raid on a new saloon. Forty more soldiers got away by scrambling over and under barbed wire fences. Lieutenant Thomas could muster only six mounted men and six afoot when he heard of the men drinking, but the mounted men swooped down on the shack like a lot of Indians, while the lieutenant burst open the doors with a bang. Then the lieutenant began to give orders as if he had a thousand men behind him, and the soldiers fell for the fable.

Those who took a chance got clean away, there being no police to hold them.

Many Men Re-enlist.

Officers in the New York division saw evidences that most of the dissatisfaction with camp life expressed in letters to relatives and newspapers was only on the surface and that the soldiers were satisfied with conditions when almost half of the men in the Third brigade, at Pharr, who had reached the end of their terms of active service re-enlisted for another period and when a lieutenant colonel, who might have retained his rank by returning to the regiments in New York, preferred to take the rank of a first lieutenant in order to be able to stay "to see the thing out."

Brigadier General William Wilson, in command of the Third brigade at Pharr, pointed to the re-enlistments in his command as proof of the falsity of the assertion that this concentration meant the end of the national guard and as further proof that conditions in the camps were not so intolerable that no man would be willing to remain here for any period of training, border patrol or active service.

Almost twenty men in the brigade reached the end of their periods of enlistment and, according to the military regulations and laws, could have passed into the reserve. It is said half of these decided to take advantage of the privileges and advances in pay given to men who re-enlist and said they would serve another term.

At the same time Lieutenant Colonel Francis J. McCann of the quartermaster corps decided that he would remain with the division as a lieutenant rather than go to Camp Whitman as lieutenant colonel in the quartermaster corps of the Second New York division.

Your Next Tenant Is an "Ad-Reader"

The tenant to whom your property would be most valuable is a reader of the "To Let" advertisements.

If your advertisement is factful, definite and fully informing he will recognize it as meaning OPPORTUNITY to him, and he will lose no time in getting in touch with you.

But if your advertisement should be vague, uninforming and written with a view to "saving space," it might not appeal of any personal interest at all.

PLAINFIELD PRESS COMPANY,
193 NORTH AVENUE

When the Business Men's Association of Plainfield announce a Dollar Day Sale, the people of the city and its surrounding towns know that a real merchandising treat is in store for them. It is over three years since the first one of these sales was held, and they have since been held twice annually, in February and August. They have been the most active days that some of our merchants have had in all their long careers, not only in gross business done, but in the number of people who have visited the stores. The people have learned that on Dollar Day they receive the greatest values of the entire year in the various specials which are offered in the local stores.

The next one of these great money saving events will be held in Plainfield on Wednesday, August 30. The merchants are already planning some splendid special offers, which will be more fully announced in their regular advertisements in the local papers as the day approaches.

Without a shadow of doubt this is the greatest value giving event of the year, when it is considered that it is a united effort on the part of all the Plainfield stores. It is true that individual merchants at times have given equally great values in single items, but on Dollar Day they all strive to give many such bargains, in a great concerted move to attract the shoppers in vast numbers to Plainfield stores. In selecting the stores in which to make purchases be sure that the insignia of the organization, reproduced below, is conspicuously displayed on the store front. It is a sign that dependable merchandise will be found on all the bargain tables.

COME OUT IN THE OPEN.

The Prohibitionists, if Prohibitionists they are, who have injected new life into municipal politics through activity in preparations for the coming election of four members of the Common Council, have every right to insist on consideration of their beliefs by those who aspire to have a part in the management of public affairs, but they should make their fight openly. The incident of the Cox resolution in the Third Ward the other night showed clearly that unless the issue of saloon licenses or no saloon licenses is met squarely not only by the candidates but by the voters themselves good men are going to be hard to find when time comes for the filing of the Councilmanic petitions. An effort to indorse the record of Mr. Cox as a member of the Common Council for the past two years, failed because there were some present who wanted a no-license man elected this fall, and the indorsement carried a request that he run again. It was this request they refused to vote for, and not the commendation of work that Mr. Cox has done as a public officeholder. But because they were playing a game those that controlled the meeting did not make their purpose clear. As a result many voters in the city do not understand why the indorsement of Mr. Cox's public record failed, and a public spirited man who has given much of his time to build a better place in which his neighbors might live was put in a false light. Mr. Cox has made a good Councilman. Even those who might oppose him for re-election admit this. It is true, as one of the Third Warders said, he has not done all that he might, but the same would be true of any other man who ever held public office in this town or any other. He probably would not again become a candidate for Councilman no matter if every male citizen of the municipality petitioned him. How he stands on the question of license we do not profess to know. We do not believe those who opposed his indorsement by the Third Ward Republican Club know, and they should have made an effort to find out. In view of his service to the city, and the greater sacrifice which is keeping him away from home and business now, he was entitled to better treatment at the hands of those in the Third Ward.

AWAITING THE RESULT IN MAINE.

The eyes of the nation are turned upon the Pine Tree State just now and will be until the voters there cast their ballots on September 11, after the most spectacular political campaign that has ever been waged in the State. It is known that the average American citizen has become more of a thinker, politically, during the past two years than at any other time within memory. The old tricks do not win his attention. He can no longer be led by high-sounding words, or by appeals to rally round the banner of his fathers. He has learned to look behind the scenes and to demand some assurances of good government other than the idealistic utterances of the convention platforms. Fewer men will vote the Republican ticket his year because they have always voted it than ever before, and Democrats, too, are seeking something better in Wilson than the name under which the campaign is conducted. Maine is the testing ground of both parties. All the big guns of the Republican party are to be tried out there. After a score of Congressmen, several Senators and other leading orators whose services are at the call of Chairman Willcox, have had their say, Col. Roosevelt will make a dash into the State. True he is to deliver but a single address, yet his personality is counted on to win many votes that might not otherwise be reached. Justice Hughes will make several speeches before the votes are cast, and his itinerary calls for stops where indecision is strongest. Wilson is not to personally invade the State, but he is sending Secretary Baker, Secretary Redfield, Secretary Daniels, Secretary McAdoo and Secretary Wilson, of the cabinet, also Attorney General Gregory and many Congressmen and Senators.

The result will be a clear prophesy of the coming election, both sides declare. Maine has long been known as a "rock-ribbed Republican" State, but the Democrats have the audacity to claim a victory there next month. Republicans admit the normal majority will be reduced, but they will be more than satisfied if they are not embarassed nationally by the count. It will be the first expression of the American voter on national affairs since the oversea war has so entered into the affairs of the United States and for this reason all States are awaiting the result with interest.

Whether the threatened railroad strike materializes or not, the tragedy of it has been near enough to bring a realization of the utter helplessness of the nation in such a crisis. Instead of merely begging the railroads and the union men to arbitrate their differences, which must finally be arbitrated, the government should have power to force this upon them.

- Proctor's Theatre -

The V. L. S. E. Corporation is acknowledged among film circles to be one of the strongest and one of the leading film organizations now producing picture plays, and their productions are introduced to patrons of Proctor's today and will continue throughout the fall season. Mondays will be known as V. L. S. E. days, and features produced by such pioneer manufacturers as Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay will furnish the entire photoplay entertainment on Monday of each week. Today a Vitagraph and Essanay production has been selected to entertain the patrons, the former being "The Shop Girl," starring Edith Storey and the latter "That Sort," with Warda Howard and Ernest Maupain featured.

"The Shop Girl" is based on a story by C. N. and A. M. Williamson and gives Miss Storey, and Antonio Moreno, who plays opposite her, ample opportunity to display their talent and abilities. The latter plays strongly to the sympathies and gives an excellent portrayal of a wealthy young man dissatisfied with life in idleness, and anxious to do something worth while. There are a number of dramatic moments, and the piece is well constructed. The cast, in addition to Miss Storey and Mr. Moreno includes Lillian Buras, Marion Henry, John Costella, Harold Foshay and Eddie Dunn, and the production of the picture was entrusted to the capabilities of George D. Baker. Warda Howard's presentation of Diana Laska, "that sort" of a woman, in this drama is its most appealing feature. The play, which begins "in the midst of things," captures the interest at once and does not let it go until the last scene is flashed. The acting of the entire cast of players is exceedingly clever. Ernest Maupin shows his usual skill, and others include Duncan McRae, John Heppel and Betty Brown.

On Tuesday Douglas Fairbanks appears in "The Half Breed," while Wednesday Theda Bara again will greet tremendously large audiences in here latest success, "Under Two Flags," adapted from Quida's famous story of the same name.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Calve's Retirement.

What's this the papers tell about?
Calve says that she is too stout
To sing the modern opera stuff
And must retire? Gee, that's tough.

Since childhood we've been wont to pay
Our hard-earned dough to hear Calve.
Our grandpa says he heard her, too,
When he was young, and now she's through.

They say Calve has grown so fat
She can't reach up to pin her hat.
And can't live in a modern flat,
And move around. But, what of that?

Suppose she does take lots of space,
You cannot say that's a disgrace.
I care not for her size, by jing!
I go to hear the lady sing.

Our oldest institutions must
Be kept a-going, friends, or bust.
The greatest Carmen of the age
We'll hear, though we enlarge the stage.

I want my grandsons to enjoy
The voice I heard when but a boy.
It is a burning shame, I say,
To lose the fair but fat Calve

The Croaker.

A croaker sat on the grumbler's bench and croaked that the town was dead and ne'er did once he lift his hand to push his town ahead. He cursed and swore with all his might—such a town he ne'er did see—the times were dull, the stores were bum, as bum as bum could be. And so he sat from early morn, each bright and happy day, and croaked and croaked with all his might till the summer passed away. And then one night while the wind blew cold when the winter time come, he croaked his last and closed his eyes upon his earthly home. But when he reached the other shore—the city bright and fair, it was no good, 'twas dull and dead, he ne'er would enter there! And since there was no other place, to the croaker's fate he went, unmourned by man, unwept, unsung—none cared a bloomin' cent.

Happiness.

If you go round giving out gobs of gloom
And lookin' like the inside of a tomb,
And bein' pessimistic as you go,
You're goin' to git back a lot of woe.
If you go round passin' a word of cheer
And makin' folks glad that they are here,
Contentment is bound fer to come to you
And stick to you always jes' like glue.
Happiness ain't in no certain place,
It ain't in chasin' no pertickler face.
It ain't to be caught by runnin' around
And coverin' a gosh-durned lot of ground.
Fer happiness is just the same as pelf,
It ain't no good 'less you make it yourself.
It's something no mortal man kin buy
No matter how hard he may search and try.
For happiness 'taint no use to roam,
You're more apt to find it right to home.

Plainfield Theatre.

Annetta Berger, With "Katinka," Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, Matinee and Night.

"Katinka," legitimate successor to "The Firefly," and "High Jinks," has been sent on tour by Arthur Hammerstein, following a year of sensational success on Broadway, and will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre next Saturday, matinee and night.

"Katinka" is the joint production of the Librettist Otto Hauerbach, and the Composer Rudolph Friml, who collaberated so successfully on "The Firefly" for Emma Trentini, and later on "High Jinks." The new composition is said to eclipse its predecessors, both in the cleverness and humor of its lines and in the lilt and tunefulness of its music. Arthur Hammerstein, who has staged all three of the pieces, has surpassed himself, according to the critics, and "Katinka" stood quite alone on Broadway last season in the gorgeous elaborateness of its scenic equipment and the costuming of its principals and chorus.

The play opens in a town in Russia where Katinka is being forced into a disagreeable marriage with one powerful and elderly Statesman—Boris. Her lover, Ivan, learns that Boris already has a wife and so, on the wedding night, in the midst of the festivities, he steals little Katinka away, and the two, accompanied by an American friend named Hopper, set out for Turkey, in search of Mrs. Boris the first. After a series of exciting and ludicrous adventures in Old Stamboul, the party learn that Mrs. Boris has gone to Vienna, and they follow here there. In the capital of Austrian gayety, many farcical plot complications that have arisen are ironed out.

The feature of the musical score, which the audience whistles as it files out of the theatre after the fall of the final curtain, is "Rackety Coo," the most catchy melody of a decade.

WAITER, BRING ON THE WHOLE BILL QUICK!

A large chorus adds charm to the many musical hits.

The Ad. and the Man

He saw the ad. from day to day
And muttered: "I defy it.
Their stuff may be just what they say,
But I'm not going to buy it."
As time wore on he made remarks
It would not do to mention,
For he was mad because that ad.
Was forced on his attention.

But in a week, or two, or three,
He said, "There's no denying
The way that ad. gets hold of me
The stuff may be worth trying."
For just about a fortnight more
He dared mere words to win him,
And then the ad. completely had
Aroused the spender in him.

Next day he drifted in a store
And quietly expended
A few big iron dollars for
The stuff the ad. commended.
He found it filled a long felt need.
Its excellence surprised him.
And now he's glad because the ad.
So deftly hypnotized him.

RAILROAD PRESIDENTS WHO ROSE FROM RANKS

Meet Engineers Who Used to Work by Their Sides.

Former "bunkies" of railroad camps, fellow workers on engines and side partners of freight trains met in Washington the other day. But some of them arrived in their private cars, hurried back and forth to meetings in taxicabs, while the others came as ordinary passengers.

They were the presidents of the big railroads of the United States and some of the 640 representatives of the 400,000 trainmen in the four brotherhoods now threatening the country with a strike.

Many of the presidents started railroading as members of section gangs, brakemen or firemen. Working beside them were some of the men whose demands for an eight hour day they are bitterly contesting.

Take the case of Bill Lanagan, one of the brotherhood representatives, and A. H. Smith, New York Central president. Bill and A. H. started railroading together a long time ago as members of the same bridge gang. Smith moved along pretty rapidly, becoming division superintendent of the Lake Shore, general superintendent of the Big Four and general manager of the New York Central and finally president.

Bill is still in the ranks, but is a division chairman of the brotherhood.

"He's a fine fellow," said each of the other.

Then there is Fred D. Underwood—Frederick D., of the Erie, to be exact. Another brotherhood man who would not allow his name to be known beyond the fact that he is called John said a better never lived than Fred. They used to work on the same engine on the Erie.

"Yep, Fred's all right—but we've got to have that eight hour day," said John.

There are others who knew Daniel Willard when he was an engineer, and so on through the list of railway presidents. A surprisingly large proportion of them started at the bottom.

Many of the brotherhood men are fairly well to do, comfortably fixed beyond the fact of owning their own homes. President Stone of the engineers is a college graduate.

Each of the brotherhood presidents according to their fellows, gets at least $10,000 a year salary.

"Perhaps that helps explain the sort of action we get out of our presidents," said a brotherhood man. "They are $10,000 men, and we think they earn it."

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press: The issue of the Courier-News of August 25 says: "Although much secrecy shrouds the acts of certain citizens, it is well known their object is to elect men to the Council who will vote against license." The issue of the Courier-News of August 26, in the editorial says: "Friends of Fred Cutter are circulating petitions to have his name placed in opposition to Mr. Edgar."

The facts are as follows:

At the regular meeting of the First Ward Republican Club, held August 15, it was openly stated Mr. Edgar positively refused renomination.

A committee composed of Messrs. Allen, Bird, Wilbur, McCormick and Littell was appointed by resolution to secure possible candidates.

Immediately after this meeting William Newcorn, chairman of the County Committee, and others approached me regarding the use of my name. As I did not want the nomination I declined.

The following evening Mr. Allen, chairman of the committee on nominations, waited upon me and asked consent to place my name in nomination and I again declined, but at his request agreed to consider the matter for a day. Thursday evening Mr. Allen and a few of my friends presented me with a petition signed by many voters of the First ward requesting me to accept the nomination. After pressing the subject, I finally gave my consent.

The announcement of my acceptance appeared the following Monday, August 25. Mr. Edgar evidently had a change of mind afterward, for his return to the field was made public the following day.

It now seems that in order to receive organization support in Plainfield one must declare himself in favor of the saloons, and this brings me to the other point in your article in support of Mr. Edgar's re-election.

I firmly believe in local option as the best method of dealing with this question, as by it you eliminate personalities of candidates and all other issues of any campaign.

I do not believe, as some do, that the saloon is a necessary evil.

If my vote could stamp out this business which causes so much distress and misery among those who are not strong enough to resist, and their families, I would not hesitate one minute to use it to bring about no license. I think this explains fully my stand on this question.

I have been a lifelong resident of Plainfield, and I feel, as Mr. Edgar does, that the primaries should decide. If he is the choice of the voters I will give my hearty support to the ticket at election, believing national issues should not be affected by local conditions.

FRED S. CUTTER.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 28, 1916.

Legs That Hear.

One of the strangest and most unexpected of the uses to which we could imagine a leg as being put is that of an organ of hearing. Yet such seems to be one at least of the functions of the fore legs in the cricket. On the outer side of the tibia a small oval space may be seen, in which the strong armature which covers the rest of the body is reduced to a thin and membranous condition, making thus a sort of window or drumhead. Communicating with this, inside the leg, are the ends of a nerve, and it can hardly be doubted, therefore, that the whole apparatus constitutes an auditory organ.

MISS KELLERMANN INVITES 700,000 PUPILS TO FORM ORGANIZATION—HOW TO END FATIGUE

World's Greatest Swimming Expert Answers Questions of Her Plainfield Followers and Paves the Way for the Bginning of Her Articles About Diving.

Article No. 24.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

I have received a raft of communication mostly by letter—but several by telegraph, and to my amazement—from members of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann

Plainfield pupils I consider it more important to answer questions that my pupils ask than to give further instructions, so for today I shall turn this department over to the questions and answers. Here are some of them:

M. J. B.—In the formation of this class of Plainfield amateur swimmers and beginners is it your intention to make it a permanent affair? Or, what are your plans with regard to it? How many pupils have you now?

Answer—I have every intention of making the organization of a permanent character and I shall always be at the call of the Plainfield pupils through the columns of the Plainfield Daily Press. I am always within reach and my services are at your disposal for advice and suggestions. Whenever I come to Plainfield I will call a meeting of all my pupils and together with the editors of the Plainfield Daily Press arrange meetings. I think that an amateur organization such as we can bring into being will become a powerful one in American athletics and be one that can be kept clean and free of financial or professional taint. When you see a big, lovely, wonderful nation like this American union sorely disturbed by international conditions, what a fine thing it would be to feel that several thousand or a million young, healthy Americans of both sexes stood ready to be of service in some capacity or another to their country. Swimming means development and good health, and healthy, strong, able grils make capable nurses and healthy, strong, courageous young men are always ready to serve their country. I see nothing ominous in sight and I am not filled with forebodings as to danger, but I would like to be the agent or instrument through which hundreds of thousands of persons were well conditioned.

Ethel—I find that I tire very quickly in the water whenever I attempt to swim any distance at all I am certain that my stroke (the breast stroke) is perfect and am at a loss to account for my "tiredness."

Answer—If you will read—or perhaps you have already read my article on the importance of breathing properly, published Saturday, I am certain you will overcome this inconvenience.

John—Do you believe in the use of life belts, etc.?

Answer—I do and I don't. It is rather hard for me to answer this question, for the life belt seems to occupy a peculiar position in this country. I much prefer the belt.

By belt, I mean a broad band that supports you and which in turn is held by a friend who remains at your side until you have mastered the art of swimming enough to support yourself in the water. In the case of the life belt you may grow dependent upon it and its support and therefore never gain the confidence you would if supported by the band.

I have sorted and answered these questions because I felt that they in a way covered the others that I have been receiving. I wish to thank all of you who have written to me for your letters. They have made me happy. I shall answer others in a few days. I want you all to keep hard at it so that when I pay you a visit we will arrange a swimming gala and have a real good time and if you all take up the idea of this organization seriously we will have many good times and later on a real bona fide swimming meet and competition for a cup. So work hard to make yourselves perfect.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann will begin her diving lessons. All swimmers envy the graceful, skilled diver. Miss Kellermann says she can easily teach you diving in these lessons—and then proves that she can. Don't miss the next few articles.

HOOP FROCKS STILL EVIDENT.

By Mary Glynn.

The hoop skirt has had a far longer life than many people planned for. There is but one thing that has not been in its favor, and that is the fact it is not becoming to the average woman who is not young and slender. The distended hip is exceptionally charming on a youthful figure. Fabrics such as georgette and voile lend themselves admirably to this type of garment, and when arranged over a hoop that is not too extreme are irresistible.

One particularly attractive gown showing these tendencies is illustrated. It was white georgette crepe and was attractively trimmed with rose satin arranged in suspended effect. Odd braid buttons formed a row down the front, stopping just above a deep tuck. The collar was a smart roll effect, and the sleeves interesting affairs—snug at the top and flaring in bell shape towards the wrist. A lovely garden hat with wreath of field flowers was worn becomingly, and high kid button boots afforded a finishing touch.

THE PARISIENNE IS WEARING A LINGERIE DRESS THIS SUMMTR.

War time in Paris is helping to draw out what might be called the sane, or rational, dress for summer. Whereas in ordinary times Paris in June is in a delirious whirl of velvet tunics, sable and skunk trimmed organdies, and other summer race-meet extravagancies, the Parisienne is today occupied in making simple little dresses of batiste, lawn, cotton voile, and foulard to wear at intimate family gatherings in country houses and at quiet watering places.

These simples dresses are made in many combinations of colors. In some instances white lawn dresses snow borders in color, this being an adaptation from the colored borders so much seen on handkerchiefs.

SILK STITCHING VOGUEISH.

This New Form of Trimming Is Introduced on Many Suits, Coats, Street Frocks.

By Mary Glynn.

It is not often that a fad in trimming so conservative as silk stitching could provoke so much keen interest among the best designers and hold their interest for a great space of time. At present it has, and no doubt the interest is justified. Silk has been featured before, though it was carried out in cotton thread. It held sway for a very short period, and then was heard of no more. Now its use has been revived, and this time it is introduced in silk. The effect is magic. This silk stitching is rich, is conservative, is practical, and for these reasons the clever and artistic designer has grasped the importance of so useful an item, and therefore worked it in some of the season's most distinctive models. Coats with deep borders of silk stitching are out out by the foremost designers in Paris. One-piece trotteur frocks and silk afternoon gowns are shown with quilt stitching that is most effective. Suits with silk stitched collars, cuffs, and pockets are also shown. Motor hats of mohair ponty, or cloth are exceedingly smart when finished with rows of silk stitching. The vogue for this type of trimming is not a fleeting one. It is here to stay.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Elise Sleeps All Night In The Woods.

The People Walked Out of the Book.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

SOON as the children stopped wiggling daddy told them about a cruel queen who once turned eleven little princes into swans and got a king to dislike his own daughter, Elise, by making her look most disagreeable. "When Elise came back from the country where her stepmother had boarded her and found that her father no longer loved her," daddy told the children, "she was so sad she cried. Then she thought of her eleven brothers who were lost. She crept sadly out of the palace and wandered about all day in the meadows and marshes around her home. Finally she went into a big forest. She did not know at all where she wanted to go, but she was unhappy and kept roving on, thinking always of her brothers.

"Soon Elise made up her mind to go and look for them. But before she had gone far night fell. She had lost her way. So she lay down on the soft moss, said her prayer and rested her head on a little hillock. The night was very still and the air mild. Hundreds of glowworms shone all around her on the grass, and in the marsh they looked like green fire.

"When Elise put up her hand and moved one of the branches over her head the little shining glowworms fell on her like a shower of stars. All night long she dreamed about her brothers. She dreamed they were all children again and did examples on their golden slates. She dreamed she was looking at her wonderful picture book that cost half the price of a kingdom. But the little princes no longer wrote all their bold adventures and everything they had seen and experienced since leaving home.

"In her dream Elise found everything in her picture book alive. The birds sang, the people walked out of the book and spoke to her and her eleven brothers. Whenever she turned over a page they skipped back into their places again, so that the picture book never got confused.

"When Elise woke from her happy dream the sun was already high. The branches over her head were so thick that she could not see very well, but she knew that sunbeams were casting a golden shimmer beyond the forest. The air was sweet with fresh grasses and herbs, and friendly birds were trying to perch on her shoulder. She could hear the splashing of water, for there were many springs all around flowing into a pond with a lovely sandy bottom. Thick bushes grew around the pond, but stags had made a path down to the water which was so clear that she thought leaves fallen in were painted on the sand."

Then daddy stopped and kissed Jack and Evelyn good night.

Training a Husband

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Railway Journey Brings No Particular Happiness to the Southys.

"Sit still!" Morris Southy glared at his restless 7-year-old boy opposite him in the railroad car.

"I want a drink," piped the youngster.

"You had a drink not fifteen minutes ago," snapped the father, fidgeting in his seat.

"It is very warm, dear. Perhaps he is thirsty. I will get him a drink if you will mind the baby."

"Let him get a drink himself if he must have one. It is just an excuse to move around," was the irritable reply. The child slid off the seat and started for the water.

"Here is the cup," called Roger.

"Take it to him, dear, do not call," whispered Marian.

"Those children are a perfect nuisance to travel with. I get so nervous I could fly," complained the father.

"So I notice," remarked the wife dryly. "Why do you not go into the smoker?" There was no answer to this question. Morris settled himself to read.

"Mother, I am hungry," timidly whispered the 4-year-old girl.

"Oh, wait a while longer. It is not time to get out the lunch basket." Marian glanced furtively at her husband.

The child put her hands to her eyes and began to cry noiselessly.

"Stop that noise!" growled the exasperated father.

"She has had no nap today," whispered Marian in extenuation.

"Well, whose fault is it that she did not sleep. You have pampered her till she can not sleep if everything is not exactly so. I have told you that children should be able to sleep anywhere. They can if they are normal."

"Perhaps she takes after her father. He has trouble sleeping if conditions are not right." Morris glanced at his wife. It was not usual for her to resent his remarks.

"That is a very different matter. When she is grown and has all the worries of life to meet there is excuse for wakefulness. A child should never have nerves." He resumed his reading.

Marian spread a cloth on the seat opposite her and laid the baby down to try to get him to sleep and at the same time furnish an excuse for having the boys sit somewhere else. All her life was spent trying to be a buffer between the children and their father's irritability.

"Don't you want to lie down by little brother and take a nap?" she asked of the little girl. The child shook her head. "Then when you wake up you can have something to eat," she coaxed.

"If you want the child to take a nap, why do you not make her take it? The idea of asking her what she wants to do. No wonder your children do not mind," complained the father. There was silence for a time. The boys returned from their quest for a drink and the mother motioned for them to sit in an empty seat near. They were glad of an excuse to get away from the father's nagging, and Marian taking little Gladys on her lap sighed with relief that a restful moment had come in the wearing day. Finally both children fell asleep.

"It is one of the days that just have to be lived through, some way, and it will come to an end. They always do." She pushed the damp hair back from the sleeping child's face.

Vacations Wanted

If you could rescue one little child or one overworked mother from the city's hot, glaring walls and pavements and stuffy rooms, and give them an outing at the beach with bountiful food, rest, coolness, fresh air, a daily dip in the surf, shady porches and sandy beaches, would you not regard such a gift as well worth giving?

Such a gift is entirely within your power. Ten thousand of these mothers and children are waiting for invitations to our Sea Breeze Summer Home. You can send as many as you will for a day, a week or a fortnight.

Allow 50 cents a day or $3 a week for each person, and direct your gift to George Blagden, Treasurer.

Dunellen, 10; Baptists, 4.

As far as the Tabs are concerned, the City League season is over. The Abstainers brought their year's work to a fitting close Saturday, when they handed the Hope Chapel clan a 7 to 0 trimming, Anthony Denny directing the action.

The contest indulged in by the Grape Juice "fiends" was one that will be remembered and one that will furnish the boys at the clubhouse with plenty of material about which they can talk. Anthony Denny—better known as "Tone"—was the "Man of the Hour," and George Miller tried to be the "Man Who Came Back." But Georgie failed in the attempt. The Tab infield did splendidly, and "Soddy" Porter, the Hope centrefielder, earned all the praise he received. Porter is quickly rounding into one of the best little baseball players in this city. And we say that unreservedly.

As was expected, the Farmers were trounced. This sort of thing is becoming as regular as the "weekly wash." This time the Netherwoods attended to the slaughter. It is all too evident that the Farmers, as a team, are not in the City League class. Individuals on the club, however, rank with the best of them.

Warry McLaughlin and the rest of the Dunellen team proved too much for the Baptists, who, unfortunately, presented a patched line-up. Several of the Baptist players have a habit of not appearing for duty, and it is said that this practice is going to stop.

"TONE" DENNY HURLS TABS TO VICTORY

"Tommy" Mullin Figures Prominently In Game of Brilliant Plays.

Playing the best baseball seen on local diamonds in many moons, the Tabs handed the Hopes a thorough trimming on West End Field on Saturday afternoon, the score of the contest being 7 to 0.

Tone Denny was pitted against George Miller. Some say it was Father Time vs. Youth, although there did not seem to be anything particularly ancient about the latter. Tone hurled one of the best games of his career, and was absolutely invincible in the pinches. With Tommy Mullin behind the bat any pitcher can feel confident. That's the way Tone Denny feels about the matter. Tommy was "there" when hits were needed, and was always ready with the "pep."

The hitting star of the afternoon was Frank Brennan, than whom there seems to be no better recruit in the league. Frank drove out two singles and a home run, the "homer" going into deep right.

George Miller, who occupied the mound for the losers, was not hit unusually hard, but still his delivery was easily solved. The Hope infield did not perform up to expectations, although Walls did well.

In the absence of Art Kyle and Frank Teeling, Tommy Mullin caught and "Kid" Brennan played at the first station. The two figured prominently in the scoring, and were the leading lights of the attraction.

A fitting climax to the game came in the last frame. With the bases full and one down, "Soddy" Porter hit a terrific grounder to "Shaky" Clark, who threw to Denitzio, who in turn relayed the ball to first, completing one of the fastest double plays witnessed by the writer.

All of which is included in the make-up of a real baseball game.

NATIONAL TENNIS TOURNEY SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

New York, Aug. 28.—All roads frequented by followers of American lawn tennis lead today to the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, where the drawings were made this morning for the United States National Lawn Tennis Association's annual all-comers' tournament in singles, which, with the American doubles championship, the national junior championship and the national interscholastic series, will provide the centre of interest for patrons of the sport during the better part of the next two weeks. Not only will the events determine the award of four premier titles in the game for another year, but they will exert a most important bearing upon the national ranking of players participating therein.

Chief interest in the tournament centres in the contests for the national doubles chaplonships. Pacific Coast racquet wielders will have a monopoly in the play for the doubles title. The present champions are William N. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, of San Francisco. They will defend the title by virtue of their victory in the elimination tournament at Chicago two weeks ago.

RACE WEEK AT POUGHKEEPSIE.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Awaiting the bell call which this afternoon is to start them on the eastern end of the Grand Circuit campaign, the flower of America's harness horses are quartered at the Hudson River Park track. The meeting will be the seventh that Poughkeepsie has contributed to the big line circuit and from present indications it will be successful from every viewpoint. The feature event of the week will be the Knickerbocker stake, $5,000, for 2:08 trooters.

DUE TO ASCEND.

Arthur Johnson pitched two seven-inning games yesterday for the Chattanooga Southern Association team and held Nashville scoreless in both contests, besides getting two hits in five times at bat. The scores were 2 to 0 and 5 to 0.

DUNELLEN BOMBARDS BAPTIST PLAYERS

Duncan Patterson Shelled Unceasingly, But He Failed to Retire.

The First Baptists took a little trip to Dunellen on Saturday, but the journey was not a very profitable one, as the Firsts were forced to endure a 10 to 4 defeat at the hands of the Dunellen combination.

Warry McLaughlin adorned the mound for the Dunellens and allowed but one hit in six innings. Dealaman a High School lad, secured the hit. Warry retired in favor of Johnny Dizon who, in turn, gave way to Lou Brown. The Baptists scored their four runs off Lou Brown.

The game was a farce and was far from interesting from the fan's viewpoint. Terry, the Baptist shortstop, secured two hits. Duncan Patterson was on the mound for the losers and was hit hard and opportunely.

F. L. TITSWORTH SCORES THREE POINTS FOR TROPHY

The only event at the Hydewood Golf Club Saturday was the weekly competition for the President's cup. F. L. Titsworth returned the lowest card, at 70, and received three points for the trophy, while R. G. Morse and R. M. Smith were tied for third honors with a score of 80. These scores were posted:

F. L. Titsworth, 105, 35-70; Walter Whitehead, 89, 16-73; R. G. Morse, 96, 16-80; R. M. Smith, 108, 28-80; C. J. Hand, 105, 22-83; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 101, 16-85; H. E. Blazier, 96, 10-86.

ATHLETIC NOTES

Alma Richards, the big all-around athlete of Cornell, will come to New York early this week to finish his training for the national championships at Newark on Sept. 9. Richards will be the guest of the New York A. C. at Travers Island. Reports from Ithaca, where he has been working out, indicate that he is in good condition.

The dual intercollegiate hurdling champion, Fred S. Murray, formerly captain of Leland Stanford University, will be added to the track squad at the New York A. C. at Travers Island about September 1. Mhrray is working in a boys' camp in Massachusetts, and has been in virtually constant training.

FARMERS SUCCUMB TO NETHERWOODS

Pentz, a New Twirler, In City League Debut Does Well.

The Farmers were again handed a trimming on Saturday, the Netherwoods turning the trick in 13 to 1 fashion. The "Cellarites" were entirely otuclassed throughout the whole game and were able to score only in the final frame.

Russ Stewart occupied the mound for the East End clan. Russ retired toward the end of the campaign, in order that Thorne might have a chance. The two pitchers allowed but four hits, half of these going to Friele.

The Farmers presented a patchwork team, with Pentz, a new pitcher, on the mound. As far as Pentz was concerned, the Farmers looked fine. The new hurler certainly fared much better than several other City League pitchers who have been twirling around these parts of late. Pentz fanned eight men and allowed but nine hits.

Eddie Coughlan, the best hitter in the City League, failed to garner a bingle, but he certainly made up for the "misfortunte" at the expense of the "Pennsy" hurler on Sunday.

The Farmers have now completed their City League schedule and have made a poor showing. That the team will be considerably strengthened when it comes on the field next year is the confident belief of all local fans. The score:

VAN DEVENTER LADS IN CHAMPIONSHIPS

Phil and Ludlow Draw Assignments to Play Today at Forest Hills.

When the national tennis championships begin today on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, the feature of the attraction will be the challenge round doubles, in which the titleholders, William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, will defend against the challengers, Maurice E. McLoughlin and Ward Dawson, who won the right to play for the championship by defeating the Eastern champions, George M. Church and Willis E. Davis, in the final of the preliminary doubles at Chicago. Phil and Ludlow Van Deventer, of this city, are among those entered and represent the Princeton Tennis Club. This match promises a keen battle of the courts, and it will be doubly interesting from the fact that it will be the first competitive play of McLouhlin in the East. The moot question of whether he has recovered the form which made him invincible in years gone by will in a measure be settled by this match.

To win the preliminary doubles against such a strong team as Davis and Church, who were confidently expected to be the challengers against the champions, after the excellent play at Longwood, was a feat of high merit. It presages a hard battle if the present titleholders are to retain their honors. Johnston and Griffin, however, are favorites for the contest on the basis of their play during the season and the memory of the contest a year ago, when they defeated Maurice E. Mc Loughlin and Thomas C. Bundy.

PERHAPS A RECORD.

"Steve" Yerkes, second baseman for the Atlanta Southern Association team and formerly American and Federal League player, has accepted 111 chances in twenty-two games without an error, and sport writers here claim the world fielding record for him.

EARL MORAN ESSAYS TO BE A PITCHER

And the Netherwood Lad Finds the Role An Easy One.

With Earl Moran, of Netherwood, on the mound, the St. Joseph baseball team defeated the Plainfield A. C. on Hyde Field Saturday. The score being 2 to 1. Henry Stiles, the losing twirler, pitched brilliant ball, and deserved to win. The only run scored was registered by Frank Mullin, who in addition played a "bang-up" game in the field.

EXPECT BIG GALLERY AT WOMEN'S EVENT

Mrs. Thurston Wright and Mrs. C. M. Bragg In Finals Today.

The finals in the play for the woman's championship of the Spring Lake Golf Club today will draw a big gallery from the summer colony in Spring Lake. Mrs. Thurston Wright, of Pittsburgh, who is a sister of Mrs. Storey Rowland, and who was the medalist in the qualifying round, will meet Mrs. C. M. Bragg, of New York. Both have been leading golfers of the feminine contingent all season and both are excellent tournament players.

Play also will be continued today in the rounds for the Essex and Sussex Hotel cup. Those who qaulified for this trophy were Messrs. B. Y. Patterson, Harry Messenger, C. M. Bragg, W. H. McIntire, Walter Fahy, Scott Scammell, C. J. Hawkins, Thomas Ennever and Albert Bryant. Mr. Scammell recently won the club championship.

COSTELLO TO RETIRE.

"Dan" Costello, utility outfielder, has been released to the Toronto club of the International League, according to an announcement today by the Pittsburgh National League Club. Costello later said he would not report to Toronto, but would retire from baseball.

MANY RAILROAD PLAYERS OUT ON STRIKES WHEN THEY FACED JACK DENNY, TAB HURLER

At Least, the Abstainer Twirler Allowed No Hits In Seven Innings—Jupiter Pluvius Gets "In Dutch"—Schau Batted All Over the Lot—Eddie Coughlan Bats 1.000 For Day.

Old Jupiter Pluvius has made one more enemy. The enemy is Jack Denny, who hurled a seven-inning no hit, no run attractions against the champions of the Pennsylvaia Railroad League, the Tabs winning 9 to 0. Jupiter, grief stricken, burst into tears at the completion of the seven rounds and the game had to be discontinued.

With Tommy Mullin to hold him up, the elder Denny brother pitched one of the best games of his career, allowing not the slightest sort of a hit and fanning nine out of the twenty-one batters who faced him. Only one error was chalked up against the Tab squad, all of which indicates that there is nothing in Denny's victory that admits of the dispute.

Eddie Coughlan was the man of the hour when it came to hitting. On Saturday, Eddie failed to get a hit, but he certainly made amends yesterday. He was up to the bat four times and he secured four hits, two doubles being among the assortment." Sixteen hits off Schau, the railroad hurler, were obtained in six innings. Perhaps Schau was out on "strike."

NEW TOURNEY LEADERS ON ST. MARY'S COURT

Garret Keating and Anthony Deady Win Seven Games, Losing None.

Play in the tennis tourney now in progress on the St. Mary's courts was continued yesterday, a complete reversal of form resulting in a new leadership. The team of Garret Keating and Anthony Deady spent a profitable week-end with seven victories recorded. Four of these victories were made at the expense of Joseph McEvoy and Jerome Leary, the scores being 6—2, 6—1, 7—5 and 6—3. The other three wins were won at the expense of John Powelson and Joseph Gallagher, the score in this case being 6—4, 6—2 and 7—5.

As a result of the play, Garret Keating and Anthony Deady now lead in the competition with nine victories and but one defeat, while second place is held by John Powelson and Joe Gallagher, with nine victories and five defeats. Joe McEvoy and Jerome Leary have won three games and lost eleven, while Fred Green and Edwin Sullivan have won two games and have lost six. Play will be continued next Saturday and Sunday.

FIND NEW DIAMOND FIELDS.

Discovery Is Made Six Miles From Famous Premier Mine.

Considerable interest, writes Consul Edwin N. Gunsaulus from Johannesburg, is manifested in a report of the discovery of a new diamond field in the Transvaal about six miles distant from the famous Premier diamond mine and eighteen miles from Pretoria. It is stated that the initial finds were exceptionally good, and there has been a rush of diggers to this new diamondiferous ground, which is on the farm Kamselfontein. One of the owners has cut up his section into plots 15 by 20 feet, which he lets out to diggers at $10 per month each.

De Volkstem, published at Pretoria, states that in the course of three weeks a few diggings have sold $1,500 worth of diamonds. It is said that one man brought to light thirty-one diamonds in two washings, and as far as known only one washing thus far has produced a blank. About forty acres of ground have been wired in and given out in claims. During one week forty claim licenses have been issued.

The government mining engineer has not yet visited the ground, and it will likely be some time before anything official can be made public. While diamonds are admitted to have been found, there are at present no data as to the extent or payability of the diamond bearing area. The undertaking as it stands today is described as of a purely private and speculative character.

Rainfall Record.

A new rainfall record for the United States is 22.22 inches, made at Alta Pass, in Mitchell county, N. C., in the twenty-four hours preceding 2 p. m July 26. Lee A. Denson, section director there of the weather bureau, announced that fact when he completed his report on last month's flood. Alexandria, La., previously led the country with 21.4 inches rainfall in a similar period.

CORPORATION NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., will receive sealed bids at the Council Chambers, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting of said Council to be held therein on Tuesday, September 5th, 1916, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., for the erection and construction of a City Hall Building on Watchung Avenue, corner of East Sixth Street, in said City.

Plans and specifications and forms for proposals for such proposed building can be obtained by bidders on application to Messrs. Peck & Bottomley, Associate Architects, 597 Fifth Avenue, New York city by filing references for approval and depositing with said Architects certified check for $25.00, payable to the order of the Treasurer of the said City, which check will be held until the return of such plans and specifications. Also the plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The work will be let in four (4) contracts: 1st—For General Construction; 2nd—For Plumbing, gas fitting and work incidred thereto; 3rd—For Steam heating; 4th—For Electrical work. Separate bids will be received for each of these contracts.

All bids must be on the forms furnished with the specifications and in compliance with the "instructions to bidders" accompanying the same, and accompanied by certified check on some solvent bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Treasurer of said City, to the amount of five per cent. of the bid submitted. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

Dated August 7, 1916.

RECORD SLIPPED INTO PLAINFIELD

Gubernatorial Candidate Heard at Street Meeting Last Night.

HE GAVE NO WARNING

More Than a Hundred Passers-by Were Attracted—Blauvelt and Fagan In Party—Press Agent Tells What He Said.

The Hon. George L. Record, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of New Jersey, was in Plainfield last night. Plainfield may be surprised to learn of his visit, but he made an address to as many voters as he could attract to the corner of Front street and Madison avenue, and this morning The Press received a copy of his remarks, mailed in advance from Jersey City.

There was no blowing of trumpets to herald the coming of the candidate, and he was not met by a band and enthusiastic reception committee. One reason was that the band and the enthusiastic citizens did not know of his approach. Accompanied by James G. Blauvelt, member of the Passaic Valley Sewage Commission, and Mayor Mark M. Fagan, of Jersey City, Mr. Record slipped into town, held a street meeting and slipped out again. He came near not getting his visit on record.

A Press reporter this morning found one citizen who happend along while Mr. Record was speaking, and made up a part of the crowd of more than a hundred people who stopped to listen.

According to a press agent in Jersey City Mr. Record said, in part:

"The important news of the day is the announcement from Paterson that the mill workers of that city are about to enter upon another great strike similar to that which attracted the attention of the entire country some years ago. This news, coming on top of the unfavorable dispatches from Washington to the effect that the President's efforts to avert the great railroad strike are likely to fail, indicates that we are entering a period of unrest among all of the people who work for wages that has had no parallel in recent years.

"The men who are making millions out of munitions and other businesses fondly hope that what they call "flush times," which they claim exist at present, would make working men contented, so that their employers could go on piling up huge fortunes while the good times last. But the fact remains that while the working men are now pretty generally employed and that the wages of many of them have been somewhat increased, the cost of living is going up more than any increase in wages. These working men see that the actual product which their labor produces is sold by their employers in the market at a price which makes immense fortunes for the employer. They think this is unfair, and it is.

"The injustice of the present arrangement is that in good times the men are busy, but at wages which barely afford them to get on as best they can. In bad times the employer does not make very much money, but he does not lose any, while the working men are compelled to work part time and to live upon their scanty savings or to emigrate to some other part of the country in search of work. The working men in increasing numbers are beginning to see the permanent character of this one-sided arrangement, and they are learning to insist upon a larger share of the profits that come in prosperous years.

"The only weapon of the working man under existing conditions is the labor union. This is at best an inadequate weapon.

"The true remedy for the war between labor and capital is to force idle land into use by exempting buildings and labor products from taxation. This will make it unprofitable to hold land idle, and immense quantities of land everywhere will thus be forced into active productive use. This will improve every legitimate business, increase the demand for labor, raise wages, lower rents and do away with the necessity of strikes as a method of enforcing the demands of labor."

LITTLE MAN WINS.

The veteran Charley Mitchell, England's greatest pugilistic hero, 55 years of age, but looking ten year younger, peered through the smoke wreaths that hung over the ring at the Manhattan A. C. last night and watched Bob Moha, of Milwaukee, give forty-one pounds and a lacing to Joe Cox, the Missouri Giant.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

VON MACKENSEN TO LEAD BULGARS

His Name Will Give Strength to Germany in Balkans, It Is Said.

RUSSIANS ARE MOVING

Already Pouring Through Roumania to Fight For Railroad to Turkey—Paris Reports More Attacks to Regain Fleury Village.

The Hague, August 29.—Gen. von Mackensen, who executed the drive through Serbia that conquered that territory, has been named by the German general staff to lead German, Bulgarian and Austrian soldiers in the war against Roumania and the Russian army that is already pouring through Roumnia in the direction of Bulgaria.

The very name of Mackensen strikes terror to the heart of the Roumanians, and the putting of him in charge of the Bulgars is intended to imbue soldiers of that little nation with courage for the facing of heavy odds that confront them. At least 150,000 Germans are to be given to Mackensen, it is said, and with Bulgars and Austro-Hungarians he will have sufficient force to overcome the Russians and Roumanians, it is said.

More Attacks on Fleury.

Paris, Aug. 29.—Increasing violence marked the fighting on the Verdun front last night. The Germans renewed their efforts to recapture Fleury, but their attacks were all repulsed by the French.

Vienna reports that Budapest dispatches tell of the passage of Russian soldiers through Roumania en route to the Bulgarian frontier for the purpose of cutting the railroad connecting Berlin and Constantinople.

80,000 Roumanians Move.

London, August 29.—Eighty thousand Roumanian troops are moving toward the Transylvania frontier for the invasion of Hungary.

Advance guards of the Roumanian force have crossed the Hungarian boundary in a swift advance on the two Transylvania cities of Hermannstadt and Kronstadt. These forces engaged the Teutons in the Rothen Thurm pass, fifteen miles from Hermannstadt, and in the passes a few miles from Kronstadt.

ANOTHER PARALYSIS CASE FOUND AT DUNELLEN

Another case of infantile paralysis, making the fifth case in all, was found in Dunellen late today. The victim of plague is Anthony Golfbroch, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Golfbroch, of First street. The youngster has a severe case of the disease.

FARMER A. C. DEFEATED BY WEST END STARS

The West End Stars defeated the Farmer A. C., alias Jefferson Stars, yesterday, by a score of 9 to 3. Charlie McCarthy, the pitcher of the winning team, got four hits out of five times up, one of which was a two-bagger Coogen, the opposing pitcher also did good work. The West End Stars have won eleven games and los ttwo. The lineup of the team yesterday was as follows: Thomas Traynor, catcher; Charles McCarthy, pitcher; Morris Shapiro, first base; Whitey, second base; William Gunzelman, third base; A. Apgar, shortstop; Arthur Wahler, right field; John Bolone, center field; Meyer Shapiro, left field.

HEINIE ZIMMERMAN TO PLAY FOR M'GRAW

Heinie Zimmerman was yesterday traded to the Giants by the Cubs for Larry Doyle, Outfielder Merwin Jacobson and Infielder Herbert Hunter. The trade was officially announced by President Charles Weeghman, of the Cubs, after he had held a long distance talk over the telephone with John McGraw, who is in Cincinnati with his team.

Doyle will be at the North Side to play second base for the Cubs today and Heinie will go to Cincinnati to play second base for the Giants. Jacobson is now playing the outfield for Rochester of the International League and will be recalled. Hunter will be used as utility man for the Cubs.

The announcement of the trade was quite a surprise, as every one supposed that a deal was practically closed with the Philadelphia club, but after Pat Moran, of the Philadelphias, had held a long conference with Weeghman yesterday they failed to come to an agreement. In the evening McGraw called Weeghman over the telephone to learn that status of the case, and in a few minutes a trade had been closed.

T. E. CURRIN JR., WEDS MRS. BESSIE A. CARR

Quiet Ceremony Performed by Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson—Honeymoon In Maine.

An announcement of considerable interest to many Plainfielders is that of the marriage of Mrs. Bessie A. Carr, of this city, to Thomas Currin, Jr., son of Thomas E. Currin, of 62 Mountain avenue, North Plainfield. The ceremony was performed Sunday evening at Mr. Currin's home by Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, of which the bride is a member, and was witnessed only by the immediate relatives of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Currin left yesterday for Maine, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will resides at Mr. Currin's home in the borough.

The bride, who is a native of Towanda, Pa., has been a resident of this city for the past twenty years, where she has a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Currin has resided here for twenty-five years, during which time he has been connected with the First National Bank as paying teller. He has been actively interested in affairs of the borough, having been prominent in Franklin Council No. 41, Jr. O. U. A., and on several occasions has been a representative to the State Council.

BOROUGH SCHOOLS TO OPEN ON OCTOBER 2

Teachers to Have Institute Beginning On September 18 For Instruction.

At a meeting of the Borough Board of Education held last night it was decided to postpone the fall opening of the public schools until October 2, the same date that the city schools will open. Children who are spending the summer or even a few weeks out of North Plainfield will have to be home two weeks before they can go to school, and all parents are advised to arrange so they may start on the opening day and lose no time.

It was decided to have the teachers report for duty September 18 and between that date and the opening of the schools an institute will be held. Daily meetings will be a part of the program with lectures by various educators, probably from the State Board of Education, and the teachers who will be starting the first year will have a chance to become accustomed to things. Superintendent Krobs will be in charge.

MAN RUNS FROM HOUSE AS DR. CLARKE RETURNS

Rev. Howard E. Clarke, of 214 West Seventh street, returned home last night about 9:30 after an evening out and found that his house had been entered. The man was frightened away by the return of Mr. Clarke and was seen running away from the house. Nothing was missing. The police made an investigation but could get no description of the burglar.

BOROUGH MAN HELD FOR RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Admitting that he had received metal goods from Walter Johnson, which he knew had been stolen from the Smalley stone crusher, Max Michaelson, of Chapman street, a junk dealer, was held in $100 bail when he was arraigned before Recorder Fred Hand in borough police court last night, to await the action of the Grand Jury. Samuel Tobb went the fellow's bond.

Michaelson is the second one to be held for the Grand Jury in connection with the theft at the stone crusher, Walter Johnson, the negro who did the stealing, having been held under $500 bail by Recorder Hand last week. Johnson is now in the county jail at Somerville.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

William Dow, of Bound Brook, was given another chance to turn his back on the "cup that cheers" when he was arraigned before Recorder Hand in borough court this morning on a drunkenness charge. Dow operates the steam roller in Somerset street and was trying to "cool off" after a hard day of work.

LIGHT SWITCH WAS BROKEN.

Walter Samuel, charged with driving his automobile without lights, told Judge De MeMza in court this morning that his switch was broken and he was on his way to the repair shop to have it fixed when an officer arrested him. He was given a suspended sentence.

ARRESTED FOR NOT WORKING.

Edward Fay, arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of vagrancy, was given a suspended sentence by Judge De Meba.

CALKINS AGREES TO ENTER RACE

Will Again Be Republican Candidate For Mayor.

WIRES HIS ACCEPTANCE

Requests From Officials and Citizens Forced Him to Reverse Decision—No Opposition Is Expected From Democrats.

Mayor Calkins will run again.

Heeding the demand of ward clubs and individual voters, he this morning wired John J. Carroll, chairman of the Republican City Committee, giving authority for the preparing of petitions and consenting to again seek election as Mayor of Plainfield. The telegram to Mr. Carroll follows:

"Mr. John J. Carroll,

"Chairman City Committee.

"In response to requests of associates in office which I cannot regard as perfunctory or other than deliberately intended and sincere, and in acknowledgment of the hearty organization indorsement and of many individual requests that I reverse my earlier determination, I have decided that I ought to permit my name to go before the voters as a candidate for re-election. You are therefore authorized to take the necessary steps to that end.

"LEIGHTON CALKINS."

The telegram was sent from East Gloucester, Mass., where Mayor Calkins is spending a month with his wife and children.

The telegram sets at rest all uncertainty that has existed for the past month among members of the Republican party. Until then there had been no thought of Mr. Calkins' refusal to run for re-election, but just before the Mayor left for his vacation he gave an exclusive interview to the Press in which he said he was not a candidate for the office again and did not want it. Republican leaders at once began to send telegrams urging him to reconsider. The Second Ward Republican Club was the first to pass a formal resolution requesting him to run again, and soon similar action had been taken by the First, Third and Fourth Ward organizations. Each member of the Common Council signed an appeal to him, and telegrams were sent by every official of the city. Many Democrats joined in the movement and because of the evident demand that he be a candidate, Mr. Calkins has consented.

Chairman Carroll will at once prepare Calkins petitions. They will be placed in the hands of the four presidents of Ward clubs and will be circulated within the next few days.

It is freely predicted that the Democrats will not nominate a candidate, now that Mr. Calkins is in the race again, and that he will be elected without opposition.

WILSON SIGNS ARMY AND NAVY APPROPRIATIONS

Washington, Aug. 29.—President Wilson today signed the army and navy appropriation bills, the greatest measures of their kind ever passed by any government in time of peace since the beginning of history. The President also signed the Philippines bill.

MORE NEW PARALYSIS CASES IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 29.—Infantile paralysis figures took another jump today, notwithstanding the changed and cooler atmosphere. The new cases reported were seventy-three, as compared with forty-three yesterday. The deaths were thirty-three today, against twenty-five yesterday.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

N. J. R. CHANDLER,
Health Officer.

LIVELY MEETING OF G. O. P. CLUB PROMISED

Endorsement of Councilmanic Candidate to Feature Republican Gathering Tonight.

An interesting meeting of the First Ward Republican Club is announced for tonight at the office of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Park avenue and West Second street, when a report will be received from the committee on Councilmanic candidates. Since the last meeting two candidates have appeared in the race for ward honors, Councilman A. D. Edgar, who seeks a renomination, and Frederick S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, who has been urged to enter the coming primaries.

The committee on candidates has interviewed both Mr. Edgar and Mr. Cutter, and both have consented to run on the Republican ticket. Which candidate the club will indorse remains to be seen. It is the belief, however, that Mr. Edgar will be the choice of the club for another term, although it is said that efforts will be made to prevent such indorsement. It is known that Mr. Edgar favors the present excise conditions in Plainfield, while Mr. Cutter has announced himself to be in favor of local option.

Mr. Edgar believes that excise conditions in Plainfield are satisfactory to a majority of the peole, and if reelected will vote to continue them.

ELKS COMPLETING CONVENTION PLANS

Parade Will Be Held In Newark Regardless of Paralysis Outbreak.

With the exception of a few minor deails practically all arrangements have been completed for the third annual reunion and parade of the New Jersey State Association of B. P. O. Elks, which will be held September 10, 11 and 12, in Newark.

It was announced by City Home Trustee Henry A. Guenther, chairman of the general committee in charge of arrangements, and Walter C. Jacobs, vice chairman of the committee and chairman of the publicity committee, that thirty-nine lodges of the State will have between 7,000 and 10,000 men in the parade, which is to be held beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning September 12.

According to Mr. Jacobs, $100,000 will be spent by the various lodges for music, floats and uniforms. To date the Newark lodge alone has spent $15,000 for uniforms. This money does not include what local Elks will spend on the entertainment of guests. There will be a dozen floats in the parade.

At a meeting of the general committee yesterday it was stated that reports had been received from different parts of the State that the convention and parade were to be called off because of the outbreak of infantile paralysis. The committee announced, however, that both the reunion and parade would be held. A letter was sent to all lodges in the State today notifying them to this effect.

On the opening day of the convention all deelgates will be met at the railroad station and conveyed by automobiles to their headquarters. Open house will be held at the Elks home in Green street all day in charge of the reception committee, and a buffet lunch will be served. A sacred concert will be given at the club house in the evening.

After registration at the Elks' home at 11 o'clock, September 11, the visiting Elks will be taken in automobiles through the county parks. Luncheon will be served at the Nankin Garden restaurant. The business session of the delegates will be called in the lodge room at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The women visitors will be taken on a tour through the department stores. At 6 o'clock in the evening there will be a beefsteak party for delegates at the Home Brewing Company's plant. The women will be entertained at a theatre.

The place of formation of the parade has not been selected as yet, but the line of march will be through Broad street, passing the city hall, where Mayor Redmond and other city officials will review the spectacle. After the parade the members will go to Olympic Park, where band contests, awarding of prizes and other events will be held. A reception and ball will be held that night.

HAMILTON GRANGE WINS.

In an interclub series of tennis matches Hamilton Grange L. T. C. won from Montclair A. C. on the former's courts yesterday, taking all four contests played. Miss Edith Bagg defeated Mrs. L. V. STRIKE CALLED FOR LABOR DAY; WILSON WILL MAKE APPEAL TO CONGRESS AS HIS FINAL EFFORT

RAILROAD EXECUTIVES AND UNION MEN CANNOT POSSIBLY REACH AGREEMENT AS TO WAGE DEMANDS.

JOINT SESSION IS CALLED FOR 2.30 TODAY

Government Has Right to Draft Trains for Troop Movements and Carrying of Mails, and May Extend Authority to Force Carrying of Freight Necessary to Commercial Life of Nation—Newlands Discusses Legislative Possibilities.

Washington, August 29.—Unless it is prevented by extraordinary action of Congress all traffic over railroads in the United States will come to an end at 7 o'clock on the morning of Monday, September 4, under a general strike order that has already been issued.

President Wilson, after almost two weeks of frantic efforts to bring railroad executives and union men together, has ceased his appeals to them and will take the matter before Congress. He has called a special joint session of Senate and Congress for 2:30 this afternoon, and will then go over his activity in the controversy. Just what action he will ask is not known, but he has been in close conference with leaders in both Houses for days searching for some authority that can be used as a club with which to force a settlement of the controversy over an eight-hour day.

Senator Kern and Representative Kitchin, Democratic leaders in Senate and House, upon being notified by the President that they could address Congress, made arrangements for the joint session of the two houses at 2 o'clock. Mr. Kitchin said confidently that a quorum of the House would be present.

The President will outline the strike situation. A short message has been prepared and set to the printer. It is said that it contains nothing more than an outline of what the President has attempted to do and also recommends an eight-hour day.

Senator Newlands stated today in reference to the President's visit to the Capitol:

"The question is shall the President be authorized to draft trains merely for military necessity and the transportation of the mails or shall we go further and provide for their operation for general commercial transportation? This is a grave question that has not been determined. This is the problem involved in any legislation the President may ask Congress to pass."

The commission of eight railroad executives had a conference with the President at the White House this morning shortly before the Cabinet meeting. This meeeting was arranged at the request of the railroad presidents, and is believed to be the final conference unless the President sends for them.

Conferences last night with representatives of both the brotherhoods and railroad executives developed only that neither side would yield. The President then began work at once upon a message he will deliver before a joint session at Congress.

The brotherhood representatives summoned to the White House last night refused to yield to the President's urgent request that the strike order, calling for a walkout of 400,00 trainmen at 7 a. m. Labor Day, be be recalled. The railroad executives, informed of this later, assumed a defiant air.

"There's going to be a strike. That's certain. Let us have it. It will clear the air. And that's the only thing to do now," one prominent railroad president declared. "It will show the people of the country what is really going on in the industrial world."

MERCHANTS TO OFFER REMARKABLE BARGAINS

Annual "Dollar Day" Observance Tomorrow to Be Better and Bigger Than Ever.

Practically every resident of the city and borough is anxiously looking forward to the annual "Dollar Day" observance tomorrow, at which time the merchants of this city will offer countless bargains of every description. "Dollar Day" has become an annual feature with the merchants and people of Plainfield, and this year it promises to be better and bigger than ever before.

A glance through the columns of the Plainfield Daily Press today will acquaint the reader with the remarkable offerings by the merchants of Plainfield. It will be possible to get bargains in almost everything that is needful for one's wear or in the home.

"Dollar Day" makes an excellent opportunity for Plainfield people to become better acquainted with local stores and convince them that right here they can shop as well as anywhere else and with less trouble. Be sure to visit the stores early tomorrow, for in this way you will be able to get the first pick of the array of bargains which will be found displayed there. Readers of the Plainfield Press are also urged to read the special display advertisements to be found in this issue.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE PLANS FALL CAMPAIGN

A meeting of the Local Option League of Watchung was held last night in the township rooms, at which time the township was divided into ten separate districts with an executive member of the league in charge of each. The various district heads made their reports, showing everything to be in excellent condition.

The campaign of John Ammerman for Assembly was discussed informally, and other routine business was transacted.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS LEAVE MUHLENBERG

W. A. Brady, Suffering From Fractured Rib, and Jules Goodman Return Home.

After being patients at Muhlenberg Hospital since the automobile accident Sunday morning at Dunellen, while they were on their way from seeing the first performance of "The Man Who Came Back," in this city to Wilmington, Del., William A. Brady, theatrical producer, and Jules Eckert Goodman, author of the latest Brady production, were able to leave the hospital this afternoon for New York. Mr. Brady, it was found after an x-ray had been taken, was suffering from a fractured rib and bruises, while Mr. Goodman escaped with a severe shaking up. John Turk, the business manager of the new show, who was in the machine at the time of the accident, was also able to leave the hospital yesterday.

On account of the accident, it was announced yesterday that the initial opening of the show for a long run at the Playhouse in New York had been postponed from today until Saturday. Mr. Brady was visited at the hospital by Grace George, his wife, and after a consultation Mr. Brady engaged Ernest Lawford, who starred with Miss George last season, to appear in "The Man Who Came Back."

PERSONAL TALES OF BRITISH PUSH

Wounded Tell of Thrilling Moments in Picardy Charges.

BOOK STOPPED TWO BULLETS

Hundreds Killed and Wounded on Both Sides as the English Opened Their Offensive—Artillery Work a Marvel of Exactness—Praise German Bravery.

London is now being thrilled by the stories of the push on the Semme, which the wounded soldiers have brought back. Sorely wounded as many are, and after a journey which all the care made barely endurable, the men still tingle with the thrill of the charge, and their talk is all of the rush.

"We went over in grand style," said a sergeant recalling the assault on Montauban, "and found the place in an awful mess. Most of the houses had been knocked head over heels—the only ones I saw standing were a couple of cafes. As we came on we saw lots of Germans running out of the back of the village, but there were plenty of them monkeying about the ruins. We divided the company up into groups of six, but as we neared the village we joined up again. My five pals and myself saw some in a ground floor room, so we dropped a Mills bomb through the window and didn't wait for an answer.

"As we turned the corner we saw a German lying round the end of a wall. He'd got a machine gun and had made a little emplacement with bricks. He turned the blamed thing on me and got me in the foot. It didn't stop me, though, and when I was getting near to him I felt two kicks over the heart. I didn't wait to see what happened, but simply went at him and bayoneted him. I couldn't go on much farther, so I sat down to see what was the damage.

Book Stopped Bullets.

"My foot was pretty bad, but when I looked at my left hand breast pocket I saw two holes in it. I opened my pocket and found that two bullets had gone through my metal shaving mirror, through my pocket case and had nosed their way into a book I was carrying. Funnily enough, earlier in the morning my officer gave me the book and said I could read it when I got into the German trenches, so I put it in my pocket, little thinking that I should be able to read a bit of it on hospital ship coming back. The two bullets after piercing the mirror and case had met and fused into one lump of metal.

"I saw three Germans come up to two of our fellows and throw down their rifles. So our boys chucked down theirs, too, and went out for them with their fists, and they didn't half give them a dusting.

"As we were going into Montauban we saw a German machine gunner up a tree. He'd got the neatest little platform you ever saw painted so that it was almost invisible. We shot him.

"The spirit of our boys was splendid. They simply loved the fun. One of them got blown up by a shell. He seemed pretty dazed, but he picked himself up and came along. All he said was, 'Oh, there must be a war on after all, I suppose.'

"We had carried the first two lines and on getting into the third we saw the Germans coming up from the two exits of a deep dugout and pairing off down the trench. Our platoon commander got into the trench and picked them off as they came out. He had the mouth of the dugout on either side of him, say fifteen yards away. He was as cool as a cucumber. He simply turned from right to left and fired just as if he was in a shooting gallery. It was the best bit of fancy shooting I've seen."

Artillery Called Magnificent.

A sergeant major of the Middlesex speaking of the work of English artillery, said: "They were simply magnificent, and as we advanced they lifted trench by trench. The battalion went over and on in fine style. It was just like a parade, and the men felt confident, as they knew that large reserves were behind them. We soon got into the German front trench. I saw very few living, but in the second and third lines we found a few. At the bottom of the deep trenches were plenty of dead and in the dugouts too."

A corporal in the Northumberland fusiliers gave a picture of the precision with which the assault was carried out.

"Just on time," he said, "the first lines went away, not hurrying a bit, just taking it easy. Then came the second line. Of course there were gaps, but these were soon filled. Then went the third line, and I followed up with the supports. Everything was going A 1.

"The artillery was lifting from trench to trench, and we were following on step by step. It was just like a field day. The carriers with bombs and ammunition kept on coming along as cheerful as anything, and then later in the day I got moved back into our own front lines and on to the dressing station."

One man who had been at Mametz said that in the German trenches they found plenty of men, but as far as they could judge bombs were the chief weapons, not rifles. Several men spoke of the comparatively small number of rifles in the trenches.

Many Special Opportunities Will Be Offered to Thrifty Buyers Tomorrow--at TEPPER'S

The people of Plainfield and vicinity will be convinced tomorrow how far a Dollar can travel at Tepper's, even in these times of "high-cost of living," when the purchasing power of a Dollar seems to shrink daily.

Our preparations for this eventful day are extensive, and we look forward to one of the busiest days in the store's history.

Every department of the store has been ransacked, and merchandise of our usual trustworthy quality; goods that are NOW IN DEMAND, and are bringing from $1.25 to $2.00, and some even more, will be on sale tomorrow for one day only at ONE DOLLAR.

This is a saving opportunity that does not repeat itself often, and should appeal irresistently to every person who has some regard for economy. In fact, nobody can afford to miss it.

DECIDE TO PLAY FORFEITED GAME

City Baseball League Votes That Hopes and Baptists Meet September 9.

PRESIDENT SUSTAINED

Manager Britt Martin, of Hope Team, Opposes League Action—Baptists Refuse Game on Forfeit, Insisting That It Be Played.

Notwithstanding the fact that the City Baseball League decided on Monday night, August 21, that the much disputed Baptist-Hope chapel game which was originally forfeited to Hope chapel, should be played, the league unanimously approving the decision of President Walter C. Dobbins, to whom the matter was referred, the matter was again discussed at some length at last night's meeting of the league. The result was that by a vote of four to two, it was again decided that the game should be played.

Manager Britt Martin of the Hope team, questioned the legality of the league's action, quoting Cushing's Manual to sustain his contention. But the latter authority was also shown to give the league the right to take the action it did. Netherwood A. C., Farmer A.C., Baptist and Clinton Avenue voted in favor of playing the game, while Hope chapel and T. A. B. opposed this decision. The Baptists refused to take the game on a forfeit, insisting that it be played.

The Hope management raised the question as to who would reimburse his club for the $2 paid to Umpire Hansen on the day that the game was not played. This was settled by the Baptists contributing the money to the league, Secretary Daniel Randolph being instructed to forward the same to the treasurer of the Hope team. The manager of the latter club would not state positively that he would consent to play the game with the Baptists, explaining that it would be difficult to get a team together on September 9, the date chosen, inasmuch as some of the players would be away and others had refused to take part in the contest. However, as things stand, the game is scheduled for September 9.

Inasmuch as the Courier-News had failed to have a representative at the league meetings, and in view of what was considered the unjust attacks of the sporting editor of that newspaper on the league's action regarding the disputed Hope-Baptist game, it was voted that further information about league meetings should be withheld from that newspaper unless a representative should attend the meetings. The newspaper's criticism of the league's action over the forfeited game was not only considered unfair, but not in accordance with the facts. This was the opinion of every club represented at last night's meeting. At the league meeting next Monday night, the Netherwood team will officially be declared the City League champions, and the various awards will be made.

ROBERT B. BUTLER TO WED MISS RUTH BUNKER

Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Bunker, of 322 East Front street, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth Claire Bunker, and Robert Barnes Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, of West Fifth street. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride elect's parents, on Saturday afternoon, September 3, at 4 o'clock. A reception will follow. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in this city.

Both Miss Bunker and Mr. Butler are active members of the First Baptist church, and are prominent in Christian Endeavor work. Mr. Butler was president of the local Chirstian Endeavor Union.

MANAGEMENT OF CHILDREN'S HOME THANKS FRIENDS

The management of the Children's Home appreciates very much the generosity of those who have already made donations of fruits and vegetables to the home, and wish to take this opportunity of thanking those who have contributed. The family is not so large this summer as last, owing to the fact that no children have been received since the outbreak of the infantile paralysis epidemic, but there are still twenty-seven to be fed and cared for and any gift, however small or large, will be gratefully received. Apples, particularly will be welcome, even if they are not perfect, because all can be used for cooking.

The matron is very solicitous for the welfare of the children, and is trying to maintain a strict quarantine and is keeping them on their own premises. Some of the older boys grow restless under the unusual restraint, and considerable ingenuity is required to provide occupation and entertainment for them. They are now trying to make tents out of material at hand, but there seems to be not suitable covering about the premises, and if some discarded play tents could be donated it would help to solve one of the many problems. Two or three would be most acceptable.

—Still-useful furniture may be sold for what it is worth to somebody else—if you give the selling-task to a classified ad.

PLENTY OF WORK FOR SEA ROOKIES

So Busy That They Do Not Have Time to Write Letters.

ROUTINE OF DAILY LIFE.

Arise at 5 a. m. and Scrub the Decks Before Breakfast—Firing Guns and Drilling Show Need of Proper Training, Such as They Are Getting at Present.

The first of the John Paul Jones cruises for civilians on the reserve ships of the Atlantic fleet has seen adventure subsiding into work. At least it's that way on the Virginia, which carried 300 odd recruits from Boston.

Efficiency demands that under war conditions the men fire three shots a minute. It takes ten to man a twelve inch gun, from the shell men down in the hold, four decks below the turret, to the pointer above. It took the civilian crew just five minutes from "hoist away" to "fire." Yet a trained crew goes through it all in twenty seconds, shell after shell, to the end. It was a better lesson than any amount of preparedness talks in the necessity of trained men. It is a scientific job, this one of being a modern fighter, requiring the proper co-ordination of brain and hand and eye and nerve. That is what the training cruise is for—to get men ready so that precious months need not be spent in teaching men to shoot.

The Boat Drill.

For boat drill the men are divided into regular full crews. They man the davits and lower away and man the oars and row away. Among the rookies are half of Harvard's first crew men: Herrick, Harwood, White and Allen. They are in the same boat, and there are eight other men in the boat with them. The oars are narrow, and the seats don't slide. It is half of the brawn that rowed Yale off the water last June.

"But somehow," as one man sadly remarked, "it doesn't seem the same."

But the observers can see the evidence of the trained oar, struggling for "form," in the lumbering clumsiness of the ship's boats.

Then there are the old rookies, men who rowed on the long sweeps when the Virginia was a youngster. They are accumulating a good bit of extra weight amidships and show a roll as they walk. But they are game and pull at the oars as they did on the winning varsity in '03 or so. They come in puffing and played out after a practice row, but there is the light of excitement in their eyes, which comes from living over again well remembered times.

They are men-of-war's men now, every one of these 300 recruits. They rise at 5 to the bo'sn's pipe, tumbling out of their hammocks six feet to the floor. They lash their hammocks in the required nautical way with the required number of hitches. Then they roll up their broad legged sailor pants to the knees and swab down the decks with cold sea water. They polish brass and wash paint, as though their very existence depended on the job.

Millionaire Washing Brass.

It might be funny to see a man whose fortune runs to millions shining brass in a way that would not earn him $2 a day. Yet you know that brass polishing is not his goal. That is incidental to the larger work of being prepared to help on a big man-of-war in time of danger.

After cleaning comes breakfast and after breakfast assembly, with setting up exercises. From that to gun practice they go immediately, then to boat drill, to classes of special instruction to torpedo defense stations, taking barely time for a bite of dinner in between. They are trying to teach the recruits the utmost it is possible to learn in the time of the cruise, and every minute is precious.

"I don't even get time to write a letter," says one dapper sailor plaintively. "I have written 'Dear Ethel' five times, and that is as far as I get."

From "turn to" at 5 of the gray morning to "taps" at 9 of the weary night the men work and learn. They are displaying a remarkable quickness for the mechanism of gun and ships. The days are full of work, but they are also full of accomplishment.

"I don't know what to do with my men," said the commanding officer of another vessel of the fleet to the captain of the Virginia.

"Keep 'em at work," Captain Jackson advised him.

Not that life is all work for the rookies. Morning and evening a boom is rigged from the side of the ship sloping down to the water, and down it the men go to swim. Probably half of them go in the water. The other half lean over the sides and cheer. The water is cold and very salty. If a swimmer stays too close to the sides of the ship a little wave will come and slap him against the hard armor plate. Therefore most of the men swim out, followed by a lifeboat.

Who said men do not live well in the navy? Asparagus on toast, steaks, roasts, grapes, oranges, cantaloupes—these are items chosen at random from the menu of the last three days. At every meal enough is thrown away to feed several large families. Fastidiousness goes by the board. The only requirement is that men remove their hats while eating. At every meal a dozen men forget it.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

DOLLAR DAY

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Department of State.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME, GREETING:

WHEREAS, it appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof, by the consent of two-thirds of all the members then present, that the PLAINFIELD EXCHANGE FOR WOMEN'S WORK, a corporation of this State, has complied with all the requirements of "An Act to incorporate associations not for pecuniary profit," approved April 21, 1898, preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, THOMAS F. MARTIN, Secretary of State of the State of New Jersey, DO HEREBY CERTIFY, That the said corporation did, on the twenty-ninth day of July, A. D., 1916, file in my office a duly executed and attested consent in writing, to the dissolution of said corporation, which said consent and the record of the proceedings aforesaid, are now on file in my said office as provided by law.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my Official Seal, at Trenton, this twenty-ninth day of July, A. D., nineteen hundred and sixteen.

THOMAS F. MARTIN,
Secretary of State.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE MEETS IN THE BOROUGH

Selects County Convention Delegates and Decides to Support Ammerman.

At a meeting of the North Plainfield Option League, held in the Watchung Avenue church last night, D. N. Van Vliet, W. G. Gray and George Hoagland were appointed delegates to attend the convention of the Somerset County Home Rule League, to be held at Smerville, Thursday William DeLa R. Anderson announced that the county league had appointed him chairman of a campaign committee to assist John Ammerman, and that he had selected William L. Smalley, Mayor of North Plainfield, and Charles H. Drake, president of the Bernardsville Bank, to aid him.

Following a discussion concerning the new registration law, Messrs. Anderson and Gray were appointed a committee of two to gather data on the subject. Mr. VanVliet, as secretary of the local league, made a report on the Somerset County Home Rule League.

Following the regular meeting there was a discussion of plans for the Ammerman campaign.

Washington Irving.

To Washington Irving more than to any other writer belongs the high honor of being the "creator of American literature."

Irving was not the first American to write good literature, but he was the first American to write in a way to catch and hold the European attention. It was through Irving's writings that the old world was made aware of the fact that there was an American literature. Hildreth, Prescott, Cooper, Poe and others of the pioneers came in for a full measure of praise, but Washington Irving will always hold his title as father of our literature.—New York Journal.

THAT THIRD WARD MEETING.

Through a letter from James McClymont, printed in yesterday's Press, we are informed that those who dominated last week's meeting of the Third Ward Republican Club did not vote down a resolution or even a motion that the record of Robert H. Cox as a member of the Common Council be indorsed. Mr. McClymont explains that the stories of the meeting have been untrue, and that, while it was suggested that Mr. Cox be requested to again make the race, this idea was lost sight of in the discussion of the spirit of the primary law that was provoked. When a vote was finally taken, says Mr. McClymont, it was on the propriety of a committee being given full authority in the selection of a candidate, and others bear out the point made by him. An editorial in yesterday's Press probably did an injustice to Mr. McClymont and others who voted with him in that they were put in the light of having brought about the embarassment of Councilman Cox through fear of having their candidate forced into the open. The reporter was at fault in not going further into the spirit of the meeting. In fact he did not attend the meeting at all, but secured the story from those who participated, although we do not agree with Mr. McClymont in the charge that the facts were wilfully misrepresented to him. The Press still feels that the Third Ward Republican Club did not give due consideration to the service and sacrifices of Mr. Cox, and insists that he should have been given an opportunity to say whether or not he wanted to become a candidate for re-election before he was made the subject of a fight over the method of naming a candidate, but it is glad to assist in making clear what really happened at the meeting.

GERMANY'S NEW ENEMIES.

The entrance of Roumania and Italy into the war as foes of the Central powers means many things in the complex European tangle, but their decision to take up the cause of the Allies means first that they think they can foresee the end. Roumania has made no secret of her intention to wait until her army of more than 500,000 might turn the tide. Roumanian rulers know that a losing fight would mean suicide for the nation, and they coolly stood by for two years while the giants battled. Now, with Germany bleeding, surrounded on every side, and nearing the end of her almost inexhaustible resources, Roumania lends her sword to the foe that is strongest. A simple statement which accompanied the official declaration of war was in keeping with the attitude of the nation since the Balkan States became involved. "Roumania believes that she can hasten the end of the war by her action." An international court, if such a tribunal existed, could never hold that sufficient for plunging a whole nation of people into an ogre of death and destruction, but it is probably a better cause than that in which some of her neighbors are fighting. Italy, her armies made ready in the months of indecision, could not longer keep up the pretense of being neutral toward Germany while German officers led Austrian soldiers against her flag. She was a party to the Triple Europe's bloody "field of honor." And all— in the kindest words that and faith, becomes merely a scrap of paper. Poor little Greece, torn with dissension and bullied by uniformed aliens for months will soon drop her flimsy cloak of neutrality and line her able-bodied men up on Alliance, and now another historic document, signed in all seriousness truth will tolerate—because one nation was ruled by a soldier instead of a statesman.

If Candidate Hughes is going to have any criticisms of President Wilson's part in the railroad strike we suggest that he speak up now. It will be easy to accuse the President of insincerity and of merely playing to the grandstand a little later, and if his untiring efforts go for naught the Republicans may even find fault with the manner in which he conducted the negotiations looking toward a peaceful settlement of the controversy. Mr. Wilson might even be willing to share honors with his opponent in order to secure victory, but surely if Mr. Hughes keeps silent while his voice would be heeded, he should not be heard a little later when he can only point out the honest failure of one who did try to be of service.

Can the railroad employes who are making demands of the executives bring about a general tie-up of both freight and passenger traffic, is a question that is beginning to worry Mr. Average Citizen not a little. The answer is, they can. There are 400,000 trainmen who are asking for an eight-hour day, and other concessions, but they are affiliated with more than 1,500,000 other railroad employes and the organizations will stand solidly behind the brotherhoods. When a strike is ordered a strike will take place; and while a few trains my be run, the entire business of the nation will be pa[illegible] weeks, or until a settlement is made.

.· Plainfield Theatre. ·.

There have been musical plays with scenes laid in Russia, and there have been musical plays with scenes laid in Turkey, and there have been musical plays, more numerous than the other two put together, with scenes laid in Vienna, but it has been reserved for "Katinka," which Arthur Hammerstein will present next Saturday matinee and night at the Plainfield Theatre, to combine these three widely separated and distinct localities into a single evening's entertainment. The combination has not been forced, either, but naturally results from the demands of the plot which is more closely woven and more interesting than is found in the ordinary musical production. Otto Hauerbach, who wrote the play, has led his characters from a wedding feast in Yalta, Russia, to the streets of Old Stamboul, Turkey, and thence to a brilliant cafe in Vienna. In the staging of the piece Mr. Hammerstein has been careful to catch and preserve throughout each act the atmosphere and spirit of the particular locality in which the particular scene transpiring is laid. Rudolf Friml has exercised the same care in the composition of the music, and familiar strains of each locality have been woven into the various compositions as themes.

AUTO AND CYCLE COLLIDE.

An automobile driven by Joseph White, of Bound Brook, and a motorcycle ridden by Thomas and George B. Olrich, of Plainfield, were in collision at Vail avenue and New Market road near this city, Sunday night. The motorcyclists were slightly injured and were treated by Dr. M. J. Whitford, of New Market. Later they were taken home by Mr. White.

The Truthful Bard.

From sentiment I do not sing
Anent the joys of gentle spring.
Oh, no, indeed! Oh, no!
I do not care a tinker's hang
About the fresh inspiring tang
Found in the winds that blow.

The new mown hay in summer time
Is not to me, a thing sublime.
I shun the pasture lot.
Let others rave until they die
About the beauteous summer sky.
I only know it's hot.

The fall does not appeal to me—
That is, not particularly;
I sing of it, of course.
I laud the golden autumn leaves
And wheat arrayed in fulsome sheaves,

But it's a case of force.
You see, it is this way:
In verse, I must sing each day,
In summer, spring and fall.
For them I don't care a ding,
But I must sing about something,
Or I don't eat, that's all.

First Stanza.

A man once said unto his wife, unto his wife he said,
"I couldn't bring home gasoline today,
The best that I could do was to bring home three loaves of bread.
It pains me much these hateful words to say."
"You are a wretch," the lady cried, "to go and spend your dough
For luxuries like bread. You go too far.
Why don't you buy necessities, for very well you know
We've no benzine to run our touring car."

Chorus.

We'll starve, we'll pinch, we'll dodge our debts,
But one fact we will know;
All else we'll gladly sacrifice and suffer no regrets,
For our car has to go.

Second Stanza.

The lady went and pawned her ring, the wedding ring, you know
She sold the baby's highchair with a smile.
She pawned the parlor rug as well, the kitchen range also,
Accumulating quite a little pile.
She went to a nearby garage where gasoline was sold,
And laid her wealth down at the keeper's feet.
He filled her car with gasoline and then with joy untold
She gaily honked and started down the street.

Chorus.

We'll wear punk clothes the year around,
Our pleasure 'twill not mar;
We'll starve, but we are surely bound
To run our touring car.

- Proctor's Theatre -

AT PROCTOR'S TOMORROW.

Another Douglas Fairbanks picture—and one of the best the Trianglo favorite has yet produced thus far—appears at Proctor's today as the headline photoplay offering. Its name is "The Half Breed," and the story is adapted from a tale written by one of America's most famous authors of romantic prose and verse—Bret Harte. The name of the Harte story from which it was adapted is "In the Carquinex Woods," and it deals with types and incidents of the early days in California as only Bret Harte's stories could. He knew his country, and he knew the people and the romances that flowed from his pen have made few equals, for heart interest and stronf human appeal in the literature of any country. Lo Dorman, the central figure of the play, is the son of a white father and an Indian mother. The latter killed herself soon after her desertion by the white man, and Lo, the half breed, was raised by a kindly old man who lived alone in a little cabin on the edge of the great Carquinez woods. One day death claims the half breed's protector, and, just as he is emerging from boyhood into manhood, Lo is left to do battle alone with the world. As no man's life can run its course without women, so women come into the life of Lo. One is a white girl, blonde, cold hearted, deceitful and seeking romance with the handsome young man for mere self-gratification. The other is an outcast of society, living with a brute who ill-treats her, but eager to bestow her love and devotion upon some man who will give her at least kindness and affection. The half breed is not left to choose between the women. Fast and furious events map out his pathway for him, until fate has assorted its playthings, and his feet are set on a pathway not of his own choosing. A rollicking Keystone comedy offering and the 12th episode of "The Secret of the Submarine" are also included on today's program.

Tomorrow will prove to be a big day for local film fans for it is then that Theda Bara, the most popular screen actress in this vicinity, appears in her latest Fox production. It is a splendid picturization of Quida's internationally known novel "Under Two Flags," in which Miss Bara portrays "Cigarette, the Daughter of the Regiment."

MARTIN WITHDRAWS FROM GUBERNATORIAL CONTEST

INSIDE

Trenton, Aug. 29.—Secretary of State Thomas Martin has issued a formal statement telling of his decision, reached some time ago, not to run for Governor at the coming primaries.

The statement follows:

"This is a statement intended more for the purpose of keeping the records straight than for the purpose of actually announcing my withdrawal from the Gubernatorial primary contest. Developments since January 31, when I announced my candidacy, have made almost unnecessary any explanation at this time, yet with the time about to expire when petitions can be filed I feel it due to many who promised me their support to give formal notice of what they must already know.

"When my candidacy was announced there had already been a preliminary harmony meeting among Democratic leaders from various parts of the State, looking not only to State harmony, but to a common ground upon which Hudson Democrats could stand for the good of the party, and more particularly for the success of Woodrow Wilson and a Democratic candidate for Governor.

"I have striven for harmony, for the good of the party, just as zealously as I ever strove for the principles of the faction of which I was a part, and in striving for harmony I have not lost sight of the principles of good government upon which our battles were fought."

THE FORUM

The following authorized interview with United States Senator F. G. Newlands, of Nevada, on the settlement of railroad disputes by arbitration, is submitted by Miss Ada G. Marsh, of this city, who is making a special study of these questions:

"Almost as a matter of instinct I belive in the eight-hour day for railroad employes and all other classes of labor in the United States."

This statement was made by Senator Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, in the course of an interview at Washington the other day when he was asked why the Newlands act providing for the settlement of railway strikes by mediation or arbitration had failed to meet the emergency of the present controversy between the railroad companies and their employes. They may be taken as the railroad creed of the Senator whose name is associated with the most advanced piece of labor legislation so far enacted by the Federal government, and who is the ranking man in Congress in transportation matters, because of his chairmanship of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce. Another vital article of that creed is the Senator's belief that all railroads should be brought under closer national control and more efficient regulation by national incorportaion.

As to the refusal of the ralroad employes to arbitrate in 1916 under the terms of the Newlands act, which they indorsed with so much enthusiasm at the time of its passage in 1913, their refusal being based on their claim that they do not get a square deal, Senator Newlands said that the men were not afraid of partiality on the part of the arbitrators, but of the arbitrators' lack of expert knowledge of the many complicated questions involved.

"The objection of the railroad brotherhoods," he said, "is not so much to the law as to the lack of information at the disposal of the umpires. No matter how just and fair they may be, they are inexpert. They are not clear in their own understanding of the issues and they cannot be clear in their decisions. After the award is made it becomes necessary to explain too much, possibly to arbitrate the award itself. This is what the men complain of, and, I think, explains their refusal to arbitrate at the present time.

"They declare, for example, that the granting of their demands would cost the roads only twenty millions more a year for operating. The roads declare it would cost much more than that. There should be some way of putting such an important point as that before the arbitrators as an undisputed fact to enable them to decide it on its merits, not in the form of two widely divergent guesses about the same thing. And that is only one of the many things concerning which we need accurate knowledge."

In the same interview Senator Newlands says: "I am not in favor of compulsory arbitration, for that, of course, means, if it means anything, compulsory abiding by the award of the arbitrator, which in turn means involuntary servitude to the United States."

WATCHUNG SCHOOLS OPEN LATE.

At the last meeting of the North Plainfield Township Board of Education it was decided to defer the opening of the public schools until October 2. The decision was reached after a recommendation had been received from the Board of Health.

BUSINESS COLLEGE WILL RE-OPEN SEPTEMBER 1

The Plainfield Business College will open its fall term, day and evening sessions, Friday, September 1. Prosperous business conditions have created such a continuous demand for well trained stenographers and office assistants that for a long time Herr's School has been unable to supply one-half of the number called for.

People in general, and ambitious young people in particular, are waking up to these most interesting facts and opportunities, and the indications are that the attendance this year at Herr's School will be a record-breaker.

The teaching staff is reorganized and strengthened and several new courses and interesting features are added to the curriculum. The school office is now open, day and evening to receive prospective patrons and students.

STILL FURTHER DECREASE IN NEW JERSEY CASES

In Newark, where the epidemic condition has been particularly severe, thirty-one new cases were reported, with ten deaths. There have been 2,475 cases throughout the State.

The cases reported yesterday were: East Orange, four; two each in Hasbrouck Heights, Wildwood, Woodbine, Jersey City, Kearney, West Hoboken, Passaic and Elizabeth; one each in Carlstadt, Harrington Park, Ridgefield Park, Rivervale township, Union township, Plainfield, Bergen county; Woodland township, Gloucester township, Camden county; Camden, Gloucester, Cedar Grove, Irvington, Livingston, Nutley, South Orange, North Bergen, Secaucus, West New York, Hopewell borough, Sayreville, Asbury Park, Matawan, Seabright, Upper Freehold, Madison, Ackquacknock township, Hillsboro and Wantage.

FRANK H. MOSER NAMED COAL FREIGHT AGENT

Frank H. Moser has been appointed coal freight agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, with offices at 143 Liberty street, New York. Announcement of the appointment, effective September 1, has just been made by Wm. T. Grier, general traffic manager of the railroad.

Mr. Moser, who was born in Mauch Chunk, Pa., entered the service of the Lehigh Valley in 1909. He became chief clerk to Mr. Grier, who was then coal freight agent and who later became general coal and freight agent. When Mr. Grier was appointed general traffic manager of the Lehigh Valley, Mr. Moser was temporarily placed in charge of coal freight matters and he has now been definitely appointed to the position.

Prior to his railroad service Mr. Moser had been connected with the coal mining industry in several capacities.

HOW TO PERFORM THE AUSTRALIAN CRAWL IS DESCRIBED BY ANNETTE KELLERMANN

World's Most Famous Woman Swimmer and Champion Explains The Greatest of All Strokes For Sprint Racing to Her Plainfield Daily Press Class.

Article No. 25.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

I had intended beginning today a series of five or six articles about diving. But I have changed my mind—not because I am a woman, as some of you may think, but because I have overlooked a stroke of much importance to swimmers and also because I know of several other things you would desire to have me tell you first.

The ignored stroke is the Australian crawl. This stroke was first used in Australia by the Cavills, famous swimmers. I have always been very grateful to the Cavills, for, in a way, they aided me a great deal. It was at Farmer's baths, in Sidney, where I learned to swim and my daily companions were the Cavills. They helped me later on to become the so-called world's champion woman swimmer. I have never claimed this title. I say this so that you will not misconstrue my statement.

I have given up swimming—"professionally," at least for all time, but am still a great admirer of the sport and will always do everything in my power to advance it.

Most of my swimming exhibitions will be given in motion pictures hereafter because the surroundings for this seem to be ideal.

Now as to the "Crawl."

The crawl is a great stroke, for, what is termed sprint racing. It must be developed slowly, for it is only beneficial when the swimmer understands it perfectly.

There is a slight difference between the trudgeon and the crawl. In the crawl a double windmill effect is used. By this I mean that the arms remain away from the body and the head and face must remain straight down in the water, to be turned only when required, for a fresh breath of air. Scooping with a big S is the secret of speed while using the crawl I myself have never used the crawl stroke for the reason that I have never been called upon to use it in any of the competitions I entered.

Nevertheless, it should be learned by all swimmers for it may come in handy sometime. The only difference between the crawl and the trudgeon is this: You use your arms the same way except that you make a wider and deeper sweep of the arms and keep the body well in the water. The wrist plays a very important part in the movement of the arms, because it is bent to aid the scooping movement of the hand. The swing of the arms starts the same as the trudgeon, then as it hits the water twists sideways and downward back as far as possible. The left does the same. This movement must be done regularly and not too quickly. Try this movement out of the water in the usual way. Lie on the piano stool and take the same position as for the trudgeon. Now place both hands on a line with the hip, hands flat and elbows about a foot from the body. If you bend the elbows you will find that the distance from the body will be the same from the elbows to the tip of the fingers. Now swing the arms alternately. Try to imitate a windmill in action. Keep the head and face down straight. You will find this a very strenuous exercise. Keep up this movement until you can do the full swing with ease.

Now as to the leg movement. To tell the truth there is not much of a leg movement to the crawl and I advise you all to keep the legs straight out until you can propel yourselves in the water with the arm movement alone. When you try the crawl in the water be sure to keep the head in the position I have explained to you.

When you have mastered this movement out of the water try it in the water and I feel certain that you will not experience any difficulty in mastering the stroke.

It is rather difficult to teach you the kick used in the crawl and I suggest that after you have mastered the arm movement you should carefully study my instructions and then experiment until you have become accustomed to the movement. The main point is to keep the legs rather limp. Bend them from the knees in an up and down movement, but do not let them come out of the water.

There are many ways of doing the crawl and I advise my pupils to watch close at the pool who know the stroke. In this way it will only take them a short time, with the knowledge they already have to master this stroke.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellerman tells her pupils how to perform "stunts" in the water. This is the beginning of a little series within a series that will bring delight to all beginners and many professional swimmers as well.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Merman Family Have A Court Ball.

She Stole Out of Her Father's Palace.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JUST before bedtime came daddy told Jack and Evelyn about the big ball that the merman family gave down on the bottom of the sea. "This was a much more splendid party than we ever have on earth," he began. "The walls and the ceilings of the great ballroom were of thick but transparent glass. Hundreds of huge mussel shells, rose reds and grass greens, were ranged in order around the sides holding blue lights. These lit up the whole room and shone through the walls, so that the sea outside the palace was quite bright.

"You could see countless fish, great and small, swimming toward the glass walls, some with shining scales of crimson hue, while others were golden.

"In the middle of the room was a broad stream of running water, and on this the mermen and mermaids danced to their own beautiful singing. You children must always remember that no earthly beings have such lovely voices as mermaids have.

"The youngest mermaid of all, who loved land people very dearly, sang more sweetly than all the others, and everybody clapped for her. A moment she felt glad at heart, for she knew she had the finest voice of anybody either on land or sea.

"But she soon began to think about the upper world, and she could not forget the beautiful prince that she had saved from shipwreck; could not cease sorrowing because she had not an immortal soul like his.

"So while the others were singing and dancing she stole out of her father's palace and in the midst of all the joy and merriment sat sadly down in her little garden.

"Suddenly she heard the sound of a horn through the water and thought: 'Now, my prince is sailing up there, he whom I love better than father or mother, he whom my thoughts cling to and into whose hands I have given my happiness. I will dare anything to win him and gain an immortal soul like his. While my sisters are dancing in my father's palace I will go to the sea witch, of whom I have always been deathly afraid. Perhaps she will be able to help me.'

"So the little mermaid left the garden and went toward the roaring whirlpools, at the back of which the sea witch lived. She had never been that way before. Her grandmother had always warned her to keep away when she was a little child, you see, and, since she was old enough to go where she pleased, the place looked too ugly to invite her," daddy finished, with two hugs.

Training a Husband

By MAS EVA LEONARD

The New Southy Home Gives Promise of Comfort to the Overworked Wife

"Gee! Fairport must be a queer place. Look at the dinky little depot," called out Roger Southy, as the train slowed down in front of the dingy red building. The family climbed off the train onto the wooden platform and Marian herded her stock into the waiting room, while Morris went to see if the furniture had arrived. The two weeks' rest at her parents' home had put the jaded woman on her feet again and she was her old cheerful capable self again.

"Yes, the furniture has been here three days," announced Morris brightly. "I have ordered it sent right out to the house. You take the bus right there, and I'll go around to the landlord's and get the key. We can get some beds and a stove up and stay there tonight." He seized the suit cases, and hailed the bus which was just driving away.

Marian looked eagerly out of the window as they drove along to see what kind of a place fate had chosen to deposit her in. The streets were shady and quiet in the blistering afternoon sun. She felt a thrill of pleasure as she noticed how large the yards were and how homey the freshly painted houses looked. For three years she had been cooped up in a small city flat, and the prospect of spreading out and having room to be able to get off to herself if she needed to, seemed heavenly to her. The bus stopped in front of a big white house with a large yard in which the grass had not been cut. The big trees shaded the porches. The children ran about the wide inclosure shouting with delight, while Marian sat on the porch waiting for the key to come.

"Mother, there is a well like the one at grandpa's," shrilled little George in high glee. Everything on grandpa's farm was invested with a sacred charm.

"And there is a place to have a garden," called Roger.

"It is all very lovely here. We shall be happy, I know. Here comes father."

"Well, how do you like it?" asked Morris, fitting the key into the lock and swinging open the hall door. A close, musty smell greeted them.

"I love it." Marian's tone showed her delight.

"I had hoped to get cheaper rent, but this was positively the only thing to be had in this part of town, and it is the only decent residence section.

"Come here," he continued, going to the window. That big house nearest to us is where Parsons, the manager of the Scott-Frazee manufacturing plant lives, and next to that is the home of Dr. Ellson, a fine man. I met him when I was here to clinch the position. Right around the corner from the doctor's are two fine houses. You cannot see them from here. People connected with the Scott-Frazee plant live there, and, come here." He crossed the room to a window looking out over the country. "You see we are practically in the country. That big villa on the hill is where the millionaire Jaynes lives. He owns and operates the beet sugar factory. These two industries are all there is here, practically."

"I am afraid you had to pay a high rent for so fine a place." There was a trace of anxiety in Marian's tone.

"Exactly what we paid for our city flat," answered Morris triumphantly.

Marian smiled her delight. "And the children will have such a fine place to play."

"I hope now that you will see to it that those boys are quiet in the house. Their noise has been enough to drive me wild, especially when I want to study." Morris frowned in memory of the discomfort he had endured.

"There was no place for them to play in the city. I could not have them on the street," responded his wife. "But now in the summer time——"

"Summer and winter," interrupted Morris, "this house must be quiet." A shadow fell over Marian's happy face.

BUFFANCY ACCENTUATES YOUTHFULNESS.

Angel Wing Drapery a Feature of This Gown—Lace and Taffeta Still Popular for Dance Frocks.

By Mary Glynn.

The dance gown of taffeta has had a long existence, and from all appearances it would see mthat it would continue in favor. This, no doubt, is due to the fact that taffeta, if attractively adapted at all, proves very youthful. On the other hand, it is a fact that most of the dance gowns have been developed on such youthful lines that they could not do otherwise than enhance the wearer. Much of the charming effect has been due to the bouffant drapes, the short distended skirt and soft filmy net and lace that has been introduced to finish and trim these garments. One rather distinctive dance gown shown was featured in rose taffeta. The full width of the fabric was cleverly arranged on the shoulders and fell in deep folds, giving the effect of wings. This was distinctively novel. The narrow puffings that topped the tunic was also an interesting feature. A drop skirt of cream shadow lace over a foundation of flesh chiffon afforded a dainty note. Satin slippers in the same tone as the gown, with a button ornament proved very effective with the gown.

NEW FUR NOVELTIES.

Muffs and Collarette Show New and Distinctive Tendencies—The Cape and Stole Continue Popular.

By Mary Glynn.

Even at this early date the high-classed furrier has set forth a number of distinctly novel creations in the way of collarette sets. There are picturesque draped collars joined to rippling capes; there are snug stock collars with huge button fastening and a saucy loop, and each, because of its utter newness, seems smarter than the other. Most of these novelties are developed in the short-haired pelts such as mole, beaver, seal or ermine. Most of these, also, lend themselves admirably to this treatment. The muffs, too, were never so queer and fascinating. Very round ball shapes, not so small as those shown last year—and on each end there are either saucy straight or flaring cuffs. There are some pillow shapes, rather medium-sized, and one that stands out as most attractive—of moleskin—featured a huge butterfly bow on its flat side, and in being fastened on to the muff caused it to sheer a little, lending a very odd effect. The collarette was a fascinating draped scarf which fastened with one huge fur button. Another very novel set is shown in seal fur. The collar was a draped stock effect with a jabot draped in front. It is difficult to describe the smartness and chic of this piece, for the fulness of the jabot fell in deep graceful folds down the front. The muff was not less interesting, for it was made in hour-glass shape; indeed, there was just room for one hand on either side, and the centre measured scarcely two inches broad. This muff hung about the throat with a thick black silk cord. Indeed, this was most essential, for otherwise there was no other way of holding it, for the hand and arm could not be thrust through it, as is done in the case of the conventional muff.

CHURCH A TITLE CONTENDER.

By one avenue of reasoning is it possible to pierce the maze of uncertainty which surrounds the playing of the national tennis championship in singles on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills this week. The clearer vision comes by considering physical fitness for the tournament as a dominating feature of the play this season, and on this basis there is better foundation for comparison between the foremost men than the standard of skill alone. In point of skill there is admittedly an evenness which is puzzling and therefore the tournament will probably turn on the question of condition.

With this in mind an alignment of the men is secured which appears to place George M. Church in the leading position on a pre-tournament forecast. Of course, McLoughlin still remains the x in the equation, for there is no method of determining either his skill or his condition, except in the slight degree that is afforded by practice matches. Among the others, however, Church stands out as the superior when the two factors of skill and condition are considered. His game this season is the strongest that he has ever played and his physical fitness is almost perfection. Such a combination of forces will undoubtedly prove of tremendous strength in this tournament.

Few tennis men, although tennis is a game which requires sustained exertion, give serious consideration to the subject of training. Church is one of the exceptions. As a track athlete at Princeton he learned the full value of strict training and in his tennis career he has followed closely the tutelage of his college days. The result is that he is trained to the minute for the championship both as to physique and skill. He is not overtrained, as may be charged against some of the other men who have been mentioned prominently with regard to the singles title.

Where some of the California group have been playing in every tournament since they first came East, Church has judged his tournament play as related to his fitness and he has competed just enough to bring himself to the top of his skill, and his best condition, for the supreme test of the courts. Many are prone to consider Church as lacking in physique for such continued hard play as is demanded this week, maintaining that his game, which is now strictly Californian, will sap his power. However, his tournament work thus far has failed to show any perceptible weakness.—New York Times.

HORNSBY AND SISLER.

St. Louis, besides being the hottest place in the world where they play baseball, can claim one more distinction. Included in the ranks of her two major league baseball clubs are two of the game's most brilliant and versatile performers.

With George Sisler outclassing all rivals as a utility man in the American League, his fellow citizen, Roger Hornsby, of the Cardinals, leads all opposition in the National organization.

Hornsby, who is playing his first year as a big leaguer, has played all four positions in the infield and has done mighty well at it. Of late he has been prancing around first base, but he has done most of his playing at third base and shortstop. He is said to be some shucks as a catcher, too, but so far there has been no need for him to don the wind-pad and mask.

Sisler, besides being a star performer at first base, is a great outfielder, and can pitch a bangup game. His fork-hand style of throwing the ball handicaps him some as an infielder, but a short time ago he went to third when Jimmy Austin was laid up and turned in a perfect fielding day. Sisler, a college product, never played a minor league game. He is spending his second season in the big show.

"OFF AGIN—ON AGIN."

Al Mamaux is in a Pirate uniform again. His pay starts anew and the incident of his suspension and announcement of quitting the team is closed, for the time being, at least. Mamaux and Callahan had a conference at the William Penn Hotel, at which time a flag of truce was run up by both sides, concessions were made, and Al is happy again, while Callahan is pleased. The Mamaux suspension has taught Al a valuable lesson and it has also shown the Pirate management that a "bonehead" play was made in ordering the star hurler out of commission. There have been tough conditions on Pittsburgh ball clubs in the past, and fines have been levied many a time, but the precedent of having Mamaux as the first man ever suspended by a Pittsburgh club was not just the proper procedure to follow to straighten Al out. The Pittsburgh club has pulled several bad mistakes this year, but with a real attempt now to settle down to the regular course, some of the ill feeling can be eliminated. Before yesterday's game a meeting, just an informal affair, followed a talk in the clubhouse at noon. It was one of those heart-to-heart affairs, and served to straighten out some of the unpleasantness that has existed on the club for some time. Now, if the club officials decide that the public is entitled to an even break, the season can be wound up with a good feeling existing, which does not exist at the present time.

KRAMER SAID THIS.

"I was whipsawed from every angle," said Kramer after the race. "With Dupuy following McNamara and protecting him from the rear I did not have a chance in a short sprint, and with Bob Spears tacked on behind me I did not have a chance to win in a long sprint, for had I sprinted a lap or a lap and a half and gotten to the front Spears would have beaten me."

JOE BUSH, PITCHER.

"Bullet Joe" Bush, of the Philadelphia Athletics, is now qualified to take his place with the no-hit, no-run class. Joe, who has won fifty per cent. of the victories credited this season to the Mackmen, had his dream come true Saturday against Cleveland. Joe might have entered the more select circle of no-hit, no-run, no-player-reaching-first-base class, but he didn't warm up enough before the game or else the platter was a little wobbly at the start. As a result, Joe passed Graney, the first batter up. Then the next twenty-seven batters walked up to the plate and returned to the bench in Indian file. There was no question about Joe's feat, because the Mackmen didn't make an error during the game, which Philadelphia won, 5 to 0. Bush was elated over the achievement and took off his cap and cheered with the others at the conclusion of the game. Last season Rube Marquard, then with the Giants, and Jimmy Lavender, of the Cubs, were the only major league hurlers to accomplish this feat.—Newark News.

M'MAHON'S STARS CONTINUE TO SHINE

All Efforts to Stop Dunellen Juvenile "Speed" Kings Fail.

That Dunellen is full of "stars" is readily evinced by the fact that each week-end witnesses a battle between McMahon's "stellar" talent and someone elses' luminaries. This week McMahon's "men" captured a 10 to 9 tussle with Waldron's "stars," six runs in the eighth frame being directly responsible for Mac's victory.

TOMMY MULLIN MAY PERFORM AT HOME

North Avenue Lad May Get Chance to Demonstrate Ability Here.

The following clipping explains why Tommy Mullin is performing "at home:"

"There will be no game at Amusement Park tomorrow afternoon. Bill Browne and his Rahwegians pulled an eleventh-hour cancellation and the result is that the game scheduled for tomorrow between Amboy and Rahway will not be played; in fact the entire Rahway series has been declared off.

The cancellation is a keen disappointment to the Amboy team and is felt most severely by Billy Pfau, who has been managing the park all season. Rahway has several reasons for terminating the series, one of which is a report that has been circulated in Rahway that the games have been poorly patronized in Amboy this season, which would prohibit Rahway from bringing down a high priced team with which to battle Amboy.

According to the management of the Rahway team a certain individual from Perth Amboy took the trouble to go to Rahway two weeks ago and waited two hours for Manager Bill Browne to tell him of conditions in Amboy. This person is not interested financially in either the Rahway or Perth Amboy teams, and his trip to Rahway was one of petty jealousy. Pfau declares if he enjoys any revenge due to the cancellation of the Rahway series Billy Pfau declares he can gloat while the gloating is good."

REGULATIONS FOR MIGRATORY-BIRD SEASON CAUSE CONSIDERABLE CONFUSION TO GUNNERS

Opening Date Fixed By Federal and State Laws—Season Should Be Big One—Part New Jersey Plays—No Doubt 1917 Legislature Will Act.

The new regulations for the enforcement of the migratory bird law were approved by the President August 21, 1916, and became effective on and after that date. The schedule printed below shows the open seasons, when hunting the birds named is permitted under these regulations. Hunting at other seasons is prohibited. Hunters, however, should consult the State laws, as the Federal regulations will not be construed to authorize hunting within a closed period prescribed by the State occurring within the open season under the Federal regulations.

Shooting is prohibited between sunset and sunrise in both zones. Insectivorous birds are protected indefinitely in both zones and no open season is allowed. Band-tailed pigeons, cranes, wood ducks, swans, curlew, willet, upland plover and smaller shore birds are protected everywhere until September 1, 1918.

Waterfowl (except swans and wood ducks), coots, gallinules and jacksnipes—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York (except Long Island), Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, September 16 to December 31; Rhode Island, Connecticut, Long Island, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Utah, October 1 to January 15; Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Idaho, Wyoming and Colorado, September 7 to December 20.

Rails (except coots and gallinules)—September 1 to November 30; Vermont, closed until September 1, 1918.

Black breasted and golden plover and greater and lesser yellowlegs—Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York (including Long Island), and New Jersey, August 16 to November 30; Vermont, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Nevada, September 1 to December 15; Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Wyoming, September 7 to December 20; Washington and Oregon, October 1 to December 15; Utah closed until September 1, 1918.

Considerable confusion has been caused by a misunderstanding by some gunners as to the opening date of the snipe season in New Jersey. When the Department of Agriculture announced the several changes that it contemplated in the migratory bird law they were set forth in the newspapers. The readers were posted so that the signing of the new regulations by President Wilson did not confuse them, but others went to the meadows to shoot, where they were stopped, as the State law sets September 1 as the opening of the season, although the Federal law opens the season on August 16 at sunrise. In all cases where the two dates differ the latest one, whether or not it be the Federal law, is the official opening day. In New Jersey the State law takes precedence, and no shooting of black breasted plover, greater or lesser yellowlegs or jacksnipe or Wilson snipe is permitted until September 1. No doubt the State law will be changed by the 1917 Legislature so as to end the confusion.

By Peter P. Carney.

The idea of having trap shooting schools at resorts is proving a success. There are now two prominent schools, one at Venice, California, an amusement place near Los Angeles, and another on the Million Dollar Pier, Atlantic City, N. J.

The gallery of the Venice school is located at the end of the pier and is 50 yards long. At the farther end of it is set up a high wooden shot step, 20 feet high. A fish net slopes down from its top to the floor of the pier at a gentle incline to catch the clay birds which are not injured by the shots.

The school at Atlantic City is fully equipped, and consists of one ideal Legget and one Western McCrea automatic trap. Standard targets are used, and twenty gauge guns of practically every make are on hand. The targets are thrown about forty yards, and the Atlantic Ocean is the background.

Such schools provide a place where the thousands and thousands of gun sports can engage in their favorite sport while on a leisure trip. Then also it is a place where one can be taught the proper care and use of firearms, as well as how to shoot, without any cost attached.

With the success the above are having, it would seem that trap shooting, not necessarily schools, would be a good attraction for parks to add to their outfits.

A park is a place where man and family goes to be "out in the open." While it must have natural advantages, it must also have clean, clever and amusing attractions. Of course, some days must be dark and dreary, and some attractions installed that will take care of those in the park on rainy days or nights. However, the majority of them should be outdoors. Athletic fields, boating and bathing add greatly to a park's attractiveness. Yet many parks have parts which are unused or little frequented which could be fenced in for trap shooting.

This attraction could be let to a concessionaire on a similar basis as other attractions, or some arrangement could be made with a local club for its use. During the season such an arrangement would bring many devotees of this alluring sport daily to the park, while tournaments between the local and neighboring clubs could undoubtedly be arranged. Moreover, a shotgun shooting gallery could create new devotees of the sport, working not only to the advantage of the park, but to the local gun club as well.

It may be too late for park proprietors to consider this matter this summer, but with the daily increasing interest in the sport it looks like a "good buy" for the owners for the coming year.

T. A. B. S. WANTS TWO GAMES ON LABOR DAY

Manager James Scott, of the T. A. B. S., is anxious to book two games for Labor Day, and would be glad to hear from managers who would like to arrange either for a single congle or a double-header. The T. A. B. S. are now playing fast ball and no doubt there are some teams in this vicinity who would like to meet them on the diamond.

DUNELLEN WILL MEET ROYAL GIANTS SATURDAY

One of the big baseball attractions here this season will be the game between the Clinton Avenue or Dunellen team and the Royal Giants, which is scheduled to be played at Dunellen Saturday afternoon. Manager Tom Apgar, of the Dunellen team, received word yesterday from the Royal Giants that the latter would "pad to the limit" for the coming contest, and would have a star battery in the points.

"Warry" McLaughlin will be on the mound for Dunellen, and his many friends believe that he can hold the opposing aggregation and bring victory to his team. Arrangements has been made to have Britt Martin umpire the contest, which promises to be one of the best of the season.

GENERAL CONVENTION OF EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Forty-fourth Annual Session to Be Held In St. Louis, Beginning October 11.

The forty-fourth triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church will be held this year in St. Louis, opening Wednesday, October 11. This is the first time in its history that this gathering has been held west of the Mississippi. An outstanding feature of the this convention will be the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the election to the Episcopate of Bishop Tuttle, of Missouri, the oldest bishop of the American church.

Each of the sixty-eight dioceses has already elected four clerical and four lay deputies; the twenty-three missionary districts have chosen their one lay and one clerical deputy, and the ten foreign jurisdictions will each have a representative. In addition to these 600 clerical and lay deputies 122 bishops will be present.

The convention sits as two houses, the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies, each having a veto upon the other. Its primary object is to make laws for the Protestant Episcopal church. Legislation takes the form of canons, which are operative at once, and the amendments of the constitution, which require action by two successive conventions. The House of Bishops fills vacancies in the missionary episcopate with the concurrence of the lower house.

In the House of Deputies there are fourteen standing committees, appointed by the president. There are also ten committees or commissions of the House of Bishops. In addition the joint commissions and deputies of the two houses number thirty-six.

Among the important subjects now under consideration by these bodies are "The Relation of the Episcopal Church to Other Christian Communions," "Revision and Enrichment of the Prayer Book," "Christian Education," the "The Divorce Problem," "Missionary Organization," "The Election of a Bishop for Negroes in the United States," and an adequate pension system for the clergy.

Both houses of the convention will meet in the Moohlah Temple, the sessions of the House of Deputies being open to the public. For the past few years there has been a growing agitation against the exclusion of the press and public from the sessions of the House of Bishops. A proposal to throw open the proceedings was defeated by a very narrow majority at the last general convention in New York, but there is every reason to believe that it will be successful this year.

Oddities In the News

Freight engine and seventeen cars jumped the track in Wisconsin, ran fifty feet and jumped on again.

Four baseball teams have been organized among the inmates of the Essex county (N. J.) penitentiary.

Husband of Stockton (Cal.) woman belongs to so many lodges he can't support her, so court gave her a divorce.

Freak bet made by stranger caused run on East St. Louis bank, but a million dollars piled high on counter stopped it.

"Pier post" Chicago man grasped to aid him in getting to surface after dive was leg of girl bather, but his explanation cleared him in court.

Sure cure for fat is advanced by a St. Paul tramp. Lock yourself in a freight car for a week, he says, and live on water and shelled corn.

Catfish that can't submerge caught in North Carolina. It had gorged on wheat grains washed away in flood, and the grain swelled so it couldn't digest them.

Girl students taking the domestic science course in the Kansas State Agricultural college now wear pedometers to find out how many steps it takes to prepare a meal.

Wild man who "eats 'em alive," after eating snakes all day at Elwood (Ind.) fair, seriously injured his employers because they refused him a square meal at a restaurant.

MILLIONS ADDED BY WAR TO OUR HOARD OF GOLD

Within $50,000,000 of Total Supply of England, France, Russia and Germany.

The Mechanics and Metals National bank of New York, commenting in its monthly circular on the shifting of financial strength from Europe to the United States, says that, while two years ago the four great central banks of Europe—the Bank of England, Bank of France, Bank of Germany and Bank of Russia—held $680,000,000 more gold than was possessed in this country, today the gold supply of the United States is within $50,000,000 of the combined holdings of the four central reservoirs of Europe.

The change that has come about is little short of wonderful, the circular adds, and by reason of that change the United States among the industrial nations is the most favorably situated, with the greatest accumulation of gold. Thirty per cent of the whole world's monetary stock of the metal is held within the borders of the United States instead of 22 per cent, as was reckoned in 1914. Such is the situation today, notwithstanding that during the interval of the war three of the great banks mentioned have used every means in their power to build up their reserves and have drawn to themselves virtually all but the deliberately hoarded gold in the countries they serve. In contrast with this the banks of the United States have not only refrained from seeking gold, but have actually considered means of stemming its flow into the country. Yet this is the way the supply of the United States has increased:

Aug. 1, 1914	$1,887,000,000
Aug. 1, 1915	2,005,000,000
Aug. 20, 1916	2,550,000,000

In so short a space of time as two years we have added to our gold supply the sum of more than $600,000,000. The central banks of the four great nations at war have meanwhile taken in sufficient gold only to offset outgo and to increase their combined supply by a net amount of $30,000,000. This is the manner in which the aggregate gold holdings of the Bank of England, Bank of France, Bank of Germany and Bank of Russia have changed:

Aug. 1, 1914	$2,570,000,000
Aug. 1, 1915	2,500,000,000
Aug. 20, 1916	2,600,000,000

By contrast with these achievements the circular recalls that on the outbreak of the war it was freely predicted that Europe would throw her American securities on the New York market in a volume too great to be absorbed and that our gold would be drained away and our currency system dislocated.

ARGENTINE COAL $40 A TON.

Unusually Cold Weather Brings Suffering In Buenos Aires.

Passengers who arrived in New York from Buenos Aires said that the Argentine was experiencing the coldest winter in twenty-five years.

Theodore Ricksher asserted that the temperature had not gone above 25 degrees above zero for days at a time. The price of coal, he said, had risen to $40 a ton in Buenos Aires, and the landlords of the apartment houses refused to turn on the steam heat. Only two of the best hotels in the city made any attempt to warm their rooms or restaurants during the winter. People sat in their rooms with furs or blankets around them. Business conditions in the Argentine were not good, he said.

Berlin Is Now Kitchener.

An order in council was passed at Toronto changing the name of Berlin, Ont., to Kitchener. The town has about 10,000 inhabitants and was settled by German immigrants, whose descendants form an important part of the population.

HEATH BYFORD WINS.

Heath P. Byford, of Chicago, won the Wisconsin State tennis championship in the singles yesterday by defeating W. B. Weller, of Milwaukee, 7—9, 3—6, 6—0, 6—0, 7—5. This makes the third time Byford has captured the championship title

The John Wanamaker Store

Two Days More of the August Furniture Sale With Odd Pieces and Suits

REDUCED TO HALF

Most people understand the reason for the half price at the close of the Sale.

When one person buys the dressing table out of a bedroom suit and another buys the bureau, some other persons are likely to get the beds for less than it costs to make them.

It is easy to understand, also, that four weeks of selling such as no store has ever known, are bound to leave the greatest stock in a somewhat "up and down" condition. Now we must have the "ups" brought down and the "downs" brought up. For instance, in every case in which we have more of certain styles than we need in comparison with other styles, we have cut the prices in half, so as to restore the uniformity of the stock.

There are hundreds of pieces; the opportunities are wonderful.

Two Days More

Tomorrow and Thursday—

Then, the library table which you may now buy for $62.50 will go back to its regular price—$125; the cosey cushioned chair now $23 will be $35; the pretty bedroom suit now $1,549 will be $2,323; the dining-room table now $63 will be $70.

These two days are the time to buy what you need now or are going to need any time during the winter.

Friday Will Be Too Late for You to Avail Yourself of August Prices

It is all Wanamaker furniture, sound, serviceable, warranted.

These Are All at Half the Price

(NOTE—The regular prices are double the prices quoted.)

Bedding

Two days more to buy our $20 grade mixed hair mattress for $15; our $22 grade for $17.50; our $30 grade for $25; our $38 pure horsehair mattress for $32; and our $50 grade—best grade we sell—for $40.

Two days more to buy a Sealy cotton mattress for $20. Friday the price goes up to $25.

PENNANT FOR SPOKANE.

Spokane has clinched the Northwestern League pannant, it was announced today, by winning yesterday from Tacoma. Should Spokane lose all remaining games its percentage would be .567, as against .563 for Butte if the Montanians win all the remaining games.

The other teams have ceased to be championship contenders.

Porto Rico's Sarsaparilla.

Sarsaparilla grows all over the island of Porto Rico. It is in common use, and "jibaros" peddling it in small bundles are to be seen constantly. It is used all over the island for medicinal purposes, brewed in the form of various teas and other decoctions and also steeped in rum.

Tilefish.

Tilefish are known scientifically as chameleon, so dubbed after the African lizard which they resemble. They are handsomely colored, marked with yellow spots and crested. Some live almost at the surface, but they usually are found in depths of sixty to 250 fathoms.

Navesink Light.

The electric light at Navesink, on the highlands just outside of New York harbor, is the most powerful in the United States. This light shows each five seconds a flash of one-tenth second duration, estimated at 25,000,000 candle power.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Milk In the Home.

Good milk is a health producer. Bad milk makes stomach trouble and breeds disease.

The three "C's" for the proper care of milk in the home, according to the dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture, are:

Keep milk clean, cold, covered!

Milk is a highly perishable food, and the length of time it will remain sweet and safe, especially for children, depends, the specialists say, almost entirely upon the constant care it receives from cow to consumer. Milk passes through three agencies—the producer, the dealer and the consumer. If the first two have done their part, clean, safe milk will be delivered, thoroughly chilled, to the consumer. The consumer's responsibility begins the moment the milk is delivered at his doorstep.

The power of the press can be applied to any business by using good Printing.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

Press' printing is the result of ceaseless efforts to render the best service.

FOOTBALL WEATHER REVIVES COLLEGIANS

Captain Frank Trevor Hogg, II., of the 1916 Princeton football team, has called his fellow gridiron warriors to report for duty September 12, and from present indications one hundred men will respond to the call. At first glance Captain Hogg and the coaches will face a big job this year in their efforts to mold a winning team, but, while the available material is of questionable merit, the coaching staff is recognized as the most expert Princeton has had in many years, and all Princeton has given it full confidence.

Eleven first string men, all of whom were awarded the 'varsity letter, have been lost from last year's team, but a number of substitutes were of talent equally as good as the first choices. Candidates from last year's freshman class hold fair promise, and should respond to 'varsity coaching.

In particular the weakest points in the embryo eleven, as evidenced at this early stage are quarterback, the ends and the tackles. The positions of greatest strength should be the halfbacks and fullback, for which there are a number of candidates of almost equal merit. At the guard positions Captain Hogg and Nourse will doubtless retain their posts and add strength to the vital part of the Tiger machine.

Although the university has delayed its opening until October 10, in order to obviate any danger from infantile paralysis, it is expected that the football plans will progress according to schedule. It is assured that the practice will open September 12, and it is likely that the first game with Holy Cross on September 30 will be taken care of. There is a game with North Carolina University scheduled for October 7, and by the time the students have returned the season will be well under way.

It is too early to predict what effect the six months' lapse since spring practice will have on the Tiger footballers. At quarterback Amos Haas, Eberstadt and Eddy are looked upon as semi-veterans, and six or seven new men will be groomed as future possibilities. For the other backfield positions Driggs, Tibbott, Moore and possibly Eddy are available for continuous 'varsity work throughout the season. Alan Brown, 1917, is likely to break into the combination, and Thomas and Goodspeed, both 1918, and E. A. Georgi and Richard Cleveland, son of the late President, two of last year's freshman eleven, have all shown ability.

With the possible exception of Highley there seems to be no stellar material for the wing positions. Wilson and Rahill are leading candidates, and others who will have strenuous workouts early in the season are Gillespie, Foster, Walton, Hammond and Sinclaire. At the tackles McLean and Parisette will be called upon to defend their positions against all comers, and they may have a heavy task on their shoulders. Halsey, Latrobe and Kauffman should give them stiff competition. Warden, Bryan, Finney and Ruth will be coached further for service in the guard position, on the assumption that Captain Hogg and Nourse will be fit throughout the season.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

1ST WARD CLUB HAS NO CHOICE

Fails to Indorse Either Edgar or Cutter For Council.

MEETING IS LIVELY ONE

Organization Strong For Edgar, But No License Men Have Enough to Block Its Plans—Thanks to Mr. Edgar.

Last night's meeting of the First Ward Republican Club adjourned without indorsing either of two candidates that have been announced for the Republican nomination for Council, and the names of Fred S. Cutter and A. D. Edgar will go before voters in the primaries without further expression from the organiation.

The action was proclaimed a victory by the Cutter men. Led by Freeholder James F. Buckle, Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, Councilman Sminck and other organization men the Edgar followers made a spirited fight to force his indorsement. President Hetfield cleverly prevented a record vote when he ignored a motion to indorse Mr. Edgar and sounded the crowd of almost sixty men by asking how many favored an indorsement of either candidate. The vote stood 27 to 21 against an indorsement.

Mr. Cutter attended the meeting, but Mr. Edgar was not preseent.

J. S. Allen, a member of the committee of five appointed at the last meeting of the club to find a candidate or candidates for Councilman, read a report in which he said that Mr. Edgar and Mr. Cutter were both seeking the Republican nomination. The report did not recommend an indorsement of either candidate, although it developed later that four members of the committee favored Edgar, while only one was for Mr. Cutter.

Freeholder Buckle then moved that "in consideration of his past services and known ability, the club indorse the candidacy of Mr. Edgar for the nomination."

George M. Rittenhous opposed this. He said it had been positively stated at the last meeting that Mr. Edgar would not run again and that, acting upon this belief, he and other voters had persuaded Mr. Cutter to enter the race. Mr. Rittenhouse said he had in his pocket a petition signed by more than 100 representative Republicans of the First ward, urging the candidacy of Mr. Cutter, and that a large representation in the ward favored Mr. Cutter, and that it would be unfair to them to force an indorsement of Edgar. He appealed to the intelligence and fairness of the club to refer the whole matter to the primaries for settlement.

Daniel R. McCormick insisted on the Edgar indorsement. He said that he had known Mr. Cutter for years and that nothing could be said against him, but that Mr. Edgar had proven himself to be a man who stood to the wheel, and while he had not attended all meetings of the Council, he had attended all committee meetings and had done yeoman service there.

Freeholder Buckle wondered when Mr. Cutter had been converted to the Republican faith. He said he thought the man was a Democrat. "For twenty-five years this club has met, and the organization has put out good men for office," he said. "You no-license men ought not to interfere with the Republican organization, dragging a little thing like this into an important campaign. If you want no license you ought to form a party and fight it out."

"I was a Democrat once," volunteered Mr. Cutter from his seat in the back. "But Bryan dominated the party and I couldn't stand for it." Since then I have voted the Republican ticket."

A tribute to the character and ability of Councilman Edgar was paid by his colleague, Mr. Sminck, who said that he always found Mr. Edgar's judgment unerring in municipal affairs. He then launched into a defence of the saloons as operated in Plainfield. Six councilmen pledged to no-license will not make Plainfield dry, said Mr. Sminck, because they cannot control the club licenses, and to vote to close the saloons will be to transfer the power of granting licenses from North avenue to Elizabeth. The First ward is now dry from Watchung avenue to Terrill road, he said, but if the saloons are closed it will soon be full of "speakeasies." As proof of his statement that "speakeasies" spring up in every prohibition town he said there were now forty or fifty in operation in Asbury Park.

Biederwolf's booze sermon was unanswerable, said the Councilman, but he believed that there were more people in Plainfield who wanted saloons than who wanted prohibition. Prohibition breeds contempt for the law, he said. "You cannot inculcate respect for the law if you make it criminal for a man to drink a glass of beer in one place and lawful to do it in another." He insisted it was far better for the city of Plainfield to continue the saloons on the present license basis than to try prohibition.

Forty-five years ago there were eighteen saloons in Plainfield when it only had 7,000 people, said Freeholder Buckle, and since then there

LOIZEAUX TO RUN AGAINST HAMILTON

Consents to Become No License Candidate In Second Ward.

Charles E. Loizeaux, of Hillside avenue, last night consented to run for the Common Council as a Republican in the Second ward and he will oppose Councilman Christie P. Hamilton in the primary. A delegation of citizens called on Mr. Loizeaux last night and convinced hi mof the need of representation for the no-license element from the Second ward. He is opposed to the renewal of saloon licenses.

Mr. Loizeaux is treasurer and manager of the Loizeaux Lumber Company, one of the biggest industries in Plainfield, and is among the leaders of the younger business men of the city. He has always been allied with the Republican party.

This give the no-license people a candidate in every ward in the city excepting the Fourth. In the First the race will be between Councilman Edgar and Fred S. Cutter, in the Second between Charles E. Loizeaux and Councilman Hamilton, and in the Third ward the prohibitionists have the only candidate. There is no longer a possibility that Councilman Cox will seek re-election. He was wired a week ago asking his intention and has not yet answered the telegram. So far no opposition to Councilman Blatz in the Fourth ward has developed.

MOOSE TO SUPPORT PROGRESSIVE MEN

Leaders Are Planning to Take Active Part In Union County Campaign.

Quietly but effectively the Progressives of Union county are marshaling their forces for the coming campaign. Within the past month several conferences have been held by the leaders, and while there is likely to be no Progressive ticket in the county this year, the party will make an attempt to make its influence felt by the endorsement of candidates of the other parties who are believed to measure up to Progressive standards. It is quite likely that a meeting of the Progressives of the county will be held before the primaries and plans laid for the participation by the Progressives in the Republican primaries.

The Progressives of the county are a unit in desiring to continue their party organization. The county committee will continue an active body and the party will endeavor to strengthen its organization so that its influence may be greater. For the particular purpose of voting in the Republican primaries this year, scores of Progressives in the county failed to vote in the Progressive box last year.

According to the present plans the Progressives will start out with as much vim and ginger this year as though they had a ticket of their own to work for. It is planned to start the ball rolling with a dinner, to be held in Elizabeth. After that a regular plan of campaign will be followed.

Thus far talk of candidates who are satisactory to the party has been of a more or less casual nature. There has been no real effort to select a ticket, but it is certain from opinions already expressed that opposition will be shown to Congressman Capstick. It seems quite likely that the indorsement in the Congressional race will go to Fowler.

Frelinghuysen is almost certain to be indorsed, as is Colonel Colgate for Governor. It is not likely that any stand will be taken on the Presidency, although most of the Progressives are believed to be for Hughes.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Plainfield members of the Past Chiefs' Association of District No. 10, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will attend a district meeting to be held in New Brunswick tonight. The district comprises Springfield, Somerville and New Brunswick. The Plainfielders will leave here on the 7:15 trolley this evening.

SPICER CLUB DANCE.

The Spicer Club will give a dance Friday night in Nonpareil Hall, John Arms being chairman of the general committee. Music will be furnished by Vaughan & Hooper's orchestra.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

MANY TROOPERS MAY COME HOME

Nine Non-Commissioned Officers Expect Discharges This Week.

GET FAVORABLE NEWS

All Have Applied For Release On Dependency Order—Bird Left Last Night—Calder Recovers From Operation.

(By James J. McNamee.)

Douglas, Arizona, Aug. 30.—If all of the discharges that are expected in Troop D arrive this week there will be promotions for nine Plainfielders. First Sergeant Brown Rolston, Sergeant A. W. Andrews, Quartermaster Sergeant Sherman B. Joost, Sergeant Donald A. McGee, Corporal James H. Brewster, Jr., Corporal William B. Tyler, Corporal Maxwell E. Perkins and Mess Sergeant J. Hartley Mellick have all made applications for discharge under the dependency order, and all have been given to understand that they are to be turned loose within a short time. They expect to be on their way home before the end of the present week.

Trooper Richard Bird left last night. His application for a discharge on grounds of dependency was not acted on, owing to illness.

Trooper John Calder has recovered from an operation on the stomach. He will remain with the troop, it is said.

Trooper Harry Wildey, of Troop C, left last night for home. He will start a moving picture show in Plainfield, he announced before he left, and will attempt to secure Henry Bryniarski's films of Troop D for exhibition at once.

Serious objection to the discharge of so many non-commissioned officers of Troop D on the part of officers here has resulted in their applications being held up for weeks. The non-coms named above were among the first to ask that they be allowed to go home to the support of their families, but it was not until this week that they received any favorable news from headquarters. Even now they are not assured that any of the applications have been granted.

"DOLLAR DAY" PROVES TO BE BIG SUCCESS

Merchants Report Business As Great As During Christmas Holidays.

Plainfield is today observing its annual "Dollar Day," and the event is the most successful of its kind ever held in this city. Throughout the day incoming trains and trolleys brought shoppers from all over this section of the State to this city, and Front street and the side avenues were lined with wagons and automobiles.

Merchants reported during the day that the rush has been as great as that around Christmas holidays, and at all of the stores on Front street it was said the crowds began to gather as early as 8 o'clock. The extraordinary bargains offered at the various stores were early sold out and had to be replaced from the regular stock. Business is still at its heighth and will likely continue right up to closing time.

GEORGE KEENE TO LECTURE.

George A. Keene, of this city, former editor physical culture department of Health Magazine, of New York, will lecture before members of Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. C. S. Fraternity of the World, at their regular meeting tomorrow evening in the "Frat" rooms in the Frost building. Mr. Keene will outline the strength development system, a strong physique, free from weak nerves, muscles and organs. All members are requested to be present and bring their friends.

ROUMANIANS WIN IN FIRST BATTLE

Force Austrians to Retire On Mountain Frontier, Says London.

London, Aug. 30.—Roumanian troops already have forced the Austrians to retire on the mountain frontier between the two nations, according to an official admission from Vienna.

Meanwhile Austrian monitors and batteries have bombarded the Roumanian town of Verdirova at the iron gates, Turnu and Severin, a little lower down the Danube, and also Giurgevo, where the ferryboat crosses from Rustchuk, on the principal routes from Sofia to Bucharest. These towns all possess artillery defences.

The Roumanians are now attacking the Austrians along a 375-mile front, and it is apparent that the invasion of Hungary is well under way.

Paris, Aug. 30.A rumor circulated via Spain says the King of Bavaria is dead. The Pope has ordered the Bishop of Munich to offer prayers.

THREE MORE PLAGUE CASES IN VICINITY

Fanwood Township Finds Two Cases of Paralysis and Dunellen One.

Although no cases of infantile paralysis were discovered in Plainfield today, three cases of the plague were reported from neighboring towns. Fanwood township has two cases that have been under observation for several days, while Dunellen's health officials found one at a late hour today.

Fanwood township's most serious case is that of Mary Sicora, the five-year-old daughter of Frank Sicora, of Terril road. Dr. Ray Munger made an injection of serum yesterday afternoon, but the child shows little improvement. The other case is that of the two and a half-year-old son of George Wahl, Jr., of Park avenue. The youngster has a light attack of the plague, and is being attended by Dr. Munger.

Dunellen's case was found When Dr. Longbottom discovered that Ralph Clark, the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark, had an attack of the plague. The child lives at 225 Grove street, and all necessary quarantine precauions have already been enforced.

BOARD OF HEALTH OPENS ISOLATION HOSPITAL WARD

After making repairs to the building, the Plainfield Board of Health has opened the isolation hospital on Rock avenue as part of the plan to combat infantile paralysis. Harry Feldman, the last infant to contract the plague, and Edward Johnson, have been removed to the hospital. The plague seems to have reached its heighth in this city and is now on the decrease.

Plainfield will not help build an isolation hospital at Eliabeth for the use of the county and it is doubtful if one is to be built at all now, because the Board of Freeholders have no funds for the purpose. Plainfield will be able to take care of all its plague patients in the local ward unless there is a big jump in cases again.

AUXILIARY IS NAMED.

Local men who have been appointed on the national and auxiliary committee in the Democratic campaign are: Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, Seymour Perkins, James J. McCann, Bart K. Davis, William L. Saunders, Le Roy Ellis and Alvin E. Hoagland.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 3 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town. INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

GO TO NEWARK FOR DECORATORS

Marshal Lunger Surprised At Action of Local Merchants.

READY FOR BIG PARADE

To Form On West Front Street and March Promptly at 10 a. m.—Prizes Offered For Best Looking Body and Float.

The big parade of Union Labor in Plainfield on Monday, September 4, will move promptly at 10 a. m. Final details of the Labor Day celebation here were decided at a meeting of the committee from the Allied Trades Council, held last night.

Grand Marshal Lunger announces that all unions, floats and other bodies must be ready to march at 10 a. m., for at that hour he will give the command to move. The line of march, as revised last night, follows:

Form on West Front street, thence to Grove street to Park place, thence to Somerset street, to Front street, down Front to Park and thence on Park avenue to Crescent avenue. The parade will move on Crescent avenue so as to turn back into Eighth street, thence to Central avenue, to Third street, to Grant avenue and along Grant to Front street. The parade will move to East Front street and thence to Leland avenue, where it will disband. It will take about one hour and forty-five minutes to cover the line of march.

A. E. Force will give a handsome prize to the body that makes the best showing in the parade, and Samuel Rothberg will give a prize to the best looking float.

The only note of dissatisfaction that has arisen over arrangements for the Labor Day celebration was heard this morning. Grand Marshal Lunger has learned that a firm of Newark decorators is busy putting up flags and bunting for local people.

"I am surprised that Plainfield business men should go out of this city to employ decorators," he said. "We have men in Plainfield who could do the work just as well, and they are entitled to consideration."

Marshal Lunger extended an eleventh-hour invitation to all organizations that have not yet made arrangements to march in the parade. He said they would be given a place in the line if they would let him know at once.

CALDER RECOVERING FROM OPERATION

Plainfielder With Troop D Is a Patient In Hospital at Douglas, Arizona.

John Calder, of 24 Stone sreet, one of the Plainfield boys with Troop D on the Mexican border, is in the base nospital at Douglas, Ariz., where he is recovering from an operation performed on him for intestinal trouble on August 18. This information was received by Captain Charles Peterson, of Company K, a cousin of Calder, in a letter from Captain Albert Borden today, written in response to a telegram from the local militiaman.

Captain Borden said that when the head army surgeon at the hospital operated on the boy he expressed surprise that he had been able to live. Calder was operated on at Muhlenberg hospital several years ago for the same trouble, but this time the surgeons say he has been permanently relievd. On the day of his operation Calder wrote a cheerful letter home.

Owing to his illness of the past month before he would give in to an operation he was discharged from the troop for disability, but he was then willing to have the operation in the hope of improving and staying with the rest of the boys. He is only nineteen years old, and was transferred to the troop from Company K. Captain Borden said that he was of the opinion that as soon as he recovers from the effects of the operation he will be ready for active duty again.

HENRY SLOAN JOHNSON.

Henry Sloan Johnson, colored, died yesterday after a long illness at his home at 511 East Tihrd street. He was middle aged and had lived in this city for some time. A wife survives him. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow at 2:30, with the Rev. John W. Collier in charge. Interment will be made in Hillside.

PREMIUM LISTS OUT.

Copies of the premium list for the dog show to be held by the Plainfield Kennel Club have been received in this city and indicate that there will be an unusual number of entries received. The various prizes will be made known tomorrow, when it is expected the work of tabulating the entries will be strated.

FOUR BROTHERHOOD LEADERS ARE TOLD CONGRESS WILL FIND WAY TO PREVENT STRIKE

N. J. CENTRAL WILL CARE FOR ITS COMMUTERS.

William G. Besler, president of the Central Railroad road of New Jersey, was asked last night what preparations his railroad had made to operate trains in the event of a strike, and what proportion of the men could be counted on to remain loyal.

"All I can say," replied Mr. Bessler, "is that we are fully prepared to cope with the situation. We are in such shape that if the strike comes, our troubles will be practically over, while theirs—the men—will be just begun.

"It might be harmful to our plans if any of the details should be disclosed at this time. I cannot say how many trains we will operate, or how many men will be available to take the place of those who leave, but I can say we believe no details have been overlooked in preparing to serve the public during the strike as nearly as possible with the same efficiency we are serving it now"

TOMMY MUIR HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Minstrel Show Given In His Honor By Campers at Lake Hopatcong.

Under the management of "Ted" Bretton, of the well-known vaudeville team of "Ted" and Corine Bretton, which has appeared at Proctor's Theatre, this city, a minstrel show with a cast of ten performers and an orchestra of four pieces, under the leadership of "Chick" Hussa, was given at Camp Ram's Horn, Lake Hopatcong, Saturday night, in honor of Thomas M. Muir, who celebrated his thirty-sixth birthday anniversary that day. The whole affair was a complete surprise to Tommy and he helped to make it a great success through his clever work as an end man. A large number of the summer colony attended the show and enjoyed the delightful program which lasted for two hours.

During the evening there were songs, variety dances and musical numbers by "Ted" and Corine Bretton, while John Eckert, of the vaudeville team of Eckert and Francis, gave character sketches and a monologue. Other features of the program were wing and eccentric dances by "Nat" Franklin and Fay Franklin; whistling solos and toe dancing by Miss Greta Kelsey, of Dover; recitations by Master Kirk Jackson, and grotesque dances by Miss Muriel Soules.

The rendition of popular songs and an original monologue by Mr. Muir made a hit with the large audience and he generously responded to encores. Helen Eckert, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Nat" Franklin, made her first appearance on a public stage, singing "My Own Iona." Helen will appear in vaudeville on the Proctor circuit this year.

Another feature of the celebration was a camp-fire, around which the performers gathered and exchanged jokes and the latest "gags." The minstrel performance was given on a regular stage with footlights and curtain, and was concluded with an after piece called "Moving Pictures," which was presented by six young women under the direction of Mrs. Corine Bretton and John Eckert.

Mr. Muir received a number of appropriate gifts, including two new shirts and a new vitaphone, which were given by the campers. There were sixty-four guests in the party including the following:

Miss Hazel Hamil, Miss Edith Talfoer, Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Nash, Jr., Mrs. Brown, Miss Agnes Brown, Howard Armstrong, Robert Schropsis, Eugene MacLaughlin, John Borup and Robert Hamilton, of Plainfield; George Johnston and the Misses Johnston, Ella Schenck, Esther Meyer, May Weller, Madeline Clark, and Mrs. Albert G. Meyer, of Scotch Plains.

FUNERAL OF INFANT.

Funeral services for Joseph Fleischman, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fleischman, of 943 South Second street, were held from his parents' home at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the Rev. D. W. Skellinger, of Hope Chapel, in charge. The child died yesterday following a long illness. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

LAWN PARTY.

A lawn party will be held tomorrow night at the home of Miss Anne Robinson, at 524 East Third street. Admission will be free, and the affair will be conducted under the auspices of the Circle of Earnest Workers of Bethel Chapel.

DRASTIC ACTION IS THREATENED

Wilson Still Has Hopes of at Least Forcing a a Delay.

SHIPPERS ARE CALLED

Conference Tomorrow to Discuss Legislation—Congress Leaders Seek Way Out of National Catastrophe.

Washington, Aug 30—The four chiefs of the railroad brotherhoods called at the Department of Labor and were closeted with Secretary Wilson for more than an hour it is understood that the secretary warned the leaders that everythng the President had threatened to do would be carried out He also is said to have assured them that Congress would stand squarely behind the President and would enact drastic legislation, calculated to meet any situation that arises A hearing of the railroad brotherhoods. railroad managers shippers and others will be held tomorrow at 9 o'clock before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, in an effort to draft necessary legislation to avert the threatened strike.

Through all official Washington there is a growing feeling that the legislative program launched by the President in his address to the Congress yesterday may at least put off the strike. It is felt that the passage of the one measure—an eight-hour day with a Federal Commission to observe its workings—will. while it is pending with a great chance to success, keep the union leaders from sending out the "code word" which startts the strike, for several days and perhaps for longer.

A B Garretson, spokesman for the brotherhoods, said very solemnly early today: "It would be presumptuous for us to call a strike when so many great and powerful inuences are working for a peaceful, satisfactory solution of the difficulty"

The principal obstacle to the President's desire for the immediate adoption of a definite program which he took before the Congress, in his appeal for quick action yesterday, is the belief of the leaders of both parties in the House, expressed to him at his conference with them at the Capitol last night, that the eight-hour law, with the Federal Commission, would be sufficient to satisfy the brotherhoods

The belief that it might be possible to hurry through this one item of the President's program was expressed to Mr Wilson by Speaker Clark, Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, Democratic floor leader; Representative Adamson, of Georgia, Democrat, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce; Republican Leader Mann, of Illinois, and Representative Sterling, of Illinois, Republican ranking member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce

Declare Freight Embargo

New York, Aug 30—An embargo on freight of all kinds that cannot be delivered by September 4, the date set for the great railroad strike, has already been declared by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Rail road, and some Western lines and other companies are expected to issue similar announcements today

Other Delays

In addition to refusing to accept freight cannot that be delivered before September 4, some Western roads issued warnings last night that passengers who did not reach their destinations before the time limit probably would be subjected to delays and other inconveniences

WILSON TO HAVE TRAIN, STRIKE OR NO STRIKE

Washington, Aug. 30.—Despite the threatened strike among the railroads, President Wilson has not changed his determination to speak at Hodginsville, Ky., next Monday. He has planned to leave here on Friday for Shadow Lawn, where on Saturday he will be officially notified of his renomination for President.

On leaving New Jersey he will pass through Washington on Monday for the Kentucky town. Railroad officials have informed the White House that, if the strike is on there will be no interruption to the Presidential train.

SPENDING HIS VACATION.

Dr. Hervey J. Buchanan, of North Plainfield, is spending his vacation at the Thousand Islands.

580,000 MEN IN ROUMANIA'S ARMY

Becomes Fourteenth Nation to Enter European Struggle.

POPULATION OF 6,800,000

"National Aspirations" Said to Have Prompted Action—Russian Troops May Cross Her Soil to Attack Austria and Turkey—Many Influences Have Been at Work.

Roumania becomes the fourteenth nation to join in the war. Her intervention has been awaited with symptoms of concern by both the entente allies and the central powers since the beginning of the conflict, due not alone to Roumania's military strength, but also to the strategic advantages of her geographical position and the fact that her entry ino the struggle opens to the Russian army a gateway through to Roumania to attack the Bulgarians from the north, while the allied army having its base at Saloniki attacks them and their German allies from the south.

Roumania has a population of 6,800,000, and her army has been estimated at 580,000. It has been described as one of the most thoroughly equipped and disciplined armies in Europe, but recent information from Bukharest has thrown some doubt upon its quality. Lately it has been stated that Roumanian officers are ill trained and undisciplined, that it has no heavy artillery and that its flying service is inferior. Some advocates of Roumania's participation in the war have asserted that she could mobilize as many as 1,000,000 men. The mobilization of the army has been in progress for months, and a few days ago was reported to be complete.

To Satisfy Aspirations.

The motive which prompts Roumania to enter the war is the satisfaction of her "national aspirations," described by Take Jonescu, the Roumanian Liberal leader, as the "policy of national instinct." In the southern half of Bukowina, the Austrian crown land, the Roumanians are the dominant race. The mass of the people of eastern Transylvania, a part of Hungary, is Roumanian by race and language. It is said 4,000,000 Roumanians live in Transylvania. Roumania has been credited with a long cherished ambition to annex these provinces and at the same time "liberate" the Roumanians now under Austrian domination. Recently it was reported Russia had offered Czernowitz to Roumania as a reward if she would unite with the entente.

Roumania also covets Bessarabia, the extreme southwestern province of Russia, on the Black sea, which was taken from her by the Berlin treaty of 1878. Reports have stated that Russia also has consented to restore Bessarabia as a war prize, with its population of 2,000,000, mostly Roumanians, and an area of 20,000 square miles. This, with Transylvania, would give Roumania a total population approaching 13,000,000 and should all her aspirations be satisfied a territory as great in area as that of England, Scotland and Wales.

In what direction Roumania's first blow may be aimed is only indicated by her desire to pour her troops through the passes of the Transylvanian Alps and the Carpathians into Transylvania. On the other hand, Austria has been accumulating military forces at Orsova, prepared to attempt to force the "iron gates" where the Danube river touches the western Roumanian border. Bulgaria is said to have stationed 100,000 or more troops along the southern bank of the Danube to protect her northern frontier from a Roumanian invasion.

Apprehension in Germany that Roumania intends to permit a Russian army to march through her territory to attack the Bulgarians has been apparent for some time. Military authorities in Budapest assert that the chief factor for the consideration of the central powers is not the half a million or more men of the Roumanian army, but the opportunity offered for a new Russian invasion of Hungary. Roumanian sympathizers in Transylvania have been sent to other sections, and the Roumanian priests and churches there have been kept under military supervision. The Transylvanian-Roumanian frontier defenders have been strengthened by Austria as a precaution against Roumanian invasion.

Powerful influences on the part of most of the central powers and the entente allies have been exerted at Bukharest to influence her decision in the war for the past two years. Recently reports from the Roumanian capital have stated that Roumania awaited only the beginning of the Anglo-French offensive in Macedonia before joining her fortunes with those of the entente allies. Another reason for delay, it is said, has been lack of ammunition, which now has been relieved by large supplies coming from Japan by way of Vladivostok, according to recent reports.

Numbered, Not Named.

A birth certificate on file at the county register of deeds office in Lancaster, Wis., bears the following inscription: "I have tried to get the name of the child. I saw the father, and he said they had decided to number the rest, instead of using a name." Under the heading "Full Name of the Child" the certificate is worded "No. 9."

Lost Bark.

Muggins, seeing a dead dog in the ditch, stopped and, after gazing intently at it, said to his companion, "Another shipwreck."

"Where?"

"There lies a bark that is lost forever."

His companion growled and navigated on.—Exchange.

SOME OF AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS MEN ASK AID FOR DEFENDERS OF VERDUN

Prominent Bankers, Diplomatist and Educator Appeal for Funds in the Name of the Suffering Soldiers of France..

The National Allied Relief Committee, co-operating with the War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, is sending out what perhaps will be the most broadcast appeal yet issued on behalf of the war sufferers of Europe.

This appeal is for funds for the relief of the soldiers of France wounded in the fighting around Verdun.

What lends additional interest to this appeal is the fact that it is signed by six of the most prominent men in America. Those who signed it are: August Belmont of the banking firm bearing his name; Hon. Jos. H. Choate, Ex-Ambassador to England; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Edwin G. Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company, and Henry L. Higginson of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, Boston.

It is anticipated that the contributions received from this wide-spread appeal will be devoted also to relief work among a large number of wounded resulting from the greatly increased activities of the contending armies.

The appeal is reproduced herewith.

20 SAILORS DROWN WHEN U. S. CRUISER IS LOST

Washington, Aug. 30.—Caught by a sudden heavy ground swell in the harbor of Santo Domingo, and swept by a furious tropical storm upon the rocks, the U. S. armored cruiser Memphis, flagship of Rar Admiral Charles F. Pond's Caribbean Squadron, is being pounded to pieces. She is expected to be a total loss.

Twenty men in a motor launch were drowned. They were returning from the city to the ship when the storm broke.

The U. S. gunboat Castine, anchored nearby, was driven inshore, but escaped to sea.

GIRLS BACK HOME ADMIRE THE PICTURES OF BOYS ON BORDER

One Writes to Washington Guardsman and Hopes to Meet Him When the Stay on Frontier Is Over and He Returns to Capital.

The Ghost Walks and Men Are Made Happy, but They Find Few Places to Spend Their Money—Other Camp Notes.

SOLDIER boys along the border who permit themselves to be photographed and later find their likeness reproduced in newspapers had better look out. This is leap year and "all's fair in love and war."

"You can't always sometimes tell," is the way Private Howard Hiltner, Company M, Twenty-second United States infantry, sums up the situation. Hiltner is stationed in Warren, Ariz., where eight companies of his regiment are camped close by the signal corps and field hospital units of the District national guard.

Hiltner and several other members of his company were on guard at the water tanks on the mountain side above Warren that hold the water supply for the community. A representative of the press who accompanied the District troops to the border climbed up the mountain to take a photograph of the surrounding country. To give it a warlike touch he asked Hiltner to take a position beside one of the tanks so that he was shown in the foreground of the picture.

A week or so later this photograph was published and, with it, the information that Hiltner formerly lived in the national capital.

Letter From Lonely Girl.

Then Hiltner obtained the following letter way out here in Arizona:

Dear Friend—No doubt when you read this you will think the writer is a fit subject for an insane asylum. But it is just this way:

I am alone up in this town. I am from the sunny south—South Carolina. And reading the news I found a picture of a fine looking fellow, and he did look so lonesome I thought of writing this right away. Then I said he might be married, and then maybe he would say some things which would not look nice in print.

But today I just feel so blue and was looking in my writing box when I found your picture again. So forgive me if I have done wrong in writing you, but I am going to live in hope of receiving a reply to this.

It is so very hot here I know it must be dreadful on the border. Hope you are not working too hard and that you are enjoying good health and being good. I will send you the picture which I cut from the paper. I am your unknown friend.

P. S.—By the way, you are from this town? I like it quite well, as much as I have seen of it.

You can see by this picture how lonesome you look. Most any girl would take a chance on receiving an answer. In fact, a number already have remarked about your good looks, but I did not tell them that I did not know, as it would be too bold, so I kept my secret to myself.

Please return picture.

The picture referred to in the letter is a clipping from the Washington Star showing a reproduction of Hiltner's photograph and the view beyond.

The Ghost Walks.

The Sixty-ninth of New York, first out of the armory and last to leave for the border, was the first regiment for whom the ghost walked. The men had begun to doubt that there was any money left in Uncle Sam's strong box for fighting purposes when Paymaster Captain William Brennan dropped into McAllen from Harlingen appropriately guarded with the pay for the soldiers of the First brigade.

Great doings followed the trail of the ghost in the Sixty-ninth. The men had their money at last, and then they discovered that there was no place to spend it.

Many passes were issued, to be sure, but the drink stores in Mission were guarded, and no soldier was allowed to enter one. And, anyhow, they close in Texas at 9:30 o'clock. The boys of the Second and Fourteenth were in the same boat. But they had their money.

Pay day has made all the difference in the world to the soldiers. Nearly everybody has been broke, and those who could have been sending home for money. Those who had the coin lent it to others, as far as their roll would go, until at last all were in the same boat. Of course this doesn't apply to the millionaire privates and officers with big incomes.

The Weather Bad.

The weather in Texas now would make the best natured person in the world peevish at times. The old residents, one and all, declare that they have not seen the like of it in seven years, and they don't know what to make of it and give other such qualifications, but the fact remains that the weather is there and the troops are experiencing it. As an illustration:

For four consecutive days heavy downpours were the regular thing. On one day there were ten separate and distinct showers. These rains do not soak more than a few inches into this heavy loam soil, but they play havoc with conditions on the surface of the roads. One day the main street of McAllen is a mass of soft, puddly mud. The next, however, so intense has been the sun that 75 per cent of the mud has disappeared and parts of the street are as dry as if there had never been any rain in months. So from getting accustomed to the mud the soldiers have suddenly to face now conditions that mean dust in a couple of days. All this change from the disagreeable to the other extreme of the disagreeable is trying on the nerves, and some amiable dispositions are on the breaking point.

However, by gradual degrees the men are getting used to conditions. While contentment is not here, regisnation is beginning to appear, and the boys will ultimately not find their work there so irksome as it has been to many.

Horses Were Unbroken.

Had the Maryland men in Camp Ord for whom the consignment of horses arrived the other night known that more than half the number were unbroken western bronchos they would have been less happy. But not until they first tried to ride them did they discover that many of them had evidently never been saddled and were unfamiliar with the bridle.

One of the horses refused to be mounted. Volunteers were called for, but the boys had a good look at the wicked eyes and slashing hoofs of the enraged animal, and it was a case of "let George do it," until Private Brewer of Company B, one time horse breaker by profession, undertook to handle him. With one swing Brewer was in the saddle. In a second the horse was bucking, rearing and kicking. The horse did everything but lie down, and for awhile things looked bad for Brewer. His skill conquered in the end, however, and in a half hour the horse accepted defeat gracefully.

The men in the Maryland camp are becoming more and more pleased with army life and, knowing it to be what it is, are surprised that recruiting back home has not been more successful. Several of the enlisted men have signified their intention of enlisting in the regular army when the troops go back to their home stations. Many of the officers have applied for assignment temporarily to the regular regiments in order that they may get a more detailed education in the duties of an army officer, and in several cases this request has been granted.

Suffrage Smokes.

When the Pennsylvania suffragists sent a big box of "smokes" down to the soldier boys on the border they had no idea that they were going to inspire any of the embryo Kiplings in khaki to burst forth into song. Nevertheless that is just what has happened. Here's the evidence, as culled from the Butler (Pa.) Citizen, which has a war correspondent right on the spot where the "smokes" are being enjoyed:

SUFFRAGIST SMOKE.

While our boys down on the border
Keep the Mexicans in order
There's none to think that duty is a joke;
Over burning sands patrolling
They're in need of much consoling,
So the suffragists are sending them a smoke.

While they're puffing those perfectos
Burglar bands of insurrectos
Had best be careful where they dare to roam,
For each heart in khaki packet
Has great love (with sand to back it)
For the kind and thoughtful ones he left back home.

When he adds to sense of duty
Mem'ries of that thoughtful beauty
Who in tenderness has sent her boy a smoke
It brings such an inspiration
That he fights like all tarnation
And he makes a fighting bobcat seem a joke.

When the greasers have sought cover
And the cruel war is over
Recollections of the "smoke" will linger still,
And when comes the day for voting
You will find he'll still be toting
Recollections of that smoke—you bet he will!

For Progressive Training.

Colonel Harry H. Bandholtz, chief of staff of the division at McAllen, has called for the daily schedules of all the regiments of the division on the border to frame a progressive scheme of instruction designed to bring all units into form at approximately the same time. Heretofore the hardening has been directed by the brigadier generals and the colonels.

Regular army officers believe that within three months the division could be brought not to the grade of first line troops, but, as one of them expressed it, to "near first line troops." For the present the plan of marches in large organizations will probably be abandoned and the unit of instruction may revert to the squad. Seasoned officers are impressed with the army saying that "you can't feed calculus to a kindergarten," which they regard as the American idea of military education, and while the division is by no means rated as a kindergarten the analogy in some respects is not remote. An experienced army officer summed it up thus:

"It takes just as long to train one kind of soldier as it does another, whether cavalry, artillery or infantry, because training is discipline, and discipline is habit, and you can't acquire habit in a week. No matter how intelligent a body of troops may be, they may go all to pieces under fire unless thoroughly disciplined. I saw that happen in the Spanish-American war."

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Women have broken at last into the sacred field of diplomatic service, and Great Britain is the pioneer which has made the innovation, as a tribute, it is said, to the work of British women in the war. Two women have been given diplomatic appointments since the beginning of the war: Miss Pressley Smith, a prominent suffragist, as assistant secretary in the British Legation at Christiania, Norway, and Miss Violet Erskine, a daughter of the British consul general at New Orleans, who has become a member of the staff of Sir Richard Crawford, British commercial advisor and minister plenipotentiary to Washington. When we speak of woman "breaking into the diplomatic service," however, we should remember that though this is a "breaking in" in a business sense, the social influence of diplomats' wives and the paramount role they have played in embassies has been of immense importance. In the choice of many an ambassador from one European court to another the beauty, tact, wealth and fascination of the ambassadress has been a determining factor, as things calculated to make friends for the country represented.

Miss Elsie Ueland, of Minneapolis, has been chosen as the head of Carson College, the unique institution for girl orphans endowed with a $5,000,000 bequest by the late traction magnate of that name, and which is to open in September, in Philadelphia. Miss Ueland was secretary of William Wirt, superintedent of the famous Gary schools of Indiana, when she was offered the post, which will pay her $4,000 a year. She is a graduate of the University of California. Carson College will be unique among "orphanages," the girls to be given extraordinary advantages, including a college course, and if gifted training in music and art. The institution will be operated on the cottage plan, and Miss Ueland's work for the present will be to superintend the building of the seven or eight constructions which will be erected on one of the most beautiful sites in the suburbs of the Quaker City.

The man to whom widowed mothers who draw pensions helping them to making good citizens out of their little fatherless children owe the most gratitude is Judge Henry Neil, of Illinois, author of the mothers' pension act, which is now in force in twenty-six States of the Union. Judge Neil, who succeeded in having the act passed in the Illinois Legislature a number of years ago, has worked incessantly in securing the same conditions in other States, also to secure modifications to existing imperfections of the pension act. He has lately been urging an amendment to the California pension act to provide for the distribution of charitable organizations. Speaking of the conditions under which many American children are brought up, Judge Neil makes the startling claim that 50 per cent of the applicants for military service are rejected because of malnutrition in childhood.

Miss Florence Whittaker, of Chicago, a former chorus girl who is now a social missionary in that city, has made it her ambition to establish homes for chorus girls in every large city where musical comedy shows have much of a run. Such homes, calculated to keep the girls contented with innocent pleasures and opportunities, would do much in breaking the late supper habit which is the fast and easy guide on the downward path, and whose chief cause, Miss Whittaker says, is nothing but the frightful lonliness most of the girls have to endure without home or friends. She is now hopefully working on the project in Chicago itself. Miss Whittaker, who is a frail little woman of twenty-five, left the stage three years ago, after having already had success as a dancer and singer. She has since worked indefatigably as a missionary in Chicago, chiefly among the stage people, and twice a week preaches at a social settlement chapel called the Little Night Church, where she leads in prayer a motley congregation that drifts in from the streets.

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, the daring birth control advocate, has announced her intention of opening this week in Brooklyn a birth control clinic, where the poor women of the metropolis will be instructed in birth control just as they are instructed in infant feeding. In the clinic nurses will be on hand to supply information to mothers, just as nurses at milk stations now tell parents how to feed their children. The Brooklyn clinic will be the first of a series of such institutions, according to Mrs. Sanger's present plans, and clinics will next be established in Cleveland and St. Paul, as well as in other locations where there is no law against this propaganda. The laws of New York State are against such a propaganda, but Mrs. Sanger declares that she wants to test the constitutionality of those laws by the opening of her clinic.

CLUB HAS NO CHOICE

has been a gradual elimination. If all the places in the United States were as well managed as in Plainfield there would be no trouble over the situation, he said.

Back in 1869 when he was a school boy, said J. C. Allen, there sat behind him a youth of serious mind whose voice was always most reverently raised when the class sang "When He Cometh to Make Up His Jewels" and then this boy was full of promise. In last night's Press Mr. Allen saw a story of the boy's arrest and trial in police court, and now his name is on the "black list." Mr. Allen then read a number of extracts from "The Great Destroyer," a temperance address delivered by the Hon. Richmond P. Hobson, Congressman from Alabama.

Repeated remarks as to his opposition to Mr. Edgar provoked a reply from Mr. Cutter, in which he explained that he entered the race at a time when it was positively stated that Mr. Edgar would not be a candidate. He thought the field was open, he said. Mr. Cutter objected to the attempts to read him out of the party because he was opposed to the saloons. "A man can be against license and still be a good Republican," he said.

The Rev. Edward S. Ralston, of Leland avenue, who stumped the State of California for Garfield, and who has been a Republican worker for years, declared that he knew what it was to be a Republican, and he refused to surrender the right to stand for higher moral issues in a local campaign to any organization.

"No man can rule morality out of the Republican party," declared Dr. Ralston. He argued for the political wisdom of Mr. Rittenhouse's suggestion that no indorsement be made.

President Hetfield called attention to cards that had been circulated urging a good attendance at last night's meeting when an indorsement for Cutter would be made. Mr. Rittenhouse accepted responsibility for these cards. He said he thought that an attempt would be made to force an indorsement and he sought to get out as many Cutter votes as possible. Mr. Rittenhouse declared that the proposition he had made was fair, and he warned the Edgar men to go slow. "You stand as the champions of the saloon," he said. "If you want that to go out, all right." Both men were going to run in the primaries, he said, and an indorsement will mean but little to either of them.

Victor Lorton, the plumber, argued in favor of the right of the workingman to a glass of beer after he has finished his day's labors. He said closing the saloons would not bring prohibition because "speakeasies" would spring up everywhere. There are already some here, he said, and not all of those who profess to be against license are temperate. Many have wine and whiskey in their cellars, he said, because he had been in houses in every part of Plainfield and he knew. Mr. Lorton said that union labor wanted saloons. He spoke for the Allied Trades' Council.

Plainfield is a cosmopolitan city and its Jewish, Polish and other elements must be taken into consideration in framing the laws, declared Freeholder Buckle. Mr. Buckle also questioned the sincerity of all who had stood for prohibition in Plainfield in the past. He said he had imbibed beer in New York with men who voted for no license in the Plainfield Council. The plan of the no license people amounts to confiscation, he insisted, and is not moral nor American.

Secretary Walter Firstbrook favored the putting of both names before the voters in the primary without an indorsement. Both candidates will run, he said, and the question is one which must be finally decided by the people. Both had been approached by members of the committee named to secure candidates and both had accepted in good faith, therefore he argued that it would be unfair and unwise to indorse either.

When President Hetfield asked all who favored the indorsement of a candidate to raise their hands twenty-one went up. Later twenty-seven declared against an indorsement, whereupon Mr. Buckle withdrew his motion to indorse Mr. Edgar.

He then moved that as Mr. Edgar had served four years in the Plainfield Council the club pass a resolution of thanks to him for his efficient services. This was promptly seconded by Mr. Cutter himself and carried unanimously and with enthusiasm.

A motion that the present city and county committeemen be renominated was carried.

The club adjourned to meet again on the evening of September 5.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

ELIZABETH'S EXCISE BUSINESS.

The city of Elizabeth, after 251 years of existence, at last has an Excise Board that is actually trying to do business on business principles. For twenty years—perhaps longer—its excise boards have "smelled to heaven," that is, if such an odor as was theirs can reach so high. They were denounced by press and pulpit and were bitterly presented by grand juries, but such things had no more effect on them than water on a duck's back. Last year vigorous efforts were made to put the city's excise matters on a fair legal and business foundation. Five commissioners were elected in November, but three of them were counted out; the very ones who were relied upon to reform the board's methods. Recounts were demanded and granted, and the three were declared elected. Since then the number of drinking places in Elizabeth has been reduced from 352 to 242. Unnecessary saloons have not been relicensed. Transfers to evade the law have not been granted. The commissioners themselves have watched suspected places, and upon their own evidence have revoked licenses and closed up places that violated the law. Men convicted by the courts need not apply to this board for excise privileges, and a political pull has no influence in shielding a law violator or in promoting schemes to obtain favors. Yet the board does not persecute or go to any inordinate lengths; it simply carries on this business as it would any other business, in a careful, common sense way.

Judicial Rebuke.

It is said of Chief Justice Tilghman of Pennsylvania that he had a great regard for a dignified administration of justice, "and the only time," writes David Paul Brown, "that we ever observed him to be disconcerted upon the bench was upon one occasion when, the business of the day having terminated, his associates arose suddenly and were walking off without a formal adjournment, when, turning to them, with his usual modesty, but with some evidence of mortification, he said, "Gentlemen, shall we adjourn, run away or resign?"—Case and Comment.

A Slight Omission.

A recruit being ordered aloft in a military balloon hesitated in obeying and complained to his captain, "Please, sir, in my oath of allegiance I swore to be true and faithful on land and water, but there was nothing said about air."—Boston Transcript.

IT'S DRILL AND WORK FOR GUARDSMEN NOW ENCAMPED ON MEXICAN BORDER

Early to Bed and Early to Rise, With Good Food and Much Exercise Is Developing a Fine Army on the Frontier.

Some Little Stories of Human Interest That Have Been Picked Up Here and There Among the Troops.

IT'S drill, drill, drill on the Mexican frontier, and our boys from home are rapidly getting in perfect physical condition. With strict discipline observed at all times, regular hours, good substantial food and no excesses, the army officers in charge of the members of the national guard are rounding out an army that could go into Mexico and clean up the country on short notice.

The following little stories picked up here and there about the various camps are interesting to the folks back home:

Letter From Border.

Camp Wilson, Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.—Private Iverson of the Sixth Illinois squad caught a tarantula when he opened up the squad surplus kit bag. This was the first tarantuli that we had seen since being here, and as we had been warned about them the capture of this one caused considerable excitement.

Captain Wagner told us all about this species of spider from his own experience with them during the campaign of 1898 in Cuba during the Spanish-American war. He tied a string around the body of our prize in this instance and has it fastened to a peg outside of his tent on Officers' row, where the boys can satisfy their curiosity.

It brings a chill over one to cast a glance at this fellow we have. His legs open four inches when extended. The results of a bite from him are too sickening to imagine.

One day a detail of four men from our company, in charge of Corporal Peters, were assigned to erecting a new tent for General D. Jack Foster of the First brigade. We had to unload about twelve pieces of tentage from an army supply wagon and had to open up each piece to choose a perfect tent for the general.

In opening up the tents we came across several scorpions of full grown size and several smaller ones. The boys on the detail were frightened at seeing so many of these treacherous insects at one time, and we were all afraid to continue handling these canvases. We went ahead, though, and put up a tent for the general, and he complimented us on the work that we did.

To see a crew of former pencil pushers from offices of large business houses back in dear old Chicago get down to the hard work of a soldier and to see them make good against the terrible heat is proof of what our boys are made of.

If the fever or pneumonia don't get us or if we can kill the scorps or tarans before they bite us we will think ourselves lucky and know that we can be real soldiers. Yours respectfully,

PRIVATE W. HELWIG.

"Write Soon."

This poem appealing for letters from "home" was received from McAllen, Tex., headquarters of the New York guard regiments on the border. It was written by Private William S. Copp, Company G, Seventy-first New York regiment.

When you get up in the morning
After hours of gay delight
And you're thinking of old Broadway,
With its gay and glittering light,
Just sit down and write a letter
To some homesick soldier boy,
For to him there's nothing better
Than a little note of joy.

When you've had your lunch at Sherry's
And are lingering o'er the wine
And you're tired of life and living
And think the world unkind,
Just take up your pen and paper,
Write about the girls and boys,
For the soldier lad waits eager
For his little note of joy.

Ah, there's many a lad gets gloomy
When the letters fail to come;
I can see it in their faces—
This and that and t'other one—
For they have as many worries
For the folks back home, you see,
As the folks back home have worries
For the boys of Company G.

So just scribble something cheerful
When it comes to you at night
Or in the early morning,
When the sun is shining bright.
But be sure the old pen staggers
Just with news to cheer the boy,
For the soldier lad who's waiting
For his little note of joy.

"What About My Family?"

"Can a man be a good soldier and do good work if he's wondering whether his family at home has enough to eat?" General Funston was asked the other day.

The general, whose perspiring head was leaving patches of dampness on the leather back of the huge chair in which he sat, leaned forward, saying earnestly:

"Of course not. I permitted fourteen men to return home one day because their dependents were suffering, and I have so many requests for relief on like grounds that it will prove necessary to release several thousands within the next few weeks."

These men are given 3½ cents mileage homeward. Money which has been spent in bringing them to the border, feeding them and outfitting them, and then, after two weeks, sending them back home, isn't wasted. It is our payment for the lesson that in our new army plan we must provide well for the care of soldiers' families if we are going to insist on taking men away from their families into the army.

"What about my family?" is the biggest question in all militia camps along the border.

Men Cannot Ride.

A large percentage of the men of the signal corps company, O. M. D. C., encamped at Warren, Ariz., have a lot to learn about horseback riding. This was evident when the first section of the company took its first field practice on horseback. It developed that a number of the men never had done any real horseback riding and that they knew practically nothing about saddling a horse. Captain Terry, commanding the company, is not a bit discouraged, however, for he knew that among the men of his company who are experts in telegraphy and other signaling work there were many who were versed in caring for and riding a horse.

Some of the men had to be taught how to put a bridle on their horse, and practically all of them needed instruction in the art of saddling their mount properly. The only men who were able to do this unassisted were those who have been in camps before with the company and one or two others who were born and raised in the west and know how to handle horses.

The first group of men of the company to go into the field on horseback was a section composed of men selected from the four sections of the company. Captain Terry went along to instruct the men. Sergeant Tiller, stable sergeant of the company, also went along.

Company Exclusively of Poles.

Company K of Milwaukee, First Wisconsin, consists of Poles. It was organized fifty years ago by Th odore Rosinski. It is known as Kosciusko's company. Forty per cent of its 120 members were born in Poland. Chaplain Henry Piasecki said it was an ancient custom of his company not to permit any but Poles to join and that they kept up the custom out of deference to hundreds of previous members now dead.

"So many Poles try to join now that we are full, and turn them over to other companies of the regiment," said the chaplain.

"They are scattered through the Wisconsin troops.

"We found a Polish church in San Antonio, and the church folk are getting together automobiles, wagons and all kinds of rigs to take us to church next Sunday."

One couldn't imagine he was anywhere but in the American army. Such a thing couldn't happen in any other army in the world, or in any other place than America. Wisconsinians say the American government has declared the Wisconsin militia to be the model for the country. This Polish company for three years in succession has taken the first Wisconsin prize for field work. Splendid soldiers they are, thoroughly American, but adding variegation to Uncle Sam's storm coat.

Negro Regiment From Chicago.

Chicago's negro regiment, the Eighth, adds variety and even snappiness. It is hard enough for Chicago's negro troops to ride in the jimcrow part of the street cars, San Antonio, southern style, but when investigating various textures a correspondent encountered Colonel F. A. Dennison, negro, chief of the negro regiment, who said:

"I think we have the only dead sure American regiment in the entire lot. The other regiments have all kinds of folks in them, but we're all the same. We are so American that we obey the San Antonio laws and ride in separate compartments of the street cars, but the other day when the army Y. M. C. A. put up that big frame building right on the edge of the camp and arranged for a white Y. M. C. A. club to which negro men were not admitted I told the Y. M. C. A. authorities I couldn't vouch for the safety of the building. If my men got at it I couldn't keep them from tearing it down, and I wouldn't.

"The Y. M. C. A. people understood, and one of them told me privately, 'I respect you for your action.'"

Captain Roosevelt, acting regimental adjutant of the Seventy-first New York, has been passing on the stock. He says that the mules, while in good condition and a fine lot of animals, are a trifle too light. They are all good heading mules, but there are few good wheelers in the lot because they are too light in weight. He is a cousin of the great T. R.

The Idaho boys, who have suffered somewhat from the storms, put in part of the day intrenching against weather contingencies and are now prepared to defy the elements. The Second and Seventh California regiments likewise were compelled to devote a little time to repairs and also to precautionary work.

BETTER FARMING AND BETTER FARM LIFE BY BUILDING UP RURAL COMMUNITIES

"At the head of all the sciences and arts, at the head of civilization and progress, stands—not militarism, the science that kills, nor commerce, the science that accumulates wealth—but agriculture, the mother of all industry and the maintainer of human life."

That agriculture will be developed throughout the United States just as community centers are developed and that when the two are separated the fabric of rural life will be torn down, is the belief of Prof. G. I. Christie, superintendent agriculture extension work, Purdue University, who, in talking before the convention of the National Fertilizer Association recently, used the above statement regarding agriculture by President Garfield as his text.

"Do you think that we can develop the country districts of Indiana, or any other state, if we destroy the rural towns? The rural towns grew up because the farmers wanted and needed stores where they could trade, where they could market their produce and buy supplies. The country storekeeper is there because they needed blacksmith shops, men to handle machinery—a center where they could get work done. It was the farmer himself who wanted the local center, and he is the man that brought it there.

"In many counties there are people who would organize and use county agricultural advisers as financial agents for co-operative buying and selling. This is a questionable line for county agents to take up. Some of these people believe that the county agent is the farmer alone. They forget that in most cases the county agent is financed by public taxation. It was the hope of the leaders of this movement that the county agent should work in communities with the farmers so that they may grow more corn, more wheat and more meat in order that the people in the cities shall get more foodstuffs at reasonable prices. They hope to help the farmer to make some money and to make life more livable."

he House Broom Should Be Abolished

PHYSICIANS know that many cases of illness may be laid to the common house broom.

—It lacks thoroughness—it spreads disease because it fills the air with germ-laden dust.

—Large micro-photographs at our office, taken by a well-known New York bacteriologist, prove that a wide variety of germs thrive in common house dust. These particular specimens were taken from a rug by a Hoover Suction Sweeper.

ANNUAL PARADE OF THE VETERANS IN KANSAS

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 30.—The parade today of the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic will be long remembered by the thousands of people who packed the streets along the line of march to witness it. Devoid of all the pomp and panoply of war, there was something pathetic in the thinned-out ranks of the old soldiers which touched the hearts of all who saw them.

Despite their age and infirmities, the veterans of Antietam, Vicksburg, Gettysburg, Appomattox and the Wilderness, fell into line with military precision and bravely marched in what may be the last parade for many of them. The procession started promptly at 10 a. m., from the intersection of Ninth and McGee streets and marched over a mile of broad thoroughfares in the downtown district. A hearty greeting was extended to the veterans along the entire line of march, each of the departments being cheered as it filed past. The scene was one of enthusiasm all along the streets, old and young turning out by the thousands to greet the fast-fading ranks.

POLITICAL NOTES.

September 1—Last day for filing petitions for nomination for county offices.

September 2—Formal notification of Wilson's nomination at Shadow Lawn, Long Branch.

September 6—Last day for filing petitions of nomination for municipal offices.

September 26—Primary election and registry day.

November 7—General election.

Although it's petition time at the County Clerk's office only two petitions for nominations for county offices had been received up to closing time yesterday. County Clerk Morris expects to be a busy man on September 1, for that is the last day on which the petitions may be filed. Seldom, it s said, have candidates been so backward with their petitions. Only two in at this late day is somewhat of a record.

Walter H. Travener, of 112 Embree Crescent, Westfield, has filed his petition with the necessary 100 names for the Democratic nomination for Assemblyman from Union county. Mr. Travener is a newcomer in the field, little being known of his vote-getting qualities. The petition of Hamilton F. Kean, of Ursino, for nomination to the position of Republican State Committeeman was filed some days ago. Meanwhile none of the candidates for the office of County Clerk have filed their petitions.

While it is not likely that General Dennis F. Collins will be opposed for re-election to the State committee, he has not yet filed a petition for that office. The last day for filing petitions for county offices, under which heading the State committee falls, is Friday of this week.

A large quota of Wilson adherents will represent the Elizabeth Democratic voters at the official notification of President Wilson, to be held at Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, Saturday. Under the auspices of the First Presidential Voters' League an excursion train, starting at the Broad street station of the Central Railroad Company in Newark, will be run from the main station in Elizabeth for the convenience of those who will go from here.

The train will leave the station in Elizabeth at 1:45 Saturday afternoon and returning trains will leave Long Branch at 7 and 8:30 in the evening. James T. Kirk, of Elizabeth, and James F. Bush, of Westfield, are in charge of the arrangements of accommodations for the Union county delegation of the First Presidential Voters' League. They plan to accommodate 100 Union county representatives.

The Union county delegation, together with the Essex county representatives, of whom it is expected there will be 800, will march from the station at Long Branch to Shadow Lawn, where seating accommodations will be prepared for them. A large number of Wilson admirers not members of the league will attend the notification. It is anticipated that some of the stanch supporters of the G. O. P. in this city also will be present.

The Voters' League, under whose auspices the excursion is being held, was organized several weeks ago. Washington M. Cross is secretary of the organization, with headquarters at 772 Broad street, Newark.

The Rev. Frank Austin Smith, educational secretary of the New Jersey Baptist convention and pastor of the Central Baptist church, of Elizabeth, in a letter to Arthur E. Warner, of the Colgate campaign committee, authorizes the statement that he is strongly in favor of Colonel Austen Colgate for Governor. "I signed his petition and hope that he will receive the nomination and be elected," he writes. Mr. Smith is now at his summer camp in Jackman, Me.

Christie Hamilton, Republican Councilman from the Second ward, will seek a renomination at the coming primaries. His petitions will be in circulation in a few days.

Hugh Treacy, of Darrow avenue, it is said, will seek the Democratic nomination for the Assembly this fall, following the announcement that John F. Zerga, who was mentioned for the honor on the Democratic outing, had declined to enter the race. Mr. Treacy is a lawyer, and has resided here for the past five years.

Thus far it begins to look as though Councilman Francis J. Blatz will have no opposition for another term in the Fourth ward, although it was understood that the "no-license" voters would have a Councilmanic candidate from that ward, as well as the other wards of the city.

HOLIDAY FOR LONG BRANCH WHEN WILSON IS NOTIFIED

Long Branch, Aug. 30.—The day President Wilson is to be notified of his nomination will be a half holiday here, Mayor Marshall Woolley ordered today. He called upon citizens and business houses to put out their flags.

Under the auspices of the city commissioners another meeting was held last night to perfect plans for receiving the President. Offers of free music from the American Eagle Fife and Drum Corps and the American Rifles were accepted.

Richard Deeves will act as grand marshal of the parade of citizens of Long Branch and West Branch, forming at Cedar and Norwood avenues at 3 o'clock Saturday, September 2, and marching to Shadow Lawn.

It was announced by Mayor Woolley that the time of the President's arrival Friday would be sent in advance, and that Mr. Wilson would be glad to meet a committee representing the various organizations on his arrival. The State committee is at Shadow Lawn planning the seating for notification day.

AMERICAN BAR MEETING.

Chicago, Ill., Auugst 20.—Welcomed by the Governor of Illinois, the Mayor of Chicago and eminent representatives of the local bench and bar, the American Bar Association held the opening session of its annual meeting here today. With several thousand lawyers and jurists in attendance from all over the country, the gold room of the Continental Hotel, in which the session was held, was scarcely able to accommodate the large gathering. After the welcoming speeches and responses, the lawyers attacked their routine business with a vim. President Elihu Root delivered his annual address, which was followed by reports from other officers and the standing committees of the association. Following the disposal of the routine business the delegates adjourned to reassemble this evening, when Lindley H. Garrison, former Secretary of War, is scheduled to deliver an address. Prominents peakers to be heard at the subsequent sessions of the convention will include United States Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho; Henry St. George Tucker, of Virginia; Frederick W. Lehmann, of St. Louis, and Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University.

TO TELL FAIRBANKS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 30.—Charles W. Fairbanks is about to learn of the action of the Republican National Convention at Chicago in nominating him for the office of Vice President of the United States. The official notification ceremonies will be held tomorrow afternoon on the lawn of the Fairbanks residence. That the meeting will be the occasion for a rousing Republican campaign rally is indicated by the arrival of a large number of prominent party leaders in the city today. In addition to the members of the official notification committee those in attendance will include many well known Republicans from all sections of Indiana and from other States as well. The only formal addresses of the day will be the notification speech to be delivered by Senator L. Y. Sherman, of Illinois, and the address of acceptance by Mr. Fairbanks.

CASE IS DROPPED.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals, and John T. Reed, of Cincinnati, who engaged in an argument when the Giants were at Cincinnati last month that resulted in a warrant for each man being issued charging him with disorderly conduct, were discharged in police court today. It was mutually agreed that the case be dropped when McGraw apologized to Reed and agreed to pay the court costs.

WAR BREAD ON THE LIST.

"Passing the buck" is one of our standard and well-nourished institutions, says the Pittsburgh Leader. It is not a matter of specific record that this is meant when on patriotic holidays our forensic hot air experts on efficiency speak so eloquently of our sacred institutions. But it's likely. Investigating and probing are other staple institutions, mainly for amusing the populace, or taking their mind off their real troubles and grievances.

When "passing the buck" makes no gain or there is a fumble, the man who is giving the social signals always gives the order for an investigation or probe. Either will do. The people expect it.

Since the days of "the starving time," which youthful students of American history remember so well in connection with the thrilling story of the colony at Jamestown, almost 300 years ago, up to the crop of 1916, corn has played an important, almost vital, part in our affairs, particularly in laying foundations for inheritances. Now it is to be commandeered to rescue the sacred profit of our citizens who are on the make.

We are going to have war bread. Not bread cards, but actual bread. We are going to have bread made principally of corn, because the fellows who juggle the wheat, and flour, and bread can't make enough money if they are held to the use of wheat exclusively. So we are going to have bread made principally of corn. In that way we shall save the five cent loaf and have bread at the same time.

This war bread will not necessarily save us from defeat through starvation in war, but it will save our men on the make from losing any of their profit. Disaster has been averted.

CALKINS HEEDS THE CALL.

Plainfield is to be congratulated that it is to have Leighton Calkins serve as Mayor of the city for two more years. We say he will serve as Mayor, when he has only consented to run for the Republican nomination, because it is taken for granted that he will be an easy winner in the primaries and again in the election. So far as can be learned he is to have no opposition, and in view of the general demand from voters of all classes and political beliefs, it is hardly possible that any will dare contest his right to another term. Mr. Calkins has agreed to give two more years of his time to the affairs of Plainfield, because he is convinced that by this personal sacrifice he can contribute something of value to the building of the future city. He has been responsible for a number of public improvements which are yet to be finished and his acceptance is a gaurantee that the consummation of each will be accomplished in the shortest time possible. It means that for two more years this city will have as its executive head a man whose honesty, intelligence and courage are proven, and who steps into the chair for another term with the experience and wisdom gained through twenty-four months' of study of local problems. We have had a Mayor for the past two years. We will have a better one for the next two.

PREVENT STRIKE AT ALL COSTS.

Next to war the greatest catastrophe that could reach the people of the United States would be a general tie-up of all freight and passenger traffic. The biggest news that the country has received since the surrender of Lee will be the report that railroad managers and trainmen have settled their differences and that the business of the nation may be carried on without fear of a strike. When this news will come no one can tell, but it is to be hoped that some way to avert the impending strike will be found, and we believe President Wilson, with the authority and advice of Congress, would be justified in using the army when all other methods have failed.

Some North Plainfield residents are wondering what prompted their Board of Education to name as school physician a man whose residence and practice is outside of the borough. They do not believe that all the available physicians in the borough were offered the position before it was tendered to an outsider. The appointment as physician to the North Plainfield schools is not a lucrative one, but it rightfully belongs to a borough resident.

- Proctor's Theatre -

When one sees such films as "Under Two Flags," a Fox masterpiece appearing at Proctor's today, which was adapted for the screen from Quida's famous novel, by George Hall it is a pleasure to find that the producing end of the film business is not at such a standstill as some people would have one believe. All the elements which go to make a great production are found here. The star, supporting cast and director all attain an extraordinary high standard of excellence. Theda Bara has given us the best work of here career in the interpretation of the dashing, fearless Cigarette. Her wonderful versatility of countenance is irresistible, and we venture to predict that this role will become her most popular character portrayal, not excepting Carmen. The direction has been exceptionally well handled by Gordon Edwards. The English and Algerian atmosphere is most realistic, the action is swift and exciting, while the situations have been logically and well throughout. The photography is excellent, and the artistic exteriors add materially to the beauty of the production. Herbert Hayes as Bertie Cecil plays opposite Theda Bara and is very good throughout, while Stuart Holmes aind Claire Whitney add further laurels to their already abundant crowns. William Clifford and Margaret Gibson are also seen at Proctor's today in "Destiny's Boomerang," and comedy and novelty subjects are also provided.

Tomorrow Thomas H. Ince offers Bessie Barriscale in "The Payment." There is much that may be, will be and has been said of "The Payment," but there is nothing that will please film fans more than to know that the picture brings Miss Barriscale back as her own natural self. In several of her more recent successes Miss Barriscale has had to play character parts, but in "The Payment" she comes back as charming as in "Brown Eyes," and her other earlier successes. On Friday William A. Brady will offer his initial production to patrons of Proctor's entitled "A Woman's Way," with Carlyle Blackwell and Ethel Clayton assuming the leads.

A PRIVATE BACK FROM THE VACATION FRONT

.· Plainfield Theatre. ·.

A Scene From Arthur Hammerstein's Musical Success, "Katinka," Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, Matinee and Night.

With a cast of principals recruited from the very best musical comedy talent Broadway affords, and with one of the largest and sprightliest choruses that ever came out of New York, "Katinka," on its first tour of the United States, following its sensational success of last winter in the American theatrical metropolis, will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday matinee and night. "Katinka" is the work of Otto Hauerbach and Rudolf Friml, author and composer of "The Firefly" and "High Jinks," and was staged by Arthur Hammerstein, responsible for the elaborate staging of the two former production. It is credited with eclipsing its predecessors in mirthfulness, tunefulness and gorgeousness.

Russia, Turkey and Austria each furnish a picturesque locality for the development of the plot, which is in three acts. Katinka, a pretty Russian maiden, is being forced into a disagreeable marriage with an eldorly statesman, but on the night of her wedding, her lover, Ivan, learns that Boris already has a wife. He steals Katinka away, and the two, accompanied by an American friend named Hopper, proceed to Turkey, in search of Mrs. Boris, who is said to be hiding in a harem. After some exciting and ridiculous adventures in the domain of the Sultan, they proceed to Vienna, where Mrs. Boris is tracked at last, and where numerous complications that have arisen are straightened out.

The third edition of "Blutch" Cooper's famous burlesque show, "The Globe Trotters," which will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre next Monday matinee and night, is composed of many artists of note, heading the unusually large cast is Frank Hunter, the well known black face comedian and Eddie Swartz, character comedian; supporting these two stars will be found Elsie Lavedau, prima donna de luxe; George Hickman, Irving O'Hay, Bostonian Four, Virginia Ware, Julia Clifford, Flo Davenport, Isabella Sisters and a beauty chorus of singing and dancing dolls. The scenic and electrical equipment is entirely new, also the costuming, and nothing has been retained from last year but the title. Mr. Cooper supervised the production and every detail has been carefully looked after so as to make this season's edition of "The Glob Trotters" one of merit and excellence.

CRUSHED BETWEEN AUTOS BEING USED AT FUNERAL

Roselle Park, Aug. 30.—Just as the funeral cortege bearing the body of James Wilson was leaving his home in Westfield avenue yesterday, Walter Fitzsimmons, twenty-three years old, driver of one of the automobile coaches, was badly injured when crushed between two machines. He was stooping to crank the motor of his coach when the vehicle started forward. Beofre he could move out of the way he was crushed between it and the coach ahead.

An ambulance from the Elizabeth General Hospital was called and Fitzsimmons was taken to that institution in a serious condition. Fitzsimmons is married and resides in West New York. It was said at the hospital this noon that his injury consists of contusions in the left hip. He will recover.

FIELDER APPROPRIATES CASH TO FIGHT PARALYSIS SPREAD

Trenton, Aug. 30.—Upon request of President William H. Pugh and Director Jacob C. Price, of the State Department of Health, Governor Fielder has appropriated $1,500 from the emergency fund at his disposal to aid in the campaign against infantile paralysis. The health officials informed the Governor the department lacked sufficient funds to carry out its program as contemplated by the amendment to the sanitary code.

The Governor was shown a chart on which was indicated the various communities in which infantile paralysis had made its appearance and the number of cases in each. Both Dr. Price and Mr. Pugh expressed the belief that the epidemic is on the wane, but insisted there should be no let-up in the enforcement of regulations to prevent, as far as possible, its further spread.

ASTRONOMERS GET TOGETHER.

Swarthmore, Pa., August 30.—All the new stars, sunspots, eclipses, etc., which astronomers of the country have recorded during the year, will be formally presented to the public at the annual meeting of the American Astronomical Society, which began today at the Sproul observatory of Swarthmore College. It is the nineteenth annual meeting and the first that the society has held in this part of the country since 1911. The attendance includes many distinguished astronomers of the United States, Canada and Mexico. The sessions will continue through the remainder of the week. One day will be devoted to a visit to Valley Forge and dinner at the Flower observatory of the University of Pennsylvania.

PENNSYLVANIA EXPOSITION.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 30. An event of more than ordinary importance to the commercial and industrial interests of this section is the opening today of the twenty-eighth annual session of the Western Pennsylvania Exposition. The Federal Government has contributed an elaborate display to the show this year and in every department the exhibits are up to the high standard set in previous years. The exhibition will continue until October 14. The period will include the week's celebration in honor of the Charter centennial, which fact is expected to largely increase the number of visitors from out of town.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN PLANS WATER STUNTS FOR PUPILS

Learn to Accomplish the "Steamboat." Or, to Waltz in the Water—How to Turn Somersaults in the Water Described By Woman Record-holder.

Article No. 26.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

There is a great deal of fun and amusement to be had by doing little stunts in the water, and my Press pupils can arrange many enjoyable parties and competitions.

Swimming must not be taken too seriously by my pupils, for after you have mastered the art you should seek relaxation in the water by doing some of the tricks which add to the joys of swimming.

For instance, "The Steamboat"—the old back-wheeler, as one might term it. In order to do this properly, enter the water and turn on your back and float. Keep the hands against the hips, and work the feet up and down, "slapping" the water vigorously with the legs from the knees downward. Keep the legs "limbered."

Do try hard to overcome any stiffness in the water. With a litle practice you will be able to propel yourself speedily. Try and make a big splash with the feet, let them come out of the water. You will find this a very interesting and entertaining experiment.

Somersaulting in the water:

Take the same position as in the steamboat.

Now bring up the knees, until under the chin, and then quickly spread out the hands, palm downward, and push hard, using an outward stroke. You will find yourself revolving with great rapidity. Try it slowly at first and then increase the speed. This is a very simple trick, and the pupils of my class should be able to do this in a very short time.

Waltzing in the water:

This is done with the aid of the trudgeon stroke, and those of you who have mastered the trudgeon should be able to waltz in the water with ease.

Instead of continuing the double arm movement, if you will, after the right arm has started on its swing, bring the left arm out of the water, and with the same kick you now use, revolve the body so that the left arm swings over the body and as you turn, force the arms into the water with a full sweep and you will be surprised at the simpleness of this movement. Everything depends on the revolving of the body, which I am certain you will not be long in discovering.

Tomorrow—Proper Training for Swimmers is the theme of Miss Kellerman's article in The Press tomorrow. She also tells her pupils to choose between distance and sprinting records.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—A Little Mermaid Watches A Witch Brew.

And Then Up Through the Dark Blue Water She Rose.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn curled up on little stools beside daddy while he told them what a sea witch said to a little mermaid: "'I shall take your beautiful voice in return for the potion I brew you,' the old witch said.

"'But if you take my voice, what have I left?' cried the mermaid.

"'Your beautiful form, your gliding gait and your speaking eyes. Surely, with all these you ought to be able to bewitch a prince's heart. Well, have you lost courage? Put out your little tongue while I cut it off.'

"'Let it be done,' said the little mermaid.

"And the sea witch put on her powerful caldron to brew her magic potion.

"'There is nothing like cleanliness,' said the witch, scouring out the pot with a bundle of snakes. Then she pricked her own breast and let the black blood drop into the caldron.

"The steam from it took on the weirdest shapes, enough to frighten any one. Every minute the old sea witch threw new things into the pot. When it bubbled the sound was like crocodiles weeping. At last when the potion was ready it looked like the clearest water.

"'There it is!' cried the sea witch. And then she cut off the little mermaid's tongue, so that she was dumb now and could never sing or speak again.

"'If the polyps should seize you going back through my woods,' said the witch, 'just drop one drop of this liquid on them and their arms and fingers will burst into a thousand pieces.'

"But the little mermaid had no need to do this, for at the mere sight of the bright liquid which sparkled in her hand like a shining star they drew back in terror. So the little mermaid soon got safely back past the woods, the bog and the eddying whirlpools.

"Soon she swam to her father's palace. In the great ballroom, where a party had been held, the lights were now all out. No doubt all the family was asleep. But the little mermaid did not dare to go in now that she was dumb and about to leave home forever. She felt as if her heart would break with grief. She stole into the garden and plucked a flower from each of her six sisters' gardens. She threw countless kisses back toward the palace, and then up, up, through the dark blue water she rose."

"Oh, daddy, please don't stop now!" cried Evelyn.

And daddy looked at the clock, which said five minutes past bedtime, and kissed her twice.

Training a Husband

Morris Southy's Lost Papers Help Show an Unpleasant Side of His Nature.

"Marian, where did you put that course of study that I left here on the table last evening?" asked Morris Southy, pawing about among the papers on a little table in the dining room.

"I have not seen it dear," the pleasant voice replied.

"You must have seen it. I left it right here. It represents weeks of work." The pawing proceeded with redoubled energy.

"It can not have been destroyed. I never burn a paper unless you have crumpled it up and put it in the paper basket."

"That is what you always say." A snort of contempt burst from the irritated man. "It beats the world how so many things can be lost when no one touches them."

"Why, Morris, it is not strange that things are mislaid in the confusion of moving. You will find it I am sure, as we straighten out this confusion." The weary little woman left her work and came to join in the search.

"Half of my valuable time is spent hunting for things just because things can never be let alone."

"If you put the papers on the dining room table how can you expect to have them let alone when meal time comes. Why do you leave things on the table that will have to be used the first thing in the morning?" A weary sigh escaped from Marian's lips.

"Where would you have me work, I should like to know? I should suppose that my work would be the most important thing, as it is what earns us our bread, but no, it must be piled any old place with the rest of the rubbish you keep around here. Morris opened the drawer at the bottom of the book case and began clawing the contents out onto the floor.

"Morris, please do not disturb those things. They are mine and I arranged them with great care after midnight last night. How are we ever to get settled if you undo as fast as I straighten?" Marian hastened to save the remnant of her belongings from destruction.

"Well, it must be some place around here if, as you say, you have not burned it up, which is more than I expect. I haven't a place where I can keep my things." He was shoving the chairs around irritably with what his sister called "wooden swearing."

"Why do you not leave everything and get your study settled?" asked his wife as she patiently rearranged the wrecked drawer. "I have given you the room you wanted for a study. I should think it would be better to wait until that was settled before you began to work."

"You said you could not set the study till everything else was in order," snapped Morris. "It is as it always is, my wants are attended to last."

"Pardon me." Marian's cheeks were scarlet, but she controlled herself and her tone was low. "I must get things in order enough to get the meals and care for the children. Why can you not settle your own study?"

"Do you realize that I have scarcely a month before school begins and have a great deal of work to get done before that time." Morris spoke in a high, erratic voice.

"If, as you say, half of your time is spent in looking for things, I should think it would be economy of time to get your study ready in order that you would not misplace your papers."

"I guess I shall have to settle it if I ever get it settled," was the ungracious answer.

"We have been in this house less than two weeks, Morris, and the baby takes a great deal of my time, you know."

"Oh, yes, it is always the baby!" exploded the exasperated man.

"Mother, here is father's leather case. I found it just outside the gate," called Frank, handing it to her.

"Why, how did it get there?" she was almost pale with surprise, taking Morris' most cherished possession in which he carried his papers back and forth from school.

"Oh, I left it there. I set it inside to go to speak to Dr. Ellson and forgot it. And—I remember I put the course of study in it to take to the school house to work on it yesterday." To do him justice, Morris' air was rather crestfallen.

"And I have spent three-quarters of an hour looking for it," said Marian with compressed lips. Her husband pretended not to hear. Discipline must be maintained, but he had himself been at fault.

ONE-PIECE FROCK VERY POPULAR.

This Garment May Be of Serge, Soiree or Mohair to Be Very Fashionable.

By Mary Glynn.

It has been authentically stated that the one-piece frock would be considered the correct thing for general afternoon wear. There are various degrees of dressiness exhibited in these garments, and this is usually gauged by the fabric used and the manner of trimming adapted. Serge, velour, mohair and soiree silk will be the materials generally adapted for this type of garment. In the simpler styles the evidence of buttons in great number is one of the distinctive features. The dressier creations of soiree, mohair or meteor are richly embroidered in self or contrasting tones. Entirely new and at the same time very effective, is the evidence of silk stitching as trimming. This is decidedly chic, and it will be observed that not only is the silk stitching evident as trimming, but it is also used throughout the actual workmanship, a thing that has not been done for some time. The use of cotton and mercerized silks has to a great extent taken the place of silk thread. However, this season Dame Fashion has sanctioned the silk thread treatment throughout all high-class garments, and so the demand must be met. The white silk stitching on this navy meteor afternoon gown proves very attractive, while the white pontine collar and hat facing go far to complete the outfit in a consistent color combination. The high glazed kid button boots also contribute to the blue and white.

GERMAN BAPTISTS AT DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., August 30.—The triennial general conference of the German Baptist churches of North America opened here today with a good attendance, those present including delegates from many parts of the United States and Canada, together with prominent mission workers from foreign fields. The conference meets in the Woodward Avenue Baptist church, with the Rev. L. Kaiser, of the Rochester Theological seminary, presiding as moderator. The sessions will continue until September 5. The program is exhaustive, embracing all departments of the work of the denomination, with liberal time designated for reports from missionary and evangelical work. One of the important matters scheduled for consideration is the decision regarding the location for the new orphans asylum which is now in Louisville, Ky. St. Joseph, Mich., appears to be the choice of the majority of the delegates as the location for the institution.

BACKING UP PROOF.

The Kind that Plainfield People Cannot Deny.

Many an earnest Plainfield man or woman has publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills.

Week after week, month after month you've read their statements.

Would these Plainfield people recommend any medicine if it were not good?

Would they confirm and repeat their statements after years had passed?

Local proof is good evidence.

Testimony confirmed years after is better evidence.

The following Plainfield statement leaves no room for doubt.

It must convince every kidney sufferer who reads it.

If your back aches—if your kidneys are weak, profit by Mr. Naylor's experience:

Albert Naylor, musician, 256 East Second street, Plainfield, says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull aching in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and I think I took only two boxes when the pains left me and I was feeling first-class in every respect."

The above statement was given on August 28, 1905, and on August 7, 1916, Mr. Naylor said: "I don't hesitate to confirm the public endorsement I have given Doan's Kidney Pills before, for they have proven their reliability whenever I have had pains across my kidneys. Never once have they failed to give satisfactory relief in the usual short time."

Price 50c, at all druggists. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Naylor had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

BERKSHIRE CONGRESS AT TRENTON'S FAIR

Special Money Awards at Exposition From September 25 to 29.

Giving added recognition to the important position held by the Trenton Fair among the expositions of the country, the American Berkshire Congress Association will hold its eastern show this year in conjunction with the Inter-State Fair Association from September 25 to 29.

The Fair Association is to have the judging of the classes done by Professor C. F. Curtiss, Dean and Director of the Iowa Experiment Station at Ames, Ia. Professor Curtiss is one of the country's authorities in this work.

Special premiums are to be offered in the Cattle, Sheep and Swine Departments this year and it is believed that the exhibit will surpass all others. Breeders generally regard the occasion as opportune for the greatest swine show ever held in the East and the classes at Trenton Fair will assume extraordinary proportions.

Professor F. C. Minkler, of New Brunswick, Superintendent of the department, has revised the entire schedule and classification and greatly enlarged its scope. During the past few years unusual interest has been manifested in sheep and swine production and the American Berkshire Congress Show will give evidence of the progress that has been made. The Congress will insure remarkable entries in the Berkshire classes. The schedule that has been arranged for swine is in keeping with recommendations made by the National Swine Association and will provide one more in accord with the demands of the swine breeder.

A total of $600 is offered for Berkshires alone at this exposition. A portion of this money is provided by the American Berkshire Congress Association and the balance by the Directors of the Inter-State Fair Association. In addition to the regular prize money $350 will be distributed to the Berkshire classes.

For Holsteins the Holstein-Friesian Association of America will add 12 per cent to the listed premium providing that all animals awarded prizes are actually registered in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. The money will be paid direct to the exhibitor by the Holstein-Friesian Association.

George Batten of Montclair offers to owners of Jersey Cattle in New Jersey a silver cup for the best male of the breed. Mr. Batten is President of the New Jersey Cattle Club Association. The Hamilton Farm at Gladstone, N. J., will present to the owners of Jersey cattle in New Jersey a silver cup for the best female of the breed.

Special premiums will also be competed for by members of the New Jersey Guernsey Breeders' Association. Among the others will be a handsome sterling silver cup for the advanced registered cow. The judging will be in accord with details for inheritance, individual and production approved by the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

For the Cattle, Sheep and Swine Departments the entries will close Tuesday, September 19.

The program that has been arranged for the Cattle Department, Sheep and Swine judging has been arranged as follows:

Monday, September 25—All animals will be on exhibition in stalls and pens with attendants in charge.

Tuesday, September 26—Judging in tent of Guernseys and Jerseys. Judging of swine.

Wednesday, September 27—Judging in tent of Holsteins and Ayrshires. Judging of sheep.

Thursday, September 28—Judging other classes not finished on schedule.

Friday, September 29—All animals on exhibition in stalls with placards posted showing winnings.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

SENTIMENT MAY DECIDE.

The Brooklyn team is in more danger of toppling right now than at any time since they regained the top berth of the National circuit. Robinson's men have struck a couple of rough snags lately, have had the breaks go against them, and only a few points' margin separates the club from its nearest rival now. Followers of the game give Boston the best chance for the pennant if Brooklyn breaks. Sentiment is with the Dodgers. There is a big difference in the personality of the Brooklyn club as compared with the Braves. Sentiment is liable to play an important part in the finish, too. Robinson is one of those kind of fellows who make friends and keep them, while Stallings cannot boast of adding many new fellows to his list. The Brave pilot has an attitude of an overbearing kind that is felt even in the stands, and the fans are always pulling against him. The other teams do not have much of a liking for Stallings or many members of his team. George has instilled his spirit into the club, and the Boston Braves this season have been criticised more for their personal spirit on the field than any club that ever held a berth in the National League. On the other hand, the Dodger team is made up of fellows who show a friendly spirit, who have not allowed success to turn their heads. The other clubs will play hard to win every game, no matter if it be against Brooklyn or Boston, but there will be an undercurrent of sentiment that may cut a big figure. Pittsburgh fans, almost unanimously, are pulling for the Dodgers to win now that the Bucs have no chance, as every member of the Dodger team is a big favorite there. It is the big opportunity of the Pirate club to crimp the chances of Stallings, the same as they did to Pat Moran, and the moral support of the spectators will be with Callahan's crew in the present series with Boston.

THE CADDY.

It is gratifying to note that in many of the golf clubs of the State arrangements have been made for caddy tournaments. We feel very strongly on the subject of the caddy. These little fellows work a good deal harder than most golfers appreciate and they get comparatively little consideration and attention. We know from personal experience that golfers rush ahead on hot days, for example, without stopping to think that these little fellows are trudging along under the burden of a heavy bag full of clubs, and that a few words of commendation or consideration are rarely given them. When they are spoken to, many times it is in a peevish way and impatiently.

The golfer of today has a grave responsibility about these caddies. Instead of showing the worst that is in him the golfer should show his best. He should be a model to these young and developing citizens and above all he should show them some consideration now and then. A good way to do it is to chip in a little money for a tournament.

We hope that there is not a golf club in the State of New Jersey employing caddies that will overlook this feature this season.

THERE MUST BE A REASON.

"A good quantity of unnecessary controversy has arisen over the resignation of Harry Clark, as manager of the Brewers.

"There is no necessity whatever for argument over this case. Every one is entitled to his own opinion. If I feel deeply the loss to the team of Harry Clark, I have just as much right to express that feeling as the man who rejoices at his loss.

"Where controversy exists it is difficult to be fair. I believe that Mr. Clark worked hard and conscientiously for the best interests of the team and it is certain that he worked here a great many years faithfully. It may be that the Brewers will show better results now that he is gone, but it seems to me that he should be praised and commended for his long, faithful service. Further than this I do not care to go and certainly I do not care to enter into any controversy over his resignation."—Arbiter.

SHORT SKETCH OF "MUGGSY."

John McGraw took charge of the Giants in July, 1902, after flying the American League coop and returning to the National League field. Incidentally, that is a day of bitter memories for Baltimore, as the fans of that city hold McGraw responsible for the fact that the Maryland metropolis is a minor league town, although larger than several cities in the big show.

McGraw, who was popular in Baltimore as a veteran of the pennant winning Orioles of the National League, was placed in charge of the Baltimore American League club in 1901. Almost from the first McGraw and President Johnson were at loggerheads, and the warfare between the league boss and the scrappy pilot reached its culmination in July, 1902, when McGraw, Kelley and Mahon, the controlling stockholders of the Baltimore club, sold their stock to the National League.

McGraw then went to New York, and on July 19 was engaged as manager of the Giants by Andrew Freedman, then owner of the Polo grounds aggregation. McGraw took with him to New York several of the stars of the Baltimore club and left behind him a lawsuit which so disgusted the Baltimore fans that the attendance dropped off.

Wilbert Robinson took charge of the remnants of the Baltimore club and piloted it through the remainder of the season, but the magnates of the new circuit were so soured on Baltimore that the city was dropped from the league.

Andrew Freedman, who was the president of the New York club when McGraw was hired, and who died a few months ago, had been the owner of the Giants since 1895, and between that year and 1902 the club had thirteen managers, including George Davis, Jack Doyle, Harry Watkins, Arthur Irwin, Scrappy Bill Joyce, Cap Anson, John B. Day, Fred Hoey, Buck Ewing, George Smith and Horace Fogel.

EVIDENTLY MULLIN WILL NOT PLAY HERE

Billy Pfau, of Perth Amboy, Arranges Series, So Tommy May Leave.

The following is a clipping from a Perth Amboy newspaper and indicates that Tommy Mullin will not play in this city next Sunday:

"Despite the cancellation of the Rahway series, the indications are today that baseball will get a big boom in this city during the month of September and the first Sunday in October.

"If plans do not miscarry, Billy Pfau's Amboy team will take a trip to New Brunswick next Sunday to start a big three game series with the Knights of St. Peter's of New Brunswick for the championship of Middlesex county.

"The New Brunswick boys will then come to Amboy for the second game on Sunday, September 10, and if a third game is needed a coin will be tossed to determine whether the deciding game will be played here or in New Brunswick on Sunday, September 17."

The loss of Mullin will be felt considerably by the Tabs, who play Pete Simmons' Royal Giants on Sunday. However, Manager Tommy Apgar, of the Dunellen baseball team, can rest assured that Thomas Mullin will be with his boys on Saturday. The present plans of the Perth Amboy manager do not include any Saturday games and it is highly probable that Tommy will be content to play in this city on Saturdays.

THE CHAMPION RED SOX

It was freely predicted in the early season that without the services of Tris Speaker the Red Sox would fail to get anywhere. But the Carrigans knew that predictions didn't secure pennants, so they started out to win enough games to turn the trick.

The pitching of Ernie Shore, called "the Shore Line to Pennantville," has been gilt-edged this season. Barring accident Shore should prove a world-beater from now on to the grand finale.

During the fifteen years Boston has been in the American League its team has won four pennants and three world's championships. The team has won every world's series in which it has taken part.

In 1906 the Red Sox established an American League record by losing twenty consecutive games.

The Red Sox have finished in the cellar but once and in the second division only three times. They finished last in 1906, seventh in 1907 and fifth in 1908.

Season records indicate that the Red Sox are weak in batting, run getting and base stealing. This three-play weakness, however, has not prevented the Carrigans from setting the pace in the pennant scramble.

The Red Sox share with the Athletics the record of the longest game ever played in the major league. On September 1, 1906, the two teams battled twenty-four innings before the Athletics finally won the contest by a score of 4 to 1.

Third baseman Larry Gardner is the only member of the Red Sox who is batting with the .300 set of American League wallopers.

Harry Hooper, the brilliant Red Sox gardener, leads his team in both run getting and base stealing. Hooper is the only Sock among the first fifteen American Leaguers in both departments of the game.

Jack Barry is the leading pennant pastimer with the Carrigan crew. Jack has been a member of five pennant winning teams—four in Philadelphia and one in Boston.

Manager Bill Carrigan joined the Red Sox in 1905. The next year he was sent to Toronto and in 1908 was recalled by the Sox. He succeeded Jake Stahl as manager of the team July 25, 1913.

After the concluding game with the Browns in Boston on August 32 the Red Sox will start on their final trip around the Eastern and Western circuits, returning to Boston on September 27 for the wind-up games of the season, four with the Yankees and three with the Athletics.

The Red Sox are generally credited with possessing the greatest pitching staff in the American League. Shore, Ruth, Mays, Leonard and Foster form a twirling staff second to none in big league company.

ROYAL GIANTS AND NETHERWOODS MAY NOT GET TOGETHER ON PARKER FIELD MONDAY

Westfield Team on "Inside Track"—It Is Contended That the Westfielders Have No "Opponents" As Yet—Netherwood Wants to Play On South Avenue Field—Avon Oval May Be Secured—"Chief" Morris to Pitch One Game Here.

There is trouble in the air. The Netherwoods may not play the Royal Giants on Parker Field on Labor Day, two reasons having been officially assigned. In the first place, it is highly probable that Parker Field cannot be secured for the occasion, and in the second place, it is said that Netherwood wants to play on their home grounds. Pete Simmons will not lead his team against Netherwood on the South avenue field, assigning as his reason the fact that the Netherwood field is not by any means a fit one. And most fans agree with Simmons.

The reason assigned for the inability to secure Parker Field is the fact that the manager of the Westfield A. A. has had first call and has been given a permit. Supervisor George Wriston stated this morning that the manager of the Westfield team came to him a few days ago and requested a permit to play baseball on Parker Field. Mr. Wriston, receiving assurances that the game to be played would be a good one, issued a permit for Labor Day and was forced to refuse a similar permit to the Royal Giants, who applied later. Now there is a current rumor that there is no local team that has been secured to play the Westfielders. Manager Warden could not be reached this morning, but it was stated that he had tried to secure Hope Chapel as an attraction. He was not successful in this attempt.

The manager of the Royals declared that he would endeavor to secure Avon Oval if it was impossible for him to get Parker Field. It is his intention to discuss the matter with the Tab manager at once and he feels that he will be successful.

"Chief" Morris, the Carlisle Indian, will pitch one game here.

MARTY O'LOUGHLIN NOT TO COMPETE

Plainfield's Usual Representative Has Not Entered Name On National Golf List.

Jerome D. Travers, four times amateur champion of the United States, will not try again for the national title on the course of the Merion Cricket Club, near Philadelphia, next week. The list of entries for the championship was issued yesterday by Howard F. Whitney, secretary of the United States Golf Association, and the name of the golfer who has won more national crowns than any other was not among them.

Travers has not been in the best of health recently, being troubled by a heavy cold much like that which attacked him just before the championship at Detroit a year ago, and knowing that he would not be at his best decided to stay out of the tourney. He has played no competitive golf this season except in exhibition four ball matches, for business has taken up most of his time. Under these conditions he cannot be blamed for deciding not to enter.

The name of Marty O'Loughlin, Plainfield's usual representative, is not registered on the list of entrants. Perhaps he has decided not to compete.

PLAINFIELD HORSES AT MONMOUTH FAIR

"The Baron" and "Owyhamac" Expected to Do Well at Red Bank.

With more entries and larger purses than ever and well known horsemen as officials, the best program of harness races ever seen at a Monmouth Fair near Red Bank is assured for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Horace P. Murphy, of Syracuse, who is racing secretary at the big fairs at Middletown, N. Y., and Trenton, has a list of entries that compares favorably with racing events of the larger fairs. He has secured several entries in the various classes from the Comsewogue Farm, Monroe, N. Y., of which H. S. Crosman, a young New York millionaire, is owner; the Bell Farm, Norristown, Pa., owned by James Bell, a well-known Philadelphia horseman, whose trotters and pacers are driven by John A. White, popularly known on half-mile tracks of the East; entries by T. W. Bassett, a prominent New York sportsman; by Supreme Court Judge A. S. Tompkins, of Nyack, N. Y., and W. H. Leese, of the Parkway Driving Club of Brooklyn.

A large number of entries from prominent stables throughout New Jersey have also been received, including those of Earl Pitman, of Trenton, one of the largest money winners on half-mile tracks last year; H. E. Winter, of Plainfield; the Boylan Bros., of East Orange; N. C. Bonham, of Salem; Theodore Pope, of Freehold; Charles Applegate, of Freehold; Charles Mabrey, of Hohokus; E. W. Price and H. A. Muhlenbrink, of Long Branch, and Charles McCue, of Lakewood.

Dr. H. E. Winter, of this city, has entered "The Baron" in the 2:20 trot and has placed "Owyhamac" in the 2:14 pace. Each race is for a purse of $400 and each will be run tomorrow.

PHIL AND LUDLOW VAN DE VENTER REPRESENT PLAINFIELD IN NATIONAL TENNIS EVENT

Although These Lads Play For Princeton, They Are Native Sons—Phil Is Still In the Running—Ludlow Has Been Eliminated—S. H. Voshell to Oppose Younger VanDeventer Today—Results of Other Sets.

Playing a smooth game, in which the best doubles machinery was seen, Clarence J. Griffin and William M. Johnston, the Pacific Coast tennis stars, retained the laurels they won a year ago, and once more are the champions of the United States. Five thousand enthusiasts crowded the stands of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills yesterday afternoon when the title holders met the famous Maurice E. McLoughlin and Ward Dawson, two other Californians, in the challenge round, and although there have been many more national finals seen in which there was far better competition, there was hardly one before in which there was so much interest. Nearly every one in the crowd was rooting for McLoughlin. They wanted to see their idol crowned once more, and whenever he brought off one of his old-time "kills" the gathering cheered, contrary to the ethics of a tennis following. The score was 6—4, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3.

All the sympathy was with McLoughlin's quest of the premier honors. Sympathy, however, could not win for him, and Dawson, for the other team, was too good in the polished work of the doubles game. Griffin and Johnston worked together without a hitch, and never once was an error of judgment seen on their side of the net.

Phil Van Deventer, one of the two Van Deventer brothers of this city, who represent Princeton in the tourney, is still in the running. Ludlow Van Deventer is out of the race, having been defeated by Robert Le Roy. Phil had for an opponent C. S. Rogers, who he defeated after a hard tussle, which extended for five sets, the local player winning the last three sets in the easiest fashion. The scores of the sets played were 4—6, 2—6, 6—3, 6—4 and 6—4.

In the competition scheduled for today the local candidate for the national title will have to face S. H. Voshell, who earned the right to remain in the competition by virtue of a victory over J. B. Adoue, Jr. Harry Throckmorton defeated W. H. Tilden, Jr., and Hachishiro Mikami was eliminated. Japan's hopes now rest on the shoulders of one Ichiya Kumagae.

The Japanese, Kumagae started his match on a side court before the doubles were under way, and he found a large gallery anxious to see him play. His first opponent gave him little more than moderate exercise, but the students were interested in comparing his style with that of the American experts and most particularly in estimating his chances against Church today. Church, meanwhile, was also earning his first easy brackets on an adjoining court, but a high backstop netting between them made it impossible to watch both at the same time.

Roland Roberts, of California, went four sets to defeat Craig Biddle, and Harold A. Thockmorton went a similar route to eliminate W. T. Tilden, Jr. Eugene Warren, another Californian, eliminated Charley Chambers, the Brooklyn veteran.

Charles M. Bull, Jr., fell before William Rand 2d. Ben Phillips lost a marathon battle to Irving Riker. L. E. Mahan defeated John Pfaffman, of Harvard. Dick Harte scored over Sidney Thayer, of Philadelphia. Watson M. Washburn defeated Ed Fixman, and Leonard Beekman outfought Irving C. Wright. The draw was brought down even to the second round with thirty-two matches scheduled for today.

THE "CUT-OUT" NUISANCE.

Practically every built up community in the State, or in the country, for that matter has ordinances against the menacing noise of automobile "cut-outs," yet automobiles are permitted to make life miserable as they race through certain sections of New Brunswick unhampered in their ear splitting noise making.

Residents of George street, between Commercial and Clifton avenues are especially annoyed by this nuisance, despite repeated complaints to the police department. A rather elaborate set of police rules were recently adopted. Let's add one that will permit people who have residences in any section of New Brunswick to occupy them with reasonable comfort.—New Brunswick Home News.

MOLLA BJURDSTEDT WON MATCH IN STRAIGHT SETS

Recognizing the fact that many prominent women tennis players were in New York during the national championship week, the Rockaway Hunting Club arranged a three-day invitation tournament, and play began on the club's turf courts yesterday. Most of the first round matches were completed in the morning, so as to enable the women to take in the important matches at Forest Hills in the afternoon.

Interest in the tournament centred in the first local appearance in many weeks of Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the national champion, who has gone through a long season of competition without defeat. The Norwegian girl had a strong opponent in Miss Marion Vanderhoef in her first round match, but although extended more than usual, won in straight sets.

PROPOSALS FOR MACADAMIZING.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council at the Council Chamber No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at 8 o'clock, p. m., on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1916, for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the macadamizing contemplated in the ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 17, 1916, and approved by the Mayor July 18, 1916, and as provided for in the specifications entitled "City of Plainfield, N. J., Proposal, Conditions, Specifications, Contract and Bond, for the Permanent Improvement of Streets, 1916," filed in the office of the City Clerk August 7, 1916.

Upon receipts of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of said prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

A separate price must be named for each street, and proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Macadamizing."

Get the Wood that's Easy to Work

CARPENTERS and builders of experience always prefer to use WHITE PINE.

It's so easy to work with. The smooth, yielding grain saves time and effort and doesn't dull tools.

WHITE PINE

is the most economical wood even at a slightly higher first cost because of this easy-working, time-saving quality, and still more because of long service.

It does not warp, swell, shrink, twist, sag or rot even under most trying conditions. It stays put for years in closest mitres and delicate mouldings. And it takes paint perfectly.

No other wood stands exposure so well. None wears so dependably.

Use WHITE PINE for all outside finish and siding, or on the interior where you want a wood that will not shrink. Save money in the long run and insure satisfactory building.

We have WHITE PINE. Any items not in stock we can quickly get.

FIVE TROOPERS GET DISCHARGES

Mellick, Brewster, Perkins, Tyler and Joost Coming Home.

COX WILL RUN AGAIN

Authorizes Announcement of Candidacy For Re-election to Council From Third Ward—Sickler Is Promoted to Sergeant.

By James J. McNamee.

Douglas Ariz., Aug. 31.—Discharges have been granted to J. Hartley Mellick, James H. Brewster, Jr., Maxwell E. Perkins, William B. Tyler and Sherman B. Joost.

The non-commissioned officers received notices of favorable action on their applications last night and today they are packing their kits in preparation for the trip home, which begins tomorrow. They will go to Fort Dupont, Delaware, to be mustered out and should be with loved ones in Plainfield early next week.

All the vacancies were granted on the dependent family order. Other married non-commissioned officers in the troop have made application, but nothing has been heard by them. Other discharges are expected daily.

Councilman Robert H. Cox authorizes the announcement that he will be a candidate for re-election to the Common Council from the Third Ward. He has held up answer to the telefram of Chairman John J. Carroll, pending news of Mayor Calkins' decision. Councilman Cox has been urged by the Mayor to run again, and now that Mr. Calkins has decided to go into the Republican primaries, Mr. Cox will follow him.

Three privates from the Fourth New Jersey regiment deserted Saturday. They were caught at Aninams, New Mexico, and are today in the guard house in irons. Their cases will be disposed of tomorrow.

Many discharge applications have been handed to the officers of Troop D and if all the men who seek release orders are turned loose many recruits will be needed. There is keen rivalry for the vcancies created by the discharge of Mellick, Brewster, Perkins and Tyler. Already Trooper John Sickler has been promoted to quartermaster sergeant, to succeed Sherman Joost. Sickler's promotion is a popular move. He enlisted when the troop was called out, but had served in the regular army and had a sharpshooter's medal, also one for valiant service on foreign soil.

F. S. LINN GOES TO A LARGER FIELD

Local Y. M. C. A. Man to Assume Duties In Philadelphia.

The resignation of Frederick S. Linn, boys' work director of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. takes effect after today's work. Mr. Linn goes to Philadelphia Monday, where he will take over important duties in the Central Association there.

Although but a year in Plainfield, Mr. Linn has materially strengthened the boys' department of the local association, especially increasing the membership and the interest among employed boys, and it was because of this efficient service in Plainfield that he was called to the larger field. In Philadelphia he will have the title of Assistant Director of Boys' Work, but will personally be in charge of the employed boys' department, one of the most important activities of the association.

"We all regret to lose Mr. Linn very much," said General Secretary Estes this morning. "We have learned to admire him as a worker and as a man during his stay in Plainfield, and while we rejoice at his opportunity to do a bigger and better work, we hate to see him go."

Mr. Linn has also been active in the affairs of the Park Avenue Baptist church while here and has been teacher of the men's Bible class.

Mr. and Mrs. Linn will visit Mrs. Linn's relatives in Newark for the week-end and will go to Philadelphia Monday morning.

Secretary A. C. Estes, of the Y. M. C. A., was back at his desk yesterday after a month's vacation. Mr. Estes is outlining plans for the winer activities of the association and will also plunge at once into preliminary work for the big building campaign to take place in November, when $250,000 for a new home will be raised.

WILL RETURN SEPTEMBER 6.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, who is enjoying a vacation, will return in time to take charge of the mid-week prayer meeting at the church, Wednesday night, September 6.

GREEK KING RUNS FROM THE ALLIES

Force Landed at Piraeus Is Engaged In Bloody Battle.

LONDON HEARS RUMORS

Expects Greece to Enter War at Once—Roumanians Win Sweeping Victory Over Austrians, Taking Almost 1,000 Prisoners.

London, Aug. 31.—Wild stories of bloody outbreaks resulting from the unrest in Greece are reaching here hourly. It is rumored tthat the Allies have landed a strong force at Piraeus which was opposed by the Greek army and that violent fighting has followed. The purpose of this landing, is is said, was to capture King Constantine's summer palace there. The King has fled to Larissa from Athens, and is believed to be under a strong escort of Germans there.

While these rumors are sent by the official Salonica news representatives of the British government, and are therefore accurately reported, no assurance is given that the reports are true. Because of the unsettled conditions in Greece nothing that is not official can be given full credence just now. London believes, however, that the nation will be enrolled with the Allies in another day.

Germans Shift Attacks.

Paris, Aug. 31.—Shifting their attacks to Lorraine, the Germans penetrated French trenches in the sector of Parroy, but were immediately rejected by means of a counter attack, the War Office announced today.

Finnish Steamer Sunk.

Stockholm, Aug. 31.—The Finnish steamer Vallamo has been sunk by a mine or torpedo off the coast of Finland. The cargo was saved.

Austrians Reported in Flight.

London, Aug. 31.—Roumanian troops have advanced thirty miles into Hungary, driving the Austro-Hungarians before them in wild flight. Six important passes in the Transylvanian Alps are in the hands of the Roumanians and Russians, some of which were taken without a struggle. The Roumanians have taken more than 1,000 prisoners.

Allied Steamers Blown Up.

Copenhagen, Aug. 30.—The Dagansvyheter says that recently a number of merchant ships belonging to the Allies have been blow up in Finnish harbors by bombs placed upon them by escaped Austrian prisoners. Two steamers were thus blown up at Olesberg and five at Jaconstadt.

No Orders for Execution.

Dublin, Aug. 31.—That Captain Colthurst acted against orders when he caused the shooting of Sheehey Skeffington, Fred MacIntyre and Thos. Dixon, was the testimony today at the government investigation of the execution.

Germans Repulsed at Kovel.

Petrograd, Aug. 31.—German troops are continuing their offensive in the Volhynia despite their inability to push the Russians back from the Stokhod River. The War Office today reported the repulse of German assaults at Kovel, stating that severe losses had been inflicted upon the Germans.

PARALYSIS STILL SHOWS DECREASE IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 30.—There was a decrease of 29 in the new cases of infantile paralysis reported today and a decrease of one death, as compared with the 24 hours previous. The total to date is 8,046; deaths, 1,932.

FRED MILLS TO WED MISS MARTHA CASNER

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Martha C. Casner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Casner, of Kensington avenue, and Fred Mills, of 538 West Seventh street. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride-elect on Saturday. Mr. Mills is well-known here in athletic circles, being pitcher for the First Baptist team in the City League.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

NO DELIVERY OF MAIL ON MONDAY

New Ruling of Postal Department Announced By Postmaster Hoagland.

Postmaster Alvin E. Hoagland announced today that there will be no delivery of mail in Plainfield or North Plainfield on Monday, Labor Day, under the new ruling of the Postal Department at Washington. Mails will be dispatched from the local postoffice, however, the same as on business days, but letters, etc., must be mailed at the postoffice and not in the letter boxes.

The postoffice will be open until 10 o'clock Monday morning for those having lock boxes and it will be possible to get mail through the regular delivery window. Mail will be collected from all letter boxes at the usual holiday time, that is after 3 o'clock in the afternoon and will be dispatched that night.

PHIL VAN DEVENTER OUT OF TOURNEY

Local Lad Eliminated By S. H. Voshell In Straight Sets.

With the completion of the second round of the national lawn tennis singles championship yesterday at Forest Hills, all doubt of the title remaining in the United States was settled by the elimination of Ishiyya Kumagae, champion of Japan, and A. W. MacPherson, one of the best players in Russia. George M. Church, of Tenafly, N. J., disposed of the Japanese in straight sets by a score of 6—3, 6—3, 6—1, and Dan Mathey, another old Princetonian, took care of the Russian with the Scotch cognomen in a hard fought contest, the score of which was 6—4, 7—5, 2—6, 8—6.

Phil Van Deventer, who represented the Netherwood Tennis Club, in the national event, was eliminated by S. H. Voshell, the scores of the sets being 6—3, 6—4 and 6—3. Ludlow Van Deventer, an elder brother, was eliminated in the first round of the contest.

WILL NOT PAY $1,000 TO BEAUTIFY SEWER PLANT

A motion authorizing the expenditure of $1,000 in beautifying the joint sewer plant of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen was defeated at the meeting of the joint board last night. Upon recommendation of the engineers, Councilman Hylan, of Plainfield, moved that the committee on modification of plans be authorized to plant young trees now for the purpose of beautifying grounds arount the plant, but Mayor Smalley and others from North Plainfield opposed the motion and it was lost. Other routine matters in connection with the sewer work were disposed of.

BOROUGH PREPARES FOR LABOR DAY PARADE

About seven members of the North Plainfield Police Department will participate in the big Labor Day parade. The officers will be mounted and will be led by Chief Marshal George Weiss. It is not known whether or not the new fire engine will be put in the parade.

Much decorating has been done along the line of march in North Plainfield, and the merchants on Somerset street have responded willing ly to the request that they decorate their places of business. The North Plainfield Fire Headquarters, Neidig's butcher shop, Joe Church's grocery, the Union Pacific Tea Company and Pfister's Hotel have already been decorated.

SAMUEL RUBEN FINED $20 FOR ILLEGAL SELLING

Charged witth selling liquor without a license, Samuel Rubin, proprietor of the Red Cross drug store at West Fourth and Liberty streets, pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned before City Judge De Meza this morning and was fined $20. Mrs. Fannie Rubin, his wife, who was found guilty on three counts when arraigned in court last week, paid her fine this morning on two counts, $20 on each, the third one being suspended on the motion of Assistant Corporation Counsel W. L. Hetfie'd, Jr. The complaint against Jacob Rubin was dismissed this morning, because it was found that he was not connected witth the affair.

This morning's trial marks the end of the "speakeasy" in the West End that residents had complained of for over a year. The evidence was obtained following a raid made several weeks ago by Police Captain John Flynn and Sergeant Maurice Higgins.

CANDIDATES ARE FILING PETITIONS

Keen Rivalry Already Indicated Among Many Who Seek Office.

UNION CO. ASPIRANTS

Assemblymen Runyon, Pierson and Morgan Will All Be Opposed—Hard Fight Expected For County Clerkship—Candidates In Somerset

Considerable interest is being centered in the primaries to be held on Tuesday, September 26, and judging from the number of candidates in the field for the various offices to be filled there will be keen rivalry. The petitions for candidates for Governor, United States Senator and Congressmen were filed on Monday, while those for State Senator, Assembly, member of State committee, Sheriff, County Clerk and all other county officers must be filed by September 1. Petitions for municipal officers must be filed by September 6.

The various members of the district boards of registry and election will meet next Tuesday for organization, and on September 12 the usual canvass of voters must begin. Voters will be able to register on primary day for the election on November 7.

Assemblyman W. N. Runyon, Arthur Pierson and C. B. Morgan, of Union county, will all be candidates for renomination. Those already mentioned as candidates for the Assembly on the Democratic ticket include Walter H. Tavener, of Westfield; Hugh Treacey, of this city; Thomas F. Hueston and Edward McGrath, of Elizabeth.

Another interesting contest will be for the County Clerkship, now held by Abram P. Morris. He will seek a renomination, and will be opposed by Colonel W. B. Martin, Edward Bauer and Neil McLeod, of Elizabth, and Richard Fordham, of Rahway, all Republicans. All four are conducting an aggressive campaign for the nomination. Union county will not elect a Sheriff this year.

Union county will also furnish candidates for United States Senator in James E. Martine, for Congress in Charles N. Fowler and Richard Boardman, the latter of this city, who will oppose Congressman John H. Capstick.

In addition, Plainfield will elect a Mayor, ward councilmen and other minor officers, all of which will add to the interest of the coming campaign. The fact that the "no-license" people of Plainfield will take part in the primaries and election has stirred both parties and the workers and leaders are now getting busy.

In Somerset county a lively contest is expected at the primaries. On the Republican ticket there will be at least two candidates for Sheriff to succeed Charles P. Sebring. Deputy Sheriff Ellsworth Brokaw, of Somer-Somerville, and L. B. Woolston, of North Plainfield, having declared their intentions of seeking the office. Assemblyman Ogden Hammond, who seeks a renomination, will be opposed by John Ammerman, of Neshanic, who will run on a local option ticket.

Martin Wyckoff, of Bedminster township, will be a candidate for the Assembly nomination on the Democratic ticket, while on the same ticket Joseph Buck, of Bernardsville, and Charles S. Hamilton, of Somerville, will go after the shrievalty honors. Jacob Shurts, of Somerville, is a candidate for State committeeman on this ticket.

HENRY SLOAN JOHNSON.

Funeral services for Henry Sloan Johnson, colored, who dieed at his home at 511 West Third street, Tuesday, were held this afternoon at the late home, with Rev. John Collier in charge. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

TODAY'S TEMPERATURE.

The temperature as recorded today at the State Trust Company, follows: 9 a. m., 74; 11 a. m., 84; 1 p. m., 81 degrees.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town. INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF DR. B. P. RYDER HELD

Rev. E. S. Ralston, of Netherwood Reformed Church, Officiates at Late Home.

The funeral of Dr. Benjamin P. Ryder, aged 79 years, who died at the home of Elmer D. GaNun, 192 Duer street, Monday night following a long illness, was held at the late home at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, was in charge of the service. The burial was in Hillside cemetery, Middlesex county.

Dr. Ryder was a native of Maine and was graduated from Harvard University at the age of 22 years. For over twenty years he was a practicing physician in Chelsea, Mass., and afterward for ten years was an accountant for the Federal Sugar Company, New York. He removed to North Plainfield two years ago, since which time he had been in poor health. He leaves no relatives.

NEW COINS READY FOR CIRCULATION

Change In Designs of Silver Pieces Authorized By Law—Distribution Being Made.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—If some one hands you a silver coin tomorrow that has an unfamiliar look, don't refuse it in the belief that it is a counterfeit or of foreign origin. The probabilites are that it will be a sample of Uncle Sam's new mintage, which is about to be placed in circulation in compliance with the law that requires a change in the designs of the silver pieces once in every twenty years.

The new coins now ready for circulation consist of half-dollars, quarter-dollars and dimes. For more than a month the United States mints in Philadelphia, Denver and San Franvisco have been turning them out at a rate of about $40,000 worth a day, so that now the amount on hand is sufficient to be placed in circulation over the entire country within the next few days.

The design on the new half-dollars is considered a higher type of art than the coins that have for so long been familiar. The markings are not so prominently cut and the coin has a much smoother appearance. On one side of it is the figure of the Goddess of Liberty holding in one arm a bunch of olive branches. Above the figure are the words, "In God we trust;" below it is the word "Liberty." On the opposite side of the coin there is a spread eagle grasping an oak twig in his talons as he stands upon a rock. At the top is printed "The United States of America," and at the bottom "Half Dollar."

One side of the new quarter has the full figure of a woman coming through a gate in a wall. On the opposite side there is pictured an eagle in flight. The new dime is of a sharper cut. On one side is the head of a woman. Over the head is printed the word "Liberty" and in the lower left-hand corner the date. The obverse side of the coin has a bundle of Roman "faces" tied tightly together, with an axe and strong oak stick. Below the cutting is the Latin quotation, "E pluribus unum."

BROOKS CARSON MISSING FROM HOME SINCE JULY 10

Circulars hay been printed and sent broadcast over the country in an effort to find Brooks Carson, who disappeared from his home at 1109 George street, this city, on July 10. Since that time nothing has been heard from him and it is not known whether he met foul play or is wandering around in a coma. Carson is 45 years old and has a vivid scar on his right arm. He is Irish, having been born in County Langford, is 5 feet 4 inches tall and has hair streaked with gray. He has blue eyes, a dark complexion and is of medium build.

EDWARD HAMILTON CLEARED OF SERIOUS OFFENSE BY JURY

Edward Hamilton, of Bergen street, this city, was cleared of a serious charge preferred against him by Louise Keefe through the Overseer of the Poor of Bound Brook, when he was arraigned before Mayor Harry Baldwin at that place last night. After due deliberation by a jury Hamilton was cleared of all connection with the case. George Anderson was attorney for the town and Robert Newton Crane for the defendant.

REHEARSALS DEFERRED.

On account of the infantile paralysis the boys of Grace church choir will not attend the rehearsals and services until after the opening of the schools. At that time there will be a few vacancies, and the choir master, S. Frederick Smith, will be glad to meet new boys between ten and twelve years of age.

CONGRESS CAN STOP STRIKE BY PASSING EIGHT HOUR DAY LAW; 2 N. J. REGIMENTS CALLED HOME

ABSOLUTE ASSURANCE THAT BROTHERHOODS WILL ACCEPT LEGISLATION IS GIVEN BY GARRETSON

WILSON PLEADS WITH UNIONS FOR MORE TIME

Fifteen Thousand Militiamen Are Ordered From Border to Take Care of Situation—First New Jersey Regiment May Be One of Those Brought Back—General Funston Has Power to Choose—Leave Arizona Today.

FIRST NEW JERSEY IS BREAKING CAMP; LEAVES FOR SEA GIRT SATURDAY.

(BY JAMES J. McNAMEE)
(Telegraph to The Daily Press)

Douglas, Arizona, August 31.—Gen. Hine this morning ordered the First and Fourth New Jersey Regiments here to break camp and prepare to depart for home. Already tents are being torn down and arrangements are being made for the entraining. The soldiers will move from here Saturday, according to officers in command, and will go at once to Sea Girt to await orders there as to disposition by the War Department. Gen. Funston yesterday received an order to select two New Jersey regiments for strike duty at Jersey City and he picked the organizations made up of men living nearest Jersey City. The men are stunned by the news, and do not know whether to be glad they are going home or not.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Absolute assurance that the brotherhoods would call off the threatened nation-wide strike by railway employes before Monday without any action on the part of the railroad heads if Congress enacted legislation that gave an iron-clad guarantee of the eight-hour law, has been given.

The assurance of calling off the strike if an eight-hour day is granted was given to the Senate Commerce Committee today by A. B. Garretson, chief spokesman of the four brotherhoods. The passage of the eight-hour act alone would produce an absolute settlement, he told the committee.

Troops Ordered Home.

Fifteen thousand militiamen at present doing duty on the Mexican border will be used by President Wilson to keep trains moving in case the threatened railroad strike next Monday is called, it became known here today.

The War Department has ordered Major General Funston to send these men home, and the belief here is that they will start at the earliest possible moment.

The troops to be sent home include those from States and cities in which the principal railroad terminals are located. The cities to which they will return are New York, Jersey City, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and New Orleans.

Three of the eight New York regiments on the border and troops from New Jersey, Maryland, Illinois, Missouri, Oregon, Washington and Louisiana entrain today for the trip north.

General Funston was merely ordered to send two New Jersey reigments home. He will select the men for this duty, and until word is received from El Paso it will not be known whether or not the First regiment, of which Troop D is a part, will be included.

President Asks a Delay.

President Wilson will confer with representatives of the brotherhoods at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The conference will be for the purpose of discussing prospects of legislation relating to the eight-hour day for those actually engaged in operating trains. The President will urge the brotherhoods to postpone the strike until this leigislation is enacted.

Make Proposition to Employes.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30.—The Chesapeake and Ohio today made a proposition to all employes to take over the rights and privileges in all railway brotherhoods, paying the same benefits at the same or better rates than at this time prevailing. The purpose of the announcement is to retain as many men as possible in the service in the event of a strike. Other railroads here have made the same proposition.

Wilson Seems Pleased.

Washington, Aug. 30.—President Wilson has left the Capitol to return to the White House. As he left, he said:

"I have just come to the Capitol to keep in touch with the situation. Things are moving."

No Trouble in Canada.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Railroad labor on the Grand Trunk will remain unaffected and operations will continue over the sections of the Grand Trunk which runs through the United States, with the exception of those passing over the Niagara frontiers to connect with lines affected by the strike. According to President E. J. Chamberlain, the Grand Trunk railway service employes in the United States are responsible to a Canadian brotherhood and relations are amicable.

MRS. ANTHONY WAHL DEAD IN 68TH YEAR

Well-Known Fanwood Resident Passes Away at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Taken to Muhlenberg Hospital last night, Mrs. Anthony Wahl, of Martine avenue, Fanwood, died at that institution shortly after she was admitted for treatment. Death was due to complications. She was 60 years old.

Mrs. Wahl had been a resident of this section all her life. Eight years ago she removed from New Providence, where she spent her early days, to Fanwood, and had resided there ever since. Besides her husband, she is survived by two brothers, George Wahl, of Scotch Plains, and John Wahl, of New Providence. Three nieces also survive, they being Mrs. John Albert, of Scotch Plains; Mrs. William Anthan, of Newark, and Miss Grace Webster, of this city.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but will probably be at New Providence.

GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Freeman Strait, of Warrenville, was arrested by Marshal John Herrman last night on a charge of being drunk and driving his wagon minus the required lights. When arraigned before Recorder Fred Hand in the borough court this morning Strait was warned and allowed to go under a suspended sentence.

WILLIAM H. POTTER DIES AT MUHLENBERG

Life-long Resident of Potter's Crossing Passes Away In Seventy-eighth Year.

After being in Muhlenberg Hospital since August 8 for treatment, William H. Potter, aged 74 years, died last night of a complication of diseases, due to his advanced age. Born on the farm that has been in the family's possession for many generations, Mr. Potter had lived near Potter's Crossing on the Lehigh Valley all his life. Until a month ago he had been in excellent health.

As a farmer he became known in this vicinity. His wife died several years ago, but he is survived by a son, Alfred, living near Cranford, and a daughter, Mrs. Park Paine, of Rahway, besides four brothers and one sister.

The body will be taken to the family home, and burial will probably be at Rahway.

10 OR FORTY DAYS.

Michael Comesky was fined 10 or forty days in the county jail by Judge William G. De Meza in city court this morning on a disorderly conduct charge. Comesky with several others has been using rowdyism tactics on the street corners for some time, but when Comesky was wanted he left town. He was arrested on his return.

SHACKAMAXON COUNTRY CLUB ALL READY FOR INITIAL OPENING AFTER YEAR'S WORK

First Annual Meeting to Be Held October 7—Eighteen Holes Measuring 6,615 Yards, Tennis Courts and Lake Sports Some Features of the Club.

After working for the better part of a year, the Shackamaxon Country Club in the Willow Grove section of the township has been nearly completed under the supervision of Albert Tillinghast, the golf course architect, and it is expected everything will be ready for the opening on Labor Day.

The Clubhouse.

The name Shackamaxson is one of interest, being interwoven with the colonial history of this section of the country. The club is named after a tribe of the Delaware Indians that roamed over the ground the club now covers, and even to this day the plow turns up arrow heads and other relics of earlier days. Aside from having every natural advantage necessary for good golf links, the club is conveniently located between New York and Philadelphia and about an hour's ride from either city. It is situated just off the Raritan road, in the early days the main artery of travel between New York and Philadelphia and is a short way from both the Fanwood and Westfield railroad stations. All of the approaches to the club are now being macadamized and other plans are being made to make the club more accessible.

View of Shackamaxson Lake.

Formation of Club.

Now that the links, club house and other features have been about completed, attention will be turned toward the formation of the club and admittance of members. The first annual meeting has been called for October 7, at which time a board of governors, to be composed of five or more active members, will be elected. This body will elect a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. The board will have full power over the running of the club, and one-third of the number will be elected every year.

At present the membership of Shackamaxson will be limited to five hundred and to join a person has got to be elected at a regular meeting of the club. Upon paying the initiation fee each member becomes a part holder in the stock of the club.

Outlay of the Golf Course.

The Course.

There will be eighteen holes in the course, as follows

Hole	Yds.
First	353
Second	429
Third	328
Fourth	392
Fifth	593
Sixth	426
Seventh	364
Eighth	177
Ninth	310
Total out	3273
Hole	Yds.
Tenth	641
Eleventh	140
Twelfth	441
Thirteenth	449
Fourteenth	232
Fifteenth	193
Sixteenth	469
Seventeenth	196
Eighteenth	210
Total in	3342

Driving away from the club house, a well hit ball opens up the small green to a mashie pitch. Following the boundary fence on the left, two long shots will find the second green. Number three calls for a pitch over a water hazard in front of a compartively small green after a good drive. From the teeing ground the route to the fourth hole must carry over water hazards to the fairway above, extending through the trees. A mid-iron shot should then get home. Another stretch of fairway through the woods and, after the drive, a brave brassey across the lake will open the green to a running approach. If the safer route to the right is taken, the third to the green will be very exacting. Two long shots will be home on the sixth, but the short driver will hardly attempt it. The drive to the seventh is most important, and the second stroke to the green depends entirely upon the length of the tee shot. A wrist-shot should suffice the expert. Number eight is the first of the one-shotters. The built-up green presents a good face to the mid-iron or jigger. The fact of the holes on the outward journey is typical of the distinct dog-leg. The drive, if well hit, is followed by a pitch to the island green. This brings the player back to the club house.

The longest holes said to be in the east begins the "second nine." The green can be reached only by three screaming shots, and not one can be half hit. "Little 'leven," the midget of them all, will be found closely bunkered about the green and the controlled shot must be placed. Along the right of the twelfth fairway extends a boundary. Although the distance seems great for a driver and iron, these two clubs will serve, for the ground slopes down somewhat until the green is reached. Alpinization is a feature beyond. But it will take a long carrying drive to get to the top of the ridge on thirteen; then a well hit brassey or cleek. Again the driver or cleek comes from the bag for the tee shot to the fourteenth green. Segragated fairways feature both the fifteenth and sixteenth, and yet the two holes are very unlike. A drive and a short iron on the former, if the elbow drive is made with the green favoring this route. On the other, the weak hitter elects to play the first fairway, but the man with the shot carries beyond to the second section. He may reach home with his second, but the other cannot. Number seventeen calls for a courageous finish with a mashie, but the green is very closely guarded and many a hard fought match is apt to be decided there.

Other Amusements.

While the golf course of the Shackamaxson Country Club must always remain the prize feature, it is the present purpose to embrace practically the entire field of country club sports and pastimes.

Generous space has been alloted for modern tennis courts, which will be located within full view of the south veranda of the club house. Lake Shackamaxson offers an opportunity for the propagation of various fishes. In years past the lake has provided interesting sport, and it is intended to have it do so more than ever. Thirty canoes and rowboats have been placed on it; swimming will be possible, and in winter skating will be an excellent attraction.

The Club House.

The architect's plans for the extension of the club house call for two wings each two and one-half stories, sixty feet in length, with veranda fifteen feet in width, extending entirely around the building. This will make the club house with the two wings and the veranda sixty feet in width and two hundred and ten feet in length. This will allow additional and ample facilities for locker room, dining room, assembly room and sleeping rooms. A grill room and gymnasium will be other features. When completed the club house will contain twenty-two rooms, including ten sleeping rooms and eight baths.

The building is situated on the highest piece of ground in the forty acres comprising the property, and a view of the Matchung Mountains and State Island can easily be had as well as the first nine holes of the course.

NORMA PALCANIS RECOVERS FROM PLAGUE; NO NEW CASES

The health authorities of Fanwood borough raised today the quarantine on the premises of George Palcanis, of Russell road, whose 5-year-old daughter, Norma, was the first one found in Fanwood to be stricken with infantile paralysis. Through the excellent work of the doctors the little girl has practically recovered from the disease.

Two more cases during the present week brings the total number to four in the borough and five in the township, and of that number none have succumbed to the disease. Miss Clara Petri, the only local case removed from home, is recovering at the Elizabeth isolation hospital.

GATHERED AT RANDOM

The water has been let out of Seeley's pond and the dam is being repaired. At present the paper mill is being overhauled by the new owners, a Newark concern.

Mrs. Robert Walpole, who was taken seriously ill several weeks ago, remains about the same.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Odell and son are spending a few weeks at Lebanon.

Deacon Hand was in charge of the mid-week meeting at the Baptist church last night.

John Alberts has purchased a 1917 model automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Brown are stopping at the Osborne House, Ocean Grove, for a week.

Miss Ethelwyn Walker has returned from her vacation at Manasquan.

Mrs. F. A. Miller has been entertaining Mrs. William Hunt and Mrs. Theodore Smith, of Trenton and Miss Parse, of Newark.

The members of the "Sub-Rosa" Club and their friends held a corn-roast and marshmallow toast on Mountain avenue last night.

Friends of Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baaptist church, have given him a postal shower. About sixty cards were sent to Douglas, Ariz.

Ralph Ward has purchased an automobile.

Miss Francis Haskard has returned from spending her vacation at Asbury Park.

The Rev. Calvin Hare, who is occupying the pulpit of the Baptist church during the absence of his brother on the border, is spending the week at Ocean Grove.

Repairs are being made on the post-office building. Edward Johnson has the mason contract and Thomas Weller the decorating and painting contract.

The Misses Ella Schenck, Esther Meyer, Mae Weller and Madeline Clark and Mrs. Albert Meyer have returned to their home in Scotch Plains, after spending a week camping at Lake Hopatcong.

Miss Illene Brown has returned to her home in New York after visiting her cousin, Miss Claire Hall, of South avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mahnkin, of Martine avenue, are spending a few weeks at Richmond, Va.

The Old General Muster.

Under the old militia system that prevailed about seventy years ago the states were divided into districts, each one having a company to which all men of soldier age were required to belong and give a few days each year to military drill.

Every year there would be a "general muster," at which the various companies would gather and under the command of a plumed and bespangled officer would perform the various evolutions and go through the manual of arms that would strike with awe the surrounding crowd of women and children gathered to witness the heroic displays of fathers and brothers.

These general musters were great events in the times of our grandfathers. They were social as well as military and often adorned with feasts of warlike provender. In one of his speeches Tom Corwin told of a general muster in which the brave militiamen, with bayonet and sword, charged on a pile of watermelons and cut the red hearts out of the enemy.—Columbus Journal.

LOCAL INTEREST IN LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Two Bills Affecting the Borough and Township May Be Decided Upon.

If the efforts of certain local residents materialize it is probable that the State Legislature will pass on two bills during the coming winter's session that will make two important changes in the borough and one in the township.

About a year ago the people of Scotch Plains started a campaign to get that place "back on the map" and now it seems the movement has been survived long enough to get the name of Fanwood Township, if possible, changed to Scotch Plains Township. The similarity between Fanwood township and Fanwood borough is is contended, cause much confusion.

The people of Fanwood, on the other hand, want a change made in the school district so that instead of being in the same as the township is the borough will be in a separate one. Fanwood has long claimed that it could attend to its school matters better than the township could and it is not expected that there will be any opposition to the bill if it is introduced in the Assembly.

FLANDERS ESTATE TO HAVE BUILDING BOOM

New Realty Project May Result In Large Growth For Scotch Plains.

A realty boom that will probably result in a marked growth in Scotch Plains and also in building up Front street, between Park avenue and Terrill road, is now in progress with the improvement of the Flanders estate consisting of approximately five acres. The proposition is being backed by several local business men and already there are indications of its succeeding.

Contractors are now at work on the estate. The large dwelling now situated on the property is to be either torn down or removed, and two streets will be cut through the property from Front street to the trolley track. A considerable portion of the land is wooded and will have to be cleared and drainage conditions will also be improved.

The selling plan of the land has not yet been definitely announced, but it is known that the lots will have a twenty-foot frontage. Persons will, however have to take the least two lots and the class of dwellings will also be restricted.

German Valley and Chester

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Praster, of Montclair, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Praster.

Peaches are selling here at from 60 cents to $1.25 a basket.

Out of 209 dogs found in Chester township by Assessor J. Cecil Hoffman, only two are licensed.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Moss, of Philadelphia, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rourk.

The annual meeting of the free library board was held last night in the library rooms for the purpose of choosing trustees and transacting general business.

Water Birds.

Water birds, singular as it seems, are the only ones whose skins never by any chance get touched by water. So long as they are alive and long after they are dead they float with an air chamber all round their bodies, cunningly contrived of waterproof feathers closely overlapping each other. Thus, in a sense, water birds may be distinguished from all others by the fact that they never wash, though we can hardly blame them for that, because if water could penetrate between their feathers the poor things would never be dry.

"Yarbs" We Have Known.

What has become of the elderly lady who in the seventies and earlier always referred to an "herb" as a "yarb?" The word has gone out of use. About the meanest "yarb" was a bitter weed named "thoroughwort." Then there were cammermile, dockroot and dandelion, in their miserable partnership, lobelia and catnip. These things were "steeped," and you took them or had them thrust upon you "for your blood."—Exchange.

Beans.

The bean is comparatively new as an edible. Our common bean is a native of South America and was introduced into Europe, whence it came to this country during the sixteenth century and now is represented by over 150 cultivated varieties.

Quite Likely.

Autumn Road

The year has taken the old September trail,
And it's led her by the way I used to pass,
Where asters, starry eyed, come crowding either side,
And sunlight's yellow on the dusty grass.
There ranks of russet goldenrod are set,
And milkweed's shimmering silver sails the air,
While a ruddy ivy vine threads the fence, a scarlet line,
And deep content is brooding everywhere
In a peace that is a prayer.

I am thinking, when my summer days are done
And the year that was youth is turning slow,
Will there still be glints and gleams in the old desires and dreams,
Will they take a brave new beauty as they go?
With a rift of red and gold across the brown
And a grace of blue and silver, suddenly—
Oh, I pray my heart remembers the look of past Septembers.
That my autumn road of life at last may be
A way like this for me!

"SAY SQUIRREL" IS BRITISH SPY TEST

American So Challenged Soon Proves He's No German.

J. J. A. Murphy, an American decorative artist, who spent the past four years in England, said on his return on board the American liner Finland that he was saved from imprisonment and possible execution as a spy by the word "squirrel."

Mr. Murphy decided last Christmas to go on a walking tour through Ireland, where he had no expectation that his name would arouse suspicion. Under the impression that no passports were necessary to go from England to the Emerald isle, he set out innocently, but was arrested at Holyhead because he lacked the all important papers of identification.

Several bayonets were held ticklishly close to his ribs, while English officers made inquiries as to his past life and future career. Though one of them, a territorial, treated him as if all artists were open to suspicion, a captain in the regular service acted more like "an officer and a gentleman," and suddenly shot this order at him:

"Say squirrel!"

Mr. Murphy, whose touch of Irish brogue and American enunciation has in the last few years been overlaid with English diction, mumbled the required word. The officer promptly commanded that he be set free. Much astonished, the artist inquired how he happened to deliver this open sesame.

"A German," explained the captain, "can't say the word—he loses it down his throat. An Englishman slurs the final 'el,' rolling the word under his tongue. You said it like an Englishman."

EXPLOSIONS IN HIS BLOOD.

Baltimore Man Discloses New Malady of Munition Workers.

A new disease has appeared among the munition workers in Baltimore plants. It is called explosive blood. It is almost impossible to conceive of a man's blood exploding in his veins and arteries, but nevertheless this is just what happens when a munition worker is affected. John Reynolds of Baltimore, employed at the Du Pont works at Carney Point, Del., has been treated for the strange malady at Mercy hospital and at City hospital at Bayview.

The explosions occur only in the very smallest veins. The effects are no more disastrous than to cause a rather malignant eruption on the skin of the arms and legs. Simultaneously with this strange condition the patient's skin becomes yellow. The treatment is extremely simple and rapidly effective. It consists solely of fresh air and a light diet.

Reynolds had been handling large quantities of sulphuric ether. He was visiting relatives here when the gases began to affect him. A hospital surgeon, while closely observing the patient, was attracted by a strange crackling sound and on investigation found the patient's arm breaking out. These tiny explosions were recurrent for probably a week.

SPIDER ELECTS WILSON.

Spins His Name In Web, as Was Done For McKinley In 1896.

The quadrennial spider prophecy has been made, and this year it elects Woodrow Wilson. At the home of Mrs. Thomas Field in Charleston, Va., a yellow spider about an inch in length has been weaving its silken skein over a bedroom window. The spider started at the circumference of the web, leaving in its wake the frosted letters "W. Wilson." Some of the letters were cut as clean as though made by an engraver.

Mrs. Field recalls the election of President McKinley in 1896, when "presidential" spiders were plentiful and they all spelled out "William McKinley."

WHAT 2,496,504 TESTS SHOW.

99.9 Per Cent Record Perfect Performance of Railroad Rules.

Results of 2,496,504 tests to see how well signals and operating rules were being observed on the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh showed perfect performance in 99.9 per cent of the cases.

In the period during which these tests were made the statement says, 76,700,000 passengers were carried on the lines east of Pittsburgh, and not a single one was killed in a train accident.

Women's Suits in the New Modes of Autumn

Each day adds to the interesting variety.

You will note that EVERY suit is distinctive in its smartness—and that none can be fairly criticised as "too extreme."

Hahne apparel is decidedly "wearable."

IN THE SKETCH we show an exceedingly smart suit of Chiffon Broadcloth in which the new 34-inch coat is semi-fitted, with pronounced fullness over the hips. It has high convertible collar of velvet, cuffs to match, neatly stitched and button trimmed. Lined throughout with peau de cygne. The skirt is full flare circular, finished with deep slashed pockets. Shown in most favored colors at 32.50

Ghiberti's Famous Doors.

The world renowned doors of the baptistry at Florence represent nearly the entire life work of Ghiberti. He began the first pair when he was twenty-three years old, and when he finished the second pair he was seventy-three. Excepting the three statues outside of San Michele and one or two minor works, these two pairs of bronze doors represent his labors for half a century. These doors, declared by Michelangelo "fit to be the gates of paradise," represent the book of Genesis in all the depth of its meaning, and the skill of the artist has never been overpraised. It is impossible to exaggerate the glory of the work.

Where Every One Is a "Majesty."

Who are the politest people in Europe? If common speech is any criterion, surely the Spaniard must carry off the palm. The author of "Heroic Spain" tells of many high flown phrases still in common use. You bid farewell with "Beso a v. la mano" (I kiss your hand) or "A los pies de v." (I am at your feet). The "usted," shortened to v., with which you address high or low, is a corruption of "your majesty." The love of abbreviations is a curious trait in a people with such leasurely ways; thus a row of cabilistic letters ends a letter: S. S. S. Q. B. S. M., which means that your correspondent kisses your hand—"su seguro servidor que besa su mano."

CROWDS ATTRACTED TO MONMOUTH FAIR

Countless Amusements Are Offered At Annual Exhibition at Red Bank.

Red Bank, Aug. 31.—The big Monmouth Fair is on. Crowds arrived early this morning, the opening day, by automobile, train, trolley and carriage and were better entertained than ever before with the many free and thrilling open-air attractions.

Lawrence W. Brown, of New York, is looping the loop in his aeroplane and doing other spectacular flying daily. On a large stage in front of the grandstand seven big death-defying and vaudeville acts furnish splendid entertainment. The Midway is another interesting patr of the Fair this year, consisting of Luken's Carnival Company attractions, which comprise a trained animal show; a dog, pony and monkey circus; Princess Victoria, the midget; a ten-in-one pit show, consisting of ten pits of human curiosities; a snake show; a five-legged cow exhibit, a merry-go-round and a jungle show.

Judging of the exhibits in the domestic science, fruit and vegetables, horticultural, cattle and swine, poultry and other departments will be practically completed the first day, and interest was shown by the fair visitors in viewing the prize-winning exhibits. Hundreds of Ford cars were in evidence on the grounds today, which was Ford Day, prizes being awarded to several Ford owners who shared an equal chance of winning.

G. Jason Waters, of New York and Rumson, is directing the horse show, a big feature of the first three days, and the inaugural match dog show to be a new sport attraction for Labor Day. He has about 250 entries in the horse show from many wealthy summer residents of Rumson and shore sections and from well known farmers throughout the county, and 175 entries in the dog show.

Prominent politicians throughout the State, including the Gubernatorial candidates, are among the visitors at the fair by written invitation, and taking advantage of meeting thousands of voters from this section.

Watchung.

Howard J. Vail will lead the Endeavor meeting tomorrow evening. The topic will be: "Consecration of Home Life."

Richard D. Underhill, of Philadelphia, is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Anna H. Underhill.

A number of the boys enjoyed a corn roast on the shores of Watchung Lake last evening. The affair was arranged by Clement Texier.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Mantz entertained a number of friends at a surprise party last evening given in honor of Mrs. Nellie Johnson. The evening was spent in playing games and music, after which a collation was served.

The Lord's Supper will be observed in Wilson Memorial church Sunday morning. Rev. Edward G. Reed will officiate.

Miss Elsie P. Schmidt spent Wednesday at Mount eBacon, N. Y.

Mrs. Christopher, of Asbury Park, is the guest of Mrs. J. B. Meyers.

Quite Different.

A tenant of Lord Halkeston, a judge of the Scotch court of sessions, once waited on him with a woeful countenance and said: "My lord, I am come to inform your lordship of a sad misfortune. My cow has gored one of your lordship's cows, and I fear it cannot live." "Well, then, of course you must pay for it." "Indeed, my lord, it was not my fault, and you know I am but a very poor man." "I can't help that. The law says you must pay for it. I am not to lose my cow, am I?" "Well, my lord, if it must be so I cannot say more. But I forgot what I was saying. It was my mistake entirely. I should have said it was your lordship's cow that gored mine." "Oh, is that it? That's quite a different affair. Go along and don't trouble me just now. I am very busy. Be off, I say!"—American Law Review.

Difference In Complexions.

The difference in the complexions of people is due to the varying amounts of pigment or coloring materials in the cells of the skin. Very light people have very little pigment; very dark people, those with dark eyes and black hair, have a great deal of this coloring material in their cells. A great many people are neither light nor very dark. They have less than the dark complexioned people and more than the light complexioned people. When the hair turns gray it is because the pigment has disappeared. As this is due to the loss of this coloring material, dark complexioned people turn gray sooner than light complexioned people. The structure of the skin showing how these cell are made in layers can be seen by examining the skin with a microscope.

Early Morning Talks.

"He is always doing something that causes a lot of talk."

"Why, I never heard any of it."

"He is the only one who hears it. He is always staying out at night later than his wife wishes him to."—Houston Post.

Wonderful Tree Roots.

The jand, a tree which grows profusely in the Indian Punjab, a very dry region, is chiefly remarkable for its very long tap root, which was eighty-four feet in one remarkable specimen and which descended vertically sixty-four feet into the earth.

"I'll try" has not the genuine metal ring. "I will" puts money into the pay envelope.

UNIQUE CEREMONY

The Japanese Rite For the Battle Slain of the World.

IT EMBRACED ALL NATIONS.

On a Floating Temple In Sumida River a Priest of Tokyo, With His Flock, Offered Prayers For the Souls of Soldiers Dead Because of Wars.

Unusual preparations were made one morning in Shussanji, or the Going Out of the Mountain temple, a quaint little place of worship hidden away in a labyrinth of crooked streets in a poor quarter of Tokyo—preparations for a celebration on the Sumida river to pray for the repose of the souls of all those slain in battle regardless of nationality and to scatter scraps of paper bearing the image of Jizo Sama over the waves, one for each departed spirit.

The chief priest, an aged man, with his assistant and the supporters of the temple, had been busy for days in advance, and all was ready. The red and gold altar of Shussanji was heaped up with offerings of rice and fruit, and a plain wooden tablet had been placed there bearing the words:

"To console all those souls who have passed into the beyond because of war."

The old priest, his bald head shining, clad in his coarse cotton robe of gray, officiated before the altar, and when the last prayers were uttered the people formed a procession to the Sumida river, a short distance away.

Near a bridge an unusual craft was waiting, a deep cargo junk roofed over with canvas bearing bold black Buddhist symbols, and at the bow fluttered a white cotton banner on which was written in large black characters:

"A service to console the spirits of the whole world's departed ones."

Quickly the parishioners embarked and squatted down upon the cushions spread over the bottom of the boat, and the priest, the central figure in the religious ceremony, as gray and faded as the robes he wore, took up his position in front of the altar. A piece of soiled embroidery did duty for an altar cloth, and there was set up a tarnished statue of Jizo Sama. Just below were three wooden tablets. The central one read, "Pray for the whole world's departed ones' souls." The others had inscriptions asking for prayers for the Japanese army and for prayers for the allies of Japan.

The priest placed some sweet scented squares of incense upon the coals in a small brass brazier, and as the clouds rose into the air the boatman with his bamboo pole pushed off from the shore and the holy man's voice was heard chanting—all the worshipers, old women and young, men and children, murmuring in an undertone, "Name Amida Butsu!"

Out upon the Sumida river the ceremony of scattering the papers was begun. Old and young with their hands full leaned over the sides of the junk, throwing away the sacred papers with the effigy of Jizo Sama stamped thereon, each meant for the solace of the soul of some soldier slain in battle.

Those who have mourned dear ones slain in war would have been touched to the quick by this simple service of humble Japanese people given for all that great host of unknown who have laid down their lives for their countries.

And, while the priest intoned, the incense rose into the air, the metal and the wooden drums were beaten, the worshipers chanted unceasingly, and the squares of paper fluttered out of the boat on all sides and were carried away by the wind over the water to make a long wake behind the vessel.

For three hours the temple junk floated down the river, the papers falling noiselessly over the waves as the banks of the Sumida were passed.

A halt was made at noon, when thin white wooden boxes filled with rice and vegetables were brought out, while an old woman brewed the tea over a little charcoal fire.

The spot at which the stop had been made was a sacred one, for in that exact place a Jizo Sama stone had been buried under the water. Here after the simple meal a special service was held before the boat returned upstream, and a long, narrow piece of wood was driven into the sandy bottom of the bay. The inscription upon it read literally as follows:

"Herewith the service is held for the whole world its departed soldiers to console."—London Times.

Paralyzed Him.

"Don't tell me you can't find work," said the hard faced housekeeper.

"Well, mum," replied the tramp at the door, "it's true a man offered me a job only las' week, but I couldn't take it."

"And why not?"

"I wuz paralyzed."

"You seem all right now."

"Yessum. Yer see, I wuz paralyzed wid fright."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Both Departed.

"You don't often see an old fashioned whittler nowadays."

"No. The type is dying out; also the diminutive bad man who used to pull out a bowie knife and threaten to whittle his foe down to his size."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

COUNTRY ELECTRIC PLANT TO BE SHOWN

Trenton Fair to Have Display Interesting to Farmers. City of Machinery.

Displays in the City of Machinery, Sections "J" and "K" of Trenton Fair, this season, promise to surpass those of any previous year. A number of concerns that have never before been exhibitors at the Trenton Fair will be on the grounds this year from September 25 to 29.

One feature will be a miniature house occupying a space 25 x 35 feet, aglow with electric lights. On the porch of the house will be displayed the apparatus which furnishes the power for the illumination. This exhibit will be conducted by the Domestic Engineering Company of Dayton, O., makers of Delco Light. They have adopted for their slogan, "Electricity for every farmer," and those who still adhere to the oil lamp for illumination should not fail to see it.

The commercial Auto Show, formerly held under a tent in Section "H," has been given a new location for 1916, and Superintendent Salter has filled all of this section with other exhibits. J. Jones & Bro., Baugh & Sons, who were temporarily moved last year, have returned to their old space.

The Columbia Film company will occupy one entire end of this section in a very interesting moving picture exhibit, interesting particularly to agriculturists.

The Trenton Bone and Fertilizer company will be at its usual place at the end of section H, fronting Avenue F, and the Tilley Ladder company will discuss its merchandise from its location of many years.

An unusual demonstration is expected in absolutely the latest machinery for farm purposes, and the outlook is that visitors at the Fair will be able to see some of the great pieces of machinery used on the farms of the west.

Some of the other exhibitors who have reserved space for the coming show are as follows:

Sharpless Separator company, National Fire Proofing company, John Farrell, Fitz Water Wheel company, W. E. Slater, Martin C. Ribsam, Malvern Farm Supply company, Mountville Manufacturing company, the J. E. Stevenson company, C. H. Higgins, S. P. Lummus Supply company, Knox Fence company, J. H. The power of the press can be applied to any business by using good Printing.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

'Press' printing is the result of ceaseless efforts to render the best service.

The John Wanamaker Store

September Sales--China, Artwares, Glass, Lamps, Housefurnishings

Featuring America First

HALF-YEARLY CHINA SALE

but all the world's best always

AT YEAR'S LOWEST PRICES

Who would guess that famous factories abroad are practically shut down for lack of men, that shipments have been for weeks on the docks in Bordeaux and Liverpool waiting for space on crowded steamers sailing for New York—and Wanamaker's.

None of this is even suggested in the rich overflowing collections of this September Sale. Its prices are as low as last March, and sometimes even lower. This, notwithstanding three general advances in the wholesale market since then.

America First

America first—A thousand dinner sets were ordered from one American pottery, a larger order than ever before given for American porcelain, we are told. 500 sets are ready now in the China Store at $8.50 and $10 a set of 100 pieces, 500 more sets are at the pottery waiting for our telegraph orders. American real china dinner sets of $35 grade at $25 for 108 pieces.

How is china made and shaped? A practical exhibition for a few days of the making and decoration of American china by courtesy of one of our regular makers.

European Shipments

A long looked for French shipment arrived a few days ago. French china dinner sets, with charming decorations and shapes and coin gold handles, 107 pieces, at $20 set; other very special French china sets, $32.50, $47.50 and $50.

A new importation of English porcelain dinnerware in particularly choice designs, 108 pieces, at $20 and $22.50 set.

Dinnerware at Half

6,000 odd dinnerware pieces at half usual prices and less—30c for a dozen fruit saucers, up to $5 for a soup tureen.

Open Stock Patterns

From our own open stock patterns of foreign wares we have made up certain sets and offer them at 10 per cent. less than our all-year prices. These sets can be matched at any time.

Other foreign china newly arrived, at $15, $17.50, $25, $27.50, for 108 pieces.

Pottery at Half and Less

Royal Doulton pottery sample plates, cups, saucers, at half usual prices—the plates at $1 to $14.

Sample fancy pottery from an importer at half price and less—plates, cups, saucers, salad bowls, candelabra, flower pots, etc., 50c for a plate, to $10 for a high compotier.

Vases, an English maker's discontinued stock at less than half price, $1.50 to $7.50.

Cut Glass

Cut glass—$5,000 worth for $2,000—full lead potash blanks skilfully cut, some of our regular patterns included; 85c for a nappie, to $5 for a tall vase or a complete water set.

Lamps

Lamps of all kinds of this half-yearly sale at savings of 25 to 33⅓ per cent.—a candlestick at 50c for 75c grade, up to $60 electric ceiling fixture at $36.

Second Gallery, New Building.

First Half-Yearly Sale in the New Helpful Housefurnishing Store

Our regular all-year standard qualities of cooking utensils, cutlery, brooms, brushes, dusters, electric ware, woodenware, clothes wringers, refrigerators, sewing machines, dress forms, bird cages, bathroom fixtures, trunks, etc.—at 10 to 40 per cent less.

Wanamaker all-year bathroom fixtures are of solid brass nickel-plated so they cannot rust. Wanamaker all-year enamelware is enameled scientifically on steel and is not apt to chip. Wanamaker all-year wooden ware is selected wood, free from knots. Wanamaker all-year aluminum ware is the heavy rolled aluminum that stands long usage. All Wanamaker housefurnishings are chosen specifically for the satisfaction they will give, and then the price is made as low as is possible.

There is not one cent's worth of difference between the quality of the article you paid full price for in August and of that which you can get in September at 10 to 40 per cent. less—at Wanamaker's.

Especially Suggestive Items

Aluminum Preserving Kettles, 50c to $1.00 Were 85c to $1.40

TWILIGHT CRICKETS.
By Mary Hamilton Carter.

Sometimes when to my bed I go
I hear a curious sound,
Like knitting needles springing up
All over from the ground!
But when I ask my nurse she says
Those sounds are what they use
To knit a stocking for a snake
And sew a beetle's shoes.

A Victory for the Children.

The child labor bill passed the United States Senate last week by a vote of 52 to 12. The bill had been made a party measure at the urgent request of President Wilson, and, although the votes cast against the bill except two were Democratic and from the South, the party and the President are entitled to credit for its passage.

The bill which passed the Senate differs in certain respects from the bill which passed the lower House last February. The two bills will have to be taken up, therefore, in joint conference, but there appears to be little question that the difference between the House and Senate bills can be adjusted and that the result will become a law.

In the Senate bill interstate commerce is forbidden in the product of mills and factories in which children under fourteen have been employed (this means any product of the mill or factories where children are employed), and in product of any mine or quarry in which children under sixteen years of age have been employed; commerce is forbidden also in the product of any place where children between fourteen and sixteen have worked over eight hours a day or over six days a week, or before 6 in the morning or after 7 at night.

Infantile Paralysis.

The epidemic of paralysis is still in progress in spite of strict quarantine. The physicians claim that the hot weather is responsible, in spite of the fact that the spring and summer were exceptionally cool and wet. There has been no sustained heat and no drought.

If it is contagious only as typhoid is contagious, would not boiled water, scalded dishes, individual towels, etc., be of greater service than strict quarantine?

Dr. Neil McLeod, a practicing physician of Brooklyn, has been using quinine as a cure for the dread disease with marked success, and has sent out letters to other physicians advocating this treatment. To obtain the best results the treatment should be given as follows:

"A hypodermic injection (into the gluteal muscles) of from ten to twenty grains of quinine and ureau hydrochloride (25 to 50 per cent solution), depending upon the age of patient and severity of attack. This is to be followed by three to four grains of quinine every hour or two (by mouth), until the child has received forty grains or more, or until marked symptoms of quinine poisoning set in, which does not harm and passes off in a few days. If there is much gastric disturbance all doses can be given hypodermically."

Dr. McLeod recommends quinine as a preventive in small doses, two to five grains, at night, for a day or two only.

Friendly Letters.

Boys in all parts of the United States are exchanging letters and picture postcards with boys in practically all of the countries of the world. In order to encourage and assist them in this exchange, the national scout organization publishes each month in Boys' Life, the official scout magazine, the names of boys in all lands who desire to receive such letters. Arrangements have been made with scout organizations in countries in Europe, Asia, Africa and South America so that a letter written by any American boy, whether he is a scout or not, to a boy in almost any other country will be delivered to one who, in all likelihood, will send back as interesting a letter as he gets. The only requirement is that the letter intended to be forwarded shall be inclosed in its own envelope (unsealed and bearing the proper postage) and sent in another envelope addressed to the editor of Boys' Life at the national headquarters, 200 Fifth avenue, New York. After the first letter is exchanged in this way the boys correspond with each other direct.

Here is a splendid chance for the boys to make friends all over the world. It is hoped they will take advantage of it.—Child Welfare Magazine.

Moral Welfare.

In this age, as in every age, the deepest and most urgent problem of human training is that of moral training; and as your committee is frankly of the conviction that the only rock-sure foundation of moral life is in the awakening and nurture of the religious instinct and outlook upon the world, it does not hesitate to add that religious culture, taking that term in the large, untrammeled sense, is a crying need of the youth of our time. How this religious, or religious-minded education is to be achieved among our people does not perhaps belong within the province of a commission operating under the laws of an American state to specify. The best we can say is to urge that whatever tends to open the sensibilities and intellects of our people to the deeper and farther issues of life, to beauty, sublimity and wonder, to the mystery and infinity of the universe about them, is of the true nature of religion, and that our schools and our homes and every other social agency, along with our churches of every creed and type, should earnestly co-operate to surround our children and growing youth with these influences. This secularly preoccupied epoch of ours needs constantly to remind itself of this religious duty toward itself and its own children.

As regards the moral training proper, it is our conceded privilege to speak out. In spite of all that has been said and done, the business of moral education in our schools remains imperfectly executed and imperfectly emphasized. Not only should our authorities and our teachers in their formal gatherings come back again and again to this momentous question, but the banded parents of the state in their literal hundreds of new parent teacher groups and cricles should direct their attention upon it. We make free to suggest that such groups of parents undertake not only systematic studies and programs in the moral education of children, but that they candidly undertake courses of reading and study looking to self-education alike in technical efficiency in the tasks of moral child training and in one's own keen, steady interest and full sense of responsibility toward the moral values in schooling and in parenthood.

New Providence

Mrs. Halsey Genung, of Springfield avenue, is ill at her home.

The Township Board of Education has authorized the building committee to have specifications drawn up for repairs and alterations to the Diamond High School. This work was supposed to have been done earlier in the vacation period, but because the lowest estimates amounted to nearly $100 more than the amount available it was not done. Some changes were made in the proposed alterations, and in accordance with these specifications will be prepared and a contract awarded to Fred Smith, of the township. It is proposed to remove the present vestibule from the east of the building and place it on the north. The entrances on the east will be closed and a new entrance on the north will be cut. A new lighting arrangement will be provided.

Mrs. John Crowe, of Brooklyn, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Simmons, of Plainfield avenue, yesterday fell and broke her ankle.

Miss Dorothy Young, of the Circle, Murray, Hill, and Miss Emily Brinkhuff have gone to Portland, Pa.

High Bridge-Califon

Mrs. Caroline Hance, of Vienna, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Anderson at Spring Valley.

Mrs. Isaac Baldwin is ill at her home at High Bridge.

Miss Grace Seals, of Mount Grove, has secured a position with the Taylor-Wharton Iron Company at High Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stevenson, of Califon, are at Far Hills.

The Misses Augustus Naughright and Lydia Allen, of High Bridge, have returned from Asbury Park.

Miss Marion Waldron, of New Germantown, is the guest of Miss Lillian Cramer at High Bridge.

George W. Staples, of Califon, will take charge of the Central Railroad station at Fanwood. George W. Youngs will succeed Mr. Staples at the Califon station.

A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. William S. Philhower, Jr., at Califon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith is ill at her home in Church street, Califon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beam and Mrs. John Beam, of Vernoy, spent the first of the week at Trenton.

A daughter was born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Stickles at Crestmoor.

The Misses Grace Francher and Jessie Rowlings, of South Orange, are at High Bridge.

Westfield.

The Westfield Rifle Club has received its consignment of fifty rifles, and they have been distributed to members purchasing them. In addition to the fifty, twelve were received for the use of the club in general.

Officers for the coming year will be elected by the local Democratic Club at the meeting to be held tonight at the clubrooms. There will probably be no important changes in the official board.

Mrs. Emma Van Fleet, of Somerville, was a recent guest of Mrs. Austin W. Lowe at Lebanon.

—Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

William A. Farley, of Mountainville, N. Y., is visiting his brother, Oliver A. Farley, at Lebanon.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 31, 1916.

THE SENATE LIKES MARTINE.

Washington is appreciative of the brave fight that Senator James E. Martine is making against odds for the Democratic nomination for re-election and, if the usually conservative, well-informed and truthful Star is to be believed, Washington hopes Senator Martine will come back. The action of the Plainfielder in daring to disagree with Woodrow Wilson is not called treachery to the Democratic party by The Star, but is labeled courageous independence. The following editorial is from The Star:

"Among Mr. Wilson's supporters in 1912 were William F. McCombs, of New York, and James E. Martine, of New Jersey. Both worked hard. Mr. McCombs was Mr. Wilson's campaign manager. Mr. Martine as a United States Senator from Mr. Wilson's own State was of much service partly because of his high office.

"Neither man, however, has fared well under the administration. Neither has 'connected' with the spirit that has been governing things here at least of the government. Neither has obtained the recognition he thought his due.

"Both men are candidates for nomination to the Senate, and both are opposed by administration influences. Their cases are to be decided at primaries scheduled for next month.

"Mr. McCombs is more fortunate than Mr. Martine, in that sympathy has brought him the support of a powerful Democratic organization. Tammany Hall 'knows how it is itself'—how it feels to be left outside the breastworks. It is as empty-handed as Mr. McCombs, and worked quite as hard as he four years ago. Hence, now that he has announced for the Senate, Tammany announces for him. A fellow feeling has made it wondrous kind.

"Mr. Martine, on the other hand, is ploughing a lonely furrow over in Jersey. Neither the Wilson organization nor the Smith-Nugent organization is for him. He must perfect an organization of his own, and make it more powerful than those two if he is to win. The time is short.

"The administration is risking nothing in either case. Whether nominated or not, both Mr. McCombs and Mr. Martine will support Mr. Wilson for re-election. Both favored his renomination, Mr. McCombs, as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, calling the St. Louis convention to order.

"Mr. Martine likes the Senate, and the Senate him. When he talks—which is not often—it is in a vein to command friendly interest. His partisanship is dependable on big things, but he is not hidebound. He has the courage to support individual convictions when formed.

"Mr. McCombs is inexperienced in legislative work, but, as most men do who try it, would probably like Senatorial work. It is performed in the main under conditions that make for both friendship and partisanship. Bitterness is rarely shown in the chamber, and when shown it soon disappears. It is bad form; and form operates powerfully where procedure in the main is based on agreements among gentlemen."

NO OPPOSITION FOR BLATZ.

Friends of Francis J. Blatz, Councilman from the Fourth Ward, and president of the governing body of the city, are quite pleased that no opposition to his candidacy has developed. Mr. Blatz has consented to ask for nomination at the hands of Republican voters in the primary of next month. He is the only one of the four Councilmen whose terms expire who has not already been assured of an opponent in the primaries, and that he has made a popular as well as an efficient public officer is attested by the fact that none has been found who dares contest his right to again represent the Fourth Ward. If the taxpayers are going to consider valauble service in selecting a Councilman it is altogether proper that Mr. Blatz be unopposed. He has been a member of the Council for the past four years and has been one of the most faithful members of that body. Before his election to the presidency in January of this year he was chairman of the street committee, and in this capacity was called upon to perform the hardest work assigned to any member. In presiding over deliberations of the Council he has been fair and courteous to both members and occasional visitors, and has expedited the work of the Council by his knowledge of municipal affairs and his willingness to share with the committee members a part of the tedious work.

Grand Marshal Lunger, of the Labor Day parade, is surprised to find that many local merchants have given decorating contracts to an outside firm. We believe that responsible merchants will be able to give Mr. Lunger a good and sufficient reason, if his charge is true, for they who advertise "Buy in Plainfield" should be the last to practice otherwise.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Bessie Barriscale's newest Triangle play is called "The Payment," which appears at Proctor's today as the feature photoplay offering. "The Payment" presents the well established Triangle star in a drama that is full of life and action, and which gives Miss Barriscale the fullest opportunity to display her wide range of emotional expression. "The Payment" depicts in a striking way the lengths to which mad ambition drives those who surrender themselves to it, irrespective of the cost, and the inevitable payment of "the uttermost farthing" to cancel the debt of sin. Its story is comprehensible, direct and it has an ever increasing hold. Especially forceful and pathetic is the climax which embraces a situation of great mental tribulation. The story ends with the paying of the full price and no less, which is certainly true to life. In support of Miss Barriscale are such well known stars as Charles Miller, William Desmond, Katherine Kirkwood, Thomas S. Guise and Gertrude Claire. "The Payment" is from the versatile pen of C. Gardner Sullivan and the direction was intrusted to the capable hands of Raymond B. Dest. In addition to "The Payment" an extremely funny Keystone comedy is presented and Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh appear in a romantic offering entitled "The Little Troubadour."

Friday introduces William A. Brady productions to patrons of Proctor's, the first offering from this well known producer being "A Woman's Way" with Carlyle Blackwell and Edith Clayton as the stars. If every woman should see this feature and take a lesson from it there would not be so much said on the subject of "why men leave home." In addition Friday Crane Wilbur is seen in dramtic offering and Rube Miller, the droll comedian, appears in a two-reel comedy entitled "Some Liars."

Saturday Macklyn Arbuckle will be seen in "The Reformed Candidate," and Ralph Herz will star in "The Purple Lady."

The Oyster

The oyster is a jolly rake
And he is wont to roam
About this country far and wide
And he calls no place home
The oyster is a slippery cuss.
Although his manner's bland,
'Tis hard to hold him on his job,
So he is often canned
The oyster habits are not good,
As habits good are viewed,
'Tis often that he's in the soup
And is most always "stewed."

Good Hot Weather Reading.

The gorilla and the chimpanzee, which belong to the higher order of apes, have many points of resemblance to the man; but there is one thing they cannot do—that is, twiddle their thumbs. In the gorilla the thumb is short and does not reach much beyond the bottom of the first joint of the forefinger. It is very much restricted in its movements, and the animal can neither twiddle his thumbs nor turn them around so that the tips describe a circle. There are the same number of bones in the hand of a gorilla as in the hand of a man, but the thumbs of the monkey have no separate flexor or bending muscle. This is why a monkey always keeps the thumbs on the same side as the fingers and never bends it around any object that may be grasped. Mind you, never forget this

Plainfield Theatre.

"Katinka" is sure to as popular as its two predecessors, "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," said one enthusiastic Park Row reviewer after the New York premier last fall of the famous play which is to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre next Saturday matinee and night. Time has proved that the prophet was not overenthusiastic, but rather lukewarm in his praise, for the new musical offering of Otto Hauerbach and Rudolf Friml, responsible for "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," not only lived up to the reputation of the former two but greatly eclipsed them, both in drawing power and the creation of enthusiasm in the audiences. Hauerbach and Friml seem to be an inexhaustible well of musical jollity. It seldom happens that three successes so decided as these follow in rapid and uninterrupted succession. These two men are fast earning a reputation among American musical comedy producers similar to that formerly enjoyed in England by Gilbert and Sullivan. As a triple link in the Hauerbach-Friml combination appears Arthur Hammerstein who, in the staging of the three shows has eclipsed to their fullest the charms of librettist and composer, with the added charms of the scenic artist.

The story of "Katinka" opens in Russia, where the heroine, who gives her name to the piece, is being forced into an unwelcome marriage with the elderly Statesman, Boris. At the height of the festivities, Katinka's lover, Ivan, learns that Boris already has one living wife, who is reported to be somewhere in Turkey hiding from her hated husband in a harem. With the aid of an American friend, Hopper, Ivan steals Katinka, and the three set out in search of the first Mrs. Boris, Katinka passing herself as Mrs. Hopper.

Frank Hunter, the well known comedian, and by many said to be the funniest black faced artist on the stage today, will be the headliner in "Blutch" Cooper's big burlesque company, "The Globe Trotters," at the Plainfield Theatre, next Monday matinee and night. Last season the Globe Trotters was proclaimed by all who witnessed the performance to be the biggest laughing show on tour and this year it not only upholds that reputation, but is also making a popular bid for the best singing organization; these two attributes combined with a scenic and electrical production of the first magnitude and a large and evenly balanced company of artists makes the third edition of "The Globe Trotters" an attraction worthy of the support of all those who demand the best in burlesque, providing merriment and music that will please the most fastidious.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Charles Dillingham will command the attention of theatre goers this week when he reopens the Hippodrome on Thursday evening, August 34. As this event is of interest not only to metropolitan playgoers but to the amusement loving public of the entire nation as well, the opening will be watched with keen interest and expectancy.

The presentation in its entirety for this year has been styled "The Big Show," which sums up the colossal program concisely and accurately.

Interest naturally centres in the incomparable dancer, Anna Pavlowa, as the star extraordinary of this season's Hippodrome offering, and in her new ballet, "The Sleeping Beauty," which has been prepared with more care and upon a more elaborate scale than any dancing divertisement produced in this country. The music is by Tschaikowski and the dances, arranged by Ivan Clustine, will command the services of M. Alexandre Volinine, as principal male soloist, Mlle. Steffa Plaskovietzka, Mlle. Stasis Kuhn and Mlle. Butzova as soloists, together with thirty other principal dancers from the Imperial ballets at Petrograd and Moscow, and three hundred Hippodrome girls.

The new ice skating scene, which will again introduce the sensational skaters Charlotte, Hilda Rueckert, Katie Schmidt and George Kerner and the Lamy Brothers, together with several expert newcomers in the El Roy Sisters, the Vitagraph Twins and John J. Daly, emanates from the same source as last year's novelty.

The operatic features this year will introduce a new Japanese prima donna named Miss Haru Onuki, who makes her debut in this spectacle, Dixie Girard and Betty Yorke, a trio of interesting solists. Then there will be Toto again with new comedy interpolations, together with a list of varied novelties from all parts of the world, including the Phantom Guards, conceived by Barney Fagan; Les Grigolatis; the Nichols-Nelson troupe; the Brothers Byrne; Ladella Comiques; the Okita Japanese Athletes; the five Metzettis; the George Davis troupe; the Bryants; "Volant," Gypsy Countess Verona, and the Charles Ahearn troupe.

Powers' Elephants—Lena, Jennie, Roxie and Julie—and Moorey's ponies and horses will share the animal honors this year with a feature Mr. Dillingham brings from the Moulin Rouge in Paris, called "The Revenge of the Lions," performed by Georges Marck's company with thrilling effect abroad and seen now in America for the first time.

The only scene announced in advance, excepting the ballets, is the mammoth minstrel first part, in which four hundred people will participate. In this huge ensemble the principals will be Frank Fogarty, George Wilson, William G. Stewart, Matt Keefe, Joseph Parsons, Henry Taylor, J. Parker Coombs, George Hermann, David Irwin, Emanuel List, Robert Roseire, Austin Walsh, Harry Wardell, Eddie Russell, Charles Revel, William C. Reid, Stanley Ferguson and Miller and Mack.

The same moderate prices as last year will prevail, and matinees will be given daily. The sale of seats for the premiere and the first five weeks started Monday morning.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO NAME FULL TICKET

Call Issued For Convention to Be Held In Elizabeth Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Eugene A. Smith, chairman of the Prohibition County Committee, has just issued a call for the county Prohibition convention for the selection of candidates for Assemblymen, Coroner and other county offices, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before such a meeting.

The convention will be held at Carteret Arms, Elizabeth, on Tuesday evening, September 5, at 8 o'clock. The meeting place is on Borad street, opposite the public library, and but a half minute's walk from the county courthouse.

The speaker of the evening will be Professor Livingston Barbour, for the past twenty-five years a member of the faculty of Rutgers College, who is the Prohibtion candidate this year for United States Senator.

The general public will be cordially invited to attend the convention, and all party Prohibitionists are invited to participate in the business part of the program.

The prohibitionists of Union county are much more active this year than they have been for many years before, and they expect to poll a greatly increased vote at the coming election. A number of street meetings have been held throughout the county under the auspices of the Prohibition County Committee, and others are being planned for the coming weeks. A considerable amount of personal work has been done throughout the county, and quantities of literature are bing distributed.

Former Governor J. Frank Hanley, of Indiana, the Prohibtion candidate for President this year, will begin a tour of the country within a few days in a special train, which will visit hundreds of places from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The train will be in the East the latter part of September and in October. The Union county Prohibitionists will try to have this train stop at one or more points in the county.

NEW BRUNSWICK TO SPEND $15,000 FOR NEW HOSPITAL

New Brunswick, Aug. 31.—Plans for a new permanent hospital to cost $15,000 were approved Tuesday by the city commission. It is to be located at the New Brunswick Homestead farm, in George's road, and will accommodate sixteen patients. A one-story brick structure is to be erected, at a cost of $12,000.

Commissioner Edward Houghton advised the board that the cost to the city of fighting infantile paralysis would be about $8,000, and that the isolation hospital would save the city much expense.

"WORD FROM LORD," ASKS LAND

New Brunswick, Aug. 31.—Declaring he had a message from the Lord, Rev. Elias Jackson, colored, formerly of Plainfield, but now pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church here, appeared before the city commission Tuesday and asked them to give his congregation the old potter's field, in the Second ward, on which to build a chapel. The request was referred to Commissioner James Mershon.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN TRAINING RULES FOR PLAINFIELD DAILY PRESS SWIMMING PUPILS

Famous Swimmer Tells About the Proper Foods, the Time to Eat—About the Use of Goggles to Protest the Eyes—Also About Choosing Your Type of Swimming.

Article No. 27.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

I shall give you today a few points on training. These rules should be followed carefully and they will be found very useful to all of you, whether you are in training or not.

Always remember that if you are competing or attempting a swimming record that the less water you displace, the more of a chance you will have in being successful. Try to glide through the water. Don't splash frantically, for then you will only impede the movement of the body.

Try to cut the water cleanly. I have told you many, many times to perfect yourselves, for it is only by doing so that you will be able to accomplish anything.

If you are entered in, or attempting a long distance swim, eat well the day before. Try to gain a few pounds for you will lose them easily when in the water.

I generally eat a bountiful meal the day before. When I attempted to swim the English channel, just before starting I had my maid rub my body well with a heavy oil until the skin was well coated. I had this done so as to keep the body warm.

For food I always use boiled chicken. But that chicken is so well boiled that it is nothing more than a fluid and I drank it out of a bottle.

On my channel swim I consumed three chickens in six hours.

I am very much against the use of stimulants and always advised all swimmers to beware of them.

The eye too should be well taken care of.

I will tell you what I have used. I seldom attempt a long swim without goggles. These goggles are securely fastened to my eyes and to make doubly sure, they are sealed by an application of bear grease, so that no water can reach them, the ears too, should be well taken care of. There is grave danger, at all times, in the shape of an abscess of the ear for those who swim. I cannot tell you what to use, but there are several articles on the market which you can purchase at the local druggist's which, I believe, are very good.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN, GREATEST WOMAN SWIMMER AND STAR OF WILLIAM FOX $1,000,000 PICTURE

Please do not use a cotton stopper for that is highly dangerous. I try always to wear a rubber cap that will fit tightly about the ears and, if one does not do the trick, I wear two and sometimes three.

When attempting to swim do not try to make it too long a distance until you are absolutely certain you can make it. Always have a rowboat within call. In fact, you should never leave the safety zone without being accompanied by a rowboat. A bottle of alcohol for a rubdown and plenty of warm wraps should be in the boat and ready for you when you have finished your swim.

Conscientious practice of earlier strokes and being able to do them in perfect swimming form, is what will stand the swimmer in good stead when she later tries for the more complicated department of the art.

After the swimmer has acquired a knowledge of the advanced strokes, such as the trudgeon and the crawl, for it is these strokes that are always used when going after a record, her energies are then spent in working up her endurance for speed, depending, of course, on the particular branch in which she intends to specialize. For she cannot be both a distance swimmer and a speed merchant at the same time.

Of course, a distance swimmer may be very fast for distance swimming. But even at that, a fast long-distance swimmer, with a very few exceptions, is never a real sprinter.

A different kind of energy is applied to sprinting, and when a short-distance speed swimmer starts indulging in long swims, almost invariably it is at the expense of snap and vigor.

In distance work the swimmer falls into a steady even stride, pulling as a rule a certain number of strokes to the minute. Of course, a distance swimmer will extend herself and apply her best energies to making the best time possible for the swim she is making, trying, if possible, to take minutes off a record; or, if it is a new swim, to set a mark so low that it will stand unbroken.

Long-distance swimming, if the swimmer is well trained, becomes more or less mechanical after the second or third mile. Again, all long-distance swims, with few exceptions, are made in tidal water, and, of course, the swimmer derives a great amount of help, because no one would think of swimming against the tide.

Short-distance races are usually swum over a still-water course, and this, of course, entails greater effort.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Sea Witch Advises a Little Mermaid.

"You are just in time," the sea witch said.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHAT daddy told Jack and Evelyn right after supper was the story o. a little mermaid's visit to a sea witch: "'I know what you have come for,' the witch said when the little mermaid dove through a mass of polyps to get to the house of bones. 'It is very foolish of you. All the same, you shall have your own way, my fine princess, because it will lead you into misfortune. Just what you want is to get rid of your fish's tail. Instead you want to hobble around on two stumps, just like all human beings. You expect by doing this that a fine young prince will fall in love with you. You want to win him and an immortal soul like his.'

"Saying this, the sea witch gave a horrible loud laugh, so wide that the toads and snakes in her mouth fell out and wiggled about on the ground.

"'You are just in time,' the sea witch went on, 'for after sunrise tomorrow I shan't be able to help you till another year has run its course. I will make you a potion, and before sunrise you must swim ashore with it. Sit down on the beach and drink it. Then your beautiful tail will divide and shrivel up into what men call legs. But it will hurt, just as if sharp swords were sticking into you. All who see you will say that you are the most beautiful child of man they have ever seen. You will keep your gliding gait. No dancer will ever rival you, but every step you take will be as if you were walking upon sharp knives, so sharp as to draw blood. Now, if you are ready to suffer all this for the sake of two legs I will help you.'

"'Yes,' said the little princess mermaid, thinking of her prince and an undying soul.

"'But remember that when once you have received a human form you can never be a mermaid again. You will never be able to dive down to your father's palace again and see your sisters, and if you do not succeed in winning the prince's love so that he will for your sake leave father and mother, cleave to you with his whole heart, let the priest join your hands and make you man and wife you will gain no immortal soul. The first morning after his marriage with another your heart will break and you will turn into sea foam.'

"'I will do it,' said the little mermaid as pale as death.

"'But you will have to pay me, too, and it is no trifle that I demand. You have the most beautiful voice of any in the bottom of the sea. I dare say you think you can fascinate the prince with it. But you must give me that voice. I will have the best of you in return for my precious potion, which I have to mingle of my own blood.'"

Training a Husband

by MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Southy Children Didn't Inherit Their Good Humor from Their Father.

"Marian, the baby is crying," called the high, nervous voice of Morris Southy.

"Can't you take him up, dear. I am right in the midst of scrubbing the kitchen floor and cannot leave very well." It was an unusual request, and it staggered the man for a moment. He rarely touched the baby, and never when he was crying, but under the circumstances he could not well refuse. He picked up the screaming child and took him to his buggy and set him down. This did not meet the views of the young man, and he redoubled his efforts to get his mother.

"I guess you'll have to come," he called. "I cannot stand his screaming."

"I'll be there as soon as I can," was the unexpected answer. "I must get off my wet apron."

"That child does more yelling than any baby I ever saw," complained the husband, as Marian, flushed with hurrying, came into the room and took the child in her arms.

"That is what you have said about them all," was the tart answer, as she left the room.

"I guess this hot weather is souring her disposition," was the injured reflection of the husband as he resumed his work where it had been interrupted when the baby cried.

"Other husbands help with the children; some of them do little helpful things about the house. I have everything to do alone and must stand his complaining besides," thought Marian, bitterly. "I must keep the children quiet, and that is no small matter with three healthy children, and if the baby cries at all he insists it is crying all the time."

The month since the arrival at Fairport had been very hard. The weather had been unbearably hot and that had made the teething baby fretful. Then she was worn out from all the hard work of settling. She had been accustomed to a flat, where everything was on one floor and while she was rejoiced to spread out and have the freedom of room, she realized that the amount of steps necessary to do the work for six in the family were noticeably increased. All water had to be drawn from a well and none of the children were large enough to manage a pump. It never occurred to Morris to draw a bucket of water, or to do anything in fact to assist the never-ending grind of work that kept her traveling from dawn till dark and sometimes far into the night.

She made the baby comfortable; brushed his damp hair from his forehead and set him down in as cool a place as she could find with his playthings around him. He had no notion of amusing himself, however, and reached out his arms to his mother, crying lustily.

Marian stepped to the door and called: "Roger, Frank, come and amuse the baby, children. Mother must get supper and baby had only a short nap and is very cross." The boys came in with a whoop, followed by the three-year-old girl, and the four were soon having a grand time together. The baby's laugh could be heard in the pauses of the others' mirth. Marian heaved a sigh of relief and began her preparations for supper. Suddenly Morris' irate voice sounded in the next room:

"You children go out doors. Your noise will drive me wild. I cannot think of what I want to."

Marian rose and stood in the door. "I sent them in here to amuse the baby, Morris. I must get supper."

"Well, let them amuse the baby, then. They do not have to make a hubbub that can be heard a block. The baby might just as well cry for all the work I can get done." He turned and left the room. Marian sank down on a chair, holding her throbbing head in her hands. A hush had fallen on the merry group. Roger stole to his mother and pulling her hand from her face said: "Are you sick, mother?"

"I have a bad headache, dear; can you not amuse the baby and keep the other children quiet? Mother cannot stand any more noise." The little fellow trotted off and joined the group of sobered children.

"If I can live till school begins I can get along. He will be gone five days in the week then, and we can all get a breathing spell."

ERMINE FOR DRESSY AFTERNOON

By Mary Glynn.

Nothing is impossible in the Realm of Fashion, not even the suggestion that ermine, which has hitherto been confined to use on very dressy evening gowns and wraps, is now to be popularly used to lend a finishing touch to afternoon and street outfits. Of course, to be at all consistent it must necessarily be used only with those fabrics that are exquisite and rich enough to make a harmonious combination. It is rather extraordinary to realize that this gorgeous fur is now to be donned for street wear. Wonderfully clever collarettes are shown with odd and intricate fastening. Muffs are made to go with them, either in melon or pillow shape.

PONTINE FOR THE DRESSY CHAPEAU.

By Mary Glynn.

Whether the European conditions are responsible for the active part that America is taking in developing her domestic resources is not known definitely yet, whatever the cause, it must be admitted that many astonishingly attractive products have come to light. Among those most interesting and coupled with fashionable interests is the new fabric known as pontine. It is a lovely, soft supple, double-faced fabric, with a leather finish on one side and a satin crepe de chine or moire reverse side. Any combination of colors may be had, and when the reverse side of the material is used, the effect is very striking and attractive. As this fabric comes from the loom in greater quantities, it is gradually being adapted in the dressier hats, coats and accessories. Sport coats, golf jackets and hunting outfits in pontine are quite the latest thing. They are exceptionally attractive, and especialy so when combined with some of the pile fabrics that are very new. The hat illustrated was an attractive, broad brimmed model, fashioned in blue pontine, with a reverse of rose. The rose satin side was evident on the under brim and afforded a rich and becoming color note.

Whitehouse

The Rural Hill Cemetery Association in East Whitehouse Monday afternoon elected the following officers: President, William H. Reger; vice president, Grant Davis; secretary, Eugene Hoffman; treasurer, William C. Swackhamer; trustees, Frederick R. Shampanore, Harry C. Van Derveer, George Reger, A. Longstreet Stillwell and H. Martin Messler. Mr. Hoffman was elected overseer of the grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Winternitz, of New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Vander Voort, at Whitehouse Station.

The Young People's Union of the Methodist church, East Whitehouse, will meet Tuesday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Stone.

Arrangements are being made to hold two cottage prayer meetings a week in East Whitehouse during September in preparation for evangelistical services. The prayer meeting September 6 will be at the home of Davis Reed, and that of September 8 at the home of Charles P. Oliver.

Mrs. A. M. Van Derbeek, of Plainfield, is visiting Mrs. John L. Weinrebe at Whitehouse Station.

Harry S. Burdette, of East Whitehouse, and George W. Tine, of Whitehouse Station, will be primary candidates for nomination for justice of the peace in Readington township.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tucker will move from Newark to Lebanon this week.

Nathan L. Tiger, of Penns Grove, is visiting his brother, Peter Tiger, near Lebanon.

Mrs. Carrie Brown and daughter, of New Haven, Conn., are the guests of Mrs. Peter S. Niper, at Lebanon.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

READY TO ARBITRATE.

There seems to be considerable argument in City League circles over an alleged attitude taken by the sporting editor of the Courier-News. The stand taken by that gentleman, while in no way complimentary to the league authorities, may have been prompted by inacquaintance with the facts. For this he should not be censured to such an extent that he is now, in all probability all the more hostile to the welfare of the local circuit. But one thing is certain. First hand information has not been in evidence as far as the gentleman in question is concerned. Therefore, the City League authorities were right in "suggesting" that only first hand information be furnished him. And, as we all know, the only way one can get news "first hand" is by being present when things happen. Let us have harmony. There is no hostility between the City League and the sporting editor of the Courier-News and we hope that there will not be any. Unfriendly feeling on the part of one of the most staunch advertising mediums the league ever had may not result in mutual benefit. We stand ready to arbitrate and await but the word from each of the parties concerned.

HUMOROUS SITUATION.

It certainly strikes us as being rather humorous—if nothing else—that there should be such a battle to secure Parker Field for Labor Day. The supervisor at the playgrounds states that inasmuch as the field has not been used on any of the more recent holidays, he is determined to see it used on Labor Day. Therefore, he issued a permit to the first applicant, who was Manager Warden, of the Westfield A. A. Now comes the manager of the Royal Giants with a lament that he cannot secure the field. The cry that an "outside" team has been given the preference has been set into motion, not by Mr. Simmons, but by various other individuals, who have neither right nor reason for their action. Mr. Warden has been given first choice and is willing to turn the field over to the Royal Giants, if he (Warden) is unable to secure an opponent for the holiday attraction. There should be no wrangling. Mr. Warden evidently applied first and Supervisor Wriston, who has always been fair in his dealings with the teams in this vicinity, issued the permit. Mr. Wriston refuses to back down. And he is perfectly right in refusing to change his stand. "Safety first," by being on hand first will, in all probability, he the Royal motto from this time on.

RACE TIGHTENS.

With the Boston Braves hacking away at the stockade of the Superbas and the Tigers, with the Browns close behind, clawing away at the garters of the Red Sox, it is not at all certain that Joe Lannin's world's champions and Charlie Ebbets' expected world's title-holders will clash early in October in the big baseball classic. Last week it was all settled at this time in the minds of the dopesters that the Superbas and Red Sox were just as good as out on the field fighting for glory, honor and a little extra cash for gasoline and diamonds. But things have changed. The Superbas today lead the Braves by a little more than a single game. The Red Sox have a lead of three games on the Tigers and are four games ahead of the Browns, with the White Sox, Cleveland Indians and Yankees close enough behind to be considered contenders. The Yanks received a staggering blow yesterday when handed a double defeat by the Tigers, but may recover.—Newark News.

M'CARTY SAYS SO.

Doc Johnson, of Pittsburgh, is undoubtedly the best fielding first baseman in the National League. Of late his hitting has not been much to speak of, but there is little wonder. On three different occasions this year stories were published, purporting to originate at the offices of the Pittsburgh ball club, that Johnson would be sold, or traded, or shipped to the minor leagues, just as quickly as anyone could be found who would take him. All wrong stuff. If waivers were asked right now it is almost certain he would be grabbed by some other club. It is stated that at the game last Saturday Barney Dreyfuss was made a flattering offer for the services of Johnson, and if Barney wants to get rid of his first-sacker the Brooklyn club would assume the contract at once. It looks like Johnson is not appreciated or encouraged by the club officials. Stories of being on the block and liable to be chased at any time is not a way to get a fellow enthused over his work. The fans at Forbes field like Doc, even if he is in a batting slump. If the Pirate officials would kick in with a little more boost stuff for Johnson, instead of release stories, it might help.—Pittsburgh Leader.

MAHAN TO COACH.

Eddie Mahan, last year's captain of the Harvard football team and the man who shattered the dream of victory for Yale, left a few days ago for Berkeley, Cal., where he expects to show young backfield players on the eleven at the University of California how he did it back east. Mahan has been in the political game this summer, working for the Democratic party in the Woodrow Wilson Independent League. He believes football is going to be a little more strenuous this year, but doubts whether it will be much of a change except in climate.

Mahan expects to be placed in full charge of the backfield under Coach Andy Smith. He said before he started on his westward journey that it is his opinion California wants to combine Harvard backfield tactics with Smith's strategy.

This is California's second year in football since it returned to the game from rugby which has been played there for several years. Consequently, California players, while not actual rookies, have many of the finer points of the game to learn. Mahan said he expects to have little trouble in giving instruction in the Harvard scientific method.

CITY LEAGUE MEETING CARDED FOR TUESDAY

The City League meeting scheduled for next Monday night will be held on Tuesday, inasmuch as Monday, Labor Day, is a holiday. The Daily Press office will, as usual, be the scene of the gathering.

This meeting is going to be an eventful one. The formal announcement that the Netherwoods are the City League champions will be made. Suitable trophies will be presented to the league leaders on that date.

The chorus choir of the First Baptist church will return to the regular service, beginning the first of September.

FOOTBALL ALREADY OCCUPIES BOARDS

Basketball, Too, Is Coming In For Much Discussion.

Although the baseball season is by no means over, talk regarding the prospects for a successful basketball and football season has already begun in the vicinity of the Tab clubhouse on West Fourth street.

The Tabs propose to place a football team in the field this year, and feel that they will be successful in the undertaking. Plenty of material is to be had, and many of the "vets" are expected to return to the fold. John Disken, Charley Cullen, John Gleason and a score of others have signified their intention of coming out for the squad, and prospects are considered exceedingly bright.

In the basketball line the Tabs have not been idle. The club will put a team i nthe field, and, as far as is known, is not adverse to entering a city league. Eugene Lidgate will in all probablity coach the squad again this year.

JOHN ENZMANN IS NOT GOING TO PITCH

Reports to the Contrary Products of Feverish Minds.

There have been so many unfounded rumors regarding the line-up the Tabs are going to present on Sunday that we have decided to give the public a probable line-up, which will most likely be used by the Abstainers. All rumors to the effect that Johnny Enzmann is going to pitch for the locals have not the slightest truth in them. They are the product of a feverish mind. If some one will donate about $100 perhaps Enzmann will pitch. Otherwise he will not.

At the present time it looks as though Mickey McFadden will be the Tab choice for moundman, with Eugene Lidgate or Frank Teeling behind the bat. There has been considerable talk to the effect that Frank Hand will be used by the Tabs, but there does not seem to be any reason for the announcement. Eddie Hannon will perform at the first station, with "Shaky" Clarke or Tony Denitzio at second. Perhaps Tommy Mullin will be used at short, although he may do the catching. In that event either Clarke or Denitzio will have to be shifted to the outfield. Perhaps one of these players will be benched. Benny Rosenson will play in the infield, with Eddie Coughlin on third. The outfield positions will doubtlessly be taken care of by the surplus infield talent.

Mickey McFadden is considered "easy" by some of the fans, and advice to the effect that a reserve pitcher ought to be secured has been received almost daily. Up to the present time no radical change has been made. Additional information may be had by tomorrow.

TOMMY MULLIN MAY PLAY HERE AFTER ALL

North Avenue Lad Awaits Result of Billy Pfau's Negotiations With Hefferman.

The Perth Amboy clipping that follows would lead the reader to believe that Tommy Mullin will be able to play in this city after all. At least we took it that way:

"The series between the Amboys and the Knights of St. Peter, of New Brunswick, is still hanging fire. Billie Pfau, manager of the Amboys, sent word of his acceptance of the series and the arrangements to Manager Heffernan, of the Knights, on Monday, but so far has received no answer and does not know of the result or decision reached by the county seat team.

"Vain efforts were made to reach Heffernan on the wire today, and, as he was to call up Pfau and tell him all about it, the situation looks dubious to the local man."

Thomas will be a tower of hope to the local teams, and will most likely play with the Dunellens, Tabs and Netherwoods when they perform against the Royal Giants.

Frank Hand is also affected by the notice, and it would not be at all surprising if he was seen in a local uniform. Cliff Randolph will be idle, too. Perhaps Cliff will get into the fray.

Precocity.

"Mercy!" exclaimed Mrs. Diggs. "The baby is chewing on your pocket edition of Epictetus!"

"Indeed," replied Professor Diggs, with a proud and happy look, "let the child alone. It is seldom that a mere infant shows such a pronounced taste for the classics."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

PLANS RAPIDLY NEARING COMPLETION FOR "GOLDEN FLOWER" KENNEL CLUB SHOW

Premium List Given Out—Many Valuable Medals and Cups As Awards—Local Fanciers Take Much Interest In Affair—Judges Selected For Various Classes—Several Kennel Clubs Make Awards—Other Interesting Information.

The premium list for the fifth annual show of the Plainfield Kennel Club has been issued and contains much matter that will provide interesting reading, not only for dog lovers of this city, but for kennel enthusiasts of surrounding localities. The list is entered in an attractive book and Plainfield, the Queen City, is given a "boost" on the first page. Announcement is made that all shows conducted by the local club have been three point affairs and that the last show almost reached the four point work. It is expected that the goal will be reached this time.

The object of the Plainfield Kennel Club, as is briefly stated in the book, is to foster the breeding and showing of thoroughbred dogs and to hold an annual American Kennel Club show; and also to hold club matches during the winter, for the entertainment of members and their friends. The judges for the show are Mrs. Abbie Rubino, of Bergenfield; Fred Hill, of Valley Cottage; R. F. Height, of Lakewood, N. J.; George Greer, of Rye, N. Y.; James T. Meade, of Brooklyn; C. N. Denault, of Pittsfield, Mass.; Udo M. Fleischman, New York city; Dr. J. E. De Mund, of Brooklyn; Vinton P. Breese, of Newark, and Dr. Henry Jarrett, of Philadephia. The show will be governed by the American Kennel Club laws, which are given in full in the booklet. Special attention is called to the variety classes, for which the entrance fee is three dollars.

In the unclassified competition Edmund L. Mackenzie, of this city, offers the president's cup for the best dog or bitch in the show. This prize is open to all. S. S. Carvalho offers the vice-president's trophy for the best sporting dog or bitch, competition being open to all. The bench show committee offers the trophy for the largest exhibit owned by any one kennel or exhibitor. John McE. Bowman, proprietor of the Hotel Biltmore, offers the Hotel Biltmore cup for the best American bred dog or bitch, competition being open to all. James A. Conway offers the treasurer's trophy for the best non-sporting dog or bitch, and John J. O'Donohue offers the secretary's trophy. This class is also open to all. Numerous prizes have been offered by various kennel clubs throughout this section of the country and it is expected that each event will have a large list of contestants.

Of the many kennels offering awards, the following are the most important: Long Island Kennel Club, Bronx Kennel Club, Westminster Kennel Club, Asbury Park Kennel Club, Hudson County Kennel Club and the Woodmere Kennel Club. Prizes have also been offered by the following: Great Dane Club of America, offering the grand challenge trophy for the best team of Great Danes exhibited by a member; Russian Wolfhound Club of America, offering in addition to silver medals, a challenge trophy for the best dog winning the greatest number of points during this year, competition being open to members only; Scottish Deerhound Club of America, offering six club cups; Midlothian Kennels, Donnybrook Farm, American Spaniel Club, Sabo Kennels, Dalmatian Club of America, Bulldog Club and Bulldog Breeders' Association. Many other clubs and associations have offered prizes and each is listed in the booklet.

The Strathway Prince Albert trophy, presented by Alexander H. Stewart for the best dog or bitch owned by a member and scoring the greatest number of points during the year, has also been offered. The Ivel Tyke trophy, presented by Charles E. Lehman, will be presented to the best pair of American bred dogs.

To each child who enters a dog in the children's class, Mrs. John J. O'Donohue will present a box of bonbons. In this class Wilbur H. Purcell offers a trophy for the best, while the Plainfield Kennel Club offers a medal for the best of the opposite sex.

Many of the prizes have been donated by Plainfielders, some of them being: Edmund L. Mackenzie, Miss Julia Mackenzie, John Conway, John J. O'Donohue, Thomas O'Donohue, Jr., L. E. Waring, S. S. Carvalho, William B. Nash, Miss Judith N. Claybrook, Richard J. Harrigan, H. E. Butler, Miss Helen Shoemaker and A. G. Hooley.

The various breeds of dogs that will be in evidence at the local show are as follows Bloodhounds, Mastiffs, St. Bernards, Great Danes, Newfoundlans, Russian Wolfhounds, Irish Wolfhounds, Scottish Deerhounds, Greyhounds, Eskimos, Foxhounds, Pointers, English Setters, Gordon Setters, Irish Setters, Clumber Spaniels, Field Spaniels, Old English Sheepdogs, Beagles, Whippets, Griffons, Dachshunds, Cocker Spaniels, Poodles, Chow-Chows, Dalmatians, Samoyedes, Boxers, Pinschers, Bulldogs, Airedale Terriers, Bull Terriers, Shetland Sheepdogs, French Bulldogs, Boston Terriers, Irish Terriers, Scottish Terriers, West Highland White Terriers, Welsh Terriers, Ekye Terriers, Dandie Dinmonts, Bedlington Terriers, Schopperkes, Pomeranians, Toy Spaniels, Japanese Spaniels, Pekingese, Toy Poodles, Yorkshire Terriers, Brussels Griffons, Chihuahuas, Italian Greyhounds and Miniature Bulldogs.

The show will be held on September 23 at the Horse Show grounds on Randolph road. Judging will begin promptly at 10:30 in the morning, and entries close one week from tomorrow. The next meeting of the bench show committee will be held in the Queen City Hotel on Tuesday evening, September 5, when it is expected that the entry list will be made known to the public. Special trolleys will meet the train leaving New York at 8:15 a. m., and the train leaving the Reading Terminal in Philadelphia at 7:30 a. m. These trains have been chartered for this occasion.

Much publicity has already been given the project by Walter I. Firstbrook, sporting editor of the Courier-News and by Joseph A. Gallagher, the sporting editor of the Plainfield Daily Press. Any information will be gladly furnished by either of these two writers and copies of the premium list may be obtained in a few days. Application for copies may also be made to Wilbur Purcell, superintendent of the show, which is to be known as the "Golden Flower Show."

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

According to the most reliable information, the Royal Giants and the Netherwoods will not pastime on Parker Field on Monday. It seems that Manager Warden, of the Westfield A. A., has already obtained a permit to stage an attraction on the popular playground. Never before, has the resort been so much in demand.

The contention raised is that the one who comes first is served first. That may be a very fair way of dealing, but there ought to be some exceptions to the rule. If a "kid" organization applies before a recognized team does, then the "first shall be last." But Manager Warden says that his outfit is no "kid" aggregation and that he can prove his contention.

There may be some truth in the rumor that the City League is going to take up a subscription to obtain money enough to furnish several umpires with glasses.

Handing out compliments finds most of the fans ready to agree that Trust is the Ty Cobb of the circuit. Trust's only fault is that he wants to run all the time—and the rival managers find reason to argue.

Headline reads "Netherwoods Want to Play on Own Grounds." Then, the article goes on to say that the South Avenue field is not a good one. And, it isn't. A slight tap to right field, situated in the middle of South avenue, is worth two bases, at least. Of course, each team is equally handicapped by the condition of the field, but Pete Simmons is willing to forfeit his handicap.

Wonder if Jack Denny will continue to pitch "no hit" games? John is always on the job and will surely get one of the "perfect" games out of his system.

Would that Plainfield had a manager of the Billy Pfau type. At least, the newspapers would be sure of an easy life. Pfau furnishes much gossip and is his own press agent. Most of the leadrs in this city expect plenty of press notices and never furnish the material. But, then some people are naturally mind readers.

About the funniest instance we can recall is that of an intelligent young man stating to his admiring friends that "Johnny Enzman is gong to pitch for the Tabs on Sunday." There is about as much chance of Enzman pitching as there is of Jack Martin becoming president of the American Association. At that, Jack might become president.

If the Dunellen management succeeds in landing two games with Bernardsville the national game will receive a regular boost. Dunellen is, by no means, a weak outfit and would furnish the fans of Bernardsville with some real baseball. We hear that the country town has a good baseball team and believe that a double bill with the runners-up in the City League race would prove a "big" attraction.

The Knights of Columbus of Somerville have a baseball team. The manager of the local Tabs ought to get busy.

In another column will be found the possible lineup of the Tab team. This lineup will, in all probability, be the one presented by the Abstainers when they face the Royal Giants on Sunday.

Can the Royals hit Johnny Dixon, Mickey McFadden and Russ Stewart? We can hear "Tune" Kline announcing to the startled multitudes that the Royals "can hit anything." Demonstrations are in order.

Miss Corrinne Tennyson, of this city, who now holds the position of private secretary to the general secretary of the Missionary Laymen's Movement in New York, is enjoying her vacation at Kingston, N. Y.

Open Door and a Light.

The wives of north country colliers observe a very touching and pathetic custom when an accident occurs in the pit.

Directly it is known to the wife of a collier that an accident has happened in the pit where her husband works and that his fate is uncertain she throws open the house door, and, however inclement the weather may be, she keeps the door open and a candle burning in the window night and day till the man is brought home, dead or alive. In some cases the door has remained open and the candle slight several weeks, even months.—London Graphic.

FALL SHOES

They've been coming in fast these past few days—but first a word about the general shoe situation.

Lots of talk going on about tremendous advances in prices and depreciated qualities. Much basis of truth in it too, but not as much as many stores would have you believe—not at this store.

Remember this: Van Arsdale's is run for the benefit of the people of Plainfield.

We buy carefully and try to buy wisely and at the right time, and in good quantities. And so, while prices have had to be advanced in some instances—you'll get a square deal in values here this season as always. Depend upon it.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

"Stirring news" today—war news, local news, store news.

If values and prices ruled about alike in all stores at all times, there would not be any such thing as store competition. And, as finding desirable values would require no especial knowledge or insight, store advertising would be superfluous.
